Mud slides close road

County workers have been busy repairing damage to Possum Kingdom Road in Rockcastle County since recent rains, snow and ice have caused parts of the road to slip over the mountain. The county received emergency road aid funds this week for over $42,000 from the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet to help repair and reopen the road.

Emergency funds to repair mud slides

Recent heavy rains and snow in the area have caused some rock and mud slides on the edge of roadways in Rockcastle County. However, the Rockcastle County Fiscal Court and Judge/Executive Doug Bishop are staying on top of the situation. Heavy precipitation caused a mud slide and created a dangerous situation on Possum Kingdom Road for drivers. But within days the fiscal court had made an emergency request for funding from the state of Kentucky to repair the damage. On Tuesday, January 23, the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet announced the release of $42,740 in County Road Aid emergency funds for the repair. "We work well with the state and focus on issues that involve a matter of safety for our citizens," said Bishop. Some other requests have been made as well and are still in the process of being approved. "The Bevin administration is committed to

ERWA sale to KAWC complete

Better service expected

By: Mike French
Reporter

For several months there has been discussion about the sale of the Eastern Rockcastle Water Association to the Kentucky American Water Company and the sale price of $770,000 has now been approved by the Kentucky Public Service Commission as of Friday, January 19.

The approval makes the sale complete but officials are not yet certain when the much larger company will take over operations of the local water company.

The Eastern Rockcastle Water Association (ERWA) serves a little over 600 customers while the KAWC serves over 130,000 customers across the state.

Officials at ERWA said, during negotiations earlier in the year, that part of the deal would involve treating the local customers fairly. At the same time, ERWA President Russell Barron had said he was not sure how the new company could make any money under current conditions. Barron noted that there are only a few employees at ERWA and water bills have been kept at a minimum for the customer's sake for a long time making a profit difficult for any company.

KAWC has agreed, as part of the deal, to keep existing water rates the same as they have been and provide the same service. The new company will also continue to get its water from Jackson County, Wood Creek and Mount Vernon just as it has been but

City hears citizens' complaints about local duck hunting

By: Mike French
Reporter

In a highly anticipated council meeting last Thursday night, members of the Mount Vernon City Council heard complaints and suggestions from local residents about duck hunting at Lake Linville.

The city had received a few calls from concerned citizens about duck hunters shooting in areas of the lake where duck hunting is prohibited and they heard suggestions that duck hunting be outlawed on the lake.

However, after citizens voiced their concerns about issues of water pollution and safety, members of the council pointed out areas of the lake where hunting is already illegal and said that passing an ordinance to make hunting illegal in areas where it is already illegal wouldn't make any difference.

After guests read a prepared letter asking the city to ban duck hunting, other guests defended duck hunting on the lake and council members agreed that the practice is beneficial to many.

However, in order to help stop those hunting in illegal areas and in response to the requests of those complaining, members agreed to place bigger signage and maps at the boat dock and bait shop and advertise what areas where duck hunting is allowed.

Though the citizens who showed up with the complaint letter left the meeting during discussion, Mayor Mike Bryant said he was pleased with the response of the council.

"I think we all listened and heard the complaints and are doing everything we can to please everyone involved," he said. "We will look at increased signage and getting information out to the public about legal hunting areas and increase enforcement and possibly fines for violating our duck

by: perlina m. anderkin

I have taken quite a hiatus from this column. I couldn't decide which silliness by the liberals I wanted to comment on -- the choices were endless and besides the holidays just overwhelmed me, to be honest.

However, the recent government shutdown raised my ire to the 'I need to vent somewhere' level and you, my readers, are that level.

I was outraged at the blatant disregard for citizens of this country, displayed by democrats by the shutdown. It was either make over 800,000 illegal "dreamers" legal or we shut the whole thing down, to the extent that our military personnel would have not been paid come February 1st. This was so outrageous that I was speechless with indignation. I know you cannot picture speechless and me in the same sentence but I was actually spluttering to the children because I couldn't express my outrage coherently.

If anyone in this country ever needed to be aware of where democrats loyalties lie this should serve as all the proof you need.

I have sympathy for the "dreamers." They did not actually have any say as to whether or not they wound up in this country illegally. But, this is a slap in the face to every immigrant that went through the proper procedure to come to this country legally and an incentive to those, who still would like to come here, to dispense with all that legal mumbo-jumbo and just jump the border (north or south) and wait for the democrats to need another influx of voters.

