Defending Liberty & Freedom

The Rockcastle County Middle School hosted their annual Veterans Day Celebration last Friday. In the top photo, over 80 veterans and their families enjoyed a meal provided by the school before the program took place at 1 p.m. At right, Vietnam Veteran Tommy Hodges was the guest speaker for the event. RCMS Y-Club members Emma Ballinger, Hallie Brown, Bailey Bullock, Sean Cash, Kaden Kidwell and Riley Sherrow led the recognition ceremony of veterans and active duty personnel. RCMS Builders Club members Peyton Cotton, Callie Creech and Celia Shaffer, led by teacher Melissa Benson Owens, held the POW/MIA Empty Chair Ceremony. Seventh grade student Emma Robinson and eighth grade student Mya Hunt sang special music during the event and Rockcastle DAR members Debra Brown and Patsy McFalls recognized the poster winners from each grade level. RCHS, Brodhead and Roundstone Elementary each held their own ceremonies throughout the day honoring veterans.

Mount Vernon, Brodhead to be wet on January 8

By: Mike French

If you have ever considered attending a Mount Vernon City Council meeting, tonight (Thursday, November 15) may be the one to attend since the main topic of discussion is expected to revolve around the complicated issue of alcohol sales inside the city limits.

The sale of alcohol inside the city limits of Mount Vernon and Brodhead was passed during last week's general election and on January 8th, both cities will officially be wet.

"I plan to give a presentation to the council on the subject of alcohol sales in the city of Mount Vernon," said Josh Bray, City Administrator. "And provide the information I have to the council members."

And there is a lot of information to provide. "It is an extremely, complex subject," said Bray. "The laws and regulations regarding the sale of alcohol is very, very complicated and we are just now gathering information about those laws."

Bray attended a meeting of the Kentucky League of Cities (KLC) last Friday in Frankfort in an attempt to learn more about the regulations and details involved in being a wet city. But even the full day of information only scratched the surface of the laws involved, he said.

"So far, this is about all we are certain about. On January 8, 2019, Mount Vernon and Brodhead will be wet cities," he said. "Everything else is so very complicated that we are going to have many meetings and discussions about the process involving attorneys and councilmembers as well as KLC members and ABC (Alcoholic Beverage Control) officials and others."

Bray says the regulations, as he understands them, will allow the City of Mount Vernon to have two package liquor stores inside the city limits (based on the city's population), will allow convenience stores to sell beer and other alcohol-related drinks such as wine coolers and mixers, and will allow local restaurants inside the city to sell alcohol to its customers as long as they have a liquor license.

The cities will begin accepting applications for a liquor license on January 8 but how, when and why those applications would be approved is still very complex, Bray said. "I know how and I know why a license would be approved, but there are so many factors involved."

Brodhead about to address the sale of alcohol

By: Mike French
 Editor

It wasn't on the agenda during Monday's regular monthly meeting of the Brodhead City Council and, for a while, it wasn't mentioned. But, eventually, Brian Bullock, City Commissioner, finally spoke up saying, "I guess I'll address the elephant in the room and talk about alcohol."

Brodhead voted the city wet in the November General Election and the complicated issue of alcohol sales must be addressed and a city ordinance is required to regulate the sale of alcohol locally.

"I have contacted ABC (Alcoholic Beverage Control) and they are sending us a packet with all the information we need to draft our ordinance and address the issue of alcohol sales in our city limits," said Bullock.

Commissioner John Burton spoke up as well. "As of now, that's really the only single thing we are certain about," he said. "We are gathering information and attempting to do everything the right way. We are getting swamped with questions from our citizens everyday. But the truth is that right now, we just don't have any answers. We have to wait until we learn about the subject before we can speak about it intelligently."

Members and guests spoke about the issue from many different points of view but most discussion was speculation or hearsay. However, some guests had researched the subject and provided commissioners and Mayor Walter Cash with several points concerning

District receives high grades on audit report

By: Mike French

Most of the two hour meeting of the Rockcastle County Board of Education Tuesday evening, included discussion about finances and the district audit.

White and Associates, PSC, presented the board with the annual audit and told the board that the district received an "excellent audit report" and "there is nothing in this audit that would cause any concerns."

With a slightly vague presentation, auditors were asked several questions by board members that had not been addressed. However, board vice chairman Angela Stallworth Mink and member Jeffrey VanHook took the reigns and explained the report to those present in much more detail.

VanHook pointed out that one of the best parts of the reports shows a large surplus in the contingency fund. "It is very rare that a district can even have a contingency fund. We are blessed to have well over the required amount in our fund." In fact, the fund currently holds more than $800,000 above the state required amount. "I think this says a lot about our district and our commitment to our students," VanHook said.

28 named in indictments

28 people were named in 22 Indictments handed down by a Rockcastle County Grand Jury on November 9th. Three of those were for flagrant non-support. They were:

Johnna Higgins, 32, of Pike Street in Brodhead. Her bond was set at $3,000 cash; Christopher S. Mullins, 43, of Carter Drive in Mount Vernon. His bond was set at $9,000 cash, and Ashlee Warren, 26, of Ford Drive in Mount Vernon. Her bond was set at $12,000 cash.

Others indicted were: Donald W Neeley, 52, of Curt Lane in Mount Vernon for sexual abuse by having sexual contact with a victim under 12. His bond was set at $75,000 cash or property (c/p);

Four persons were named in one indictment: Mitchell D. Clontz, 49, of Chestnut Grove Road in Brodhead, Robert J. Tillery, 36 and William D Kelly, 35, both of Sweetwater Road in Berea and Amanda D alcohol sales.

Brian Bussell, Emergency Management Director said the city will have many decisions to make and an ordinance covering the subject will likely include many pages of complicated details. "The city has to make a lot of decisions. It's not like just another ordinance. It is going to take a tremendous amount of time and effort to create this ordinance. Things like Sunday sales is decided by the city, not the state," he said. "There is a lot of work to be done by the city and you are going to have to start immediately."

Burton agreed. "We are looking at calling weekly meetings for the next 60 days," he said. "We have to get all the information we can and these meetings need to include ABC representatives and Kentucky League of Cities members and other who know the statutes and regulations involved here."

Bullock also talked about the ordinance. "This ordinance has to cover many

Burn ban in effect

By: Mike French
 Editor

Local officials wish to remind everyone that the burn ban is in effect throughout the state of Kentucky.

The ban forbids burning of any kind between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

During the night, residents may burn brush and organic material but burning garbage is never allowed. It is also illegal to burn wood that has been treated, such as lumber used in construction.

The ban started on October 1 and will last until December 15. After that date, residents may burn organic material anytime as long as it is 150 feet away from woodlands or other ignitable materials.

The burn ban will be reinstated on February 15 and last until April 30 and will be for the same hours.

