The first fire (above) on Indian Lane happened Friday night and the second (at right) on Old Rocky Road started a few hours later on Saturday morning. Officials are investigating the cause of each fire. No injuries were reported.

County seeking to become TIF District

By: Mike French Reporter
The Rockcastle County Industrial Development Authority (RCIDA) has voted unanimously to hire Commonwealth Economics of Lexington to provide an external report for the county with the aim being to make Rockcastle County a TIF District. The complex report is expected to place Rockcastle County in a TIF (Taxable Increment Financing) District which RCIDA Executive Director Jeffrey VanHook says could provide the county with a much larger tax base without raising local taxes on citizens. The report itself will cost

$10,000 and the company is also hired to "continue the process to create a local TIF (See "TIF" on A10)

Burning ban takes effect statewide

By: Mike French Reporter

The fall fire season has started throughout the state of Kentucky.

The season marks the start of the burn ban as well. Starting Monday, October 1 through December 15, it is illegal to burn anything within 150 feet of woodlands or brushlands at anytime during the burn ban.

The ban makes it illegal to burn anything at all between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. because officials say there is less chance of a fire spreading after dark and when the dew is settling on the ground.

But even during those hours that burning is allowed, all fires must remain more than 150 feet away from wooded areas.

The Brodhead Fire Department is also beefing up their efforts to stop ditchline burning at anytime.

Officials in Brodhead say a law has been on the books in the city since 1962 that prevents ditchline burning of leaves or any other substance but officials now say they are ramping up enforcing all burning laws and regulations.

Local schools receive latest assessments

By: Mike French Reporter

Rockcastle County District Instructional Supervisor Jennifer Mattingly, who is also District Assessment Coordinator, said earlier this summer that many changes were coming in the education system in Kentucky, including the way schools are tested and scored and to the requirements for students to graduate.

Some of those changes are already showing up since the Kentucky Department of Education released its assessment results for all schools this week.

Last year's rankings of High Distinction, which Rockcastle received, is no longer awarded to any school.

Now schools receive one of three rankings; CSI (Comprehensive Support and Improvement which is the lowest performing schools in the state - bottom 5%), TSI (Target Support and Improvement which means one group within the school performed in the bottom 5% regardless of how high the rest of the school scored), or Other.

Mattingly said local Schools did very well this year with "all of Rockcastle County Schools scoring above the accountability cut scores set by the state."

RCIDA strongly optimistic about county's future

By: Mike French Reporter

Members of the Rockcastle County Industrial Development Authority (RCIDA) are vocally excited and optimistic about the growth they expect in the county in the very near future.

"A lot is about to happen here," said RCIDA Chairman Corey Craig. "Now that the Corps of Engineers have completed their part of the work, the I-75 ramps are about to change a lot. There are several things going on that provides us the opportunity to move at a fast pace."

Craig was referring to the new Family Dollar Store coming to Livingston, the Microfoodery Plant nearing completion on Richmond Street, the I-75 project that is about to explode with growth, other local projects taking place including low income housing in Mount Vernon, and even the building previously occupied by Eagle Manufacturing.

"Now that we have the injunction, we can move ahead with getting that building ready for viable, strong prospects who may be interested," said Executive Director Jeffrey VanHook.

VanHook said an abnor-

Deputy Jailer Howard Haddix discovered these drugs by the dumpster at the Rockcastle County Courthouse near the detention center Monday morning. Jailer Carlos McClure said he had noticed suspicious activity and had his deputies keeping an eye on the area since some inmates were about to work in that area through the work release program. Monday morning, Haddix found a ball of rolled up paper taped together tightly on the ground beside the dumpster. When opened, jailers discovered meth and marijuana inside. According to McClure, there is surveillance video of a girl suspected of leaving the drugs there for an inmate to pick up and police are investigating the incident and searching for the girl. Since inmates are searched before they return to the jail after work release, officials are not sure how the inmates planned to get the drugs inside the jail. The drugs were wrapped in the tobacco inside the plastic bag. The investigation is ongoing. McClure said his staff spends every hour of their day watching for contraband entering the jail.

Finally recovered enough to return to bowling this week -- probably should have waited one more week since I bowled a 154 the first game and a 97 and a 98 the next two.

