Drugs found on inmate

Rockcastle County Jailer Carlos McClure would like to express his appreciation for the hard work and procedures used by deputies at the local detention center in confiscating 86.5 illegal pills from Robert Rose, 36 of Mount Vernon, while he was being arrested on an unrelated charge Tuesday evening.

McClure said Rose was wearing three layers of clothing and, when deputies were removing his third layer during the search, the drugs were confiscated, despite Rose "wrestling" with the deputy.

Rose has now also been charged with promoting contraband and possession of drugs, trafficking drugs and tampering with evidence.

Arrests made in double murder investigation

By: Mike French

In the early morning hours of June 8, 2017, officials from the Mount Vernon Police Department called the Kentucky State Police after the bodies of William H. Bryant, 36, and Mount Vernon, were found in their home on North Wilderness Road in Rockcastle County.

Investigators were called to the scene after the two according to reports.

The bodies were sent to the Kentucky State Medical Examiner's Office for autopsy and KSP Detective Ryan Loudermilk began the investigation.

Christopher Evans, 22, of Somerset, and the couple's 16-year-old daughter, were arrested and charged with the crimes.

Evans was charged with two counts of murder, tampering with physical evidence and burglary in the first degree.

The report says that Evans brought a firearm to the residence, entered unlawfully to commit the crimes.

Evans then reportedly returned to his own residence where he destroyed some of the evidence that could implicate him in the crimes.

Though Evans' arraignment was held Monday where he pled "not guilty," the arrest citation says that Evans admitted to officers that he entered the home of the two victims "to kill them" armed with a .38 special pistol.

The citation says Evans admitted to shooting both victims and also told police that he washed his clothes to remove blood

Annual Blast in the Valley is huge success

London Horn and Paul Shannon joined the many onlookers during this year's Blast in the Valley fireworks show at Renfro Valley. The extended fireworks display drew applause from those in attendance as the clear skies cooporated with event planners. As shown below, the field was packed with those who attended this year's event and took part in the many games, displays and vendors.

By: Mike French The Blast in the Valley celebration Sunday, July 2nd, brought a huge crowd out under the sun and stars to celebrate Independence Day.

Visitors from Rockcastle County, as well as several surrounding counties, enjoyed the many events and displays during the celebration as free concerts, inflatables and vendors filled the field with smiling children and adults alike.

The massive fireworks display culminated the festivities and this year's display was larger then normal, according to Rockcastle Tourism Director Susan Tomes, "Due to the unfortunate accident last year, there were fireworks left over and we have been able to add those to the display this year and next year," said Tomes.

The tourism department also installed several new safety measures this year and will continue to make the event safer each year, "Visitor safety is our top priority and we will continue to look at ways to improve the event every year," Tomes said.

The weather also cooperated with organizers and the venders continue to grow each year.

This event provides a safe, family atmosphere for all of the visitors and we would like to thank all the volunteer firemen, EMS workers, volunteers and law enforcement agencies who helped keep the event safe and clean," said Tomes.

I think in my old age I am getting more and more difficult to deal with. I don't know if my opinions have changed and I have just become a grumpy old man, or if society has changed and I just haven't kept up with the trends.

I have become completely intolerant to people who are habitually late. I think it's because I read more into it than actually exists. But when I find a person who is always late for everything they do, my grumpy old mind goes through a gambit of thoughts that must have gone through their heads to make therm late.

I suppose I'm just old school or maybe my dad somehow instilled this into my character. According to the way the rest of the world looks at it, I have accepted the fact that it is my own character flaw. After all, I am smart enough to know that if I am the only human being who feels a certain way, then I must be the one that is wrong and the rest of the world is right.

Still, there is no switch that I can just flip off to make myself stop thinking this way. Knowing I must be wrong doesn't change my opinion on the matter, it only forces me to accept everyone else's way of thinking.

Being from the old school I have a certain way of viewing habitually late people.

To me, if a person says to me "Mike, I will meet you at 5 p.m," then what that means to me is that they will meet me at 5 p.m. Not 5:05 or 5:15.

