Court hears good news on financial report for 2016-17

By: Mike French
 The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court looked over the fourth quarter financial report during Tuesday's regular monthly meeting.

The report shows a total carryover from the previous fiscal year (07-01-16 to 06-30-17) of $1,145,070.80.

Rockcastle County Judge/Executive Doug Bishop praised the efforts of each department and fiscal court members. "Carlos (McClure, Jailer) has once again come in well under budget while doing a fine job as jailer and members of this court have shown a deep dedication to this community. Sometimes I wish people knew how many hours you each put in. Nights, holidays, weekends or any other time. Even just myself alone calls you at all hours of the night."

According to the report, the general fund shows a cash balance of $715,096, the Road Fund, $235,657 and the jail fund, $63,331.59. In fact, every fund listed on the financial statement showed a carry at the end of the final quarter.

In other action, Larry Davidson, of the Rockcastle Outdoor Company continued his efforts to get the county to allow four-wheelers and side-by-sides on public roads.

Davidson brought facts and figures from other counties who had legalized such activity and demonstrated for the court how tourism increases once such a measure is taken.

Sheriff Mike Peters told the court that in his opinion, "we can't give people permission to break the law."

Magistrate Bill McKinney said he is interested in knowing which roads Davidson is proposing to allow four-wheeler travel.

Bishop said he would consider the option in the future but would not want the four-wheelers on gravel or dirt roads because they would tear up the gravel which would have to be replaced at the county's expense.

The court agreed to look into legalities and insurance requirements and possible permits and fees for allowing four-wheelers to travel these roads.

In other business, the court addressed the issue of the toddler recently killed by a car on Old Slate Road (aka Fairview Church Road).

Bishop said the tragedy brings to light the issues involved in that area. "It's a terrible spot right there and we can't save that life, but we might be able to save another," he said.

At Bishop's request, the court agreed to place three speed limit signs and a stop sign in the area in front of the church where the boy was killed.

The court also agreed to install "Dead End" signs and

Some school tax rates may rise slightly

Still lower than surrounding counties

By: Mike French

After standard operations and actions were approved, members of the Rockcastle County Board of Education moved directly into discussing the new school tax rate during Tuesday's regular board meeting.

Superintendent David Pensol presented the proposed tax rate to the board which includes raising the real estate tax from 40.9¢ per $100, to 41.4¢. The personal property rate will also go from 40.9¢ to 41.4¢ and the motor vehicle tax will remain the same rate it has been since 2006 at 48.3¢.

Pensol says this recommendation to the board will generate 4% more revenue based on property valuation assessments. However, Pensol says if the board adopts the compensating tax rate, of 39.9¢ and lowers the tax rate, it will "make it difficult next year if property assessments do not continue to increase."

Raising the tax rate to 41.4¢ will increase the revenue to the school board by $199,222.

A Notice of Hearing for the new tax rate must be published twice in the Mount Vernon Signal and hearing will be held on August 24 at 7 p.m. at the board of education building on Richmond St. after which the board will decide whether or not to increase the rate at the September meeting.

Once the tax rates are set, the school board notifies the state department of education and the Rockcastle County Clerk. The clerk then generates tax bills and the sheriff's office handles collections for a 4% collection fee.

During the last school year, the district received $1,834,733.96 from tax revenue and paid $73,020.67 to the sheriff's office, according to Pensol.

Even with the increased tax rate, Rockcastle County remains one of the lowest tax rates among surrounding counties. Berea, according to KED, is set at 89.1¢, more than double Rockcastle's rate, while the closest county to the local rate is Estill County at 45.4¢.

The board also agreed to further discuss the current tentative budget during the special meeting on August 24 since the finalized working budget must be presented during the September meeting.

Pensol urged members of the board to look closely at the tentative budget before the special meeting. "SEEK funding is dropping. We would lose important services without this tax increase," he said. "We have done a good job at maximizing what we have but things are tight and going to get tighter."

In fact, Pensol presented calculations and reports from the Kentucky Department of Education demonstrating that Rockcastle County is forecasted to receive $833,215 less this year

Backpack Food Drive is underway

By: Mike French

Again this year, the Backpack Food Drive is up and running for students throughout Rockcastle County.

The Kentucky Retired Teacher's Association announced that last year, over 27,000 food items (3,500 in Rockcastle County alone) were donated statewide to food banks or child-centered backpack programs.

According to Regina Burton, Retired Teacher's Association Community Service Coordinator, the local backpack program is facilitated by Rockcastle County School Youth Service Coordinators. The program provides students, who may not have access to weekend meals, with easily prepared nutritious food items.

According to Angie Payne, coordinator at RCMS, about 130 local students benefit from the program. "It's a huge relief for these kids to know they will have something to eat over the weekend. Sometimes they are hungry enough that they immediately jump right in and start eating things from the backpack and other times they say their siblings haven't had anything in a while and they have to take it home to them. It's a very sad thing."

The Rockcastle Retired Teachers Association chose to spearhead the project due to their awareness of the problem. But while the local association started the food drive, it quickly became a community project with many local businesses and individuals getting involved and making dona-

RCIDA looks at Rockcastle magazine

By: Mike French

The Rockcastle County Industrial Development Authority held their regular monthly meeting Monday at the Rockcastle County Courthouse.

The meeting opened with acting Director Corey Craig passing out examples of the newly-printed Rockcastle Kentucky magazine which was recently published through coordinated efforts of the Chamber of Commerce and the Development Board and coordinated by Lynn Tatum.

