Mount Vernon, Kentucky 40456 - (606) 256-2244 Volume 133 • Number 30 50 per copy Thursday, August 15, 2019

Resource Teacher Jeff Tipton greeted students at Roundstone Elementary School Wednesday morning for the first full day of the 2019-20 school year. There have been some changes in school security this year (see next week's issue of the Mount Vernon Signal for details) and many improvements in local schools from improved technology to building renovations. Law enforcement officials also say they will be watching closer than ever for vehicles that do not observe school bus stop signs and handing out citations to anyone who violates the law.

Chestnut Grove to be repaved

Fines to be enforced

With all members present, Brodhead City Commissioners held their regular monthly meeting Monday evening at city hall.

Guests Rockcastle County Judge/Executive Howell Holbrook and County Attorney Jeremy Rowe presented the commission with an interlocal agreement for blacktop repaving.

The issue arose when the county received grant money to repave some streets in the county and one of the projects, Chestnut Grove Road, lies partly inside the city limits of Brodhead. Rowe explained the agreement was a request for the city to agree to allow the county to pave the part of the road that is inside the city limits.

However, several Brodhead Commissioners wanted to read the agreement closely before signing and had copies made for each member.

"We just need to be able to read it before we sign anything," said Commissioner John Burton. "There have been some issues around that road that we have dealt

New School Board member approved

Jordison new Vice-Chair

By: Mike French
Editor

Classes started Wednesday and the final summer Rockcastle County School Board meeting was held the night before as teachers, staff, board members and department heads prepared for the beginning of the year.

Several items were discussed through the evening but one of the first actions of the board was to name board member Susan Jordison as vice chairman since former Vice Chairman Carrie Ballinger resigned from the board two months ago to accept a position in the district's central office.

Then to fill the board member position, the board unanimously voted to accept the resume of Misty R. Lakes, of Climax, as the newest board member. "Misty is exactly what this board was looking for to fill this position," said Superintendent David Pensol. "She is a good, caring Christian with a passion for children and their future."

Lakes says she is excited about the position and her goal is to "make a difference in the lives of students." She also has some goals for the board and the school system itself. "It would be my heart's desire to push for a program that would build strong self esteem and confidence in students beginning in preschool," she wrote in her resume. "Confident children will change the next generations."

The board voted to approve Lakes for the position and welcomed her aboard Tuesday evening. She will officially be sworn-in at the September meeting.

The board also heard a request for two additional employees. Jason Coguer, Education Director, told the board that the number of four-year-olds who qualify for preschool has risen sharply. The board agreed to add an additional certified preschool teacher and an instructional assistant for the preschool program. Board member and chairman Angela Mink expressed concern that the board be certain the position will last if new positions are created. "I don't want to bring people onboard and then not be able to keep them and put them in a bad position," she said. However, board member Jeff VanHook, who is also the Executive Director of the Rockcastle County Industrial Development Authority, said that will not be a long-term concern. "In my other role in economic development, I can tell you I don't see us having fewer qualified applicants in the future," he said. "With the growth expected in the county, the number of students in preschool will continue to rise."

The board voted to create the two new positions.

The board also voted to

RCIDA working to grow county and the entire region

By: Mike French

Conversation centered around the new proposed Farmer's Market planned on City of Mount Vernon property on Richmond Street during the Rockcastle County Industrial Development Authority's (RCIDA) monthly meeting Friday. The meeting had been moved to Friday when there was not a quorum for the regular meeting the first Monday in the month. Members of the board had been discussing moving the meeting time for several months since the regular Monday meeting time was difficult for several members and the board now plans to hold their regular monthly meeting on the first Wednesday of each month at 8:30 a.m.

This new schedule should begin at the September meeting but may still change since all members were not present again Friday to make sure that time will be acceptable. "We will tentatively set it for the first Wednesday of each month at 8:30 a.m. and then we will let everyone know if that doesn't work," said Chairman Corey Craig.

Craig spent several minutes commenting on the unusual cooperative work that RCIDA Executive Director Jeff VanHook has done with other local county and city officials to spur local development. VanHook has worked closely, with Mount Vernon City Administrator Josh Bray and Rockcastle

Brady McClure

The man behind the mask

By: Mike French

It is often said that the fans in the stands play a huge part in how a sports team performs.

The next time you see a Cincinnati Reds baseball game on a television, or the next time you go to a Reds game, you may notice the crowd is worked into a frenzy, filled with excitement and ready to pull for their favorite team.

That enthusiasm and excitement for America's favorite pastime didn't happen by accident. It was partly due to the efforts of twenty-five year old Mount Vernon native Brady McClure.

The young man leaves Mount Vernon and his parents Sandra Allen and Tommy McClure, for nearly every game played at home by the national baseball team. Then he puts on a big, warm costume, and heads out into the stands as "Mr. Red Legs."

"It is sure a lot of fun," he said. "I can't wait to get out there and start mingling with everyone in the stadium."

At every home game when you see the Cincinnati Reds Mascot, you are probably looking at McClure under that huge head.

"It's something I have always done and always enjoyed. Being the Reds' Mascot is a pure joy," he said.