In my grumpy old point of view, anyone who would show up at 5:15 is basically stating for the record, right out in public, "There is absolutely no way on earth that Mike's time can be as important as mine. Whatever Mike walked away from in order to be here when he said he would be here, can't possibly compare with what I was doing that made me late. After all, I am so much more important than Mike or his family or his job. Mike can sit and wait on me for however long I wish for him to wait because his time is basically worthless and not nearly as important as my need to look at myself in the mirror one more over the years, when I express this grumpy old point of view, I am met with "Well, I had to work," or "I had to stop and get gas," or "I needed to it."

My question has always

Okay, fellow daylily lovers, listen up. Here's some information you need right now if you want to take advantage of it this year.

Retired Garrard County middle school teacher ,Willie Graham and her adult son, Brent are doing something similar to what I once imagined myself doing at the end of my professional career. But, even in my wildest dreams, I never envisioned anything remotely close to being as beautiful as the over-1,800 varieties of day lilies the Grahams growing growing, surrounding their home and taking up over half the space on their 2+ acre lot there on U.S.Highway 27 less than 4 miles north of Lancaster. The actual address is 3406, Lexington Road, Lancaster, KY 40444. Highway 27 and Lexington Road are one and

Be thankful for it.

And, if you stop by, Willie will sell you a good healthy start of any one of them. Visitors to this amazing garden will experience both a rainbow of colors and the notion that they have somehow found themselves inside a kaleidoscope where every turn of their heads brings a new and different combination of shapes and colors into view.

When Loretta and I visited the Grahams last week, we had been prompted to do so when we drove by in May and saw her Irises, about 200 of them, in full bloom alongside the driveway. Loretta called Willie and received permission to shoot photographs of them but circumstances prevented us from getting back up that way before the irises had finished blooming and I am oh so glad it worked out that way.

Numerous people had told us, "If you think the irises are something, wait until you see the day lilies."

Turns out the irises, which are not yet for sale, but may be down the road, were scarcely more than a subtle hint that the big show was coming soon.

The show is close enough to 27 to make traffic slow down but during the 2 or 3 hours we were there, I didn't see anyone actually come to a full stop in the middle of the road. A few vehicles did pull into the driveway to take a look while we were there, probably because they noticed the small, hand lettered sign at the end of the driveway that reads, "daylilies for sale." I doubt that very many drivers see the sign because the sight of the field of hims is so awesome and overpowering it's difficult to see anything else.

As soon as we got out of our car, I had the sensation that I was walking just behind someone wearing expensive, subtlety-aromatic, floral perfume. Then I noticed numerous, the towering. trumpet lilies replete with huge blossoms scattered hither and yon among

Dinner On The Grounds

When I was elementary-school age, one of my favorite celebrations took place at Mt. Vernon's First Baptist Church. It was simply called "dinner on the grounds." Our pastor at that time was Wendell Belew, and my how he loved having the church members all gathered for a meal. (He was also a frequent visitor in the home of my family for Sunday dinners at my grandparents' house.)

When the church held dinners on the property, we gathered at one of two places. If it was likely to be raining or stormy, the meal was scheduled to be in the classroom area which was located near the church kitchen. Weather permitting, though, meant meeting at my favorite location, outdoors under the large trees on the left side of the church, near the pastor's office.

It was an amazing spectacle really. Those devout and dedicated women of the church made certain that everyone had a more than an ample supply of wonderful food. These tables were covered with the best dishes that the ladies of the church were capable of preparing.

Of course, the men of the church pitched in by carrying out the necessary large tables, placing them under the shade trees, which was followed by countless numbers of metal folding chairs being scattered about in the yard.

It is not possible for me to recall a complete list of those dedicated ladies, but so many of them stand out in my mind even after sixtyplus years have passed. Without a doubt, the first woman who comes to my mind is my own grandmother, Mommie Katie, who usually cooked a large pot of half-runner green beans. If the meal was held in the summer months, the beans were fresh. It the meal was scheduled for cooler temperatures, she cooked her canned half-runners.