Burning garbage is never allowed, according to Brodhead Fire Chief John Dyehouse. "We have a real problem with people in our county burning garbage. It is illegal to burn garbage," he said.

In fact, there is a $500 fine for anyone caught burning garbage at anytime of the year.

That time of year, that I dread all summer, has arrived and, as usual, I wasn't prepared mentally.

Don't get me wrong, I really like being inside a cozy, warm house with Mother Nature creating havoc outside but you can't always stay in a cozy, warm house. There always comes a time when you have to brave the elements to sustain life and those are the times I hate winter.

This has been a recurring theme of mine for the 51+ years I have helped publish this paper and my readers are probably a little sick of hearing it so, I promise this is the only time this winter that I will vent about this particular subject.

I would like to vent a short while about the state of Florida and their seeming inability to do something as simple as conduct a clean election, particularly on the national level.

We all remember the Bush-Gore debacle when our Supreme Court had to finally decide who our President would be because of "hanging chads" in Florida. There are no hanging chads in this election but election workers in Florida haven't been able to come up with an official winner of the governor and senate races eight days after the November 6th election, due, in part, to masses of ballots randomly turning up that haven't, reportedly, been counted.

Gov. Rick Scott, at the first accounting, had a 70,000 vote lead over his opponent, incumbent Senator Nelson, but with the new found ballots, that lead is now down to around 12,000. It does seem peculiar that when additional uncounted ballots are found they invariably benefit the democrat candidate, imagine that.

Georgia is not in any better shape. After the Democrat candidate for governor had conceded to her Republican opponent, additional ballots were "found" and now that race is again in question.

If we, the citizens of this nation, lose confidence in the integrity of our elections, then we will officially have become the third world banana republic that we have been edging toward for some time.

It is disgraceful that anyone would even consider trying to steal an election, going against the will of the people, but I am pretty sure, from all evidence that it is happening. No one, not even the infamous Brenda Snipes, who oversees elections in Florida, can be this incompetent unless it is by design. One pundit noted recently that Ms. Snipes has said she will retire, in two years, which means that she will be overseeing the 2020 presidential election -- can't wait for that comedy of errors.

Aces Over

I had forgotten what it was like.

I went out hunting this weekend and nearly froze my toes off but it sure brought back memories.

I have never been a professional, big time hunter, but I greatly enjoy the woods and the battle between man's ingenuity and forest creatures' sly ways.

I love the idea of providing food for the family and harvesting animals the way I believe God intended.

Originally, we only had slings and rocks, but man has always used whatever is available to him to harvest the meat that I believe God placed here for us to eat.

Being the most intelligent of God's creatures, man has created some bigger and better ways to harvest animals and I love using all we can invent to bag my own meat.

One of my favorite trips into the forest ever was a weekend excursion with myself and Mayor Mike Bryant (who wasn't Mayor at the time) and Matt and Michael Bryant on a wild boar hunt. It was an awesome weekend of campfires, stories, quiet stalking and target practice.

But of course, my favorite trips in life involved my father and my cousin through all my growing-up years.

I suppose Dove hunting is my favorite because you don't have to be quiet. You can sit on your cooler filled with ice cold Pepsi, and talk and laugh and sing. Then when anyone spotted a dove coming in our direction we would shout "coming over."

The talking instantly stopped and everyone turned their eyes skyward in search of the bird.

Then, whoever made the shot, walked to get their game and the conversation picked up where it left off.

There is a true satisfaction to becoming one with nature. It is by far the most therapeutic, calming activity I have ever been involved in.

T.J.'s Journal

By: Tonya J. Cook

Some People's Bad Habits Put Others at Risk
Dear Journal,

A few days ago, early in October, I got a call late one night as I was going down the hall to bed. At that time of night it can never be good news. It was an old friend of mine who had moved to Lexington several years ago. She had a huge problem to arise and needed my help. I told her that I'd be on my way first thing in the morning.

Well, I got to her apartment about 9AM or a little before. We talked a bit and looked at various options and made a few calls. Then we went to see a few people and in three or so hours we got the problem solved. She is elderly and needs help like that sometimes. Then we decided to go out on the town and look around. Finally, before I dropped her off at her apartment, we went to eat at the Frisch's on Harrodsburg Road. We had a nice meal, a late lunch, and talked.

Soon I had to head home. I had put the day out of mind for the most part thinking no more would come of it. The days flew by as they do and on Saturday November 3, it came back to haunt me. Stanley stuck his head around the bathroom door as I got ready for church services and announced that the restaurant that my friend and I ate at in Lexington was experiencing an outbreak of Hepatitis A. One of the employees had died and all who ate there had been exposed. An injection was recommended.

I called the Fayette County Health Department to get advice Monday morning. They said that if there were no symptoms within two weeks not to worry, you probably will be fine. I tried to remember the date but I wasn't sure. I called a credit card company as I got some gas as I went out of town. I used the card on October 11 and 26. The news said that all of the customers eating at the restaurant from Oct 10 through Oct 30 were exposed. To be sure I called my friend and she had written a check on that date, so we had eaten on October 11, within the danger period.

Since the two weeks had come and gone, I didn't get the injection. However, if I want to keep eating out, I'll have to get one. There was a KFC in Louisville with the same problem and at the cafeteria at UK Med Center, all in the last few days.

I've learned that the cause of Hepatitis A is undercooked shell fish and unwashed hands. I always see signs in restrooms for all employees to wash their hands before going back to work. You would think that such a sign wouldn't be necessary, but evidently it is necessary. People should be taught about proper hand washing when very young when going from diapers.

I've come to the conclusion that some people are just plain nasty. I can go to the ladies room anywhere you want to name and I can hear others flush (maybe, maybe not) and go on out the door without even pausing by the sink. I suspect men are even worse. I was at a local fast food restaurant and I met an employee coming out of the stall as I went in. She never even slowed down by the sink. I came out and looked to see where she worked. Well, she was right there on the food prep line. At the cash register would have been

Points East

Speaking of doing things one-handed, as we were doing here last week, try opening one of those tiny 1.5" x 2" zip lock packets, about the size of a book of matches, with just your right hand. Using your mouth is not allowed because you don't want spit or slobber on whatever you're going to put inside the packet which, in my particular case, was tomato seeds.