Craig said the magazine is put together very well and places Rockcastle County in a strong positive light. "This magazine will be a strong addition to our community and provides very useful information to anyone who may be looking into visiting or locating in our community."

Craig said the magazine will be distributed in many locations and can also be used as a marketing tool to get a business to locate within the county.

Craig said it had been several years since the last magazine was published and he hopes there will be another one with updated information in a few years from now.

After the board had the chance to look over the fi-

Aces Over

By: Mike French

You know what I'd really like to have? Money. Like a really big bunch of money. Like a never-worry-about-money-again amount of money.

I've never really had that. Oh, I've saved a few thousand here and there but just about the time I start feeling safe, my air conditioner blows up and costs about 20% more than I had saved.

So, I spend the next couple of years saving and scrimping again till I get maybe three grand built up when the transmission suddenly goes out of the truck. But if for some reason I fix the transmission, and it didn't use all my savings, I'll come home from the mechanic to find my truck taxes are due and my washing machine quit.

I've always been a very firm believer that whatever a man or woman earns is theirs to keep or to spend or to save however they see fit. It's not the neighbor's business or the family's business and most definitely not the government's business.

Still several years ago I was at a casino and just to see what it felt like, I walked over to the "high roller" side of the room.

I watched them play for a while, especially this one oversized dude who had a very scantily dressed gal hanging all over him while he was playing poker.

He was tossing $10,000 chips out onto the table and not even looking at his cards. As he was hugging all up on this gal and laughing and smoking a cigar that was probably worth more than my whole carton of cigarettes, he kept tossing ten grand out there. Then when he lost it, his expression didn't even change.

The next hand, he did the same thing. Over and over and over again.

I was thinking to myself, if he would just skip one tiny hand for one moment of the whole night and hand me that chip instead of throwing it away, it would change my entire world. Yet to him it seemed to be little more than tossing a Pepsi can away after he finished it.

As I walked away I couldn't help but have a little involuntary jerk every time I heard that $10,000 chip clank into the center of the table.

I went back to my nickel machine and hoped for the big jackpot of $2,500. I didn't win.

Even to this day I sometimes wonder what that big old fellow is doing and how he accumulated so much money that $10,000 meant nothing to him.

But, as I pondered the

Points East

By Ike Adams

After an absence over the past few years, Charlie Brown Road has been blessed, this spring and summer, with a covey of Bobwhite quail. I'm guessing there's at least a dozen of them because I often hear them calling to one another from that many locations in the hayfields and pastures that border our place on all four sides. It's not unusual to see a couple or more actually strolling through the lawn or garden.

We usually don't hear much from them until the sun is pretty high the sky and they have spread out from wherever they roosted the night before, at which time they will begin calling, I suspect, to more or less stay in touch with one another. Bob whites have three very distinct calls that I interpret as a sing-song "Where-you at? Where-you at? Where-you at?" along with "Over here, Over here, Over here" and another that simply sounds like, "It's me or I'm here." The latter sound is almost always made in a two syllable announcement while the first two are repeated over and over. And they are almost always on the ground.

But on the morning of this writing, I stepped out onto the front porch just after dawn had broken and the first bird song I heard was a quail uttering first one and then another of the aforementioned calls in fairly rapid succession.

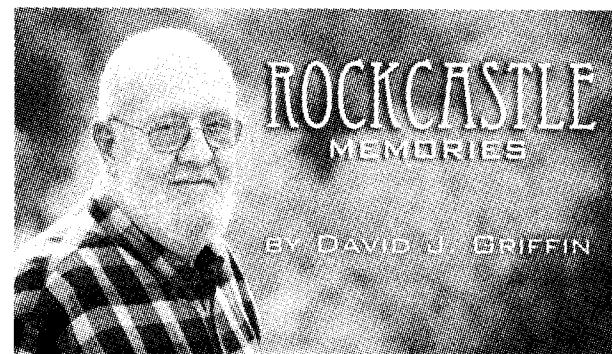

Two things immediately seemed wrong. In the first place, it seemed way too early in the morning for the quails to be out and about. In the second place the call was coming from near the top of a 40-foot tall wild cherry tree at the edge of our yard and I can count on the fingers of one hand the number of times I've seen a quail perched on anything other than the top of a fence post more than 5 feet above the ground. Quail are flat footed and simply don't have enough sense of balance to perch on tree limbs. But, within less than a minute, I began hearing answering calls from down in the pastures behind and beside the house. Perhaps it was my imagination but the answering calls did, in fact, seem to be asking, "What-the-heck? What-the-heck? What-the-heck?"

This went on for about 5 minutes before I stepped out into the yard to try and get a glimpse of the one that was obviously way up in the cherry tree. Finally it did fly from one limb to another but it was not a quail. It was a very fat mockingbird that seemed to be having great fun. I laughed out loud and seconds later the mocker mimicked my laugh in such a way that I would have sworn I was hearing a human. I doubt, however, that the quail were as equally amused.

In other bird news we have also had the first rain crows, this summer, that

The Perpetual Penny

While reading an article about the production of United States coins, I discovered that it now actually costs 2.4 cents to manufacture a single penny. This information is provided by none other than the United States Mint.

The article noted that pennies were originally (1837) made from 95 percent copper and 5 percent zinc. That composition basically remained unchanged until 1982, when the US Mint adjusted the alloy to almost the exact opposite: 97.5 percent zinc and 2.5 percent copper.