Because I respected so many of the women of the church, I would like to honor as many of them as I can remember, but keep in mind that these events occurred when I was a mere boy. The mother of my sister-in-law, Eva, was Lena Machel. She lived just across the street from the church and would dash home just after the morning service in order to bring her dishes to the shade-tree area. Others who always cooked for those special get-togethers were: Jeri Nunnelley, Mrs. George Parrett, Elinor Denney, Mrs. Asher Cummins, Mrs. Bob McKenzie, Mrs. Virgil Stokes, Mrs. Grant Banks, Hazel Owens, Carrie Baker, Mary Hansel, Mrs. Johnny Sams. Mrs. John Williams, Mrs. Estill McBee, Mrs. Charlie Noe, Mrs. Beecher Owens, Mrs. John Griffin, Mrs. James Lambert; there are others whom I simply cannot recall.

EY DAVID U. GRIFFIN

I can still retain a vision of these gracious ladies unloading food from the trunks of their automobiles. Some of the frequently available dishes included potato salad, beans (green baked - Lima - navy), plates of deviled eggs, large platters of sliced tomatoes and cucumbers, bowls of fried chicken, sliced ham, cooked apples, mashed potatoes, biscuits, combread, and homemade rolls. Located all to itself on a separate table, one would discover a wide array of pies, cakes, and other homebaked goods. And I can testify myself to the fact that there was always a tub of banana pudding.

The young folks, like myself, could hardly contain ourselves until the Pastor greeted everyone and then, finally, blessed the food. At which time, if I remember being a growing boy correctly, we all made a slightly disciplined mad dash to fill our plates and find the perfect shady spot under one of the large trees.

Ahhh, "dinner on the grounds" was a good time had by all--regardless of

Dear Journal,

Now that June has come and gone and we are turning the corner heading to fall, it makes me wonder more and more where does the time go. It seems like only a few days ago I was looking forward to spring, working in the yard, the pretty summer days, and all of the good things that warm weather brings.

Soon the kids will be back in school; a chill will be in the air, the leaves will

Thanks Lady Rocket Softball...

Dear Editor, Football and Basketball usually get a big following in Rockcastle County, while other sports are sometimes overlooked by the masses. For entertainment purposes, people without a specific connection to a student by kin, will often come out to see a Football or Basketball game. Many of the other sports are only attended by parents, grandparents, aunts and uncles. If you fall into that category of spectators you are missing out on a

I just wanted to thank the Lady Rocket Softball team and coaches for all their 2017 season accomplishments. They had a great record, won their district and were runners up in region play. Only one game shy of a state tournament appearance. Many of our girls were on all tournament teams and some ranked in individual state categories statistics. Several of our girls received college scholarships and Matt Brown was Region Coach of the year. Congrats! Most of all I wanted to share with Rockcastle County citizens what great morals and character this group exhibited. In the few losses and many wins this season, they were so gracious in both. They were stellar examples of how teenagers should act. The seniors were great leader role models and the younger members are going to follow right along with that example. Thank you for the fun and friendship I was afforded by following your games this year. Coaches and players keep up the good work in making me proud I am a Rockcastle resident. GOD Bless You All! I love each of those young ladies and would be proud if they were my own children. If you have not followed any of their games start next season, you will be glad you did. then. Was it really better or do we just remember it that way?

He encouraged me to try some apples, too, so I did with a buttered biscuit. I told him that they reminded me of the ones my mom and grandma would fix. Then, I elaborated, going back many years in my memory.

On warm summer days when I was young, probably not even school age, Grandpa Norton and I would go down to the apple orchard. It's good to live next door to Grandpa and Grandma. There were three golden delicious trees and one red delicious planted all in a row. My swing hung on a branch from the middle golden delicious tree. Grandpa would sit in his orange lawn chair. Across the way in almost any direction were green pastures, cows, horses, little gardens, small ponds, and neighbors' houses who we all knew, even their dogs' names. The air was sweet with lilac, honesuckle, the hay and my grandma's iris bed or rose bushes not far from the apple trees. The countryside was quiet except for the buzzing from Tom Barne's sawmill down the road a bit, or once in a while a car would go by, or the sound of the hay harvesting trac-

As I would swing, Grandpa would gather a few apples, peel them, and we would eat our fill. He always peeled them with a little ivory-handled pocket knife he carried. He was a well educated man of his era earning a degree from the University of Kentucky in Business. The year was 1911. He often sang tunes from his childhood, WWI era or old Baptist songs. He had a base voice and sang in the church choir. One of the songs I remember that he sang was "In the Good Old Summer Time."