I can't wait for Spring. This has not been a good winter. I am facing some

Points East

By Ike Adams

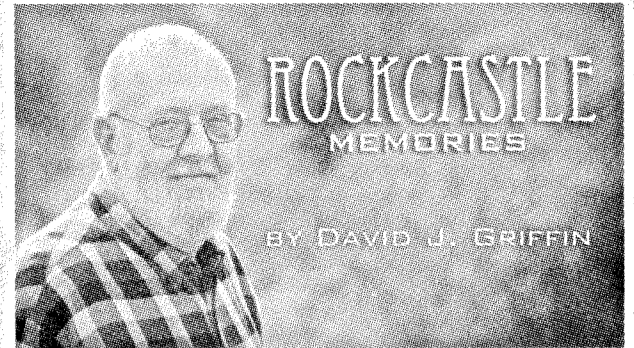

One cold, snow-covered Saturday day in January 1987 or 88, when we were living on Harmon's Lick here in Garrard County, I glanced out our kitchen window and saw two young boys, about 10 or 11 years old studiously meandering across the field that separated my house from my next door neighbor's some 500 feet on up the road. They were close enough that I could tell they were lugging the live racoon trap my neighbor had borrowed to catch the one that had been overturning her garbage can. One boy had the front end of the trap and the other had the rear.

They would stop and point in different directions then go back to watching the ground as they slowly made their way into the big pasture behind our place. I quickly figured out that they were tracking something so I pulled on my

Dear Journal,

Everybody who owns pets knows that everyday life can be an adventure or even a challenge sometimes. I know that in the years that we've had pets, in day-to-day life, you can expect the unexpected. Last week, the unexpected happened. I put a post on Facebook about it and I got several comments. When I was out to dinner, one high school friend even wanted me to relate the story to her husband.

It all began one morning around nine when I put a beef roast out to thaw in the kitchen sink. I was going to have it for supper along with some of those little red potatoes, some onions, celery, and carrots. About two o'clock, I had planned to put it on to cook in the crock pot.

The day was passing without incident and I was even getting a few things accomplished. I had a little lunch at about noon or after and checked on the roast. It was coming along nicely and almost ready to cook. After lunch, a little after one, I got a phone call and talked for a few minutes.

Out of the corner of my eye, I saw a streak run through our home office and on to the living room. What in the world was it? I think it was the cat, but I'd never seen him run so fast. It looked like he had something in his mouth, too.

He, Miles, is a big old yellow tabby cat that looks like Morris, the cat from the TV commercials. I got off the phone and went to see where he went and just what he had in his mouth.

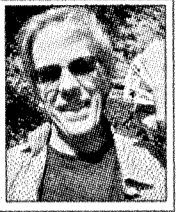

In the living room, there is an antique upright piano that once belonged to Stanley's mother, Laura. As the story goes, she bought it several years before she died and it had once been used in the Freedom Baptist Church. By the looks of it, with all of its ornate carvings, it was from about the 1890s to maybe 1910.

Anyway, Miles had gotten the beef roast, leaving a bloody trail along the way. He had jumped to the piano bench, to the keyboard, and on to the top of Things I miss.

I miss going through 78 rpm records and cranking up the Victrola. There was no volume knob. We controlled the volume by opening up the doors where the horn was. The wider the doors opened, the louder the music.

I miss waking up to find that school was cancelled because of snow. We didn't have cell phones so we had to wait for our county to be mentioned on the radio each morning. There was nothing as disappointing as hearing the radio announcer pass by your county in the alphabetical listing of school closings. I hated Magoffin

County because if the announcer said Magoffin, he was already past my county.

I miss party phone lines. On the days that school was cancelled, part of our entertainment was to eavesdrop on whomever was on the phone. As a youngster, I learned a lot about grown-up stuff listening to people on our party line.

I miss operational legs. I know I am blessed to have what I do have. Many have less. But I miss the days when I could go outside and run wide open. Sometimes there wasn't even a reason. I'd just run and jump stuff.

I miss hunting Easter Eggs. I was a sad puppy the day my parents explained that I was too old to hunt the eggs and I had to help hide them.

I miss little plastic army men. Those tiny little green fellows could occupy our entire neighborhood for the day. Granted, they weren't attached to a satellite and didn't have very good graphics. And we couldn't play them online with people a thousand miles away. But give me a BB gun, a pack of firecrackers and a bag full of those little fellows, and my entire day was set. Of course all that together was about 55 cents.