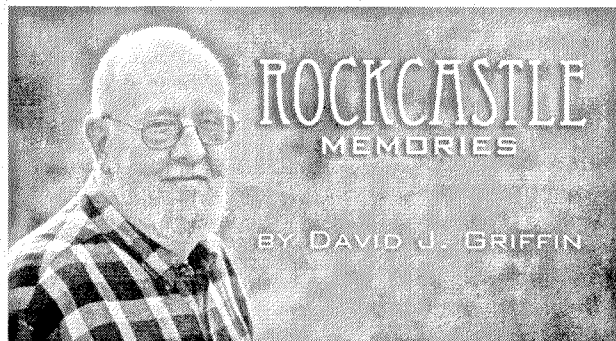

It can be done. Even though I don't have a video to prove it, I managed to open several dozen before enlisting Loretta and our "adopted" granddaughter, 12-year-old, Alyssa Edwards to do the other 600+. Alyssa and/or I put the seeds in them. Loretta tried putting seeds into one little packet and informed me that I was the one who got myself into this mess and I could get myself out. But after seeing me suffer and cuss with the frustration of opening the packets, she took pity and opened several hundred, a task she could perform in about one second that was taking me up to 3 minutes.

If you are among the 123 readers who took advantage of my heirloom tomato seed promotion, please know that your seeds were mailed late last week. If you haven't yet received them, blame the post office. I'm as sure as I can be that every envelope I received has been stuffed and mailed and that none got lost between my house and the post office. I only expected a dozen or so people to be interested but I wound up having to spend most of September and October saving tomato seeds and the last month getting them into packets.

When you open your seeds, take a look at the contents of each packet. If they

I Serve A Savior

Don't you just love finding a new album that makes you want to hear it over and over again? This situation happens rather infrequently to me anymore, but when it does, it is something to savor. I recently had this response when I discovered Josh Turner's new album entitled I Serve A Savior.

While my wife and I were watching the Gather Gospel Hour on television one night, we learned that Josh was going to be a guest, singing songs from his new release. We loved the show, and I immediately downloaded the album from the Apple iTunes store.

Many of the songs on Turner's new album take me back to my youth at Mt. Vernon First Baptist Church. Some of them include: "I Saw the Light," "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," "Amazing Grace," and "The Doxology." We sang these songs so often that I still remember the lyrics.

At First Baptist, we sang "The Doxology" in unison after receiving the Sunday morning offering. There are several versions of this brief song, but only one was used at our church. The lyrics are: Praise God from whom all blessings flow; Praise Him all creatures here below; Praise Him above ye heavenly host, in His Holy Ghost, Amen.

Josh Turner has always professed his faith publicly and feels right at home on his new album. The title song in one that he authored himself. "I've already started incorporating songs of the record in my live shows," he explained.

Also included on the album is Turner's number one recording of "Long Black Train." Some of the verses remind me of sitting on my grandfather's porch swing late at night, listening to the sound of the Louisville and Nashville train approach the tunnel near Big Fill Cave. That was probably a mile away in the distance. These are the lyrics that remind me of that time:

Well, I can hear the whistle

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Truth of the Matter...

Dear Editor,
In about a week, thousands or millions of families will sit down to a big meal celebrating Thanksgiving. Truth is, we have a great deal to be thankful for. We enjoy the blessings of freedom and opportunity. But I wonder how many thank God for their blessings? How many understand why our nation has been blessed? In particular, do those of us who live in the United States understand why we have received blessings unheard of in the annals of history?

The citizens of this nation have received unparalleled blessings. In the 20th century, this nation became the most prosperous and the most powerful in the world. Sadly, it is now in decline. We used to be an economic powerhouse, but now we are the world's largest debtor. We now owe in excess of $21 trillion, and it is still growing.

Is there a biblical reason for our rise to power? From whence comes these national blessings? I firmly believe that our nation has a purpose greater than self-indulgence.

God warned in Deuteronomy 8:10-11 "When you have eaten and are full, then you shall bless the Lord your God for the good land which he has given you. Beware that you do not forget the Lord your God by not keeping His commandments, His judgments, and His statutes which I command you today."

Do you have a purpose larger than yourself, or are you focused on the irrelevant? Perhaps it is time we asked ourselves "To whom do I give thanks?" Paul wrote in 2 Timothy 3:2-5 "For men will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, unloving, unforgiving, slanderers, without self-control, brutal, despisers of good, traitors, headstrong, haughty, lovers of pleasures rather than lovers of God, having a form of godliness but denying its power. And from such people turn away!"

Any truly godly nation will promote the true values of life. The false values of materialism, vanity, and pride, along with ingratitude, will certainly destroy any nation that fails to overcome them.

Thanksgiving Day this year will, for the most part, be observed by the most materially blessed people on the planet. Even the poorest in this country enjoy convenience and comfort that much of the population on this ball can't even imagine. However, for those that call themselves by the name of Christ, our blessings are spiritual! We are thankful for forgiveness and faith, and the sacrifice of the son of God.

May we all be filled with the spirit of Thanksgiving. May we seek God's love and his will for our lives.

Consider taking a few moments out of your busy day and think about what you really have to be thankful for. You just might find something worth hanging on to.

Save a life by being an organ donor...

Dear Editor,
November is a month of giving THANKS! It is a time that many take the time to enjoy family and friends and to remember all the "Good Things" in their life! Every November begins a new season of "giving," and it is also a time that many around the world recognize as the "Donor Sabbath" month.

During the National Donor Sabbath, faith leaders, donor families, transplant recipients, and donation and transplantation professionals participate in services and programs to increase awareness. This month we remember the need for the lifesaving, enhanced gifts passed to others through transplantation. It is time we continue to encourage people to say "yes" to the organ donation registry. Those who donate organs, tissues, and blood stem cells restore hope and share gifts beyond measure. The recipients are full of Thanks!

Why is this important to me? On February 3, 2016, I had a heart attack while driving home from the gym.

I thought I was having muscle spasms; I pulled over on the side of the road hoping that the pain would pass. It did not pass, in fact, EMS had to pick me up in the parking lot of a corner store. Two days later I was in the hospital waiting for my discharge paperwork when I had my second heart attack. I died with this one! In the words of my youngest son, "the doctors had to put the jumper cables on me." This was an attempt at his humor as he struggled with what his mom was enduring. That episode caused me to go into heart failure.

Fast forward five months and I find myself in Lexington at the UK Healthcare Heart Transplant Center awaiting a life-saving heart. I remember asking myself "how did I get here; how did this happen to me?" am I needing a new heart, and if I don't get one, am I going to die sooner rather than later? It was during this time I remembered that I was registered as an organ donor! It was at that moment that I truly understood the importance of that question asked by the staff of the Kentucky Circuit Clerks' offices around the state, "Would you like to register as an organ donor?" "Would you like to donate to the organ donor awareness program?" I thought I would be the one giving not the one in need. On July 27, 2016, I received a new heart! They told me it was a perfect match!

I invite you to join me in honoring those who, at the end of their life, gave life! You too can save lives by registering as an organ donor at RegisterMe.org. You never know you or someone you love might need a "perfect match!"

*Forever Thankful,

have 10-12 seeds, that means Alyssa counted them out and got them into in the packet. If they have more than a dozen, sometimes even 20 or more, you have me to thank for the surplus. Alyssa can actually pick up a single tomato seed between her thumb and forefinger but sometimes they stick together and she gets 2 at a time. I can't manage fewer than a dozen at a time and I do that by raking them into a pile and grabbing a "pinch full". Some seeds are larger than others so you may have received over 20 in some packets.