He was a short, frail man with white hair parted straight down the middle and had blueish grey eyes. He wore dark-rimmed glasses and usually wore a buttonup sweather over a shirt even in the summer. He always wore dress pants and other than the pocket knife, he always had his Masonic lighter and his Viceroy cigarettes. He always wore his Masonic ring, too, as he had been a member for at least fifty years or more. He always wore a hat. In summer it was a summer straw hat or in the winter he had a grey felt hat. Either was always tipped when he met ladies out in public. To do other

Grandma would send a bag along with us so we could gather a "mess" of apples for supper. She or Mom would peel them, cut them up, and fry them in a big cast iron skillet with a big dollop of lard. When they were almost done, a cup of sugar was added. As they cooked, a big pan of biscuits were baking. Unfortunately, they are not for sale because they do not repopulate themselves anywhere near as quickly as the daylilies. The trumpets are simply there to add to the overall appeal of the place, not that it actually needs any help.

My character flaw stems from that old wild and outrageous expectation that people actually do what they say they will do. I know that is a ridiculous thing for me to expect. Why on earth I would have such an outlandish expectation surprises many.

I simply have to accept that other people's beliefs are not the same as mine. Rockcastle County FFA attends State Convention

Submitted by: Jarrett Burke & Savanna Sweet, 2017-2018 Rockcastle FFA Chapter Reporter The Rockcastle County FFA Chapter attended the 88th Kentucky FFA State Convention held at Rupp Arena in Lexington on Monday, June 5 through Thursday, June 8. The theme for the convention was "This is Home," and Rockcastle FFA brought much success back home at the conclusion of the event. The chapter was pleased to have 25 students attend and have one of the most successful conventions to date. On Monday, June 5, Chapter President, Trevor Sweet, represented Rockcastle as he participated in the statewide Day of Service event with Chapter Advisor, Jeff Hayes. For community service, they helped clean the Ronald McDonald House in Lexington by performing chores such as mopping, vacuuming, and general maintenance. Also, on Monday, June 5 former Chapter Vice President and State Officer Candidate, Eric Bullock, spent the entire day interviewing for a possible State Officer position.

On Tuesday, June 6, the Record Keeping Team competed and placed 5thin the state. Team members were Logan Bullock, Callie Lewis, Holly Miller, and Cynthia Wells. Also, the Varsity Chapter Meeting Team competed and placed 1st in the state. Team members were Caleb Ballinger, Cole Ballinger, Elisha Blanton, Jarrett Burke, Savannah Goff, Hope Holbrook, Austin Kirby, Logan Miller, Pamela Miller, and Trevor Sweet. Team alternate members were Hannah Denny and Josh Martin. The teamwill advance to National Convention and represent the state of Kentucky as they compete in October. This is the second time Rockcastle FFA has been able to bring home the win in this very competitive event.

In addition to the team competitions on Tuesday, the following individuals competed in speaking events: Prepared Public Speaking- Hope Holbrook, Beef Impromptu Speaking-Michaela Barron, Crop Impromptu Speaking- Caleb Ballinger, Floral Impromptu Speaking- Cole Ballinger, Horse Impromptu Speaking-Savannah Goff, Poultry Impromptu Speaking-DayaMcGuire, Swine Impromptu Speaking- Jarrett Burke, and Turf/Lawn Care Impromptu Speaking-Trevor Sweet. The following individuals won their impromptu speaking areas: Agriculture Mechanics-Josh Martin and Fruit/Vegetable Impromptu Speaking- Pamela Miller. The state level is the highest level of impromptu speaking competition.