I can't figure out how anyone can have such a difference in scores from one game to the next. This is not rocket science. You merely need to lay the ball down in the middle of the lane. I mean there are marks about four feet in front of you showing where you need to put your ball to hit the head pin or to pick up an errant single pin. But, I have mastered the art of looking one way and throwing the ball another way -- to the right, left whatever, sometimes even the gutter.

Anyway, it's fun and a night out with Jane, Paige and granddaughter Kayla. And, thus far, they all assure me they still love me even if I can't bowl worth a dime.

If I were a Republican Representative or Senator in Washington right now, I feel sure I would be tearing my hair right out of my scalp.

There's no pleasing the Democrats. They wanted more investigation of SCOTUS nominee Brett Kavanaugh and RINO and Senator Jeff Flake caved and, even though he voted yes on getting Kavanaugh's nomination out of committee, he also said he felt there needed to be another FBI investigation "of a week" before a floor vote on Kavanaugh's confirmation.

This despite six background checks of Kavanaugh while he was being vetted before Pres. Trump nominated him.

So another investigation was ordered. Now the FBI is supposedly going to be able to wrap up their seventh investigation, possibly as early as Wednesday.

With that news, Senate Majority leader Mitch McConnell said there will be a floor vote on his confirmation Friday, maybe Saturday.

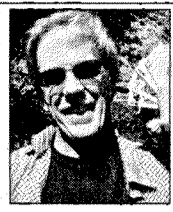

Of course, the Democrats are in full meltdown and, to top it off, Flake now says he will vote no, because he doesn't think that Kavanaugh's temperament makes him suitable for a Supreme Court Justice.

Flake is referring to Kavanaugh's impassioned defense of his name during the hearing with original accuser Christine Ford. I'll

Aces Over

By: Mike French

The beating sun pounded on my back as my trusty stud carried me over the steep canyon bluffs. My eyes were peeled for the renegade Indian scout whom I knew could blend in with his environment. My sweaty horse and I could brush up against him as we passed and we would never know he was there until the arrow pierced my side.

The leather on my saddle was rubbing into my thighs causing me to shift positions on Silver, the newly tamed wild stallion.

My posse and I were forced to a halt on the trail as the familiar sound of rattles warned of impending danger on the red dirt path. My steed pounded the ground as the rattlesnake fled our posse.

My old friend Daniel Boone must have come this way earlier in the summer because I saw telltale signs of human presence among the undergrowth in the forest.

I decided to thud the sides of Silver and let him pass the other horses in the posse and I and my powerful beast would lead the way to unexplored terrain and blaze a way for those who will come after us.

I loosened the reins to let Silver have his way and with a yell of triumph we bolted forward with the force of a locomotive. "HYAAA SILVER. AWAY!!!" I yelled.

Then came the voice of my squaw who was on the beast in front of me.

"Honey!" she said. "You aren't supposed to do that." Oh...Bummer. Back to reality.

We were on a horse trail ride at Cumberland Falls this weekend.

I had never really ridden a horse. I'm a country boy but we were mostly around cattle and hogs and tobacco fields. Not horses.

I played a Bluegrass/

Gospel show in the area so we took one of those horse-back rides through the na-

Family Court Judge

DO JUSTICE.
LOVE KINDNESS.
WALK HUMBLLY.

The first rule of the Family Court is to put the kids first. If elected, my first priority will be to protect kids by supporting programs in the community to:

- protect children from abuse and neglect
- help parents struggling with drug addiction
- put families of veterans in touch with available resources for assistance
- assist grandparents struggling to raise their grandchildren
- work with school administrators to help kids at risk

As a mother and step-mother, as a grandmother and wife, and a lawyer for 33 years, I know the legal problems that confront families in Lincoln, Pulaski, and Rockcastle Counties. As a Christian, I feel it's my duty to give back. That's why I have served as:

- an elder in my church
- a member of the Alzheimer's Respite Center board; the Ky. Lawyers for Legal Services to the Poor; the United Way of South Central Ky.; the Pulaski County Domestic Violence Advisory Council
- President of the Kentucky Bar Foundation, a statewide charitable organization

And above all, as a Judge, I will treat your family with the kindness, dignity, and respect that I would want for my own family.

I respectfully ask for your vote on November 6th.