By using my right hand to place the open packet in a crevice I can make by getting the thumb and forefinger of my left hand together, I managed to get seeds into well over half the seed packets and seal up the ones that you received. It took me well over 3 weeks to get my portion completed. Alyssa did the rest in just a few hours.

I figure it was good physical therapy for me. If I'd been paying a therapist $50.00 an hour to supervise me, I'd have been out well over $10,000.00. So look at all the money I've saved and actually made nearly 40 cents an hour if I don't include the 2 months of seed saving that went into the effort. I'm paying Alyssa way, way more than that but she doesn't need physical therapy.

In the meantime, we still have a lot of seed left over. The Giant Syrians and Molly Helton Sunbursts are nearly gone but we still have enough for at least 30 more packets of 10 seeds or more each of Giant Belgians, Jellico Giants, Pale Yellow Giants, Pink and Red Brandywine, Mountain Man, Ky. Mountain Beefsteak and Red Bull's Heart. I'm assuming that everybody who wanted mater seeds got some but if you didn't, here's the deal.

Send me $5.00 (cash or check) and a self addressed, stamped LEGAL ENVELOPE (4.5" X 9"). A greeting card envelope will also work but we prefer the legal size. I asked folks to put 2 stamps on the envelopes the first time but we discovered the miracle of 2-sided copy machinery and cut down the weight of the literature that I include with the seeds. Alyssa and I will send you at least 4 varieties of seeds from this mixture. State your variety preferences but we may have to substitute if we run out of the ones you want.

If we run out completely, we will mail back your $5.00. Send your bucks and envelope to: Ike Adams, 249 Charlie Brown Road, Paint Lick, KY 40461 BEFORE December 6. I'll get Alyssa back up here that weekend if I don't get the seeds to you before then.

We already have about 100 packets ready to go but I have no idea what to expect this time around. Remember, we are doing this to try to keep heirloom tomatoes thriving. Please don't order seeds unless you intend to grow them or give them to someone who will.

bad enough. Stanley and I reported her to management. The next time we went, she was gone, or it was her day off.

If people want to be nasty, I guess it is their right, but I wish they would do it at home instead of spreading their filth to other unsuspecting people, some who are elderly, children and those with compromised immune systems. Maybe it is just time people wore gloves when out in public if we as a society can't do any better than this. If all could pitch in and do their part, disease could almost be eradicated. Lets all try, flu season is at the door and hepatitis is calling our name.

I do believe that this album may become one of my favorite gospel recordings. The songs touch upon important pieces of my past and make me feel something special each time I hear them. That is a defining feature of good gospel music, as far as I'm concerned.

If you love this type of music, I strongly recommend giving it a listen. Maybe it will speak to you as well. It is a simple, but powerful recording.

by: perlina m. anderkin

To say I was surprised at the outcome of the wet/dry vote in Mt. Vernon would be a vast understatement. I never expected it to pass but I can't say that I'm unhappy that it did. I know that opinion won't be popular with at least half of my readers but it's true.

Mt. Vernon needs something to give it a shot in the arm toward more economic growth and this could be it. As to the naysayers that only see death and destruction from the vote, I say that, in my opinion, there will not be one extra drop drank in this county because of the vote than before. It might even make the highways a little safer because those people who normally drive to Richmond to get their supply, and maybe start sampling it on the way back to Mt. Vernon, won't be on the roads to pose a danger to other motorists.

It matters not to me personally, I don't like the taste of beer or liquor, thank God, but it is a legal product and I don't think that anyone should decide what other people can enjoy, as long as it is legal.

Give it a chance folks. I can't see the situation getting any worse than it already is with our local jail filled with drug abusers and, I suppose, if it sticks too badly in opponents' craw they can force a wet/dry vote to repeal it at some future date.

To hear the sounds of the forest as the sun rises and of the creatures waking up from a long night's sleep give me a peace that I can't get any other way.

I happen to be one that enjoys full camo. It's pretty much useless since animals don't see things the same way we do, but I greatly enjoy attempting to disappear in the woods. I use the face make-up and look rather ridiculous, I suppose, but I enjoy it anyway. I would love for someone to walk right past me in the woods and never know I was there. It kind of makes me think I could hide from the cops if I needed to (joking Shannon Franklin).

I could never provide for my family and survive in the woods for any extended period of time like my father could have unless I had an endless supply of lighters and gasoline and was near fresh, drinkable water. Oh, and a grocery store would help a lot.

But, I still greatly enjoy a day or weekend in the woods.

I have taught my sons all about firearm safety. Not just that stuff daddy government forces gun manufacturers to put in the box with new guns, but the real life safety stuff that happens when you are out in the woods with firearms.

I wish everyone could experience a day of hunting. It is very satisfying and in my opinion soul-soothing.

Plus, in my opinion, there is no meat at any store on earth as good as fresh, wild game.

Unfortunately, in order to feed your family fresh meat, and in order to practice your God-given right to harvest animals that He placed here for us to eat, and in order to spend the day in the woods exercising your Second Amendment rights, you have to pay the government money and buy a license and carry your paperwork in your pocket at all times, much as the Nazis had to do.

And you have to wear certain colors, and you have to pass background checks and if you harvest a deer or bear or elk, you have to report it to your government and place a tag on it to identify your harvest to the government.

Oh, and you can only go on certain days of the year as government decides and only harvest the particular animals that government allows in your county. And of course, you can only use certain weapons for certain animals on certain dates (guess who decides which ones you are allowed to use).

But, once you have met all those "freedoms," you would probably enjoy a day of hunting. For those who enjoy meditating, there is no better place to just sit and think, than next to a cool stream surrounded by forest creatures.

If you try it, good luck. Bagging an animal is icing on the cake. The hunt and the trip is the biggest joy of hunting. Getting fresh meat is not what decides if it was a good day. Enjoying the trip and admiring the world around you is the joy of the hunt.

“Alcohol”

tors that will be considered on each application that the council will have to draft an ordinance addressing the issue and then hold a second reading to regulate alcohol sales locally.

Local liquor licenses will not be offered on a first come, first serve basis. “It is much more complicated than that,” said Bray. “Even public sentiment is a factor in deciding which applications to approve. Where the store will be located, how it will affect the community, how many school buses will pass the liquor store each day, access to the store, background checks, what kind of businesses are nearby, etc. All of these factors and many, many more are involved in deciding which application to approve.”

Bray said the city may consider forming a committee to study each application but that has not yet been decided. Still, once an applicant has been approved by the city, they must also apply to the state of Kentucky and receive that approval before they are allowed to sell alcohol in Mount Vernon or Brodhead.