The local man started his mascot career at the University of Pikeville where he was "Pikey the Bear" and learned to perfect his craft. And exactly what is his craft? "Helping people have fun," he said. "that's my job."

There are actually four Cincinnati Reds Mascots. Mr. Red Legs, Mr. Red, Daisy Red and Dapper. McClure never knows which of the four he will be, but when he shows up behind the scenes of the game, he puts on one of the costumes and hits the stands as a big, smiling, bouncing Reds cheerleader.

"The best part of the job is finding the kids. The greatest joy of it all is seeing those children at the game with their parents when the Reds Mascot walks up to them and shakes their hand and gives the kid a high five. You can just see them light up," said McClure.

The young man considers himself a part of the team and agrees with most who believe an excited, cheering crowd can indeed play a part in the outcome of a game. "I am a part of the team," he said. "I just hang out with the kids in the stands and make their game experience one that they will never, ever forget. I love what I do."

Without going into details, McClure said the job does pay well. "It does pay very well but I am just part-time right now," he said. "I am working on getting on full time."

On game night, McClure is in his costume by 6 p.m. for the pregame chants and build-up, and then he stays in the role until the end of the 9th inning. "It's quite a long time occasionally but if you are used to it, it doesn't really get that hot. It's a comfortable costume and it is so much fun that time flies by. Especially when we are winning."

McClure said he searched websites until he found the position open and he immediately applied. The young man said an official called him and asked him to go to Cincinnati to audition.

From there, he was hired and he looks forward to every time he suits up.

The mascots don't speak, according to McClure. They

If anyone is interested, I have a pretty little red kitten that needs a good home.

I rescued it from the Dollar Store parking lot last week, even though I feared there would be repercussions from my Jack Russell and my cantankerous 100-year-old resident cat (she's not really a 100, it just seems like I've had her that long).

I picked her up mainly because I feared she would soon get squashed by a car parking in their lot and not seeing her. I actually don't know what her sex is -- as I explained to my husband years ago it's just simpler, for me, to assume that all cats are females and all dogs are males.

Sure enough, the repercussions I feared didn't take long to manifest themselves. I pulled into my garage, unloaded my groceries then went back out to corral the kitten. However, Jax had already figured out that something was amiss and almost knocked me over when I went back to the garage. Sure enough, the next thing I knew the kitten was being harassed badly by the ill-tempered Jack Russell and I had to crawl under the car to rescue her. I took her into the house to calm her down and my resident cat proceeded to stalk her, hissing continuously, so the poor little thing had to be banished to the room behind my garage.

She's actually pretty friendly and tame enough to make a good children's pet.

I thought about bringing her to the Signal and making her an office cat but Paige isn't really that fond of cats either, so...

I cannot let it reside forever behind the garage, it's too lonesome for it and not fair at all so, if anyone would be interested, let me know by calling the Signal at 256-2244. If no one can give it a home, I will have to take her to the animal shelter and see if she has any better luck finding a home from there.

And, if you want an older cat...

Well now that was a lot of fun.

I pulled my bike into the parking lot at Lake Linville Saturday to find 30-40 other motorcycle enthusiasts signing up as well.

The Central Kentucky Riders Association hosted a benefit ride for My Brother's Keeper and we all met at the local lake.

Some people I see every week in suit and tie or dress, at meetings that I cover, were just hanging out with black leather covered in patches and silver chains dangling from their belts.

Every kind of bike imaginable was there and it may have been one of the most organized and well-operated bike rides I have seen.

The organizers made sure to come to each of us checking on our gas and making sure we were all ready for the four-hour ride and, at noon, when the kick stands were heard clanking across the lake, the ground actually moved from the rumble of pure horsepower.

Skull caps, leather pouches and fingerless gloves went on in place of ties and Coach purses.

A trail car followed the long line of bikers making sure everyone was okay and no one was left behind.

Leaders arranged up front and at every intersection from Scaffold Cane Road to Beatyville then to London, one of them pulled into the middle of the road and stopped traffic so that the line of bikes could stay in formation.

It is a much safer ride when everyone sticks together and watches each other's back. Every rider pointed or somehow let the rider behind them know of any obstruction or danger

Points East

By Ike Adams

I don't have much opportunity to associate with the adolescent and younger community these days, but, of the half dozen or so reluctant scholars I have encountered, over the last couple of weeks, the chatter has mostly consisted of grumbling about going back to school.

So I'm sitting here remembering my own elementary school days, from the fall of 1955 through the spring of 1963 and trying to figure out why on earth the youngest generation is not absolutely clamoring to get back into the classrooms. I couldn't wait.

Throughout my elementary school years, Blair Branch Grade School had no air conditioning. I can't even remember seeing an electric fan. We cooled the building by raising the windows and hoping a breeze might stir the leaves on a giant, towering sycamore tree that shaded the building. A few kids had those funeral home, cardboard fans that were braced with long, wooden, tongue depressor type handles to stir the air around their faces, while the rest of us made do with note books or text book covers.

Of course we usually only had to contend with uncomfortable heat for the first and last months of the school year. However, the school was heated by three, tall, open, free-standing, pot bellied, coal-fired stoves located in the back of each of its three classrooms. Even in sub-freezing weather, the rooms could sometimes get so hot that windows and doors had to be opened while the stove cooled down.

