RCHS Class of 2020 graduates amid new COVID-19 regulations

Rockcastle County High School seniors may not have had a typical graduation ceremony, but officials and students made certain there was at least some kind of ceremony that seniors will never forget.

It was a somber and quiet moment as Aden Amburgey heard RCHS Principal J. D. Bussell announce her name as it echoed through an empty gymnasium. Twelve years of study and work and growth came down to that moment of recognition.

The large, nearly empty gym echoed with every word spoken by the principal as Aden walked across the stage to meet Rockcastle County School Superintendent David Pensol.

With a few family members standing in the center of the gym in masks, and a bank of video cameras set up beside the stage, Pensol said "congratulations" as he handed the diploma to the young lady in her robe.

The bleachers were rolled back against the walls, no chairs were on the gym floor and a tear or two could be seen on cheeks above the mask of a few of the family members standing in the center of the nearly empty gym.

There was no roar from a crowd watching, but family members ap-

High speed chase culminates in Rockcastle County

By: Mike French

Jessie Dale Weaver, 29, of Castle Village in Brodhead, faces nine charges, after a high speed chase that started in Pulaski County and ended in Mount Vernon last Saturday.

Several police agencies were eventually involved in the chase in which Weaver reached speeds of well over 100 miles per hour while running from police.

According to the uniform citation, Pulaski County Sheriff's Deputy, Marcus Harrison noticed a van driven by Weaver strike the center line on Highway 70 in Pulaski County. A check on the vehicle showed cancelled registration plates.

When the officer activated emergency lights, the citation says the van began to actively flee from the officer reaching speeds of 117 mph and passing several vehicles.

The chase reached Highway 150 and then into Rockcastle County and eventually along West Main, Richmond Street, US461 and then West Main again. Mount Vernon Police and Rockcastle County sheriff's deputies had joined the chase and once on West Main Street again, the van collided with Rockcastle County Constable Steve Griffin's cruiser, the citation says.

Weaver then left the van and ran before officers apprehended him.

While Weaver was being arrested, another passenger in the van, identified as Cora Collinworth, 28, of Mount Vernon, took the driver's seat and began fleeing the scene. However, Rockcastle County Deputy Kirk Mays apprehended Collinworth, the citation says.

Police say two other passengers were also in the van identified as Jes-

Brodhead open but city buildings remain closed

BFD low on funds

By: Mike French

After cancelling last month's regular Brodhead City Commission meeting due to restrictions placed by Governor Andy Beshear during the COVID-19 virus, officials decided to hold this month's regular meeting at the Brodhead Fire Department Monday night.

"The area is much bigger and provides us the space to hold the meeting while observing the Governor's restrictions concerning public meetings," said Becky Bussell, Brodhead City Clerk. "Our regular meeting chambers would not allow everyone to remain six feet apart. But here everyone can remain safe while dealing with the city's business."

The restrictions also affect the opening of City Hall in Brodhead.

During the meeting, Bussell said according to the strict interpretation of the phase I rules set out by the Governor for the reopening of businesses and government buildings, she could open the doors to City Hall Monday, May 18. But officials do not plan to do that.

"Yes, technically we could open Monday, but our office is so small that in order for people to stay 6 feet apart we would have to allow only one person at a time inside the building," she said. "So everyone else would be in a line outside on the street or even standing in the rain. It would just create the very situation we are trying to avoid."

So, Bussell and other city officials agreed that it may be best to wait to open Brodhead government buildings until after the social distancing requirements are lifted.

After paying the bills and adopting the annual state Municipal Road Aid Cooperative Agreement, commissioners heard reports concerning each city department.

Commissioner Brian Bullock presented the report concerning the Brodhead Fire Department. "As of today, we are doing okay. As for tomorrow, we don't really know," he said. "We are in a very unpredictable time and we aren't sure there will be a fair this year. Several other county fairs have already been cancelled."

The Brodhead Little World's Fair provides a large portion of the fire department funding each year.

The other notable source of revenue for the Law enforcement officers were called out to shots fired at Castle Village Apartments in Brodhead Tuesday afternoon. According to Kentucky State Police, a death investigation is underway with two deceased individuals, a juvenile and adult male. The ongoing investigation is being conducted by the Kentucky State Police and more details in next week's issue of the Mount Vernon Signal.

It has been very unsettling to follow the news this past week about the charges against General Mike Flynn, President Trump's first NSA advisor, being dropped by the justice department and the heights to which the FBI, state department and department of justice went to bring this patriot down.