The City of Mount Vernon plans to hold a first reading of the local ordinance as soon as it is drafted but then must hold a second reading before it takes effect which may require a special called meeting before January 8.

“Right now, we are in the process of gathering information about the process and making sure we do everything, according to the law. It’s not going to happen overnight and there is a lot of research involved to make sure we are abiding by the laws and regulations,” said Bray.

The city is also looking into ways to see financial gain from having alcohol sales in the city.

Right now, it is illegal for a city of Mt. Vernon’s population size to tax the sale of alcohol, according to state regulations,” said Bray. “But we are looking into that. It doesn’t seem fair to our city that other cities around us can charge an alcohol tax but we can’t.”

Bray said he and the City attorney are looking into the possibility of having that law amended or changed in some way that would allow Mount Vernon to charge a tax on the sale of all alcohol.

“It is just such a complicated issue that will take us some time to learn all the regulations involved,” said Bray.

things and include every detail. We need to look at ordinances by other cities as well and compare them,” he said.

Brodhead police officer Travis Davis also spoke up during the conversation. “We definitely need to start the ball rolling immediately to hire the second Brodhead police officer. As it stands now, if we started the process today, it would be March before an officer could start work and we really need this officer before alcohol sales begin in Brodhead,” he said.

Davis explained that he will pick about five qualified people and submit those names to the commission. The commission will then choose two of those and Davis will pick which of those two applicants to hire. In order to speed up the process, and have an additional officer before alcohol sales begin in Brodhead, Davis said he would like to send the two applicants to get certification and then decide which applicant to hire. Davis could then include their test scores and evaluations when making his choice.

“Once alcohol is sold in Brodhead, there will be a tremendous influx of traffic in town and there will be other reasons to have another officer. But with training and certification and testing and the hiring process even if we start tonight it will be March before they could start,” he said.

Davis also told the commission that he will soon begin special training from the ABC to become a certified ABC officer. “There is a lot to learn about alcohol laws and the training will better prepare me to service this community once alcohol sales begin in our city.”

The commission member addressed several other issues as well.

Members discussed the need for an additional truck for the water and sewer department. The existing vehicle is not dependable, according to members of the commission. “It is definitely on its last legs. It’s basically a rusty frame with wheels,” said Burton during last month’s meeting.

Members agreed to look into prices of a used 3/4 ton truck for the department.

Officer Davis also asked the commission for permission to begin enforcing the leash law on a regular basis. “We have a real problem with dogs and cats here in our city and we are getting complaints regularly,” he said. “I need to begin enforcing that ordinance.” Commission members agreed.

Davis also addressed the Nuisance Ordinance again suggesting members amend the ordinance to include a fine structure so that he knows exactly how much to fine citizens for offenses against the ordinance. “I need to know how many warnings, then how much is the fine exactly, then penalties if they don’t pay, and how much to charge if we have to go clean it up and several other details that need to be included.”

Bullock agreed the ordinance needs to be amended. “We have a good ordinance but we need to include steps throughout the process of getting people to clean up the offense. The goal here is to have a cleaner, safer city.”

Brodhead Fire Chief John Dyehouse also addressed the commission letting everyone know the Brodhead Christmas Parade is scheduled for Saturday, December 1st at 2 p.m.

Dyehouse also said there is a problem in the city with people burning garbage. “It is illegal to burn garbage any time. There is no season to burn garbage and we are getting a ton of complaints,” he said.

Davis spoke up on the subject. “Burning garbage is a Class A Misdemeanor and I will begin citing anyone caught burning garbage immediately,” he said. According to KRS 149.400 there is a $500 fine for burning garbage.

Davis is keeping his word concerning writing citations for anyone breaking an ordinance or a law in the city of Brodhead. “I gave out 92 citations in the month of October and already have seven indictments,” he said.

Superintendent David Pensol echoed the remarks. “I am very proud of our audit report and this board deserves credit for making certain our students and Rockcastle families are placed first above and beyond what any report might say,” said Pensol. “This board focuses on doing what’s right and best for each individual student in the school system and are being good stewards with our finances.”

Representatives of White and Associates at the meeting said there may be some small issues at the individual school level but no issues that the board oversees. “Some smaller funds handled at the school level may have minor issues but the budget set by this district and this board is overall an excellent one,” said the spokesman.

Pensol, auditors, board members and department heads all discussed overall funding from state and federal grants. Several of those present discussed the cuts in school funding and how the general public is “misled” by the wording of certain grants to make it appear that funding is not shrinking.

“It’s an enormous task to keep from cutting programs or services when funding continues to drop even in the middle of the budget cycle,” said Pensol. Pensol and the auditors said state officials will “loudly announce” that they increased funding in one area of the budget, but then “quietly sneak” a drop in another area of the budget that is much more than the announced increase. SEEK funding for each student was raised during the last meeting of the Kentucky General Assembly.

An auditor spokesman said “very often they are handing you something with their right hand out in the open, but their left hand is under the table taking that and more away somewhere else.”

Pensol says this causes a misconception. “Another of the many examples of this is the offer we just received from the School Facilities Construction Commission (SFCC),” he said. “This offer is $9 per student and is less than we have ever received. It continues to drop every year in recent years,” he said. Facilities Director Trent Clark agreed. “This is the lowest offer I have ever seen,” he said.

Another unfunded new expense was also mandated to the district by the state just this week when KDE (Kentucky Department of Education) mandated that each district take part in the Ameresco Asset Planner and Space Planner Program.

The program, according to Clark, is established to create a data base that includes every detail of the construction and operations of every building in the school district.

“This data base is then compared to other school districts and this helps the state determine how much funding a district needs for building maintenance, repairs or construction,” said Clark.

VanHook, who recently took training in this area and attended the seminar concerning the program, said it can be helpful to the district but again is another expense. “To be as detailed as this program needs to be, we have to have an architect or engineer or both to fill in the data,” said VanHook. “This can be a benefit to our district and could theoretically get us more facility funding. But we have to participate. It’s a mandate,” he said.

The district has until June 30, 2019 to complete the program. The board approved the program and will begin the process immediately according to Pensol.

In other action, Student Affairs Director Becky Isaacs informed the board that the number of students attending school in the county has dropped by about 30 students this year and dropped about 60 students last year. The number of students enrolled also affects funding for the district. “The number of students enrolled in our county has gone down over the past three years,” said Isaacs. “But, we planned for that and budgeted for it in advance.”

Isaacs says the cause for the decline includes many different factors from larger graduating classes, to homeschooling to families moving out of the district and other reasons.

The board also discussed the fact that Kentucky River Foothills is no longer the administrator of the grant that allows Head Start in Rockcastle County.

Officials say the Head Start program should not be affected by the change and the grant is still coming, but a different organization will administer that grant and officials are not certain who that will be just yet.