The main part of the building consisted mostly of one long, very high-ceilinged room that housed grades three through eight. I'm guessing that the dimensions were about 40' x 90' feet and 12 feet high. A 10' x 40' "cloak room" to hang coats, rubber boots and store supplies stood at the end of the 2 classrooms.

A set of hanging doors ran across the middle of the room to effectively section it into two rooms. Third, fourth and fifth grades were on one side; sixth, seventh and eighth on the other. The sliding doors could be folded back to make one large room, as was frequently needed.

First and second grade classrooms were contained in a 15' x 40' feet, low-ceilinged shed-like structure attached midway behind the main structure. A much shorter pot-bellied stove separated the two classes but it lacked only a few inches from reaching the 8 feet ceiling. Students were hired by the teachers to build fires, pack in coal, dump ashes and keep the stoves clean working order. Both brother Keith (Keeter) and I spent several grade years "building fires" for one teacher or another throughout our tenures at Blair Branch Grade School. We were paid a dime per day. That dollar at the end of every month felt like big money to a school boy in 1960 when a 3 Musketeers candy bar and a short Coca Cola only cost a nickel each!

On Fridays, after lunch, those folding doors were pushed back for an activity that involved the entire student body. First and second graders came in to sit beside the older students. Usually several parents and other adults were there simply for the entertainment. They either stood around or sat with the kids.

The principal, who also taught the three upper grades, would select two captains to "take up sides" for arithmetic matches or spelling bees. Starting with the first graders, the captains called out names until every kid was on one side or the other. Then, again starting with the first graders, each captain selected participants to vie for spelling words correctly or being fastest at solving arithmetic problems on the blackboard. The principal served as referee for these matches and he often called arithmetic contests dead heats until one contestant had clearly beaten the other or had one had gotten the problem wrong.

When all the members of one side of the contest had been "turned down,"

Love that Cantaloupe

One of my favorite memories as a young boy was when my grandfather (Pop) took me into his garden to select a cantaloupe (or "mush melon" as he called it) so that we could share it for breakfast. He knew precisely how to select a ripe melon from his patch. He began by smelling the melon at the stem to see whether it had the proper sweet aroma. He also believed that a ripe one would be heavy for its size.

I loved to taste a fresh melon still warm from the garden. As you bit into the sweet cantaloupe, the juice was likely to pour all over you. That first bite was simply wonderful. I will admit though that Pop and I also liked to sprinkle just a tad of salt on our melons.

Pop considered picking and eating melons as a family event. And, in my humble opinion, he grew the best cantaloupes I ever tasted. I don't know why he didn't also grow watermelons in his garden, but I have no memory of Pop raising his own.

When he got the urge to eat a watermelon, he would drive to town and pick one up from Jesse Cummins's grocery or George Parrett's. But before he

Laundromat Experience

Dear Journal,

As most everyone knows, here at our house, we've had an ongoing remodeling and general fixing up going on for years. We never seem to get ahead. If anything, we lose ground. We just work at our own pace and get done what we can and when we can. A few days ago we began a painting and floor tile job. All was painted except behind the stackable washer and dryer. The unit was unhooked from everything and pulled away from the wall to allow working space. It was about then when disaster came calling.

The cat bit my finger and it became infected. My hand was swollen for days and I didn't have use of it. Meanwhile, Stanley lifted something too heavy and injured his shoulder. He said that he could feel something tear and hear a pop when it occurred. Needless to say, the painting and tile project has been put on hold.

The washer/dryer is still sitting just where they were

Encourage retired teachers to attend meeting...

Dear Editor,

This letter is written to encourage all of our retired teachers to attend our first meeting of the new school year. The meeting will be held on Wednesday, August 21, at 11:30 at Limestone Grille. There are two very important items on this month's agenda: the backpack program and the election of officers for the 2019-2020 school year.

Our backpack program has been a tremendous success since it's inception several years ago. We expect no less this year! Please bring pre-packaged food items that the students can prepare themselves at home, such as peanut butter or cheese crackers, pudding or fruit cups, fruit snacks, soup cups, etc. as well as drinks such as Sunny D or Capri Sun. If you prefer to give a monetary donation, please make your check payable to RRTA. If you have any questions, you may call Nancy Bussell, who is our coordinator for this much-needed program. We thank you in advance for your help with this project. We don't want any child to go hungry! Let's make a mountain of food for our children!

Rockcastle Retired Teachers Association has been in existence for many years. It was in good hands when I first began teaching here in 1970. Although I wasn't particularly interested in "retired anything" at that young age, I was aware of those teachers who were still looking out for my colleagues and me after they had retired. As the years have gone swiftly by, we have lost many fine, dedicated educators who stepped up and took the reins to carry on looking after the welfare of active teachers and retirees, as well. I think of Preston Parrett, Cola Grace Wilson, Sue French, Shirley Martin, Betty Ann Glovak, Gatliff Craig, Carol Pybas, and many others whose names I can't recall at this senior moment. My point is that there have seemingly always been younger retirees who have consistently stepped up and taken the reins when the older ones grew tired. Some of us now older ones are growing tired and are in need of you younger retirees to step up now. We need you!