Reading about the changes made in the alloy of a penny reminded me of a chemistry lab that I had my classes perform when I was a high school chemistry teacher. In my chemical stockroom, there were two separate jars containing pennies - one labeled "before 1982" and the other "after 1982." My students were assigned to compare the density, weight, and the reaction to certain chemicals between the two specific coins. The students never failed to be amazed at the differences that they found.

I began an interest in coin collecting when I was just a young boy. My mother (Bee) was serving as the ticket agent for the Mt. Vernon Greyhound Bus Station on Main Street in Mt. Vernon. Once, while in the process of selling a ticket, she noticed an unusual coin in the cash register. Upon examining it, she decided to take that coin and replace it with a Washington coin from her purse.

That evening, she handed over the unusual coin to me. It was an 1856 Seated Liberty quarter, which is composed of silver. That coin became the first coin in my collection. The year was 1952. With the assistance of Bill Cox, the father of my best friend, I set out on a life-long interest in coin collecting. By 1980, my collection had grown to over $5,000 in value.

Contained in my collection are several books of US pennies, from which I have noted some interesting facts. All of the faces on US coins currently in circulation face left, except for Abe Lincoln on the penny. In addition, it is not all that well known that, in 1943, the composition of the coin was changed to zinc-coated steel because the copper was needed in the US war effort during the Second World War.

From 1859 to 1909, the design of the penny was known as an Indian Head penny. I have several of these distinctive coins in my personal collection.

Prior to that, from 1793 until 1857, the cent was a copper coin about the size of a half-dollar. The cost of copper at the time made this coin impractical; therefore, in 1857, the Mint issued a

From the Dark to the Glorious Light

Dear Journal,

Well, here it is, "Blue Monday", as they say. This Monday is more gray and has thick gray clouds filled with heavy rain. Two weeks from today there will be a total eclipse of the sun. I've been hearing about it now for several weeks and now the date is almost here. I hope it isn't a "gray" Monday as well.

I've thought about going over to western Kentucky where the viewing is better, as some of the area will be in the direct path of the event. All of the hotels, campsites, and other accommodations have been booked for months. Even private citizens are renting their houses for outrageous prices, and are charging hundreds of dollars per car for a place to park in an open field. There is an area, a mountainous or raised area of some sort about seven miles out of Hopkinsville that is the absolute best. There are a bunch of scientists, astronomers, and people from NASA coming to study the eclipse from there.

There are about one million or more people expected to make their way to the western part of the state. The police, ambulance services, restaurants, hotels, and other businesses are expected to be overwhelmed. I think I and my wallet

Time was wasted...

Dear Editor:
I am often seen around the area walking and carrying my backpack. For cost reasons, and to avoid frustration, I rarely use RTEC. However, yesterday, I needed to do so as I needed to travel from Mt. Vernon to Brodhead.

I scheduled my ride last Wednesday asking to be picked up at the Mt. Village Apartments in Mt. Vernon at 12:30 p.m. A good bit after 12:30 I called RTEC to find out how soon I might be picked up. I was told that I was supposed to be picked up first, but the operator had picked up someone else before me.

When I finally boarded the bus, I was told that the operator would be picking up yet another passenger. My plan was to be in Brodhead just before 1 p.m. This was not going to happen.

I then endured a meandering trip around our area. At this point, I reminded the operator that I'm in the minority who must pay for each RTEC ride. I asserted that cash riders should be accorded priority status, unless there is an emergency.

There is an inconvenient truth present when RTEC receives cash they can use immediately. Processing Government vouchers can take up to six months. We provide a most useful benefit to RTEC and gain nothing for it.

I'm reminded of another program that places people in troubling position of paying increasing amounts of money to provide for people who seem to have little. This is Obamacare, AKA "Rob Peter to Pay Paul" Care or "Robin Hood Care." 80¢ cents a mile is rough to handle on a limited income, which is my situation.

Over the last few years, both in the US and in our Commonwealth, we've elected leaders who get that money belongs to the individual and not to them. As for me, I value both my time and my money. Yesterday, my time was wasted!

situation, I realized it must all be relative.

I have what I consider to be a nice truck. It's kind of fixed up with extra chrome and loud pipes and such.

As I consider how this fellow's $10,000 would turn my life around, I bet sometimes if I drive through a particularly unfortunate area, someone is thinking "If that guy just did without those chrome bed rails, my whole family could eat for two weeks."

So it all depends upon one's perspective, I guess.

I've read some statistics that suggest that many of those who win millions of dollars in a state lottery are broke and filing bankruptcy within a few years.

I've heard that the love of money is the root of all evil. So, I get by each week picking out which bill to pay and which bill will not be late if it waits till next payday.

Having money trouble seems to be a universal issue. I don't think I have ever met a person who says they have enough and they do not want any more.

But I do believe hard times builds one's character. I wish one day we would have a President who actually had spent a little time in his early life going through a Wal-Mart line and having to put something back because they didn't have enough to pay for it all.

When one is buying groceries for the family, that moment of deciding what to put back, teaches you a lot about life.

Maybe one day I will be standing at the edge of the woods having my coffee in the morning and I will find a briefcase full of money. Hey, stranger things have happened to me at the edge of the woods.

I've heard in over a decade in the woods across the road.