The charges, which Attorney General William Barr said "lacked a proper investigative basis," were brought four days after President Trump's inauguration.

They had to do with a call between Flynn and the Russian Ambassador to the United States which Flynn allegedly lied about to the FBI. His confession reportedly had to do with the FBI's threat to investigate his son for something and wound up costing Gen. Flynn his home in an attempt to pay his millions of dollars in legal fees.

It was only last year, when he changed counsel to Texas lawyer Sidney Powell who went on the offense on the general's behalf that things began to look up and it now appears that the entire investigation had more to do with trying to bring down President Trump's administration than with actual wrongdoing by Flynn.

In fact, one of the most interesting things that may come out of this whole sorry affair is how far up in the Obama administration did this coup attempt go? A question that I hope will be answered before this whole affair is laid to rest.

If you are not already, you should be paying attention to the House of Representative's Resolution 6666. This resolution, known as the "Trace Act" authorizes the Secretary of Health and Human Services to award grant to eligible entities to conduct diagnostic testing for COVID 19, and related activities such as contact tracing, through mobile health units and, as necessary, at individuals' residences, and for other purposes.

Now, I'm not sure what "and related activities" and "for other purposes" means but one commentary I read on the bill says that it will enable government employees to come into your home to check for the COVID 19 illness and, if found, they have the authority to remove the person infected from the home to a quarantine site.

The bill has 33 sponsors, including one Republican, Van Drew of New Jersey. Read up on this bill and contact our Representative Hal Rogers to let him know what you think of this intrusion into the privacy of our homes.

Aces Over

I often take trips down memory lane, but this was not one of those. This was a trip down someone else's memory lane, my grandfather's.

This week, I found an old cardboard box that a Big Ben windup clock came in. That old round clock that used to have two bells on top that sounded like a school bell loud enough to wake the dead.

Once open, I found about 20 old, yellowed pieces of paper that my grandfather had apparently thought were important. I learned of things I knew nothing about but I studied them so hard that they felt like my own memories.

There was a very thin piece of paper, obviously typed on an old manual typewriter, that showed my grandfather was honorably discharged from Company G, 22nd Eng, in 1919.

Another delicate piece

I had to unfold gently, to keep from tearing it apart, was a letter from one of his sons written while the son was in Korea and sent home to Panola, Kentucky.

Jim (Dad's brother) talked about how he wished he could be home to help cut the tobacco crops and how he hoped that the next year he could be home. That page was dated August, 1950.

I found the official documents where my grandfather had borrowed $200 from the bank to purchase a farm. The entirety of the bank

"Dry Land Fish"

It seems that several of my regular column followers love morels, or "dry land fish," as many older folks called them when I was a boy. I have received a few requests to re-visit that topic.

A couple of weeks ago, I was reading an article on the internet about morels. The writer called them "hickory chickens." The explanation of that name came from finding morels around hickory trees, and the author opined that the fried fungi tasted like chicken. When I was young, some of the older people used to say that the mushrooms tasted slightly like oysters. Frankly, I never agreed with either of those opinions.

Each spring, after the dogwood trees bloomed, Kenneth Hansel and I would grab a couple of paper bags and venture into the woods to look for the elusive morels. In our stomping ground, we found them in the area around Big Fill Cave. If we were successful, we would bring our treasures back to my grandmother's (Mommie Katie) house so she could prepare the morels for cooking.

Mommie Katie carefully washed the fungi, looking for dirt and small insects that could hide in the crevices of the mushroom's cap. Then she removed the stalks, leaving the tops, which she split lengthwise and placed into salt water. She said that the salt water would remove any tiny "mites." The morels were then placed into the refrigerator to soak overnight.

The next day, Mommie Katie carefully coated the morel caps with a mixture of milk, salt, and pepper. Then she rolled them in a bowl of yellow corn meal and fried them in one of her cast iron skillet. Of

According to the grapevine, word has gotten back to Charlie Brown Road that, in last week's column, I had been giving chickens a bad rap. As usual, the grapevine has gotten so twisted up in barbed wire, saw briars, poison ivy and spider webs that it's probably impossible to tell where it started. If it had any grapes, they'd be too sour to eat.