I miss barns full of hay. I used to love making forts out of the bales or just climbing to the roof of the

for

I want to thank all of you that have encouraged me to run for Sheriff. If I am elected, I will use my years of experience as a Deputy Sheriff and Factory Manager at Hyster-Yale to make a Sheriff Department that is responsive and professional to serve and protect you and your property.

During the next few weeks, I will be publishing some of my commitments and plans if elected. To do a better job fighting crime and illegal activities, one of these commitments is to have a "Sheriff Department Steering Committee" representing all the schools, cities and communities in the county. The team members could be church pastors, schools teachers, city leaders and others that want to help make our county a better and safer place to live, work and raise our children. This team would meet monthly to express concerns and come up with ideas to help me and the Sheriff Department prioritize our actions. I firmly believe with all of us coming together to help solve the problems we face has unlimited possibilities.

Thanks again,

barn on them. Looking back, there were probably rats and snakes and spiders of every kind in there with me. But those thoughts never entered my mind. I was just worried about how high I could climb.

I miss smokehouses. They were supposed to be used to smoke our meat and hang the hams and such. But ours was always cluttered with stuff that I could make things out of. Things like NASCAR vehicles. I would sit in that old pig boiler and grab a wagon wheel for a steering wheel and use old steel traps as a gas pedal and brake and I was in the Indy 500 going 197 mph.

Speaking of which, I miss imagination. Some (most) say I never grew up. But I used to make everything a game. No matter how difficult the chore, I would turn it into a mountain climbing expedition exploring uncharted parts of the planet and finding Bigfoot.

These days I even procrastinate taking out the garbage.

I miss Saturday morning cartoons. The ones where animators were not scared to death they might hurt some dude's feelings. Cartoons where things blew up and kids with a little common sense knew not to shoot the mailman with a bazooka just because Bugs Bunny did it and then blame the cartoon for their own ignorance.

I miss rubbing aluminum foil on a nickel and then melting a crayon into the foil and making crayon money.

I miss Silly Putty and copying all the politicians off the Sunday newspaper and stretching their faces all out of whack. Still would enjoy doing that.

I miss spending the day shooting my BB gun. There used to be junk places around where everyone in the neighborhood would take their trash. A BB gun would burst bottles all over the junk pile. Then a couple times per year, someone brought a back hoe and buried the trash that had built up. Yeah, we probably destroyed the environment.

I miss moral values. Children being spanked when they did bad things. People having to pay consequences for bad actions and stupid decision without someone else blaming society or finding excuses for them.

I don't miss being spanked, but when I made bad decisions that harmed others or would harm myself, I got whipped. And I never made that decision again. I think we have some people on Congress who could use such lessons...I volunteer.

I miss a stove to back up to when I am cold. A place where heat actually blows onto whatever you hold in front of it.

I miss hunting. Never have time anymore but it is some of my best memories growing up and, sometimes, a matter of whether we got food or not. The experience was worth getting up at 4 a.m. and the stories we told were memories for years.

I miss visiting relatives for no reason. Just pop in on them for an hour or two or three.

There are lots of things I miss but will probably never do again. At least not in front of people.

boots and walked out to see exactly what they were up to.

“Gonna catch us a rabbit soon as we find his hole,” one of the boys replied after I asked.

“Are you trying to find where he came from or where he's going,” I inquired.

“Where he went to,” came the reply.

“Well he went thataway,” I pointed to the tracks and in the opposite direction of the way they were headed. It most have taken me the better part of half an hour to explain that a rabbit's hind feet land in front of its forefeet when said rabbit is travelling. I'm pretty sure I would have been a finalist on America's Funniest Home Videos had someone been filming me falling backwards as I tried to demonstrate how a rabbit gets around.

I finally convinced the boys that they would have far better luck catching a rabbit out their “Aunt Lola's” garden if they baited the trap and set it there. I knew that my neighbor, Lola Prewitt, had spinach wintering over and that trapping rabbits to keep them out of it was legal as long as they took the rabbit a few miles away and released it. I'm not sure how the boys were related to Lola but they may have been grand-nephews. In any event they referred to her as, “Aunt Lola” and I'm reasonably sure all her nieces and nephews had long been adults at the time.