Willie's Back

A few nights ago, Kathy and I were watching one of the late-night shows when they announced that Willie Nelson was going to be a guest. We perked up because we both love Willie. As the show progressed, Willie was interviewed inside of his own tour bus, which he fondly named "Honeysuckle Rose."

Willie was on promoting his new album, My Way, which is a tribute to his friend Frank Sinatra. Willie explained that he and Frank had been close friends in addition to performing together several times over the years.

After the interview, Willie and his band sang a cut from his new album. The song, "Summer Wind," is one of Willie's favorites from his latest recording. His rendition of the classic pop hit was extremely smooth, and I suspect that Frank would approve.

My history with Willie goes back to my days at Mt. Vernon High School. During the early '60s, Willie had written several hits for some of the best country artists of that era. A few examples include: "Hello Walls" by Faron Young, "Night Life" by Ray Price, and my personal favorite, "Crazy," by Patsy Cline. During my senior year in high school (1962), Willie released his debut studio album called ... And Then I Wrote.

Over the following years,

I became a huge fan of Willie and purchased many of his albums. I believe that my all-time favorite was his 1978 release, Stardust. I purchased that CD and almost wore it out. I think I even lost the jewel box for it because it was always in one of my CD players.

Later that year, Kathy and I were able to attend Willie's concert at Rupp Arena in Lexington. I remember that we stood during the entire performance. Willie's guest that evening was Emmylou Harris, and we both love her, too.

So I guess you could say that Willie has played a significant role within my musical life experiences -- all the way from high school to the present days of my "golden" years.

I must say that it has been a nice ride over the years with Willie, whose years are even more golden than mine. Personally, I hope the man never stops playing or recording. He appears to be getting along pretty darn well for a fellow of 85 years. And he is certainly the most American artist of his time.

I am looking forward to savoring Willie's latest offering, 'cause neither one of us is getting any younger. And listening to him is always worth the time.

I need help...

Dear Editor,
My husband James was ill for a few years, he passed away last May 3, at home.

James was a Vietnam Vet, he loved his country and loved everyone. Before he passed away he was receiving V.A. benefits, he was 100% service connected [disabled]. I applied for survivor's benefits and they were going to be backed from May 10 and so on.

I was recently told that James file is in Louisville sitting on a desk waiting to be signed by a doctor and that this may take a long time to get this done. The DAV said that she did all she could do at this point. We were married for 51 years and paid our bills every month. I had to let a few things go back to be able to pay my bill since I get a small Soc. Sec. check. I am thankful for that but I am behind in a couple of bills. I need my car and phone and really don't want to lose either of those. I get 15 dollars monthly in food stamps because we own our trailer, that just isn't enough. After paying what bills I can on the third, I won't have enough for fuel in the car and food. I don't know where to turn.

If anyone has any advice or can help, you may write to me. I need help, I just don't know what to do. Thank you all and thank you Editor in this matter.

T.J.'s
Journal

By: Tonya J. Cook

Old Friends

Dear Journal,
When I grew up, it was in rural Laurel County. All you could see for miles around were ponds, pasture fields, gardens, various crops such as corn or tobacco, woods here and there, livestock and little roads, mostly dirt roads. These roads connected farm houses all over the community. All of these farms had barns and in certain seasons, hay. Every little community had things in common, like they all had a general store, a church or two and ours had a school with grades from one through eight and a small post office out of a private home. I often think about that little hamlet and going to school as a child. To recall going to school back then, was one of the happiest times in my life, although I didn't realize it. Isn't it funny how some-guarantee if he hadn't been impassioned, he would have been criticized by the Democrats for his lack of passion.

This isn't about Kavanaugh personally, it's about control of the ideology of the Supreme Court. Kavanaugh will be the fifth conservative on the court, although Chief Justice John Roberts, in my opinion, could better be described as a swing vote.

Anyway, it has been a scorched earth policy with the Democrats not caring that they are destroying a good man, from all reports, and his family.

"Aces"

tional forest and, during the ride, I let my mind wander to the scenario I just described.

While sitting on my horse, I was imagining how life must have been for the old cowboys and I basically was pretending to be one of them, until her voice brought me back to earth.

My horse's real name was "Henry." And the snake was really a little black snake. And the posse was really me, Dora, some other lady and a few kids. And the trail was actually well worn. And I didn't really have anything to do with what my horse did. He just knew the trail and carried me over it while I tried not to fall off.