The truth is, I happen to be a big fan of chickens and raised them throughout the first 35 years of my life. I gave up raising chickens because we've lived so close to the woods, over the last 40 years, that raising chickens was scarcely more than a feed lot operation for coyotes, foxes and red tail hawks. I'm pretty sure a golden eagle caught at least a couple of Rhode Island Red hens when we lived near Crab Orchard. At least I actually saw a very large bird, with no white showing, flew off with the chickens, that

T.J.'s Journal

By: Tonya J. Cook

It Is Certainly Too Bad Dear Journal,

Here it is, Mother's Day again and just a sad reminder of the loss only some of us know. I feel especially bad for those who are having a Mother's Day for the first time without her. The first is always the worst and the others don't get much better. It is certainly too bad. If my mom and grandma were still living I'm sure I would have gotten each of them a pretty corsage, bought them a nice gift, and taken them out to a delicious meal... like I used to do, but those days are gone.

Stanley took me out for a nice meal today for lunch. (He also got me a nice gift. Something I had been wanting. It was unusual, just like me.) We ate our meal in the A.R. Dyche Memorial Cemetery in London again. It is quiet, peaceful, and beautiful. We've come to call it "Dinner with the Dead". As I ate, I was just thinking about how many mothers are buried there and how many sad children there are somewhere. It is certainly too bad. Although the meal was delicious and we had to balance it on our laps, the dash and console like usual, it could have been worse. It is certainly too bad. I think I'll design a table for eating in the car and get a patent on it.

Then we went on over to, of course, Walmart. I've given up on getting a power chair cart. The last time I got one, it ran down and left me stranded way back in the store. I had to call Stanley to come with a cart and I had to lean on it to get out of the store

Ramblings...

Andy Beshear needs to call up Republican Tennessee Governor Bill Lee and ask what his state is doing differently to combat the COVID 19 pandemic.

Tennessee has a population of 6.829 million people and has had 243 deaths, as compared to 304 deaths in Kentucky with a population of 4.468 million.

Tennessee managed to keep their businesses open much longer than most states and is reopening at a much faster rate than most states.

I, personally, feel that the Democrats will not quit fighting to keep the country locked down until they achieve mail-in ballot voting for the November general election. A procedure whereby they think they can keep President Trump from achieving a second term.

This makes no sense because if people can stand in line to enter Walmart, Costco, Lowe's, Home Depot, etc. (any of the "essential" businesses that got to remain open), without dropping dead on the spot, then we should be able to vote in-person and thereby help to thwart the Democrats' plan to steal a national election.

I know it's hard to believe but California's Governor Newsome (Nancy Pelosi's nephew) has already mandated that the November election will be by mail-in ballot only.

I feel sure that this is solely to protect everyone against COVID-19 and has nothing to do with the fact that it is much easier to vote illegals and the dead with this method.

We have got to be more vigilant all the time. Our very basic freedoms are being threatened under the guise of "protecting" us from this virus which has a recovery rate of over 99%.

We know which segments of our population are most vulnerable and, of course, more drastic measures need to be taken to help protect them and the rest of us need to exercise measures that we should have been exercising all our lives -- washing our hands and avoiding sick people.

Major League baseball thinks they may have come up with a solution for a shortened season -- from around the first of July through the regular end date -- an 82 game schedule with no fans. But, I then read where one pitcher is not happy because he still feels there's too much danger, particularly for his wife who has health issues. Then, in my opinion, he should sit this season out and let the rest of us enjoy the sport, even if we can't enjoy it in person.

I feel so badly for the seniors this year because of how much they have missed out on. The only thing they will have to remember their senior year by is what they missed their senior year -- no spring sports, no prom, no public graduation ceremonies.

Here's hoping that at some point, normalcy returns to our lives but I fear it will be a long time coming.

papers included one sheet of paper and one signature.

Grandpa was given five years to pay it back and apparently he and the bank reached an agreement that he only had to make one payment a year -- when his tobacco crop sold.

That must have been a lot of money because I found check stubs to my grandfather from Codell Construction in Winchester. I didn't know he worked other than the farm. Dated 1940 grandpa made $6 per week. He got paid every two weeks so the big check was for $12 and the grand total of withholdings was .12 cents.

It was a completely different world. One that I could never fully understand. He made his own cornmeal, ground his own coffee made their own jellies and jams, killed hogs for meat, made their own clothes, and did more work in a week than I do all year. They bought very little in those days. Most of what they owned and most of what they ate, they made themselves.

There was also some kind of handmade tool in the box. Two sticks, hinged together with another piece of wood about the size of a thin pencil about 6 inches long with a sharp point on one end. It was very hard wood (possibly ebony) and a tiny copper wire had been wrapped around the top inch of it.

I have asked dozens of people but no one knows its exact purpose. Apparently it was useful to him or was made by one of his children because it was in this keepsake box.