Anyway, the boys and I came back to my house where we found some fresh lettuce and an apple before we walked back to Ms. Prewitt's garden and I showed them how to bait and set the trap. If, in fact, they'd actually found a rabbit hole, they were totally clueless as to how to go about preparing the “live box” to actually catch a critter. I also told them that if they caught a coon they should have Aunt Lola call me because they were apt to get bitten and that they did not want to go through a series of painful rabies shots if that happened.

I had just gotten up on Sunday morning when I heard loud, stamping feet and the excited chattering that only preteen boys can make, coming from the front porch. There they stood, trap box suspended between them, and inside it was a full grown, very frightened cottontail.

“Well, we got him, one exclaimed!

“Now what are YOU gonna do with him,” the other asked me? You already said we're not allowed to eat him!”

I made them leave the rabbit on the porch while I got dressed and called Lola to tell her I was going to help the boys relocate her rabbit. Lola teased me by suggesting I take to John Clark's place because he really needed more rabbits in his garden.

Instead, we took it to Junior Helton's farm where I figured one more rabbit was not going to make any difference.

So two little boys went back to Michigan or Ohio, I forget which, that afternoon with a tall tale to tell their classmates. If any of Lola's relatives are reading this column and know who the boys, now in their forties, might have been, I'd be very interested to see if they remember rabbit trapping as well as I do.

I was amazed. I didn't think it would have been possible. The roast was half his size, wrapped up in plastic on a styrofoam tray down in the sink. How did he even know it was there? He had unwrapped it or should I say tore a hole in it and left the plastic and tray in the sink.

I'll bet that old piano could really tell some tales-of all the church services, the funerals, the weddings, and who knows what else. But I don't guess it would have ever dreamed that it would have a big yellow tom cat sitting on top with a beef roast. I wouldn't have dreamed it, either.

Obituaries

Janice Vanzant

Janice Vanzant, 61, of Mt. Vernon, died Saturday, January 20, 2018 at the UK Hospital. She was born April 29, 1956 in Mt. Vernon, to the late Robert William and Verna (Cromer) Burke. She had worked for RTEC as a Manager Dispatcher. She took great enjoyment in crafts, religious activities, flowers and her family. She was also a member of the Maple Grove Baptist Church.

Those left to celebrate her life are: her children, Jason (Jeanette) Vanzant of Mt. Vernon and Vanessa Gail (Kevin) Tharpe of Owingsville; three grandchildren; one step grandson; a brother, Roger (Irene) Burke of Roundstone; two sisters, Iva Reno of Maryville, TN and Kathleen (David) Cope of Mt. Vernon; as well as a host of friends and neighbors.

Lady Rockets rack up wins in last two outings

The Lady Rockets are 11 and 7 on the season after winning their last two outings, against the Lynn Camp Lady Wildcats and the Lady Eagles from Lexington Christian Academy.

At Lynn Camp last Friday night, the Lady Rockets trailed at all the quarter stops, 11-4, 28-18 and 35-30 before scoring 21 points in the fourth quarter, 12 of them at the free throw line, to take the 51-45 win.

Freshman Casey Coleman took scoring honors for her team with 13 points, which included going nine of 14 from the free throw line; sophomore Shelby Newland scored 12 points, including two three point baskets; sophomore Kenzi Himes got 10; junior Kasi Lay and freshman Lindsey Jones scored five points each and senior Mackenzie Payne and junior Emma Bullens got three each.

The Lady Rockets went 23 for 33 from the free throw line.

On Monday night, the Lady Rockets hosted the Lexington Christian Academy Lady Eagles and it was a 51-29 rout. The score was 25-0 before the Lady Eagles got on the board.

Eight Lady Rockets scored in the game led by Bullens with 11 points; Newland got 10; Coleman nine; Himes and Payne scored six points each; Lay got four; seventh grader Hallie Brown got three and senior Emily Adams two.

The Lady Rockets will travel to Pulaski County Friday night for a doubleheader with the Rockets and will host Clay County next Monday night.

At Pre-Regional

Archery teams compete at Lincoln

The RCHS and RCMS Archery teams once again had strong showings this weekend as they competed at the Lincoln County High School Pre-Regional. Six RCHS archers and seven RCMS archers achieved their highest scores ever in competition.