Such a time as this makes it even more vital that we have strong leadership in our association. We need fresh, young leadership if we are to thrive and survive! We will have an election of officers Wednesday. Will you consider an office? Will you consider chairing an important committee to help your peers? Will you be willing to work for us as others have worked down through the years for you? Will you choose to use your talents and skills for RRTA's good and for continued growth? Will you attend this meeting and become a valuable member and support the past, the present, and the future of Rockcastle County's teachers? I pray that you will!

Most sincerely,

the other side was declared the winner and we all got to go home a few minutes early. Well, not necessarily, because, if the weather was cold, from fourth grade on, two other guys and I still had fires to put out and red hot ashes to dump.

and disconnected. Our dirty laundry began to build and we had to go to the laundromat. Stanley went to Walmart and I stayed with the clothes. I discovered why people have washers and dryers at home if at all possible. The seats at this Laundromat were so low I felt like I was sitting on the floor. I had to really work in order to get up. I had problems in getting a cart to transport the clothes and wait on dryers. Well, those people who take their unruly kids to the restaurants, the movies, the stores and other places take them to the Laundromat, too. I finally got the clothes in a dryer and decided to go to the bathroom. I opened the door and discovered that someone had been in there previously and had vomited all over the floor and toilet. I'm sure they couldn't help it but they could have cleaned up after themselves. You'd be surprised how fast your bladder can dry up and be patient to wait for a long time if necessary.

Stanley arrived from Walmart pretty soon and the clothes were within five minutes of being dry. We loaded up everything and headed home. I sure hope that is my last trip to the Laundromat. If you see Stanley and I out and our clothes look as if they haven't been washed in a week, there is a good chance you're right.

paid for a watermelon, he would take out his pocket knife and “plug” the melon to make sure he had selected one that was ripe enough to meet his specifications. I never saw him return a plugged melon to the stock of specimens in the store, so I suppose he must have known exactly what he was doing.

When Pop got back home, he would announce to the family that we were serving a watermelon in the backyard. Excitedly, we would gather lawn chairs in a circle, and he would hand each of us a large slice. You can imagine what the scene would look like, all of us in a circle spitting seeds into the grass. When everyone was filled, Pop would gather the rinds into a bucket and take them to feed the hogs in our hog lot. Everyone was completely satisfied, even the hogs.

I never remember us eating Pop's “mush melons” in the yard though. We always consumed them at a meal in the kitchen. I guess it was his way of avoiding the mess of watermelons with all of their seeds.

Everyone in our family loved both kind of melons. Maybe my family inherited the love of that taste from Pop. It is certain that he loved both varieties better than anyone I ever knew.

My grandmother (Mommie Katie) would put any left-over slices of cantaloupe in one of her many Tupperware containers and place it into the refrigerator. And I loved sneaking into the kitchen and taking a slice when they were very cold.

We were a family of melon lovers. I don't think a single one of us would ever turn down a slice of either variety. The memory of sharing those particular juicy treats still remains as clear as day. And I can count on a really good melon to bring it back in one single bite.

on the highway. It is so relaxing to gather with like-minded people and share an experience with fellowship and kindness. We felt as welcome there as if we had never missed a ride with them before.

By the time the day was over, we had a new friend who called himself “lucky” and we had the chance to admire bikes of every make and model as we shared a day with strangers who were really our friends all along. We just didn't know it till we met them.

People who share a passion for something are part of group and are connected in ways that can't be faked.

There was no business to discuss, no gossip about other people, no politics and no one complaining that it was too hot or they weren't having fun.

Nothing was expected from anyone, no one judged anyone else, no one seemed to think it was someone else's job to take care of them, no one hated, no one manipulated, we just all joined together and hit the wind.

There was just the unspoken bond of men and women who share an idea and understand the pleasures that the others around them are experiencing.

We met veterans, POWs, cops, factory workers, elected officials, beginners and old-hands, young and old people and everyone with the same goal. Wind in the hair, the free road and fellowship.

Thank you to the Central Kentucky Riders Association for letting us fall in line and be a part of the ride. And all for a good cause. It would have been fun even without a reason to go, but My Brother's Keeper benefited too while we all enjoyed our day.

Here's to all who understand the biker mentality. It's a whole different world. A language and a passion all its own that only another biker fully understands.

What a world it could be if all people cared for each other the way one rider loves another.

BROCCOLI CHICKEN CASSEROLE

- 4 boneless skinless chicken breasts
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 2 cloves garlic
- 2 wedges of onion
- 4 cups herb seasoned stuffing mix
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1 can Cream of Chicken soup
- 1 pint sour cream
- 8 ounces frozen broccoli cuts, thawed
- 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese

Place chicken breasts, broth, garlic, and onion in a skillet and bring just to a boil over medium high heat, turn heat down to medium, cover and simmer until pink is gone, about 20 minutes. Remove the chicken; shred with a fork and set aside. Reserve the broth (this should equal about 1 cup, but if it doesn't add enough canned broth to equal a cup).