I read though papers all afternoon and got a small glimpse into a life before my parents were born. I could sense the hardships, the joys, the worries, the peril, the excitement that must have been a part of their lives in the early 1900s.

It all took me back to a time before my own father existed and only my imagination can help me understand what life must have been like on that little farm in Panola.

I am thankful for their hard work and years of persistence. I am here because they never gave up. I'll never understand what life was like then. But now I know a little bit more about it and can only imagine how they got by.

If it were me, our family probably would have stopped right then. I'm not nearly tough enough to have struggled through like they did. But I am certainly thankful that they made it and I hope my great grandchildren will be thankful that I did what little I do.

weighed over 5 pounds each, and I don't believe a hawk could have packed either one of them.

The hens had been among a mixed flock of 35, assorted, straight-run, baby chicks and an array of chicken growing paraphernalia I had ordered from McMurray Hatchery in Webster City, Iowa. The original plan was to keep the hens as egg layers and butcher the roosters when they were large enough to fry. In the process, I intended to teach our city-born kids the ins and outs of subsistence farming.

Unfortunately, by mid-summer, all 16 roosters had been given names such as Jasper, Jonesy, Baby Doll, etc., and some of them would come running from the field if one of the kids called them by name. It became very obvious that no chicken butchering was going to happen anywhere near our house.

Loretta had, like me, grown up on a small farm where raising and butchering chickens was far more common than buying one, already slaughtered and dressed, at the grocery store. However, my wife had spent the last 12 years or so in New Jersey where, apparently, nobody has ever wrung a chicken's neck, scalded off the feathers, cleaned out the entrails and cut it up in frying pieces.

My then recently acquired kids, although they loved the stuff, had no idea where chicken came from and they had no intention of learning. Their mother had absolutely no intention of teaching them or admitting that she had ever be a participant in anything so barbaric.

The next year (spring of 1984) one of our hens, an incredibly friendly, well petted, and gentle White Jersey Giant, named Polly, hatched off about 20 baby chicks from eggs we had collected from our hens and those of a couple neighbors who had breeds we had not previously grown. That experience turned out to be a remarkably fun and educational adventure for the kids and me but it still didn't put any meat on the table even though we had far more chickens than they could individually name.

I wound up giving most of the roosters to neighbors who, at that time, still had absolutely no qualms about killing fresh chickens nor getting them ready for the frying pan. After we moved in 1986, I sold off several of the laying hens and gave away the rest, including Polly, to a neighbor, the late Molly Helton, because I knew she'd be glad to have me visit them. Molly also kept us in eggs for a few years before coyotes made off with most of her chickens. I assume that Polly was also eaten by coyotes.

This week's reading recommendation is Charles Todd a mother and son team from North Carolina and Delaware, respectively, who have coauthored more than 30 best seller mystery novels. They are as popular among European readers as they are in North America.

Written between 1996 and 2020 and set during and just after World War One, over 20 of the books feature Inspector Ian Rutledge, a wounded veteran of the War, who solves mostly murder mysteries even though he is seriously handicapped with post traumatic stress syndrome.

Eleven other titles, set during the same time frame, are centered around the sleuthing exploits of Bess Crawford, a young nurse stationed on the France/German front lines. I have forfeited a few hundred hours of sleep because I found it nearly impossible to lay a single title down and I have read every single one of them at least once. This is as good as contemporary fiction writing gets.

Your reading experience will be greatly enhanced if you read both series in the chronological order they were first published. Google Charles Todd.

course, they were fried in bacon drippings that were kept on her stove in a coffee can.

I have eaten morels which were cooked by a variety of individuals, but none tasted like my grandmother's. Oh my goodness, they were so good.

I was thinking of Mommie's morels when my wife and I visited our woods on Furnace Mountain in Powell County this past week. Those woods always beacon me to look for morels in the spring. Each time I am looking for these fungi, I am reminded of a statement that was told to me many years ago by an elderly gentleman who lived near our wooded property.

Mr. Void Larison loved to come to our woods and visit with us by our campfire. He told of his searching for "dry land fish" on our property when he was a young boy. He said, "I think mushrooms are a lot like ginseng, because they hear you coming and they hide." Then he would laugh out loud, with a big smile, knowing that his observation was accepted as truth by any experienced morel hunter.