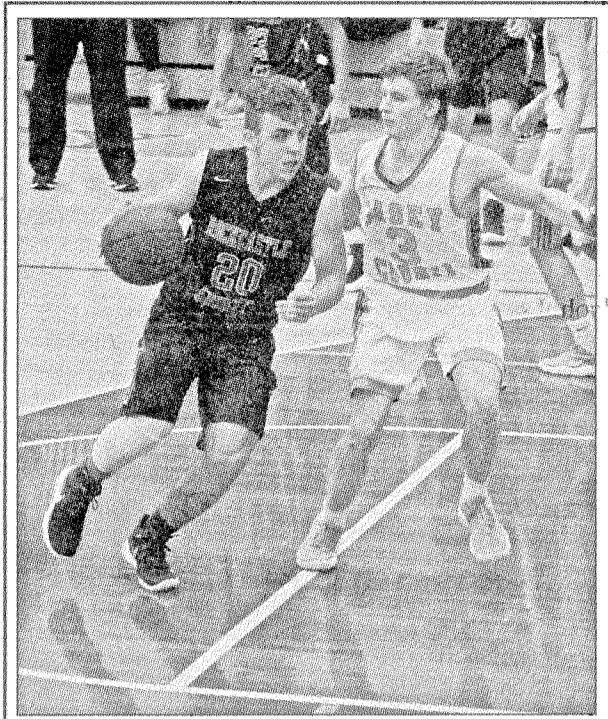

Leading the high school Rockets with their best performances ever were Kyle Coffey and JC Cameron with scores of 276. Joseph Cowan tied his best score from last week with a 272. Sam Brickley remained consistently strong with a score of 272 as well. Maggie Franklin was once again the top female shooter for RCHS with a score of 267. Gentry Phillips also shot one of his best scores ever with a 266. Senior Megan Taylor had her personal best with a score of 265 as did freshmen Sarah Allen with her 245. Naomi Co had her best performance of the season as well with a score of 233 which exceeded her previous high by 59 points. Jackson Cromer and Kim Wheat shot well and contributed to the team's overall score.

For the RCMS Rockets, TJ Ramsey led the team once again with an awesome 275. Sixth grader Paige Cash was the top female archer for the middle school achieving her top score of 260. She was followed by Emily Maupin with a 254 and fellow sixth grader Cayla Marcum. Cayla's score improved to a 242. This is amazing considering her score of 111 at her first tournament in December. Ethan Cromer scored 243 on Saturday. Adam Kimsey achieved his personal best with a 241 as did Noah Peek and Cody Kirby with scores of 235 and Deajeon Dean and Jaden Cameron shooting scores of 234. Also rounding out the top twelve to add to the team's season high overall score were Trace Boone and Alex Robinson.

The teams will next compete at the 2018 Martin's Peterbilt Bullseye Challenge in Laurel County.

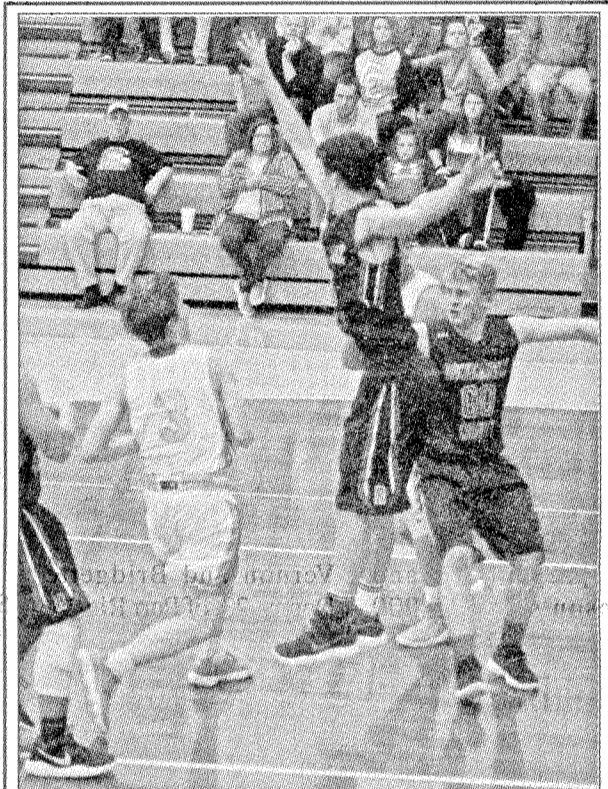

Junior Emma Bullens drives to the basket in the Lady Rockets' 51-29 win over Lexington Christian. Bullens led the Lady Rockets with 11.