“We don’t expect any real changes to our Head Start program except we will just be dealing with different faces when getting our funding in place,” said Jason Coguer.

The board also reviewed the Superintendent’s Personnel action report.

The report is as follows:

The Landscape With Stone

Stone is made to seem incidental by many garden advertisements, as they stress the newest and prettiest plant they have for sale. Stone is given short shrift with the concrete paver or concrete professional. Even stonework ads now feature mostly faux stones. Let's take a look at real rocks again.

Over the years I've used many a ton of purchased and found stones to build some lovely waterfalls, streams and ponds. Stones certainly make the water feature (along with a skilled artisan, of course). Water features are a wonderful place to use stones in a landscape. But, what are some others?

One use for a giant rock, maybe one that was too heavy for the builders to move, is just make it a specimen and plant around it. These are sometimes called "grandfather rocks".

Grandfathered in I reckon.

You can 'plant' such a rock in your yard, even if it didn't have one before. Such is a good way to utilize a big stone for positive result.

Flagstones used to create walks and patios out of large flat pieces of stone are another practical use for stones in the landscape.

Retaining walls, and stones placed in hillsides to help 'stabilize' or 'support' the hill is another practical way to use rocks, and create a good look at the same time.

And stone walls don't have to be "retaining" something. My recent ones on Center Street in Berea, KY are for appearance, and to reduce trespass.

Rock outcroppings can be shown off. (And can be built where none ever existed, with a little creativity to place them so they jut up and look as if they belong.)

Gravels are small pebbles. They make good paths by themselves, or good "mulch" in a planted bed. But they also can be used between and among larger stones for a nice look. Your desert and Mediterranean landscapes may utilize rocks in this manner.

Have you thought of a stone fireplace? Or a stone firepit? How about just a bench of two legs and a flat seat of a rock? (More involved but very lovely is the stone masonry wall, or seating created with stone masonry.)

If none of these ideas seem right for your place, then how about a stone wishing well, or a doghouse of stone? The doghouse could be the current doghouse, covered with veneer stone, or a stacked stone or mortared stone covering, or a new doghouse built from scratch with stone. With a stone home for the dog, at least one of you could live in a rustic house protected from the elements of fire, wind or rain.

Next time you are in the mood for a new landscaping project, would stones help make it a better project in some way? I am thinking they would.

The little girl with the big voice

Mya Hunt

By: Mike French
Editor

Editor's note: This is the fourth in a series of articles about local residents who play or sing music of some kind. Local bands and performers have traveled the world making music and we hope to give our readers insight into the lifestyle.

Some say "you are never too old to learn," Mya and her mom, Angie Hunt say, "you are never too young to learn."

At the early age of eight years old, Mya Hunt started what appears to be a life-long journey with music. And if you want a wonderful surprise, watch the small, unassuming little girl sit in front of you with a guitar and wait to hear a voice that you will not forget.

Since she was a tiny girl, her mother Angie and father Jeff, both of Rockcastle County, saw that she was a little different than her two siblings. "Mya was different from the start," said Angie. "She always had a rhythm in her and an attraction to music that you just don't see in every child."

So, the Hunts started supporting Mya's interests in case it turned out to be a special talent. And it was.

"Mom, music is like breathing for me. I just have to do it," the young girl told her mother.

And so it began. Now at 13-years-old, Mya has already performed several times at the Woodson Old Time Radio Hour as well as at many other engagements and is a regular singer at the First Baptist Church in Mount Vernon.

"Mya has that rare old-time, soulful tone to her voice," said the proud mother, her voice almost quivering with pride. "She is a joy for us all."

Mya is currently taking voice lessons from the nationally known singer Kelly Caldwell and has been taking guitar lessons for over a year. "She occasionally plays guitar as she sings but she is still getting better on guitar and is coming along very well. She mostly sings acappella right now," said Angie.

Mya, a student at RCMS, has some family members who have already become very popular performers across the county, including her aunt Donna Daily and her father Jeff. "Music runs in her blood," said Angie. "And it shows. She does everything by ear."

Angie said Mya often looks up something she likes on the internet, especially her favorite performer Chris Stapleton, and then learns to perform that particular song.

Still, Mya is not limited to Stapleton's style. "We expose her to every kind of music so that she can play any kind of music she likes. But she really loves Johnny Cash and Allison Kraus right now," said Angie.

Even while Angie sat and talked about her daughter's unusual talent, the youth could be heard in her bedroom strumming on her guitar and working on her voice exercises.

The Hunts support Mya's efforts with a definite attitude about her chosen hobby. "Music is the difference between a good day and a bad day," said Angie. "And we hope all her days are good days."

Mya is clearly getting noticeably better at her art every day and Angie thinks soon she will be ready for bigger, better shows. "She is already getting asked to play at many different places and once she has enough material ready and is well rehearsed, she will

Grandparent scammers threatening seniors

Three Kentucky grandparents were robbed of nearly $18,000 recently after falling victim to a "grandparent scam," according to Attorney General Andy Beshear, who issued a statewide scam alert today.

Six grandparents in Boyle, Butler, Fayette, Jefferson, Meade and Pulaski counties have reported the scam phone call.

The victims say they received a phone call from someone claiming to be their grandchild who is in an out-of-state jail and injured after driving under the influence and wrecking. A second scammer joins the call pretending to be an attorney or law enforcement officer who confirms the story and requests the grandparent immediately wire money or send cash to pay the bail bond.

Beshear said the fake grandchild then pleads with the grandparent to not tell his or her parents or anyone else.

"Threatening and stealing from grandparents by exploiting the love they have for their grandchildren is a despicable crime," said Beshear. "Sadly, the grandparent scam is a favorite among con artists and by simply taking time to talk with our grandparents about this scam we can all play a part in stopping it."

Beshear recommends sharing the following tips with grandparents to help them detect and avoid falling victim to the scam:

- Never trust anyone who randomly calls and asks you to send money via wire transfer, gift cards, cash or other hard to trace methods of payment.
- Ask the caller questions that only the real grandchild could answer correctly.
- Ask the caller to confirm what state and county jail they are being held and independently contact the jail to confirm.

• Try to call the real grandchild to verify, or call a related family member at a known phone number to confirm the grandchild is traveling.

Beshear asked anyone with information on the grandparent scam to report it to the Attorney General's Consumer Protection hotline at 888-432-9257 and complete an online report.

Staff in Beshear's Office of Senior Protection and Mediation, which is working to review the reports and assist each victim, said two of the scam reports originated from the same Pennsylvania phone number.

One of Beshear's top priorities is to protect Kentucky families, especially seniors from scams, abuse and exploitation.

To help Kentuckians stay up to date on new and trending scams, Beshear urges all Kentuckians to sign up to receive Scam Alerts from his office. To receive text message alerts, text the words KYOAG Scam to GOV311 (468-311) or enroll online at ag.ky.gov/scams and select either text message or email alerts.