"Rain crows" are what we hillbillies grew up calling yellow-billed cuckoos. They are much smaller than mourning doves, though somewhat similarly shaped, but their calls are similar enough that it's very easy to mistake a dove's call for a rain crow. However the sounds are very distinctly different if you hear both reasonably close together. Rain crows also often make a guttural, coughing, "kook-kook-kook" sound before they make their cooing call that is somewhat similar to a dove's song.

You are not apt to hear a rain crow unless the barometric pressure is falling and, more often than not, you'll get a rain not long after you hear one. They are also prone to call when a rain shower is over.

I was in college before I learned that the proper name for rain crows was yellow-billed cuckoo. I'd heard them called storm crows but never cuckoos.

However, if you want to look them up and have a computer with speakers, there are several web pages devoted to bird sounds on the internet. The best one, in my opinion, is What Bird.com where you can also find photos.

In the meantime I feel blessed to have enough time in retirement to sit and listen to the birds sing. Try it. You might find yourself entertained as well. It's better and a heck of a lot cheaper than cable or satellite TV.

new coin called the Flying Eagle cent. The size of this new coin is the same size that it is presently.

Even something as simple as a penny (or coin collecting in general) can serve as a teaching asset for many subjects, including history, art, and science.

But frankly, since it is costing significantly more to create a penny than it is even worth, I have to believe that at some point we will give them up. I would like to sign on as giving my approval to such an idea. After all, think what it would do to the value of my collection!

I will not, however, be holding my breath. The perpetual penny lives on.

would be overwhelmed, too, so I'll be watching the event from my own back yard. As I understand it, this area, eastern Kentucky, will be able to see about 95% to 96% totally free. If we miss it, there will be another on April 8, 2024 in almost the same path, over Kentucky...the western portion. I may be around for that one by the grace of God. The next eclipse to cross the continental U.S. will be Aug. 12, 2045. I would be 86 if I'm still living. Then on Sept. 14, 2099. I sure hope the great grand kids will wear the proper sun glasses for this one. I'm going to be long gone.

Bessie Agnes McKinney

Bessie Agnes Noe McKinney, 95, died at her home in Arlington Heights, OH on Wednesday, July 19, 2017, after a long battle with Alzheimer's and Parkinson Disease.

Born September 19, 1921 in Rockcastle County to her parents, Jarve and Fannie Noe. She was one of seven surviving children. They were raised in a Christian home, on a farm in Mt. Vernon. As a child, she went to school in a one room school house, went to church in a horse drawn wagon and assisted with the various household responsibilities around the farm.

On December 18, 1938, having just turned 17, she married Delbert McKinney. They would have five children together: Doris Jean, Loretta, Barbara, Eddie and Ronnie.

They lived in Mt. Vernon after they married and would eventually move to Cincinnati before the births of their three surviving children. Agnes stayed at home to raise their kids while Delbert worked until his passing 45 years ago. After Delbert's passing, Agnes would go to work herself to provide for her family and would continue to work until retiring 25 years ago from Fusitein Norwood.

Agnes grew up as a member of Freedom Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon. She was an original charter member of Eastern Hills Baptist Church in the Cincinnati suburb of Fairfax, OH and remained a member for the entire lifetime of the church, with the church closing two years ago. At the time of her passing, she was a member of Commencement Church in Colerain Township.

Family was everything to Agnes - that is what she will be remembered most for. This was evidenced by her presence at seemingly anything and everything that happened for generations of her family. She was always there, whatever it was. She also always wanted to help, willing to extend a helping hand to her children and grandchildren if they ever encountered an obstacle set before them or just needed a little bit of assistance. She was a God-fearing woman, and her personal faith in Christ and commitment to her church was extremely important to her. She was never openly critical of anyone, even if their actions stood contrary to her beliefs. Any perception of her being critical or judgmental, often a stereotype of people of faith in her generation, would have been an unfair label to be placed on her and would really serve as evidence of someone not truly knowing her as a person, because that just wasn't Agnes.

Agnes will be forever remembered as Granny. Not only was she Granny to her nine grandchildren, along with their children and grandchildren, three generations of grandchildren in all spread over the last 50 years of her life; but she was Granny to all of the neighborhood kids, where she lived next to the neighborhood park for nearly 70 years. She will be known for Sunday dinners, desserts in the dishwasher, the finest Tupperware in Arlington Heights (some of you might call them Cool-Whip or butter bowls), sitting at the 50-yard line on cool, Fall Friday nights. She will be remembered for her crooked fingers being crossed while her grandchildren shot free throws, shopping at the Reading IGAs, fried corn bread, potato soup, green stuff, "fake" cheesecake and sausage gravy and biscuits. But most importantly, she will forever be known as the great matriarch of her family. She hosted Sunday meals so that she could bring her family together weekly. There was some good eating during those meals, but the friendships between cousins and the love of a mother and grandmother is what will be remembered by those that attended. She was always present. 3 children and 9 grandchildren who all graduated from Lockland High School meant that Agnes spent a great amount of time on the campus of Lockland Schools, attending sporting events, concerts, assemblies, awards programs and 12 graduation ceremonies. And her home was always open and available to anyone. The front door of her home was never locked during daylight hours and the backdoor key was always in the dust pan.

Agnes is survived by: her two brothers, Jack and James Noe; one sister, Margie Brown; along with brother-in-laws, Irvin and Floyd Brown; and sister-in-law, Karen Noe.