Josh Thacker, shown here in a game with Casey County, led the Rockets with 15 points in their loss to East Jessamine Monday night. Sharing the scoring honors with Thacker was Isaac Stratton, also with 15. Other Rockets scoring were Logan Noel with 12, Trevor Todd with seven, Cade Burdette scored six, Devin Mullins added five and Jacob Loudermilk scored four.

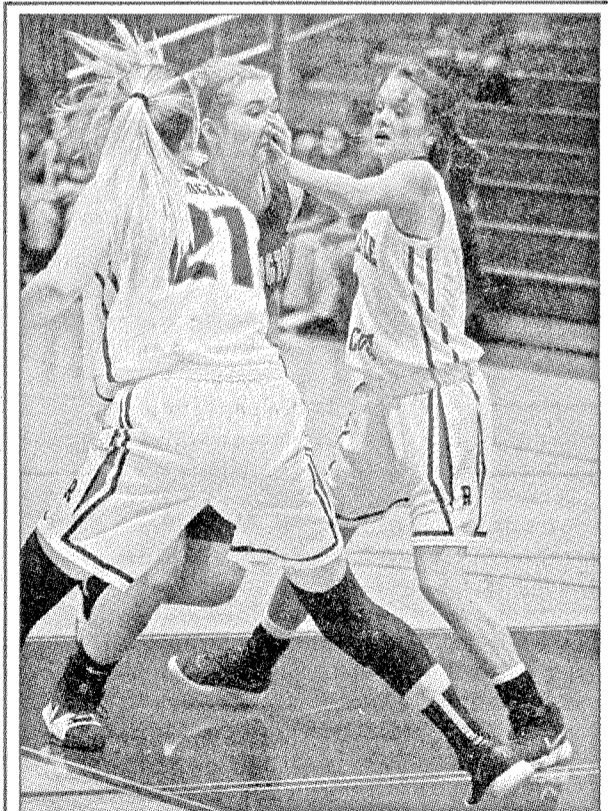

Sophomore Kenzi Himes works hard in the post during the Lady Rockets' 51-29 win over Lexington Christian. Himes scored six points on the night.

Senior Devin Mullins puts on defensive pressure in a Rocket game with Casey County. Mullins scored five points in the Rockets' 80-64 loss to East Jessamine Monday night. The Rockets travel to Pulaski County Friday night in a doubleheader with the Lady Rockets. They also take on Nelson County Saturday. The Rocket freshmen, junior varsity and varsity will host Model next Tuesday night.

Freshman Casey Coleman gets to the basket in the Lady Rockets' win Monday. Coleman scored nine points. She also led the Lady Rockets in scoring with 13 last Friday in their win over Lynn Camp.

Freshman Raegen Chasteen gets "handsy" during the Lady Rockets' win over Lexington Christian Monday night. Helping Chasteen out in the double team is seventh grader Hallie Brown. The Lady Rockets travel to Pulaski County Friday night for a doubleheader with the Rockets. They host Garrard County Saturday. Jayvee game starts at noon. They also host Clay County next Monday night.

hunting ordinance. We make every effort to respond immediately to citizens' concerns and address any matter brought before us immediately.”

According to Josh Bray, City Administrator, the city plans to have in place information about the legal duck hunting areas and the new signs by the beginning of the next duck hunting season.

In other action, the city read a resolution as a tribute to former Mayor Karen King who passed away recently. The resolution is a token of the city's esteem for King on behalf of all the citizens of Mount Vernon.

Since there was no quorum for the December meeting, council members approved financial reports for November and December and reviewed department reports for both months.

The All American club reported picking up 21 bags of trash from December 3-17 and thirteen bags of trash from December 30 through January 12.

The Mount Vernon Police Department reported making 374 calls for service in November, including 54 arrests and 69 traffic violations. The department reported 347 calls in December with 57 arrests and 67 traffic violations.

The Mount Vernon Fire Department reported 35 runs in December using 25,050 gallons of water while in November they made 38 runs using only 8,600 gallons of water.

The next regular scheduled meeting of the city council will be Thursday, February 15 at 6 p.m. at City Hall. The public is invited to attend.

“Water”

“KWAC is a much larger company. When we had a water line break or another problem, we had to call on contractors and wait for them and pay them to repair the damage,” said Jessica Maupin, ERWA clerk. “But with this company they have their own equipment and many many employees instead of two like we have had. Repairs should be much quicker and safer for everyone involved.”

This will also be one of the ways the new company may make a profit by not having to hire contractors for repair work and will have better water lines and equipment with fewer problems that would need repair at all, according to ERWA officials.