Scam Alert

Scam switches bank deposit to Con Artist's account

Attorney General Andy Beshear is warning senior citizens and military veterans to be wary of a new scam that attempts to switch their monthly bank deposit to a con artist's bank account.

Beshear's office has recently received reports from seniors and veterans in Edmonson, Fayette, Jefferson and Spencer counties who say scammers tried to steal their monthly Social Security or veteran benefit.

Beshear said that this week his office was able to help one of the veterans scammed recover $3,169.

The scam begins by someone pretending to be an employee of a bank, the Social Security Administration or a veteran organization, and claims the victim's benefit deposit must be 'reverified' following 'suspicious activity.' Once the victim provides their personal, banking and account login information, the scammer has what they need to steal the victim's identity and make unauthorized direct deposit changes.

"Con artists will stop at nothing to steal, including targeting seniors who rely on their benefits as a large portion of their income after retirement," said Beshear. "Thanks to those making reports to our office, we know that this scam is trending in the state and it is especially critical that Kentuckians validate any benefit changes directly with the legitimate organization."

Beshear's office indicates identity thieves and mobile deposit scams are increasing as online banking advances allow Kentuckians to change their own mobile deposit routing information online or through smartphone apps.

The availability of mobile deposits can also result in con artists targeting unsuspecting victims to transfer money to the scammer using pre-paid credit and gift cards, which are most difficult to trace. Kentuckians can avoid many scams by following these essential steps.

1 Do not respond to unknown callers. If you did not initiate contact with the Social Security Administration or the Veterans Benefits Administration, and are randomly contacted by them - it is most likely a scam.

2 Never provide your personal, financial or account login information to unknown, unverified people. Always contact the legitimate agency independently before any transaction.

3 Protect your computer and banking data by using security software, firewalls and keep security patches and passwords up to date.

Since taking office, Beshear has been working to protect Kentucky families from scams by issuing an alert when new and trending scams are reported in the Commonwealth.

Beshear recommends all Kentuckians stay ahead of scammers by signing up for his office's Scam Alerts. To enroll text the words KYOAG Scam to GOV-311 (468-311) or online at ag.ky.gov/scams and select text message or email alert.

Beshear has conducted outreach and education programs in more than 180 locations throughout the state to better protect the senior and veteran population, which are often targeted by con artists.

Earlier this year, Beshear joined with AARP Kentucky to launch Mission Veterans Protected (MVP), an outreach program that helps Kentucky's veteran community combat the findings in an AARP study where veterans were found to be twice as likely to fall victim to fraud when compared to nonveterans. The MVP website has a complete list of the top-10 scams that most frequently target veterans and tips on how to avoid falling victim.

Beshear encourages Kentuckians to report scams and identity theft via his office's online form.

be ready."

The Hunt family said Mya's chosen art can be expensive at times, but the rest of the family has supported Mya constantly. "Her grandparents and aunts and uncles provide transportation and money for lessons and tuition to music theater and the whole family has been amazing at helping support Mya's desire to perform."

The Hunts say their strongest advice to any family with a talented child is simple. "Promote it," she said. "Our school system promotes the arts and will help in many ways. Promote your child's desire in the arts. Help them to perfect their art."

Angie said she is proud of Mya every day. "She has a 30-year-old's voice coming from a 13-year-old body. It is our job to promote that."

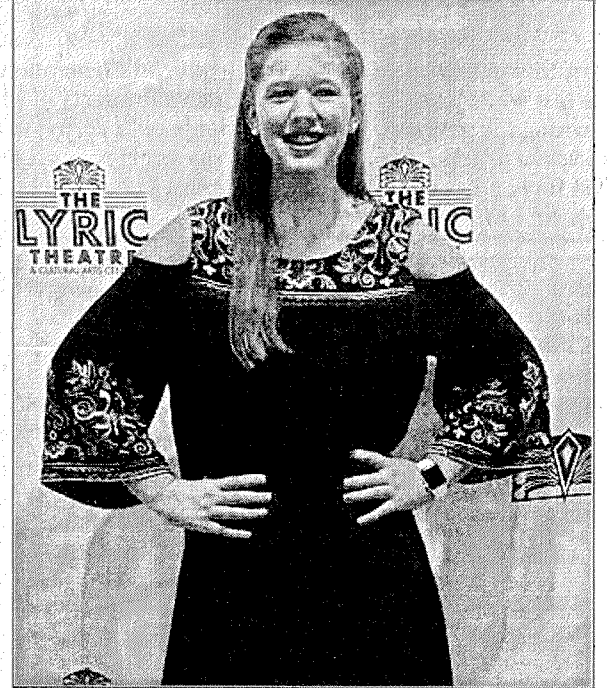

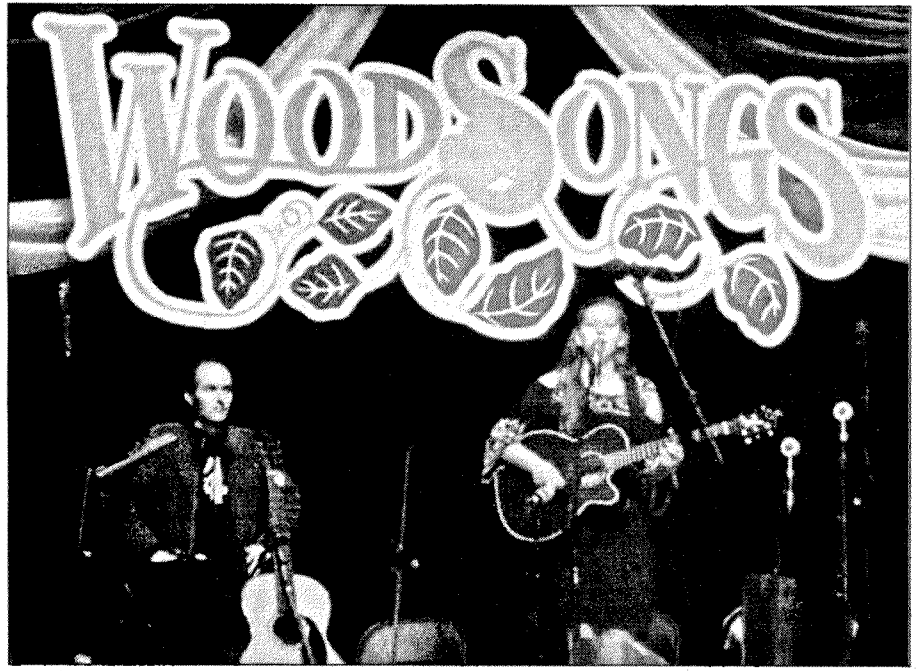

Mya's next "gig" is scheduled for November 18th at Brodhead Baptist Church and Angie invites everyone to come and hear her little girl perform.