She is survived by: her three children and their spouses, Barbara and Donald Hoskins of Trenton, OH, Eddie and Linda McKinney of Arlington Heights, OH and Ronnie and Cheryl McKinney of Hamilton, OH; and her nine grandchildren and their spouses, Lisa and James Spears, Donald and Sarah Hoskins, Gregory and Melissa Hoskins, Christopher and Erin McKinney, Joshua and Melissa McKinney, Nicholas McKinney and Jessica Bates, Matthew and Amy McKinney, Michael and Michele McKinney and Candice and Ryan Hach. She is also survived by 28 great grandchildren; four great great grandchildren; and a number of nieces and nephews, friends and family.

Agnes was preceded in death by: her husband of 34 years, Delbert McKinney; two of their children, Doris Jean and Loretta; her parents, Jarve and Fannie Noe; sisters, Sylvia and husband Albert Long, Suzie and husband Jay Chaney and Delora Brown; and sister-in-law, Lois Noe. She was also preceded in death by her granddaughter-in-law, Tracey Hoskins.

Visitation and services took place on Sunday, July 23 at the Vorhis & Ryan Funeral Home in Springdale, OH. Visitation, along with funeral and burial took place on Wednesday, July 26 at her home church, Freedom Baptist Church, in Mt. Vernon, where she will be laid to rest next to her beloved husband, Delbert and her two baby girls, Doris Jean and Loretta.

Local arrangements by Dowell & Martin Funeral Home. Please visit www.DowellMartin.com to view online obituary.

An encouraging word:

An Enigmatic Experience

By Howard Coop

It was an enigmatic experience, and I was truly baffled by it.

On Sunday morning, August 8, 1971, six of us who had traveled together across Europe for almost three weeks, went to church at Wesley Chapel in London, England. John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, laid the corner stone for that church on April 21, 1777. It was the first Methodist chapel erected in London, and it became known as "the Mother Church of Methodism." Because of the historic significance of that church and my association with Methodism, I was truly excited to be there.

After the service, we had an opportunity to talk with the Rev. Colin Morris, the minister, for a few minutes. Then, a member of the congregation graciously showed us around. The first thing he showed us, and a significant one, was the room in John Wesley's home where, each day when he was in London, he sat at a Queen Anne walnut table for his daily devotionals. One of the group suggested that I sit for a moment at that table in Wesley's chair and pose for a picture. I did, and the flash did not work. The picture was no good.

From that special room, we were taken back to the church where our host pointed to the pulpit and told us that Wesley preached from it when he was in London. Again, one of the group suggested that I ascend the flight of steps and stand in John Wesley's pulpit for a picture. I did, and, to my amazement, the flash on the camera failed a second time. The other six members of our group laughed, and we went back to the New Londoner Hotel and enjoyed a typical British lunch.

It was a privilege to sit where John Wesley sat for his devotions and stand where he stood and preached, but I was humbled and left Wesley Chapel with the thought from my friends in my mind, "Let that camera be a reminder! You're no John Wesley."

Registration for mentor-youth dove hunts changing

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is changing its application process for the popular mentor-youth dove hunts being offered Sept. 2. The hunts allow adults to take kids hunting in dove fields that limit the number of participants.

Traditionally, people had to call the department to sign up for a mentor-youth dove hunt. These were handled on a first-come, first-served basis. By switching to an online registration, more people can apply, with the winners being selected at random. There is no fee to apply.

"The idea behind this is to create a fairer system," said John Brunjes, migratory bird program coordinator for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "People who had the ability to call at 8 a.m. on the first day of registration had an advantage over those who could not."

Online registration for these hunts is now open and concludes at 4:30 p.m. (Eastern) Aug. 18. Hunters can find dove field locations, maps and online applications at fw.ky.gov, the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife website. Field locations will also be published in the department's dove hunting guide.

Kentucky will offer four mentor-youth dove hunting fields this season.

"People have two weeks to apply," Brunjes said. "Mentors must go online and complete the registration. Then, they can go back to the website on Aug. 25 to see if they were drawn for the mentor hunt."

Earlier this year, U.S. Senator Mitch McConnell appointed Tapp to the United States’ Coordinating Council for Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

Recently, Tapp represented the Kentucky Court of Justice on Governor Bevin’s Criminal Justice Policy Assessment Council and has served as co-chairperson of the Circuit Judges’ Judicial Child Fatality Task Force.

Tapp frequently presents at legal education conferences, has served as adjunct faculty at the University of Louisville Brandeis School of Law and is frequently consulted regarding implementation issues affecting the judiciary.

He received his law degree from the University of Louisville, a master’s degree in Criminal Justice Administration from Chaminade University of Honolulu and his B.A. from Morehead State University.

Tapp noted the problems which face much of the region’s population. “Our communities are facing major issues that have overwhelmed families—drugs, crime, poverty, education and under-employment are issues continuously hurting our community. As judge, I’ve focused my efforts to provide meaningful treatment to those who need it and to hold offenders accountable. Through team work with the public and private sector, we’ve worked to improve the quality of jobs which are available to many and reduced the barriers to obtaining meaningful employment,” stated Tapp. “These are the things that we have to do to solve the problems which plague Kentucky families. These issues all play out in our courts. And it is our responsibility to address these issues whenever appropriate.”

Tapp has been widely recognized for his work with treatment courts including the 2011 All Rise award from the National Association of Drug Court Professionals. In addition, in 2015, Tapp’s drug court became only the fifteenth, out of over 2,500 worldwide, to be presented the Community Transformation award by the NADCP, and he has garnered national attention for implementing a model community supervision probation program.