Preheat oven to 350°. Melt the butter and pour over stuffing mix in a bowl and whisk with a fork to blend.

Spread half of the stuffing/butter mixture in a large casserole dish or glass 9 x 13" pan. Place shredded chicken over the layer of stuffing mix. Place broccoli over chicken.

Blend the soup, sour cream, and reserved broth together with a wire whisk. Pour the soup mixture over the broccoli, then top with the remaining stuffing mixture. Top with cheese. Bake for 30 minutes.

CHICKEN AND BISCUIT BAKE

- 3 cups (approx.) of cooked, shredded chicken
  - 1 and 1/2 cups chicken stock or broth
  - 1/4 cup (half of a stick) butter, melted
  - 2 cups Bisquick
  - 1 and 1/2 cups milk
  - 1 can cream of chicken soup
  - 1 and 1/2 cups frozen mixed veggies
  - 3 chicken bouillon cubes
- Preheat oven to 350°. Warm chicken stock in a small saucepan and add in the bouillon cubes to dissolve. Keep warm until ready to use. Lightly coat with non-stick spray a 9 x 13 baking pan. Pour in the melted butter.

Layer the shredded chicken on top of the butter.

Sprinkle on the veggies. In a small mixing bowl, combine the milk and Bisquick. (It's okay if there are a few lumps remaining.) Pour over the chicken and vegetables. DO NOT MIX!

Combine the cream of chicken soup with the warmed stock in a small mixing bowl. Once blended, slowly pour over the Bisquick layer. Again, DO NOT MIX!

Bake for 40 to 45 minutes or until casserole is set and top is brown and bubbly. Remove from oven and allow to rest for 5 minutes. Serve and enjoy.

Risen With Christ

Colossians 3:1 If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. How was that possible? Had they been to Jerusalem in order to be risen with Christ? It had been almost thirty years since the resurrection of Jesus Christ, in the city of Jerusalem which is around 500 miles from Colossae. These folks may have never visited Jerusalem, but they were still risen with Christ.

Travel agents book tours all the time to what the religious world calls the Holy Land, and you can walk where Jesus walked and pray where Jesus prayed. You can stand on the hill where he was crucified and visit the tomb where he was buried. These things may thrill you and you may think in some way, they make you closer to God. The one thing that all these things cannot do is save your soul, forgive you of your sins and just because you visit this city called Jerusalem does not make you risen with Christ.

What does the Bible tell us about being risen with Jesus Christ? Colossians 2:12 Buried with him in baptism, wherein ye are also risen with him through the faith in the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead.

Notice it is baptism where God makes us a new person, and this is the place where we become justified and are to walk in newness of life. This is the place that God chose the when and the place of salvation. We must be willing to choose what God has chosen in order to be justified. This is what the Apostle Paul taught, wherever he went, and we find scriptures to prove these things are true.

We find those in Rome who were followers of Jesus Christ, had participated in His resurrection. Romans 6:3-5 Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into his death? Therefore, we are buried with him in baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should also walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection. The Apostle Paul, along with the church at Rome, had been baptized into the death of Christ. They had been buried with Christ and also raised with Christ. The alien sinner becomes a new creature in Jesus Christ when they submit willfully to the command to God to be baptized.

What is the new life like? Colossians 3:2 Set your affections on things above not on things on this earth. We are to begin to try to understand those things that are heavenly and spiritual, this is where our love is to be directed and focused and not on earthly things. This is a process that takes time, we have to train ourselves, to understand the things of God are more important and needed in our life. We can make it to Heaven without material things, but we cannot make it without God.

Hopefully this settles the question when we are risen with Christ. Thank you as always for reading this article. I hope God has blessed you with another great week and the things you need, and your health is good, and your heart is full of goodness.

If you would like to worship with us at the Chestnut Ridge Church of Christ at Mt. Vernon, Ky, we would absolutely love it, it is a place, were everybody is somebody and Jesus Christ is Lord. Our worship times are Sunday morning, 10:00 A.M. and Wednesday evening at 7:00 P.M.

Two spend week at Pine Mountain Settlement School

Mrs. Holly Robinson and Mrs. Markita Proctor spent a week, this summer on the campus at Pine Mountain Settlement School in Harlan County working with Dr. Cohen, a group of Berea College students, and other teachers from across the state to develop curriculum structured around the new Kentucky curriculum standards and a study of the photos, articles, letters, maps, coal mining, historical events, and elements specific to the Appalachian culture that is documented in the archives at Pine Mountain.

The school at Pine Mountain was a boarding school created to educate mountain children. Even though the school did eventually close, it is still rich in resources. Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Proctor will be using a study of the history of the school and the community to develop a study of Kentucky, Appalachia, and eventually use that study to build a stronger understanding of the history of Rockcastle County.

Then, as a culminating event, RCHS students will spend a day in the spring of 2020 on the campus at Pine Mountain with other students from around the state to share their learning experiences.

“RCIDA”

County Judge/Executive Howell Holbrook along with local mayors on several projects within the county.