I hope to visit our woods again soon to see if I can find any morels. If successful, you can bet I will use Mommie Katie's recipe to fry those tasty morsels. Makes my mouth water just to think about it.

and he had to run my stuff through the checkout. I didn't get but about half of the things on my list. I saved at least fifty dollars. When the time comes that you can't even shop with money in your pocket it certainly is too bad.

When we went today, I figured why even waste my time so I waited in the car. You can really see some sights at Walmart when you have nothing else to do. There is a whole new world after about ten or eleven at night that comes out, may I add? After midnight, it gets worse. I don't think I'd like to be there without Stanley.

Today, while I was waiting, I noticed about half of the customers wore masks into the store. It seemed that it was mostly, two to one, women who wore the masks. The men are thinking, "I was manly right to the very end and died to prove it." There was one couple with a pretty little girl about eight to ten months old.

None of them had on a mask. It is certainly too bad that some just don't care.

On the way home, we passed a live poultry truck headed north. There were a hundred or more chickens loaded in about two foot by two foot cages and about ten inches high. Each cage held about four chickens. As we passed, I noticed that the wind blowing as the truck speeded along was plucking the chickens alive. There were huge sections of bald areas on all of the chickens that I saw. It was a very pitiful sight. Then they will go to a place where they will be unmercifully killed in ways I don't even want to imagine. Why? So we humans can go to KFC or have good old chicken and dumplings and fried chicken. I'm as guilty as anybody, but Stanley and I wish we could be guilt free. We've tried to go vegetarian, but always drift back to meat. It certainly is too bad.

Well, sometimes life is certainly too bad but at least we have the hope of better days ahead...in most cases.

The Vice of Fools

Pride has been called the never-failing vice of fools. Ancient Assyria exalted her own greatness. Like a prairie fire she swept over the earth. One great king after another fell before her. As she headed toward the Holy City she said: Isaiah 10:11 Shall I not, as I have done unto Samaria and her idols, so do to Jerusalem and her idols. But God had different plans we find in Isaiah 10:12 I will punish the fruit of the stout heart of the king of Assyria, and the glory of his high looks. And like a mighty tree, Assyria was hewn down.

Pride was the undoing of haughty Haman. When he would pass by everyone would bow before his presence, well almost everyone. Esther 3:25 When Mordecai bowed not, nor did him reverence, then was Haman full of wrath.

Haman was so upset at Mordecai he built a gallows fifty cubits high to hang Mordecai. Perhaps he thought the higher the gallows, the more dead Mordecai would be after the fall.

Pleased with himself, Haman went to the king to request the life of Mordecai. But before Haman could open his mouth, the king asked, what shall be done to honor this man on whom I delight. Now Haman thought in his heart, whom could the king honor more than me. Oh, how pride can deceive. As quick as a flash, Haman suggested. Put the royal apparel on this man, the royal crown upon his head, let him ride the king's horse, let a princess shout his name that this man the king delights to honor.

Haman had blurted this out without thinking, and the king told him to do all this for Mordecai, and well old Haman he got to lead the horse that Mordecai sat upon. With the blush of shame upon his face, Haman ran home to mourn. But this story is not finished. Remember the gallows that Haman had worked so hard on to hang Mordecai. Esther 7:10 So they hanged Haman on the gallows that had been prepared for Mordecai. As a reward for his prize he got to try on the gallows first.

Someone has said: Pride thrust Nebuchadnezzar out of men's society, Saul out of his kingdom, Adam out of his paradise. Make no mistake about it the capitalization of (I) is dangerous business.

sica Dekorte and Helen Tye but the citation says both claimed they repeatedly asked Weaver to let them get out once the chase started.

The two passengers told police Collinsworth gave methamphetamine to Weaver while in the van and Collinsworth later turned over the meth to the police.

When searching the van, the citation says police discovered a total of 6.3 grams of meth along with Suboxone pills and $576 in cash.

Weaver and Collinsworth were both arrested and transported to the Pulaski County Detention Center. Once at the center, the citation says police found marijuana on Weaver as well.

Weaver is charged with reckless driving, operating a motor vehicle under the influence, fleeing or evading police, wanton endangerment, unlawful imprisonment, trafficking meth, possession of marijuana, criminal mischief and possession of a controlled substance.

Collinsworth was also charged with trafficking a controlled substance and possession of a controlled substance.

Neither Weaver's or Collinsworth's bond had been set at press time.

plauded. There was no music over the speakers, and no pomp and circumstance, no hugging, and no line of school officials across the stage. But none the less, Aden walked across that stage and finished what she started 12 years ago.