“I’ve been blessed to serve Kentucky as a judge and I have more still to contribute,” stated Tapp. “I believe in the limited but crucial role that the courts play in our system of government and I am mindful of the lessons that my parents taught me and that I’ve tried to instill in my own children—work hard, help out wherever you can and believe in others.”

Judge Tapp resides in Somerset with his wife, Debbie. They have five daughters, three sons-in-law and one grandchild. Judge Tapp attends Somerset First United Methodist Church and Debbie is a member of First Baptist Church. Outside of volunteer activities related to his profession, Judge Tapp has been active with the American Cancer Society, local civic groups, and he and his wife have served on church mission trips.

in SEEK funding alone than it did in the 2011-12 school year.

The board also discussed the possibility of closing school on Monday, August 21 for the solar eclipse as some surrounding counties have done, including Madison.

However, board members agreed that the extremely rare event will be the best possible time to teach students about the solar system and a host of other science subjects.

The board members also reviewed the Superintendent’s Personnel report.

Ken Hopkins has been hired as Transportation Director, replacing Chris Cornelius who retired June 1st. Hopkins gave his first department head report during Tuesday’s meeting and told board members that he is tracking the two new buses the district has ordered and they are on their way.

Resignations were: Sarah Hansford, School Psychologist Intern; Donald Bradley, gas pump security; Chris Wren, assistant football coach at RCMS; Scott

Substitute Classified hires were: Zachary Loudermilk, substitute lawn care, Leslie Burns, substitute instructional assistant, Jessica Miles, substitute instructional assistant and Kimberly Graves, substitute cook/baker.

Substitute Certified hires were: Jeff Hammond, Tom Atkin, Peggy Akin, Cody Moore, Raychel McKinney, Roy Reynolds, Jourdan Blanton and John Davis, all as substitute teachers.

Andrew Laswell has volunteered as assistant fishing coach and Ronald Arnold retired as Custodian at BES.

tions, according to Burton.

“The way the program works is simple,” said Burton. “After donations are received, schools’ youth service coordinators send a bag of easily prepared nutritious food/snacks home with identified children on Fridays.”

Payne says the program has helped many children over the years and continues to grow each year. Children are referred from parents or friends and from teachers, who may have seen the need in a student during the year.

“There is no budget or red tape or politics. It’s just people caring and helping,” said Payne. “Imagine if the rest of the world worked this way.”

One of the few areas that Payne says she and others are working on is an attempt to help high school students, who may be in need of help but won’t accept it. “We know of some students at the high school level, who could really use the food on the weekends, but, at that age, pride starts to kick in and they won’t accept it anymore.”

There is also a way that you can help.

Donations will be collected at the next Retired Teachers Association meeting which will be Wednesday, August 16th at Limestone Grille at 11:30 a.m.

Youth service coordinators will be on hand to help with collections.

Suggested items include: peanut butter or cheese crackers, pudding, fruit snacks, chicken noodle soup, fruit cups, Vienna Sausages, Beanie Weenies, chips and drinks such as Sunny D or Capri Suns. Monetary donations will also be accepted with checks made payable to RRTA.

financial statement and budget and approve it the August statements, members agreed to walk through the Jones Building on Main Street to get a better idea of the work that will be required to bring the building up to usable condition.

A recent request by a foster care company started the board’s interest in reevaluating the possibilities of bringing the building up to current code requirements to make certain the building is structurally sound for occupancy.

Craig said recent investigations into the subject led him to believe that the county would not be required to bring the building up standards mandated by the Kentucky Historical Society, unless they choose to do so, and could still be utilized for something such as the office for the foster care company.

The cost, to bring the building up to the standards of the historical society, can sometimes be prohibitive.

In a final action, the board moved the September meeting from September 4 to September 11 due to the Labor Day holiday.

Yards to Paradise

By Max Phelps
Fast Growing Trees

Quit often the question comes up; What tree will give me shade in a hurry? And the comment; This two story house sure needs some bigger trees in a hurry! Let's look at a few trees that might work in these situations and solve the problem for you.

Maples are the first choice in many yards. The silver maple tree will often average six feet per year the first half dozen years, which puts it in a rare class. But, the wood is more brittle in windstorms, and the roots grow at the surface of the yard and will be a problem for mowers, and also for sidewalks, foundations and driveways.

Some of the crosses between silver maples and the slower growing red maple, such as "Autumn Blaze" are what I suggest. Growth rate may be four feet or more per year, in good soils. Fewer problems with roots, and excellent fall color.

Bradford pears have become rather ubiquitous. Fast growth, little attention. Pretty blooms. But, the pretty symmetry is gone with the wind (in a storm that is). Plus, the callery pears are becoming invasive, taking over native stands of trees.

The fastest evergreen tree is generally the Eastern White Pine. It can grow three to six feet per year in ideal situations. It is easy to identify a white pine; all the limbs will be in a circle around the trunk, and then there will be a section of bare tree trunk with no limbs. This also easily allows anyone to tell the age of the white pine tree.

The drawback with white pine is that after thirty or forty years, they are a real threat to blow down and hit a house or garage—they become so huge and also top heavy and because they are evergreen they are a threat to blow over in high winds all months of the year.