In fact, the extensive cooperation between the RCIDA and the city and county governments has caught the eye of several legislatures in Frankfort, according to Craig and Holbrook. VanHook said it is a positive thing when lawmakers are talking about Rockcastle County in a positive way. “They know who we are now when we walk in there and they even gave Howell the floor last week during a committee session,” said VanHook.

Craig agreed. “We should all be very proud of the work our governments are doing together. The motto at Brodhead School used to be ‘working together works’ and that is a very true statement,” said Craig. “What Jeff and Howell and the cities have done is to be commended.”

Board member Roland Mullins agreed that growth and development is expected to explode in the county. “I’ve been around here doing this for 60 years and I have never seen such positive signs of immediate growth and development,” he said.

The group is referring to several projects including the new Microfoodery plant which took the cooperation of the county and Mount Vernon to become possible, the new TIF District that is expected to bring millions of dollars in development to the county, and the Farmers Market project and more. “All of this is possible because of the good working relationship we all have,” said Craig.

While speaking of the Farmers Market, Vanhook said though some are expecting construction to begin in October, he feels that is much too aggressive and believes construction will actually begin sometime in April of 2020. Craig said he is very excited about the new project and believes it will be a strong benefit for the entire community for many reasons.

Members also discussed the proposed Marathon station coming to Livingston and VanHook said the project is still on track. “If everything works out like the developers plan, construction could start in as short as 10 days,” he said. However, there may still be some unexpected delays on that start date he said.

Board members also discussed the ongoing battle with Eagle Manufacturing owners and what to do with the building. Craig said the suit is going much slower than he expected. “I deal with this everyday and I’ve not seen anything like it. To be honest, if someone handed us the cash to purchase the building and asked us for a clear title, I’m just not sure how we could get that right now,” he said. Members agreed that the building is “held up in the courts” and there is not much that can be done until the case is closer to settled.

The RCIDA budget and financial report were also submitted for review with the new CDBG grant included in the totals. The grant gives the RCIDA $970,000 to loan out at low interest to stimulate development and that money has been loaned to Microfoodery for equipment. However, Craig said as the money is paid back, that interest can be spent by the board but the total can’t be loaned out again until the required 51 jobs are filled at Microfoodery. “In the mean time, we own the equipment until the requirements are met,” said Craig.

The budget was approved unanimously.

accept Pensol’s recommendation to increase the Real Estate and Property school tax rate from 42 cents per $100 to 42.2 cents per $100. The difference (not including the increase in property assessed value) will add about $85,000 to the revenue of the school system. The motor vehicle and utility school tax will remain at 48.3 and 3% respectively.

In order to have the tax rate take affect for the upcoming year, the board will hold a public hearing on Thursday, August 29 beginning at 6 p.m. and then hold a special called meeting to approve the new rates immediately afterwards.

Finance Director Jenny Sweet also told the board the capitol funds this school year will be $241,624 and she recommended the money be used to purchase two more 72-passenger buses with the remainder going to pay property insurance. This is the same way the capitol funds revenue has been used in recent years’ budgets. Sweet also said she will have a working budget for the board during the September meeting.

The board also heard the Superintendent’s Personnel report. It was as follows:

Full Time Certified Employees hired

have to pep up the crowd through excitement and hugs and hand shakes. “I just go where I see a kid who is enjoying the game and try to make a memory for them.”

So the next time you see a Reds game, keep an extra eye open for that character with the huge head that is bouncing and smiling and hugging the kids in the stands.

There’s a chance that is Brady. There’s a chance Mount Vernon is being represented. There’s a chance the Reds will play a better game. But it is certainly a fact that a young baseball fan somewhere just got a lifelong memory.

Yards to Paradise

By Max Phelps
JUBUBE: Unusual and Attractive, Fruit Bearing Tree

The jujube, sometimes called Chinese date, is an unusual tree that isn’t picky where you plant it, as it will grow most anywhere. Hot and sunny is the preferred environment for good crops. And the fruits are delicious, fresh from the tree as they begin to turn color, fully colored, or dried like a prune or raisin. These small to medium sized trees have lovely shiny green leaves, which turn a pretty yellow in fall. About the only negative I can think of is there are a few thorns on most young shoots. Actually, deer like them, much as they do apple trees, so that could be a drawback in more rural settings.

The jujube tree is about as good as they come if you want to grow a nice home-grown fruit organically, and even if you don’t have a “green thumb” you will probably succeed with this tree. Drought isn’t a problem after the first year or two. Salt from city streets or the seashore; not a problem. And it looks as good as a redbud or a katsura tree with the added benefit of wonderful fruit.

Jujube fruits are roughly size of a cherry to size of a large plum, depending on the variety. One seed also like the plum or cherry. They are edible but bland when they are green. As they ripen, they get sweeter. And, dehydrated, they are like dates or raisins or dried figs in sweetness. If you live in a drier climate with little late season rainfall, they will dry right up on the tree, and can be picked and stored as you might store raisins.

From Houston, Texas to Cincinnati or Washington, DC you can successfully grow this tree. In USDA zone 5 it may damage in winter but still live and regrow. Someone has said “No other tree gives me so much pleasure for so little effort.”

Most jujube trees are at least partly self fruitful, but having two or more varieties will insure good pollination.