On Wednesday, June 7th, Rockcastle FFA had three pairs of students compete in the Agriscience Fair. Hope Holbrook and Rebekah Kersey competed in Social Systems, Division 4 with a project that focused on agriculture students' perspectives of RCHS Agriculture Pathways. Jameson Burdineand Connor Robinson, competed in Plant Systems, Division 4 with a project that compared organic and non-organic fertilizer. Lastly, John Bishop and Kevin Burdette competed in Power and Technical Systems, Division4 with a project that analyzed lawn mower efficiency based on general maintenance. John Bishop and Kevin Burdette placed 2ndin the state. The winner of their division will not be competing at the national level. Therefore, John and Kevin will represent the state of Kentucky in October at National Convention.

The Agriculture Sales Team also competed on Wednesday. Team members were Maggie Franklin, Savannah Goff, Logan Miller, and Pamela Miller. Also, the Agriculture Issues Team competed and placed 3rdin the state with their presentation of the controversy surrounding animals used for entertainment. Team members were Hannah Denny, Tiffany McGuire, Sarah Ponder, and Allison Renner. Chapter Secretary Logan Miller, Chapter Vice President Pamela Miller, and Chapter Parliamentarian Hope Holbrook completed the Chapter State Rating Form. Rockcastle FFA was awarded a Gold Chapter Rating and selected as one of the top 15 chapters in the state based on this form.

Further, several Rockcastle students competed with their Supervised Agriculture Experience Projects in the FFA Proficiency Competitions. Andrew McKinney competed in Agriculture Sales Entrepreneurship and David Gabbardcompeted in Landscape Management. James Clay Ballinger competed in Beef Production Entrepreneurship and placed 3rd; Logan Miller competed in Home and Community Development and placed 3rd; and Eric Bullock competed in Turfgrass Management and placed 2nd. Eric Bullock also competed in Fruit/ Vegetable Production and placed 1st. His proficiency will be judged at National Convention in October.

Along with those team competitions, two of Rockcastle FFA students competed in the STAR Program competition. The STAR Program highlights senior students who have outstanding Supervised Agriculture Experience Projects. These students must meet the requirements for their State FFA Degree and be selected as the Regional STAR in their area to compete at the state level. Caleb Ballinger represented Rockcastle FFA, along with the Kentucky River Region, as the Star in Agricultural Placement. Caleb works on his family's beef farm, where he has advanced his abilities to make management decisions throughout this agricultural experience. He also aids in managing his family's sorghum cane production and does turfgrassmanagement as well. Michaela Barron represented Rockcastle FFA and the Kentucky River Region as the candidate for STAR Farmer. Michaela owns and operates a Charolaisbreeding beef production program. She has continued to grow and advance the genetics of her herd each year. Michaela was selected as one of the top 5 finalists in the state for this most prestigious award that can be given to an agricultural student.

On Thursday, June 8, Rockcastle FFA had an exceptionally successful day. Four students were awarded their State FFA Degree. This is the highest degree that can be attained at the state level. Those students were Caleb Ballinger, Michaela Barron, Andrew McKinney, and Trevor Sweet. James Clay Ballinger represented our chapter and the state of Kentucky as the 2016-2017 Kentucky River Region State FFA Vice President throughout the past year and the entire convention. He retired his jacket and position on this closing day of convention. However, he proudly was able to install Rockcastle FFA member, Eric Bullock, as the 2017-2018 Kentucky River Region State FFA Vice President. Eric will go on to represent our chapter, our region, and our state this year as one of the 12 individuals selected to State FFA Office. This is one of the most sought after positions for agriculture students.

Rockcastle FFA was proud of the success that the chapter had at convention and looks forward to continuing that success at the national level in October.

It was A Blast in The Valley

Children were all smiles as they played on the many inflatables and bounce house events at the Blast in the Valley celebration held this past Sunday, July 2nd.

Twelve-year-old Keaton Lopez traveled from Farristown and made it to the top of the inflatable mountain during this year's Blast in the Valley. Children of all ages kept the many inflatable events busy throughout the celebration.

One of the more popular inflatables at this year's Blast in the Valley was this slide and workers kept the surface covered in cool water on the hot summer day.