Before entering the school, each student was handed a list of regulations and restrictions in order to hold the ceremony, while still meeting the Governor's restrictions on public gatherings.

It wasn't what she and her classmates had planned, but it was recognition... accomplishment... a memory.

Since the COVID-19 restrictions by Governor Andy Beshear were placed, in-person classes were cancelled along with all school activities that included mass gatherings. One of those cancellations was the graduation ceremonies at all Kentucky schools.

Pensol had announced earlier that he would not rest until he found a way to hold some form of recognition ceremony for the class of 2020. With the restrictions placed on public gatherings, this was the only way to give students the opportunity to walk the stage and receive their diploma while meeting state requirements, according to school officials.

Each student's walk across the stage was filmed and a school video of all the graduating seniors, as well as other moments from the school year, will be available later for anyone who wants a copy.

The ceremonies were held May 7th, 8th, 11th and 12th at the school but graduating seniors attended the event according to a schedule and only one student at a time walked on the stage.

Students said on a social media page providing information about the ceremonies, “There will not be a perfect way to commemorate the Class of 2020 but this virtual graduation ceremony will be something we will always have.”

Students and school officials are also working on ideas to gather all the 2020 graduating seniors together one last time later in the summer, once the Coronavirus has dissipated and regulations have been lifted.

Though this was far from the typical graduation ceremony, it was indeed an event that will be remembered by every student, parent and school staff.

It may not have been ideal for anyone involved, but each RCHS senior walked the stage, took their bow, received their diploma and officially finished what they started.

donated in many years, came out to ensure an adequate blood supply. With the suspension of elective surgeries and procedures in Kentucky, the blood supply remained healthy throughout April. Now, as the nonprofit prepares for larger orders from its hospital partners, it is encouraging donors to roll up their sleeves again.

“We were overwhelmed by the support we saw from donors in March,” Bill Reed, Kentucky Blood Center CEO said. “It's just as important for those donors to keep this healthy habit going and donate again. Blood has a shelf life, so we need donors to give the gift of life on a frequent basis.”

KBC continues to require appointments during the COVID-19 crisis to ensure social distancing at its donor centers and on mobile blood drives. Donors are also encouraged to complete their health history questionnaire online (QuickPass) on the day of donation to limit their time at the facility. Per new state requirements, beginning May 11, donors will be required to wear a face covering when visiting our donor centers or mobile blood drives. KBC will also take the temperature of all donors when entering the facility (or mobile blood drive) and during the screening process.

As always, donors should be feeling well on the day of donation. To make an appointment to donate or to review all of the steps KBC is taking to ensure donor safety during the global pandemic, you may visit www.kybloodcenter.org. Appointments also can be made by calling 800-775-2522.

Update: Kentucky Blood Center Continues to Lead Convalescent Plasma Collection Nationally

Kentucky Blood Center was proud to be the very first community blood center to collect plasma from a recovered COVID-19 patient after the FDA approved the experimental treatment for critically ill patients on March 26. Since that time, KBC has assisted numerous hospital partners with the plasma collection and to date has obtained more than 120 doses of convalescent plasma for Kentucky patients.

Kentucky Blood Center has established an online registry form where recovered COVID-19 patients can express their interest in being a donor. The form is available here. The nonprofit is not currently testing for COVID-19 antibodies, but continues to collect information from those with a confirmed COVID-19 diagnosis and those who believe they may have had the virus but did not get tested. KBC will reach out to donors without a confirmed diagnosis when they can conduct the antibody testing.

“As Kentucky continues to increase its testing capacity, there will be more and more potential donors for this program,” said Dr. Dennis Williams, Medical Director for KBC. “We encourage those with confirmed cases to complete the registry, so we can continue to bank plasma for patients now and in the event of a possible resurgence later.”

Potential donors will need documentation of their positive COVID-19 test. A patient may then be able to donate if they have been symptom-free for at least 14 days and a second COVID-19 test has negative results. KBC will work with the donor to obtain the second test if it has not already been completed. The donor will complete the blood donation health history questionnaire on the day of donation to qualify for blood donation. The plasma donation itself takes 1-2 hours.

department had been the monthly fish fry for many years but, due to rising costs and diminishing interest, the monthly fish fry was ended last year.

“We just don't know exactly where we stand right now. We, like most other volunteer fire departments, find ourselves financially hurting,” said Bullock.

However, Bullock said he and Fire Chief John Dyehouse are optimistic about the future. “The fair is not cancelled yet and we may be able to ask for help from the county, but we are hopeful that we will be okay. We are watching our situation very closely everyday.”