I rather like the catalpa tree for shade. It can often grow six feet in a year. Old trees become very sturdy, with wood that is very durable (like black locust or cypress). The tree can become larger than a 55 gallon drum, and be very healthy. They bloom with nice white blooms in May. Their main problem that cause some to rule out catalpa, is the seed pods hanging down like beans or cigars. But, they are no more messy than honeylocust, which is often recommended by landscape architects (and also fast growing).

Other trees I consider to have above-average growth rates would include the following:

The honeylocust, Empress tree, Lombardy poplar, river birch, leyland cypress, weeping willow, zelkova, sweet gum, basswood or linden, and in the right soils, Canadian hemlock.

Some more exotic options might include the dogwood species, cornus controversa, the igiri tree, idesia polycarpa, the beebee tree, tetradium danielli, sycamore, and American arborvitae "green giant", and Douglas fir.

Not every home needs a giant tree. And not every homeowner is in a hurry. Some love to diversify from what everyone else tends to plant. And some are more inclined to wait for slower trees to grow; they often make the most magnificent ones after forty or fifty years. I was amazed to find a serviceberry (amelanchier) a few days ago that had a trunk over 21 inches in diameter (it probably witnessed the Civil War, and perhaps saw Daniel Boone). Sometimes the slow ones are among the most awesome in old age.

If you have a yard with no trees, or some that aren't growing, consider some of these options. And, as always, if you can plant in a raised bed or in an area where quality topsoil has been dumped as fill dirt, your will get most trees to grow faster and usually more healthy too.

Burton one of 21 selected for education fellowship

Travis T. Burton, Manager of Public Affairs at the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, has been selected by the Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives (ACCE) to study education attainment and workforce development along with 20 other chamber of commerce professionals from communities throughout the United States.

The Fellowship for Education Attainment is an immersive executive development program that provides chamber of commerce professionals with education and tools to improve the cradle-to-career education pipeline in the communities they serve.

"Whether it's investing in quality childcare or developing programs to encourage lifelong learning, communities that thrive recognize the importance of building and sustaining a productive education pipeline for all of their citizens. Improving education attainment at all levels is key to economic progress for individuals, businesses and the state as a whole," said Kentucky Chamber President and CEO Dave Adkisson

Throughout the year-long Fellowship for Education Attainment, participants are required to develop a regional action plan that focuses on addressing specific education attainment or workforce development issues in their communities.

"We have been overwhelmed by the enthusiastic response to this executive leadership training initiative and the high caliber of applicants," said ACCE President Mick Fleming. Speaking on the need for businesses to be more engaged in talent development discussions and outcomes, Fleming says his organization assists its members through various learning opportunities and best practice sharing. "This latest step in our strategy to engage business leaders and advocates in education attainment maximizes the linkage between qualified talent and economic development goals."

ACCE's Fellowship for Education Attainment is designed to advance a chamber of commerce's already-defined education attainment goals and ultimately help the business associations nationwide build replicable programs and processes.

Leaders selected to participate in the 2017 Fellowship represent Albany, New York; Atlanta, Georgia; Augusta, Georgia; Vail, Colorado; Brockton, Massachusetts; Brooklyn, New York; Burlington, Vermont; Corpus Christi, Texas; Detroit, Michigan; Evansville, Indiana; Frankfort, Kentucky; Fullerton, California; Greenwood, South Carolina; Helena, Montana; Irving, Texas; Little Rock, Arkansas; Mason, Ohio; Raleigh, North Carolina; Salina, Kansas; Topeka, Kansas; and Tulsa, Oklahoma.

City of Mount Vernon donates $10,000 to Brodhead Fair Board

By: Mike French

The City of Mount Vernon donated $10,000 to the Brodhead Fair Board Tuesday in an event at Mayor Mike Bryant's office.

Bryant said the City of Mount Vernon is able to offer such help to other cities in the county occasionally as their budget permits. "This isn't something we do every year," said Bryant. "But the recreational building at the Brodhead Fairgrounds was slightly over-budget and we had some discretionary funds that could provide them with help."

Bryant said the last time such a donation was given by the city, it was given to the City of Livingston. "We try our best to work with other cities in the county. We are all one big family here. This fund came through the restaurant tax and was available for this use. It was our opportunity to be a good neighbor," the mayor said.

Rockcastle County Judge/Executive Doug Bishop said the donation will be a big help to the board and the community.

"This will really help the fair board but the real winners in this donation are the people of Rockcastle County," said Bishop.

Bishop agreed that Mount Vernon has helped surrounding cities in several instances. "Mayor Bryant and the council have always been good to work with. They care

Kentucky's Circuit Clerks celebrate 25 years of saving lives through donation

The KY Circuit Court Clerks' Trust For Life, Kentucky's Organ & Tissue Donation Awareness Program, will soon celebrate its 25th anniversary.

On Aug. 10, 1992, the Kentucky Association of Circuit Court Clerks created the Trust For Life (TFL) to educate Kentuckians about the life-saving mission of organ donation. The late Arthur M. "Whitey" Walson, was a leader throughout the creation of the Circuit Clerks' Trust For Life program in 1992. At the time he was the Circuit Court Clerk in Clark County, Ky. He lost a family member waiting for a heart transplant. The Circuit Court Clerks worked together in hopes that no one would lose a loved one waiting for a transplant. They knew that more education about organ donation was vital to saving lives.