VIEWS: Planning the Landscape & Enjoying It

Viewing is important. And it's not just the object you are gazing upon, the view. Most important is the perspective, or the best point from which to admire a lovely scene. You see motels on a beachfront built in such a was as to give nearly every room a view of the ocean. You see specially constructed scenic overlooks along a highway. Part of the subject is having something nice someone wants to look at. But the other part is who will be appreciating it regularly and from what direction or location or perspective? Taking this viewing topic and applying it to our yards and homes, let us imagine or take a look at possibilities, and how to best showcase or frame them for enjoying. We could discuss the homeowner and the look he or she has from inside, or from a porch or patio or deck. We could examine this from the view a passerby on foot or in an automobile may have and what they see, and how it impresses them or reflects on you as the home's owner.

Let's take the visitor or passersby first. The view or the first impression someone gets from the street or curb is important. (Even if not now, it will be if you decide to list your property for sale at a point in the future.) Some folks want to expose or display or show off their home to best advantage. Others choose to build a fence or plant tall shrubbery to restrict prying eyeballs of the passerby. An eye-catching tree or feature can grab attention; perhaps the house itself is the main feature. This works in reverse too, a rather plain, nondescript, overgrown yard can help your house be lost from view as other homes are more attentiongetting. There is way too much we could cover about curb appeal and impressions people get when driving by your place to get to it all here. Previously I've written about curb appeal, and will again most likely. At the least, I hope to get the reader to imagine their home through the minds eye of a stranger passing.

Another view point comes from the residents of a home as they look out from the kitchen, dining room, bedroom, living room, home office, and so forth. What do you see when you look out your windows? Perhaps, just as importantly, what would you like to see?

Do you have some lovely gardens or flowers or greenery you can see? Maybe a pool or play area? Or, do you see in the neighbors windows and wonder if they are looking back at you? Viewing cars passing or the doghouse next door probably isn't the desirable view most of us would like to see when we stand inside gazing outside.

Landscaping can remedy these problems for most people. If you spend time inside looking out, then improving the view from your favorite chair or spot may be the thing on top of your wish list when planning some landscaping.

On the other hand, some love to get out of the house and spend their down time or relaxing times outdoors. If you want to be outdoors, lost in a private world in a lovely nook, spot or oasis, then the view from inside may mean much less and not be nearly as important as you plan your landscape.

In days gone by, a porch was the gathering place between the days work being complete and bedtime. I realize for a substantial portion of people, a big screen TV or computer has taken the place of a porch or deck and where they like to hang out when not otherwise occupied. For those of us who love our yards, especially the backyard where we can cook, play, relax, garden, or have a little intimate nook for two, I want each of us to imagine what we would like in our ideal backyard paradise, and how would it fit with or tie in and flow well with utilizing both inside and outside of our home. And, how best to make the view attractive and welcom-

Some like having a big house and yard and displaying everything for the world to view. Some put up tall fences and hedges to wall off everybody. And there are lots of in-betweens. If you are landscaping your place, or thinking of adding a new feature such as a deck or patio or firepit or waterfall, putting it where you will appreciate it is part of what this topic of viewing is about. If you never spend time inside looking out a window, perhaps because the blinds are drawn or because there's no window on that side of the house, then you probably want to pick your favorite spots in the yard and from those points of view, plant and decorate so that things look pleasing and lovely from that vantage

For most, there's more than one spot we like to pull up a chair or sit on a bench or stone wall, so all the possibilities for admiring a lovely yard challenge the landscaper as well as the homeowner. How many lovely views can you dream up, and how many will fit within your budget? Having answers, plus some sort of timetable when we will get around to doing the things on our landscape wish list helps immensely as we take a close look at both the views we want and suitable points from which to do the viewing. The view you take may well be critical to having lovely views as well as the best viewing points. Think it through when you're ready to do your next landscaping project, or when you are considering a move. Views are important in landscape design and in the enjoyment of your yard. Take time to plan wisely your views and viewing locations. This is all with an eye on making the most of your place you call home.