Bullock also reported that the department has made 61 runs thus far this year.

Commissioner John Burton gave the reports and sewer department listing several Brodhead residents he and department employees have worked with over the past two months to solve issues near or on their property.

Police Chief Richard Reynolds told Commissioners his department is in good condition. “Our department is currently in good shape and running smoothly,” he said.

The chief is also ramping up efforts to keep illegal drugs out of the city. “We are working closely with other agencies to keep our drug issues to a minimum,” he said. “The more eyes we have watching our streets, the better we can do at keeping our streets safe for our citizens.”

Reynolds also asked the commissioners if they wished to consider a contract with a local towing company to possibly reduce costs and create a continual working relationship with the company.

“It's completely your call as City Commissioners. I have no dog in this fight. But I was approached about the idea and promised I would present it to you,” said Reynolds.

Bullock said he understood the suggestion but could not fully support the request.

“That is a good thought and I understand the benefits of a close working relationship and having someone under contract,” said Bullock. “But actually, we have a good relationship with several towing companies in the county and, in all fairness, I would suggest we continue to use the county's list of companies with no particular preference.”

Burton agreed. “In all fairness, several local towing companies have been good to us over the years and I would not want to exclude them,” he said.

Chief Reynolds also reported that Officer Josh Foster is still doing very well with the department and local citizens should know both local officers are working daily to keep the streets of Brodhead safe.

In closing statements, Mayor Walter Cash told commissioners he would be in favor of having another fish fry event. “I know we ended the monthly fish fry but we may do well to have another one soon,” he said.

Bullock agreed. “Possibly in September or October we could have another one,” Bullock said.

“We still have all the equipment and there may be a decent turn out for it.”

Officials will announce if such an event is scheduled.

Burton also announced that three new pumps are ready to be installed at the Brodhead Sewer Plant “We can now install these three pumps the way the plant was actually designed to work from the beginning,” said Burton “The plant should function efficiently with the system running as it was designed to. If one pump breaks down, the other two can maintain the system while one is being repaired.”

Also in closing statements, Burton offered Kudos to the citizenry of Brodhead for coming together after a storm in April. “I witnessed police fire fighters, officials and regular citizens jump in and help cut trees and pick up trash and work throughout the night after the storm did a lot of damage to local homes and businesses,” he said. “It was heart warming to see everyone from every walk of life working together as a unit for the good of the community.”

Cruisin' Scholarship winners

Each year the “Cruisin' in the Valley” scholarship committee chooses two recipients of a $1,000 scholarship award. The scholarship has been given for 16 years and over $30,000 has been awarded to local graduates of RCHS. Recipients must have a GPA above 3.0 and meet other requirements as well as submit a written essay to the committee. This year's recipients are (above) Amy Clark, of Brodhead and (below) Autumn King of Mount Vernon. Shown with each recipient is Gary Mink, Chairman of the Cruisin' in the Valley board. Mink said the essay plays a big part in the selection process and each graduate may use the funds however they choose.

UNITE Shoot Hoops Not Drugs basketball camps cancelled

Because of concerns related to the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, Operation UNITE announced its popular Shoot Hoops Not Drugs basketball camps planned for June have, regrettably, been cancelled.

"This is not something UNITE wanted to do, but following the guidance from Governor Andy Beshear and state health officials it is something we must do at this time," said Nancy Hale, president/CEO of the non-profit organization.

"In addition, Shoot Hoops Not Drugs camps are entirely supported through community donations and staffed by volunteers from UNITE Coalitions and our recovery communities," Hale continued. "With so much economic uncertainty, this was not the time to solicit donations that could, instead, be used to support needy families and local businesses."

"A crowd is still going to be a dangerous thing until we are further along in defeating this virus," Beshear stated during his daily COVID-19 briefing on April 29. "It's something we need to continue to avoid."

Although he outlined a tentative plan to restart some businesses and permit social gatherings by late May, the governor said it would likely be late June or early July before some youth sports activities are again allowed.

Five free regional basketball camps – conducted by former University of Kentucky point guard and four-time All-SEC Academic Team member Jarrod Polson – had been planned in Breathitt, Harlan, Johnson, Magoffin and McCreary counties.

"The Shoot Hoops Not Drugs program has been a highlight of my summer the last several years," Polson stated. "While I am saddened we won't be able to host the basketball camps this year, I look forward to being back in 2021!"

Hale said it is UNITE's intention to hold the 2021 camps in the same counties as planned for this year.