Eliza Jane York, Rockcastle Co. Circuit Court Clerk said, "We've come a long way since 1992, but with nearly 117,000 people awaiting a life-saving transplant in the U.S., including the 1,000 patients in Kentucky, our work to encourage Kentuckians to register as donors is still so important. Today, and every day, 22 people will die waiting for their gift of life. I am honored to work alongside my fellow Circuit Clerks and our hardworking deputies in this effort to save and heal lives."

Currently, 54 percent of Kentuckians, or over 1.8 million people, have joined the Kentucky Donor Registry. All Kentuckians obtaining a license or ID at their Circuit Court Clerk's Office are asked about joining the Registry and donating $1 for public education about organ donation through TFL. Also, people may join online at www.donatelifeky.org.

Shelley Snyder, Executive Director of the Kentucky Circuit Court Clerks' Trust For Life says, "We are thrilled to mark the Trust's 25th anniversary throughout the Commonwealth on August 10. We will also celebrate on Sept. 16 at our annual 5K run/walk in Winchester, KY." More information on the Gift of Life 5K can be found on the

Trust For Life's website or Facebook page. www.trustforlife.org

Founded as a service project of the Kentucky Association of Circuit Court Clerks, since 1992 more than $9 million has been raised for organ and tissue donation awareness programs in Kentucky. This includes the dollars raised at the Circuit Court Clerk's offices, grants from partners Kosair Charities and Kentucky Organ Donor Affiliates, and individual contributions

Snyder said she is grateful for the Circuit Clerk's efforts in creating programs that answer questions, dispel myths, and empower Kentuckians to be hope by registering as a potential donor. "The Circuit Clerks are trailblazers and lifesavers. Kentucky was recently given a national award for Registry growth, and it is only possible because of the Circuit Clerk's unwavering support for this mission. I can't begin to count how many lives have been changed and saved because of their efforts."

Students should pay attention to deadlines for financial aid

High school seniors should keep track of deadlines for applying for college financial aid. Here are some tips from the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA):

- File the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) as soon as possible after October 1.

- Check with the financial aid offices of the schools to which you've applied to determine if they require any forms other than the FAFSA.

- Look for scholarships using KHEAA's "Affording Higher Education" and a free online scholarship search. You can find a link to a free search site under the "Paying for College" tab on www.kheaa.com.

- Attend any college fairs and financial aid seminars offered at your high school or in your area. If a company charges a fee for helping with applications, remember that you can do that yourself for free. If you decide to pay for help, make sure the company is reputable by checking with the state Attorney General's office or the Better Business Bureau in your area, as well as the area where the firm is located.

KHEAA is the state agency that administers Kentucky's student financial aid programs, including the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES). Its sister agency, the Kentucky Higher Education Student Loan Corporation (KHESLC), offers Advantage Loans to help students and parents pay for college or to refinance student loans. For more information about Advantage Loans, visit www.advantageeducation.com.

For more information about Kentucky scholarships and grants, visit www.kheaa.com; write KHEAA, P.O. Box 798, Keys to Success - Be here early to be on time (Brodhead starts our breakfast program at 7:30 and students are starting morning work in their classroom at 7:50) - Set and follow a student routine (Set sleep patterns, travel arrangements to and from school, homework and practice schedules) - Keep up the communication (Feel free to contact Brodhead staff with any questions or concerns 758-8512).

Over the summer Brodhead Elementary School has been awarded $5,000 to fund their My Library project. The award, presented by Snapdragon Book Foundation, will allow current students to leave their legacy at the school as they will each select a new book to be added to the collection. The school would like to express their gratitude to the Snapdragon Book Foundation for proving students with this opportunity. Pictured above are: Mrs. Melissa Neeley (right), Brodhead Elementary School librarian, and Mrs. Rebecca McArdle, English teacher at North Laurel High School. Mrs. McArdle submitted the grant application this spring, during her library media specialist practicum placement made possible by Eastern Kentucky University.

Jackson Energy Cooperative receives grant for battery storage project

Jackson Energy Cooperative has been awarded a grant from the state Energy and Environment Cabinet for a battery storage solar project at their office near McKee.

The cooperative received a $28,540 grant to install a demonstration project of 10.7kW of solar panels plus energy storage. Jackson Energy will match the grant.

The demonstration system will allow Jackson Energy to assess effects on peak demand, grid stabilization, power factor correction, and infrastructure cost avoidance.

"The energy that's produced from the sun will be stored in batteries," says Jackson Energy President & CEO Carol Wright. "And our SCADA system will release that energy from those batteries during 'on peak' times to help reduce our overall demand."

Energy and Environment Cabinet Secretary Charles Snively today announced that seven organizations will share more than $1.6 million in grant funding to promote efficient technologies and practices in public and private-sector buildings. Recipients include education, utility service, local government, and waste water treatment organizations.

"These projects represent innovative initiatives that provide long-term benefits to the citizens of Kentucky," said Sec. Snively. "Some projects build upon existing programs that have already demonstrated the value of investments in energy efficiency while other projects integrate new technologies and practices in areas that support infrastructure in local communities."

Grant funds are provided under a 2011 settlement agreement for a Clean Air Act violation. The settlement required the permittee to invest in new and upgraded state-of-the-art pollution controls that will reduce pollution, save energy and protect public health and the environment. Kentucky received $11.2 million to implement environmental mitigation projects.

Kentucky's Energy and Environment Cabinet issued a request for proposals early this year to award unused funds from the 2011 settlement.