Though anyone would consider Mya an adorable little girl, when she opens her mouth to sing, be prepared to hear a large, strong and powerful voice that has been hiding inside her all along.

"She's blessed with this wonderful voice and is a little girl out there singing about Jesus. She's always been high octane and it shows," said Angie.

If you would like to have Mya perform at your church or event, call Angie at (606) 308-5677. When she arrives, she may appear soft and gentle. But when she sings, you will immediately understand why some call her "the little girl with the big voice" and it would appear, an even bigger heart.

CRANBERRY APPLE CASSEROLE

3 cups peeled and chopped apples
2 cups whole cranberries
1 and 1/2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 and 1/2 cups white sugar
1 and 1/3 cup quick cooking oats
1 cup chopped nuts
1/3 cups packed brown sugar
1 stick butter, melted
Preheat oven to 325°. Spray 2-quart casserole dish with oil or non-stick spray. Layer apples and cranberries in prepared dish. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Cover with white sugar. In separate bowl, blend oats, nuts, and brown sugar. Stir in butter until crumbly. Pour crumb mixture over fruit. Bake for 1 and 1/2 hours. Serve warm.

CRANBERRY SALAD

I don't wait until Thanksgiving to make this salad. It is wonderful with any entrée. As soon as the fresh cranberries come into season, I buy several bags and freeze them to use anytime. It also freezes well once it has been made. This is probably the most asked for side dish at Thanksgiving that I fix for my family.

1 bag fresh or frozen cranberries
2 medium oranges
1/2 to 1 cup white sugar
Wash and sort cranberries. Using a food processor or chopper, chop cranberries. Peel one orange. Chop both oranges—one with the peeling and one without. Add sugar to taste and let sit for 10 to 15 minutes until sugar melts. This freezes very well.

CRANBERRY RELISH SALAD

2 boxes strawberry jello (you could also use lemon jello instead of strawberry or one of each)
4 cups boiling water
1 pound raw cranberries
1 orange unpeeled
1 cup celery, chopped
2 cups sugar
1 cup chopped nuts
Mix jello with boiling water until jello dissolves. Refrigerate.
Run cranberries and orange through a food chopper or processor until chopped. Add celery and sugar. Let stand until jello starts to set. Then add mixture to jello; mix well. Spread into a 9 x 13 glass dish; sprinkle with nuts. Refrigerate until jello is set. Cut into squares to serve.

GERMAN CHOCOLATE CHEESECAKE

1 and 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup butter, melted
3 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese, softened
1 can (14 ounce) Eagle Brand sweetened condensed milk
2 packages (4 ounces each) German sweet chocolate, melted
3 eggs
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
Preheat oven to 350°. Combine crumbs, sugar and butter; press firmly onto bottom of 15 x 10 jellyroll pan. Beat cheese until fluffy. Gradually beat in Eagle Brand until smooth. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 20 minutes or until center is set. Cool. Top with coconut pecan topping. Chill. Refrigerate leftovers.

COCONUT PECAN TOPPING

1 can (14 ounce) sweetened condensed milk
3 egg yolks
1/2 cup butter
1 and 1/3 cups flaked coconut
1 cup chopped pecans
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
In a heavy 2 quart saucepan over medium heat, cook the condensed milk, egg yolks, and butter 10 minutes, stirring constantly, until bubbly. Remove from heat, and stir in the coconut, pecans, and vanilla. Let cool for 15 minutes before putting on cake.

GERMAN CHOCOLATE FUDGE

1 package (4 ounce) German Sweet Baking Chocolate
2 cups semi-sweet chocolate chips
2 cups marshmallow crème
1 and 1/2 cups chopped nuts (your choice)
1 and 1/2 cups shredded coconut
4 and 1/2 cups sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1 and 2/3 cup evaporated milk
Line a 9 x 13 pan with foil leaving enough foil around edges to lift candy out of pan to cut.
Break German Sweet Chocolate into squares and place in a large mixing bowl with the chocolate chips, marshmallow crème, nuts, and coconut. Bring sugar, salt, butter, and milk to a boil, stirring occasionally, forming a syrup. Cook slowly for about 6 minutes.
Pour the boiling syrup mixture over the chocolate mixture in the mixing bowl. Stir until chocolate is melted.
Pour mixture prepared pan. Cool until firm. Lift candy from pan. Remove foil. Cut into squares.

The Way Of The Transgressor Is Hard

Many view the life of the Christian as one that is dull and has very few things to enjoy. They have convinced themselves that are they that are lost, joy and happiness only exist in the world, where they can drink of the pleasures of the world and truly have a good time. Nothing could be fatter from the truth than this idea. The Bible does teach the way to Heaven we find in Matthew 7:13-14—That the path is narrow and those that live godly lives will suffer persecution, and that the people of God must abstain from evil Galatians 5:19-21—This does not mean a Christian life is void of satisfaction and happiness. Solomon said, Let not thou heart envy sinners, Proverbs 23:17, be not thou envious against evil men, neither desire to be with them. Proverbs 24:1, Fret not thyself because of evil men, neither be thou envious at the wicked. Proverbs 24:19 and the way of the transgressor is hard. Proverbs 13:15.

Surely there must be a good reason why God doesn't want us to envy sinners or to be like the wicked. The life of evil man is hard. It may seem at times life is easy and everything is going his way, but appearance is not always as it seems to be. Obedience to God is the best way for man to live not only for the life to come but also the life on this earth. Why is it good for us to fear God and to keep his commandments? Deuteronomy 6:24 To fear God and to keep his statutes is for our good always. Proverbs 16:17 the highway of the upright is to depart from evil, he that keepeth his way preserveth his soul. To keep our soul right for our God evil cannot exist in our souls, it weakens our moral fiber to the point our reasoning will not be as sharp, and our understanding will become dull. Proverbs 11:5 The wicked shall fall by his own wickedness.

Those who involve themselves in acts of evil, allow themselves to believe, it won't make a slave out of me, whether it be drugs, alcohol, immorality, or greed, but the truth about all these sins, they enslave people before they realize they're hooked, this is the reason, we have so many facilities today to deal with the problems of drug abuse, with drug dependency, is because people wanted to live the life, that appeared to be fun and exciting, but now they see, a broken home, children in foster care, Mom and Dad in clinics to be rehabilitated. The family that was close did everything together now is divided in many directions, (THE WAY OF THE TRANSGRESSOR IS HARD). Mom and Dad have to wonder how their children are being raised and are they being taken care of, this is what sin does and will continue to do as long as it resides in our life.

There is answer to all this sin and that is Jesus Christ, the one who came to seek and to save the lost. By mankind turning from evil or sin confessing that we believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and then being baptized for the forgiveness of our sins.