These cultivars are self fertile: Li, Coco, and Shanx.Li. Most are somewhat self fertile, at least one exception is Lang.

The Li variety is easy to find, bears early in the season, and is self fruitful. Some of the sweetest are Honey Jar, Sugar Cane and GA 866. With names like honey and sugar, they must be sweet!

Sugar Cane would make a good hedge, as it has the most thorns. The variety called “So” is contorted and most unusual. Sherwood makes a more tall and narrow tree, and they all appear to “weep” especially when loaded with fruits.

Other named varieties include these: Chico, SiHong, Black Sea, and Massandra. Ta-Jan might be your preference if a bit of acidity sounds good mixed with the sweetness.

Jujube fruit has 20 times the vitamin C of citrus. One sweet little jujube or one big sour grapefruit...your choice! The trees bud and leaf late, and bloom early summer. This makes them pretty much immune to frost.

The wood is durable, valuable, very useful. From wooden implement handles, furniture, gun stocks to a firewood that burns hot like hickory, the beautiful red wood would be treasured by a woodworker.

Always game to try new and unusual plants and fruits, I don’t know why it took me until the last couple years to taste this fruit, and to obtain a tree. Because I think every yard should have one, and every orchard should have several. (You’ll have trouble finding these trees, but an internet search or your favorite mailorder nursery catalog may be able to supply some.) I recommend the tree for landscaping purposes, as well as for its fruits.

Commissioner Brian Bullock said there have been discussions in the past about who owns the road and who is responsible for maintaining it. “We just don’t want to sign anything that says the City of Brodhead must maintain that road,” said Bullock.

“The county clearly owns that road and we don’t want to sign a contract that suggests the city is responsible for it,” said Burton. Bullock agreed saying “If something were to happen to the bridge on Chestnut Grove Road, the City of Brodhead could not afford to rebuild that,” he said. “If the county is responsible for maintaining the road, why do you need us to agree for the county to maintain the road?”

Holbrook said he understood the caution of the commission but assured all present that the agreement only allows the county to repave the road and does not specify ownership. “This is nothing but a formality,” said Holbrook. “We were asked by the state to get this agreement signed and it is only part of the paperwork process.”

The agreement was signed by Mayor Walter Cash and City Clerk Becky Bussell and the project is expected to begin this month.

Commissioners also discussed purchasing the two new grinder pumps for the sewer plant and the repair of hydrants and water valves throughout the city.

Brodhead Fire Chief John Dyehouse said the Brodhead Fair was a huge success. “For the first time in 14 years, it didn’t rain during the fair,” he said. “We offer our appreciation to all who helped make the fair possible and Becky (Bussell) for helping us keep the finances in order. We hope we made the county proud and now we start planning for next year.”

In fact, even during the set up and operation of the fair and its many events, the Brodhead Fire Department made 13 runs and continued business as usual.

Police Chief Travis Davis said his department is operating well and all is in order. In fact, there are several items currently in police custody that had been recovered as stolen items.

Davis is planning to advertise the recovered items to find their proper owner if possible. If not, the items will be sold and the money used for police department needs, according to Davis.

Members also discussed what to do with those who may soon receive citations for breaking local ordinances but refuse to pay the fines involved.

Since the county attorney was present at the meeting, commissioners asked him how they should proceed on the matter.

Rowe said he will work with the county clerk and give Davis the authority to enforce any fines up to and including possible arrest for unpaid fines.

Members were referring to the nuisance ordinance as well as those breaking sewer ordinances.

“We have had a long running problem with the nursing home putting towels and sheets and other unapproved items in our sewer system,” said Burton. The commission plans to begin enforcing those regulations.

Members also discussed ordering the new 15 mph signs that will be placed along Main Street.

The next regular meeting is scheduled for September 9 at 7 p.m.

Tammy Brock receives KBE's Kelly Award

At its meeting Aug. 7, the Kentucky Board of Education (KBE) presented the Kelly Award for Business and Education Partnership to Tammy Brock, chief nursing officer at Rockcastle Regional Hospital in Mount Vernon.

The Kelly Award is given to a Kentucky business or businessperson who has partnered with a public school or district to provide outstanding leadership that promotes school improvement and student success.

Brock works collaboratively with the Rockcastle Area Technology Center (ATC) to develop a strategic partnership leading to student achievement and workforce outcomes in healthcare careers. Under her direction, Rockcastle Regional was the first healthcare employer in the state to utilize the Tech Ready Apprentices for Careers in Kentucky (TRACK) youth pre-apprenticeship program to hire high school students in health sciences career pathways through a registered apprenticeship program in a model that combines high school career pathways with on-the-job training.

"This is a wonderful example of how business and education can work hand in hand to provide life-changing opportunities for Kentucky students and supply the workforce with home-grown talent," KBE Chairman Hal Heiner said. "Ms. Brock and Rockcastle Regional have created a pipeline through which they can offer talented young people exposure to a career in nursing within their own community. They have set an example for other employers not only in healthcare, but in all sectors."