The exact date that KAWC will take over day-to-day operations is still being negotiated but there may be an announcement concerning that at the next meeting of the association on February 19 at 6 p.m.

“The biggest benefit for everyone involved is for the customers. They are expected to have better service beginning immediately,” said Maupin. Not to mention that the company is keeping the two employees currently on staff and adding many more that are already with KWAC to provide quicker more convenient service to the current customers.

And possibly the best news of all in this acquisition is that customer who placed a deposit with ERWA will be receiving that money back since KAWC does not require a deposit.

Frankfort Update...

By Jonathon Shell
State Representative
Victories for Life marked, budget starts

Monday was National Sanctity of Human Life Day, a time to reflect on the value of human life at every stage. All human life is God-made, and deserves the protection of our laws. Every time I look at my three children I think about just how precious life is, and on this day, I was especially proud of the monumental legislation that we passed in 2017 to protect the life of the unborn.

On another note, it's an even-numbered year, which means that the General Assembly is focused on crafting a two-year state budget. Last week the Governor delivered his constitutionally required budget proposal and outlined priorities like fully funding our pension systems, providing millions more for social workers and the foster care system, and additional dollars to fight opioid abuse as well as for new equipment for our state police.

His presentation was only the first step of the process. It is the Legislature that allocates the $21 billion that makes up Kentucky's two-year budget. We are reviewing his framework and our budget review subcommittees have already been hard at work looking at how to build a budget that meets our essential needs and serves Kentuckians in a fiscally responsible way.

The Governor proposed a 6.25% across the board cut to various state agencies, as well as the elimination of 70 programs, in order to provide for $3.3 billion worth of pension contributions (including $2.3 billion for teacher's retirement), maintaining current SEEK spending, and bettering government's ability to protect our citizens. I, and other members of the House, are still reviewing these proposals and considering what adjustments can be made, including to items that impact our local school districts.

Ensuring that our foster care and adoption systems are fully funded, while hiring more social workers and raising their pay is a top priority. The Governor proposed putting forward $24 million to provide pay raises for, as well as to hire more, social workers, whose caseloads are well above the recommended standards. This is on top of an additional $10.8 million to improve the foster care and adoption placement process, so that every individual seeking to take in a child can do so without headaches and excessive bureaucracy.

One significant piece of legislation we have passed this session is Jenna's Law, which expands our rape statutes to protect minors from sexual offenders above the age of 28, whether consent is given or not. We also plan to take up a constitutional amendment guaranteeing explicit rights for crime victims - also known as Marsy's law - which upon our passage would go on the ballot in November for voter approval.

I have also filed legislation that would update our power of attorney laws, including streamlining Kentucky's guidelines to give individuals more advanced control of all health and financial decisions, so they are ready when the time comes. House Bill 11 is the first comprehensive overhaul of our state's power of attorney law, something that is long overdue and will align our laws with those of other states. These reforms will significantly improve the process of designating a power of attorney, provide relief for our courts, and provide better care with fewer headaches and paperwork for both the caregiver and the individual in need of care.

Many of you have already contacted me with comments and concerns about the Governor's budget proposal and I look forward to continuing those conversations. Please do not hesitate to continue reaching out.

ELECT

CHRIS MASON

Rockcastle County
SHERIFF

I have listed below some of my aspirations if elected Sheriff of Rockcastle County.

- Set up regular meetings with school officials to create a better relationship for early drug prevention.
- More certified officer's to provide 24/7 security through out the county.
- A detective dedicated primarily to burglary.

The way I plan to help fund my ideas are through programs such as:

- Seize items and or property in convicted drug related crimes.
- A Rockcastle County impound yard.

I have many more ideas and would love to hear yours,

Thank you for your support!

Livingston Police Chief Travis Richardson received the Governor's Award, given by Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD), again this year for his tireless efforts against drunk drivers in the area. This is the second consecutive year he has received the recognition and the sixth time in his career. Richardson became Livingston's Police Chief in 2015.

Cold snap triggers spike in energy use across region

The unusually cold start to 2018 has resulted in higher than normal energy use by members of Jackson Energy and other utilities across the region.

Jackson Energy is encouraging members to be aware of their energy use and take steps to help manage electric bills, which are also expected to be higher than usual as a result of the extreme cold weather.