Once, Henry stopped and turned his head and looked up at me. I could have sworn his eyes were saying, "You know I could kill you in less than three seconds don't you?"

So, I just held on tight and let Henry do whatever he wanted to do.

Apparently Henry had eaten a lot that day that didn't settle real well in his stomach. But I didn't mind. That part of him was well behind my saddle.

The ride was an awesome experience. I know I must not have looked nearly as tall in the saddle as Dora since she has a lot of horse experience, but I felt like John Wayne would have been proud.

The ride was absolutely gorgeous. I'm a huge outdoor fan and the trail took us over streams and up mountains and we could hear the falls off in the distance. When the ride was over and Henry and I parted ways, I'm certain he winked at me as I walked away. As if to say, "You are lucky punk. I let you live." But now, being the creature of habit that I am, I really want a horse. I was sore after that one-hour ride in a few places that I didn't know had muscles. But I am thinking that a person would get used to that and not be quite as sore after he built those muscles up.

I can't imaging the three-week cattle drives cowboys used to go on. My one hour ride wore me out. And I loved the thought of feeling at least a slightly similar experiences as those old cowboys must have felt.

By the end of the ride, I had figured out a few things about the horse. Pulling this thing makes him do that thing and that saddle horn is in a really dangerous place.

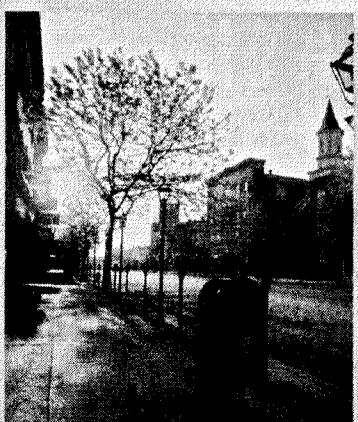

But I strongly recommend a trail ride if you visit the falls. It was one of the greatest experiences ever.

Yes, I let my imagination get a little carried away, but there's no law against that. It's a beautiful outdoor experience and they keep a very close eye on you. It was $18, but that may have been the best eighteen bucks I have spent in a while.

So now, I'm in the market for a horse and if I get one, I'm going to name him Silver.

Let's do first things first. If you are among the well over 100 readers who subscribed to the $5.00 tomato seed offer last month, please know that we will eventually get them to you but it's not apt to happen as soon as we had hoped. We had simply anticipated that 20 or so of you would want them. Now we are in over heads but we do know how to swim. I'll be saving seeds, much to Mr. Parkinson's dismay, until frost kills the vines. In fact, I just devoured 2 Giant Syrians in the process of getting about 100 of their seeds into a fermenting jar before starting this missive. You will get your seeds before Christmas. I'm still lining up help.

In the meantime, and in the interest of full disclosure, please be advised that the remainder of this column is simply my imagination on overload after recently studying a few dozen woolly worms in several locations near Berea, Richmond, Lancaster, Mount Vernon and Paint Lick. While the first paragraph, above, and the first sentence of this one are absolutely true, there are people who would call the following creativity, "fake news" and, if they took it seriously, they would be correct. Please switch off your serious button and find your salt shaker. You may need a grain or two.

I have recently been in touch with the National Association of Woolly Worm Winter Weather Watchers (NAWWWW). This week's column is devoted to their annual prediction for what's supposed to happen, weather-wise, between the first of December and the first of April, 2019. Sometimes they hit it on the nose and sometimes they don't. Don't blame me. I'm simply the messenger.

The members of NAWWWWW with whom I spoke were a rather sad, disgruntled and bedraggled lot who told me that I was lucky to be talking to any woolly worms at all. I was informed that the central Kentucky population has been decimated over the summer and that well over half had either drowned in their homes or been washed downstream to the Mississippi Delta if they were fortunate enough to find a piece of wood to float away on.

"Many of us were scalded to death after those times in July when it rained all night and the temperature hit nearly 100 the next day before we had time to dry out," one very scruffy old fellow said.

"Most of those of us who are left are looking for attics or high barn lofts in which to spend the winter because there's no let-up in sight for all this rain," another wet woolly in front of Paint Lick's Copperhead Consulting office complained. "Heck, I'd sleep with a snake if it would promise to keep me dry or give me a ride to high ground if we both got flooded out," he intoned.