"Our staff has contacted each of the superintendents and they are in full support of the decision to postpone camps this summer," Hale said. "In addition, they look forward to holding Shoot Hoops Not Drugs camps next year."

This would have been the 15th season for Shoot Hoops Not Drugs. These camps provide school-age youth an opportunity to interact with positive role models, receive positive life-skill and self-esteem messages that emphasize the importance for them to stay drug-free, all while receiving basic basketball skills instruction.

As part of each camp, parents and guardians are invited to attend a brief education program. This year the focus would have been about the dangers posed by stimulant drugs – including such commonly used drugs as Methamphetamine, Cocaine, Adderall, and Ecstasy.

Rockcastle County awarded federal funds under the Emergency Food and Shelter National Board Program

Rockcastle Co. has been chosen to receive $6,833.00 to supplement emergency food and shelter programs in the county.

The selection was made by a National Board that is chaired by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency and consists of representatives from American Red Cross; Catholic Charities, USA; National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.; The Jewish Federations of North America, The Salvation Army; and, United Way Worldwide. The Local Board was charged to distribute funds appropriated by Congress to help expand the capacity of food and shelter programs in high-need areas around the country.

A local board made up of local government and charitable organizations will determine how the funds awarded to Rockcastle Co. are to be distributed among the emergency food and shelter programs run by local service agencies in the area. The local board is responsible for recommending agencies to receive these funds and any additional funds available under this phase of the program.

Under the terms of the grant from the National Board, local agencies chosen to receive funds must: 1) be private voluntary non-profits or units of government, 2) be eligible to receive federal funds, 3) have an accounting system, 4) practice nondiscrimination, 5) have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and/or shelter programs, and 6) if they are a private voluntary organization, they must have a voluntary board. Qualifying agencies are urged to apply.

Rockcastle Co. has distributed emergency food and shelter funds previously with Daniel Boone Community Action Agency, Inc. participating. This agency was responsible for helping families with mortgage/rental assistance and utilities. Public or private voluntary agencies interested in applying for Emergency Food and shelter Program Funds must contact Tamara Cox, 105 E. Main Street Box 7, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky 40456 for an application or call 606-256-5315.

The deadline for applications to be received is May 27, 2020.

Honoring the
48th Graduating Class
Rockcastle County
High School

Class of 2020:

It has been an honor and pleasure to serve as principal for your junior and senior year at Rockcastle County High School. Congratulations and commendations to each and every one of you on this remarkable achievement of graduation from "The Rock".

This senior year will forever be synonymous for reasons beyond your control. I hope your memories of four years here are of friendships made and knowledge gained. Now you are prepared to receive a diploma from your alma mater and move on to the next step of your lives. I am very proud of your accomplishments and the outstanding leadership you have provided for your school. You will always be remembered for this work ethic and leadership you have shown not only during your years at RCHS but especially these past two months.

My dream and vision for each and every one of our students is to receive a memorable and successful educational experience that not only focuses on achievement but also encourages you to be active members of this great community. The greatest thing about your education is that you are entitled to use it without limits. It is your choice at this point and my hope is that you will never settle for anything other than what you aspire to do.

Remember, the harder you work as a child, the more you can play as an adult. The more you play as a child, the harder you must work as an adult. I challenge each of you to continue to work hard and never allow anything or anyone to stand in your way of achieving your career goals.

This was supposed to be the time you experienced high school graduation and all of the activities associated with it. A time to bring your family great joy, happiness and pride. You were essentially robbed of the ordinary experience but I assure you that the extraordinary experience created will rival none.

I am honored to stand on stage with each of you as you make that walk in Rock Arena, diploma in hand, and ready to make your mark on this world.

And as you go forth from your high school experience, may God hold you in the palm of His hand.

With my most sincere regards,
J.D. Russell

Of all the beautiful blessings we have received from God, you by far are the greatest. We are so proud of the child of God that you are and we are honored to have the privilege of being your parents. Keep in mind the world will offer many things, both good and bad, but one thing is certain, Jesus will never fail you. He will always be there to see you through it all, just allow him to guide you by being still and listening. You are closer than ever to seeing your dreams become reality. Keep your eyes on the goal and never waver from it no matter what the world may throw at you. Always look to God for the answers, keep your character and integrity intact and stay beautiful on the inside. Remember you can do all things through Christ who strengthens you. Love to serve Christ in all that you do and you will make a real difference in our world. We love you more than words could ever say and thank you for being the best thing that has ever happened to us.

Love,
Dad & Mom