"Our members can monitor their daily usage with our free SmartHub app and see how much energy they are using at home," says Jackson Energy Home Energy Advisor Todd Claiborne. "The app also shows the daily temperatures and you can see how the colder temperatures impact their usage." For more information on the SmartHub app, visit the website at www.smarthubapp.com.

Weather, especially cold weather, affects residential energy bills more than any other factor. Southeastern Kentucky experienced almost two weeks of below-freezing temperatures in late December and early January, and temperatures recently dipped down into the single digits.

Heating claims about a 42 percent share of overall energy use in U.S. homes. Put simply, the temperature difference between the inside of your home and the air temperature outside is greater during the winter than in the summer.

The greater the temperature difference, the harder your heating system has to work to maintain a comfortable indoor temperature.

For example, if you want your house to be 70 degrees inside and it's 20 degrees outside, your HVAC system has to make up 50 degrees difference in temperature. Even on a 100-degree summer day, the HVAC system only has to make up about 30 degrees difference versus that 50-degree variance in winter.

Jackson Energy's website offers a free online energy audit to assess your home's insulation level, heating system and other factors that influence your energy use. Called Billing Insights, the online program also offers member a free LED bulb for completing the survey.

One way to eliminate the winter billing peaks is to sign up for Jackson Energy's leveled billing program. Leveled billing uses a rolling 12-month average of your electric usage to calculate your monthly bill. "Leveled billing evens out the peaks of winter bills and provides our members with a monthly bill that is more predictable and easier on their budget," says Claiborne. The rolling 12-month average also eliminates the need for a catch up month, which is associated with budget billing.

Electric cooperatives across Kentucky are reporting double-digit increases in energy use compared to this same period one year ago, which also experienced colder than normal temperatures.

"We all can expect higher energy bills from the cold weather," says Claiborne, "but there are some simple steps we all can take around our homes to cut back on energy usage."

9 Quick Tips to Use Less Energy

Here are some ways to cut back on home energy use:

1. Find and seal all air leaks. Check for cracks near doors and windows, gaps around pipes and chimneys, and any unfinished areas. Plug leaks with weather-stripping, caulk, or expandable foam.
2. Set your thermostat to 68 degrees, or install a programmable thermostat.
3. Close blinds and curtains at night; if sunny, open them during the day.
4. Cover drafty windows yourself with easy, effective, and inexpensive shrink-to-fit plastic.
5. Turn off lights when not in use. Replace incandescent light bulbs with LEDs, which use at least 75 percent less energy.
6. Lower your water

All proceeds go to support Trooper Island Camp.

Trooper Island Camp provides a free camping experience to low income, underprivileged and special needs children in Kentucky. Structured to encourage respect for law enforcement, it is intended to nourish the educational, physical and spiritual needs of all who attend.

Trooper Island Camp was established by the Kentucky State Police in 1965. It is located on a 34-acre island that is nestled on beautiful Dale Hollow Lake on the Kentucky-Tennessee border. Trooper Island is a non-profit entity, relying solely on tax-deductible donations from the public and fundraising events.

Agriculture Commissioner Ryan Quarles invites Kentucky Proud members to apply to participate in the Kentucky Proud Farm to Fork and Promotional Grant programs for 2018.

"Kentucky Proud is a national model for promoting local agricultural products," Commissioner Quarles said. "The Farm to Fork Program and the Promotional Grant Program help publicize the many outstanding Kentucky Proud products that are produced by our farmers and agribusinesses. We look forward to reviewing applications for these excellent programs."

Both programs are administered by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture (KDA). Funding is made possible through a grant from the Kentucky Agricultural Development Fund.

The Kentucky Proud Farm to Fork Program provides funding to qualifying applicants for dinners that showcase local food products. The program also promotes local agritourism businesses and provides educational background on locally produced food and products.

Farm to Fork reimburses up to $750 of the approved event's eligible Kentucky-grown food products and associated promotional expenditures up to 50 percent of the event's approved invoices. Reimbursement for promotional and branding expenditures is limited to $250. Only meal ingredients with 100 percent direct Kentucky farm impact will be eligible for consideration, and food products grown or provided by the host organization are not eligible for reimbursement. KDA staff will help the host organization and chef to identify foods with 100 percent direct Kentucky farm impact for events.

Each host organization must complete and submit an application, an affidavit, and an IRS Form W-9 no less than 30 days before the event. Applicants must designate a registered 501(c)(3) charitable organization as the beneficiary of the dinner. Events must take place before Nov. 15. The KDA will approve no more than three events in