Students in the health sciences pathway at Rockcastle ATC who become TRACK certified nursing assistant (CNA) candidates obtain paid positions at the hospital during the summer following their junior year. During their senior year, they continue to work for the hospital, receive instruction at the area technology center, and work to obtain their CNA certification.

In addition to gaining credit toward their apprenticeship hours, students learn many competencies while at the hospital. The culmination of this program is a journey person certification and a continued position at the hospital after graduation from high school. Students who wish to further their education by receiving a postsecondary degree may apply to the hospital's scholarship program. Students who are selected for that program receive paid tuition to obtain a bachelor's degree leading to certification as a registered nurse.

The pathway is designed to accommodate stackable credentials, as evidenced through multiple career opportunities. Students may choose to retain a position in the hospital upon graduation without further education. Upon successfully completing the apprenticeship program, students are guaranteed a full-time position with the hospital.

"Ms. Brock and her team

The ground rumbled in Mount Vernon as motorcycle enthusiasts rolled out of Lake Linville Road Saturday for the Central Kentucky Riders Association charity ride for My Brother's Keepers. Riders from all walks of life joined together for the four hour ride through Scaffold Cane Road, to Beatyville, through London and back to the Backporch Smokehouse Grill next to the lake. Shown above, the riders stopped in Irvine for gas and a short break and then continued on their trek back to Mount Vernon.

Livingston School Reunion

The Livingston School Reunion will be held on Saturday, October 5, 2019 in Livingston.

Registration will be open beginning at 4 p.m. in the Trail Town Visitor's Center and the Preston Parrett Gym. The evening program will begin at 6 p.m. in the Gym.

In lieu of a registration fee, individuals may make a voluntary donation to the Livingston School Revitalization Fund.

All former students, teachers, family and friends of the Livingston School are invited to attend.

If you have questions call Rose Mullins Brown at 606 308-1643 or Gary Mink at 606 308-3801.

Luis grew up in Panama and was raised in the ghetto by a hard working, single mother in a small house with dirt floors. All Luis ever wanted to do was to go to school but could not because they were unable to afford school supplies. His mother told him that if he really wanted to go to school, he needed to pray for school supplies, so that's exactly what Luis did.

The next day, on a friend's invitation, Luis attended a nearby church where he received an Operation Christmas Child shoebox gift. It was the first gift he had ever received.

When he opened it, amidst the candies and action figures were school supplies he so desperately needed. That day, Luis and his mother realized that God is real and that He can answer prayers. To hear more details on how the Lord answered his prayer through a shoebox, please join us for a special time of Luis sharing his testimony.

BES receives Operation RoundUP grant from Jackson Energy

Jackson Energy's Operation Round-Up is helping a Rockcastle elementary school with a $750 Operation RoundUP grant.

Brodhead Elementary Parent Teacher Group (PTG) recently received the grant. Jackson Energy Board Chairman and Rockcastle County Director

Phil Thompson presented the check to Bryanna Mullins, the group's secretary.

"Operation RoundUP is an easy way for co-op members to give a small amount each month to deserving individuals and organizations in their local communities," said Jackson Energy Vice President of Corporate Services Ryan Henderson.

Operation RoundUP works when co-op members voluntarily have their electric bill rounded to an even dollar amount. For example, if a bill was $122.62 and the

Coffey graduates from Rogers Scholars

Rockcastle County High School student Kyle Coffey graduated this summer from The Center for Rural Development's 2019 Rogers Scholars program.

Rogers Scholars—The Center's flagship youth program—is an intensive one-week summer program that provides valuable leadership skills and exclusive college scholarship opportunities for high school students in Southern and Eastern Kentucky to help seize their potential as the region's next generation of business and entrepreneurial leaders.

The program was established through the vision of U.S. Congressman Harold "Hal" Rogers (KY-05) that "no young person should have to leave home to find his or her future."

Coffey attended the second summer session of the Rogers Scholars program held July 14-19 on the campus of Morehead State University.

"We have had another incredible year with the Rogers Scholars program. Students from throughout Southern and Eastern Kentucky have come together to build their leadership and entrepreneurial skills and focus on community service to make their communities, and this region, a better place to live," said Lonnie Lawson, President and CEO of The Center for Rural Development. "I cannot wait to see what the future holds for this talented young group of leaders."

Coffey is the son of Scottie and Wanda Coffey of Mt. Vernon.

Sixty-five high school students from 45 Kentucky counties were selected to attend the 2019 Class of Rogers Scholars. Each graduate earns potential access to exclusive college scholarship opportunities from some of the state's top-ranked colleges and universities. To be eligible, students must complete a community service project in their hometown within one year after completing the Rogers Scholars program.

There is no tuition charge to attend Rogers Scholars and lodging and food are provided at no cost to participants.

For more information about the Rogers Scholars program, contact Allison Cross, Community Liaison and Youth Programs Coordinator at The Center, at across@centertech.com or call 606-677-6019. Visit www.centeryouthprograms.com to learn more about the program.

Lonnie Lawson, President and CEO of The Center for Rural Development, and Allison Cross, Community Liaison and Youth Programs Coordinator for The Center, present 2019 Rogers Scholars graduate Kyle Coffey with a certificate for completing the program. He is a junior at Rockcastle County High School.