"There's no such thing as a safe basement to sleep out this winter," said a woolly in the parking lot of Richmond's White House Clinics last Thursday evening. "If you don't drown you're apt to me suffocated to death by mold."

So that's the forecast for central and eastern Kentucky. Every woolly worm I have encountered says the coming winter will set records for wetness and most of it will be in the form of rain. It'll also be the mildest, temperature-wise, winter we've had in over 10 years. There will be a few snows but they will turn to mud within 24 hours unless you live on top of Pine or Big Black Mountains in Letcher and Harlan Counties where the snow may hang around for more extended lengths of time.

However, if that sounds dismal, fall down on your knees and thank The Lord that you don't live in Wind Gap, Pennsylvania where the wetness will also prevail but totally in the form of snow. The roads will be so deeply covered that they'll call in the Army Corps of Engineers to dig tunnels from The Wind Gap Diner out the entire length of Jacobsburg Road so that my pal, Fred Beste can get his daily fix of scrapple.

Once the tunnels are completed, folks like Fred won't have to worry about the roads being snow-plowed because they will be roofed over like igloos that extend for many miles.

I have no idea how they'll cope next spring when the weather warms up and all those tunnels start caving in. If I were Fred, I'd be seeing if I could get my scrapple home-delivered. Actually I would not be ordering scrapple to begin with. The janitor's socks boiled in week-old dishwasher tastes better than scrapple.

times you think life is so bad and nothing is exciting, happy and you don't see any hope in the future, only to realize in looking back it wasn't so bad at all, in fact, it was actually pretty good.

It was a time only spoken of now by those of us who can remember. It was a time of innocence, of honesty, respect, genuine concern for others, and a certain amount of love for everybody. Everybody for miles around knew each other and probably their dog. We didn't have to watch Mayberry because we lived it. Maybe that is why we like to watch it so much now, it is like going back home.

Only a few days ago I attended my fortieth year class reunion and I've known some of those kids over fifty years, making friends with them in that little community elementary school, but there are two friends I've known longer than those friends. We probably met when we were just babies and still in diapers about 1960 or 1961. It would be impossible to remember a time when we weren't friends.

These girls, twins, lived down that little dirt road about a quarter mile from me. We always had such a good time and oh, the fun we had. We didn't have a lot of toys in comparison to what kids have today. We often just made up our own games as well as the rules. In the summer we stayed outside for hours at a time. Our grandparents were living and they taught us games they played when they were young. This would be going back to 1900 and before. There was "Button, Button Whos Got the Button?" and fortune telling with a grand daddy longlegs. Then there were the songs. I know the words to songs popular a hundred years ago or longer. I'll sing right along if such a movie of that era is playing.

We never heard of an allowance. We just thought whatever we were asked to do should be done just because we were asked, never thinking we're supposed to be paid for it. But, we liked to have some money of our own, so we walked up and down that little dirt road looking for pop bottles to sell. We could get three cents each for them and I remember the day they were five cents each. Just think of the money we could make. When we gathered all we could find, we took them to that general store in our community in brown paper bags (pokes as most of people called them.) When we got there, the bottles were counted and then we could get all of the pop and candy we could carry. We had at least a dollar.

We would go to the pop cooler, a Coca-Cola cooler as best as I can remember, and get a pop. The cooler looked like a chest type freezer but had a sliding lid or just lifted straight up. That type was in stores but there was a different type out in public. Then, we would get the candy. It was grocer's mix, a variety of hard candy and other treats not even on the market now. There were BB Bats, jaw breakers, a coconut candy, lemon drops, gum drops and others. Its been too long to remember, now. You could get a nickle "poke", a dime "poke" or a quarter "poke". We usually got the dime "poke". We always got a bit of bubble gum as well. I loved the lemon cookies. They were big round cookies rather thin that looked like graham crackers but with a hard yellow frosting like a Pop Tart on top. They were a penny each and sold individually. Now, we didn't eat all of this at once, we spread it out over a few days and we knew, too, that there wouldn't be that many pop bottles again for a few days.

Walking back home we planned what to play next. Sometimes we just went to our hide out and talked of plans for the future. There were secret words used to get in or out of the hide-out. We usually talked about what we wanted to do when we grew up, how to make money on get rich quick schemes, travel and a thousand other things like planning our funerals. We couldn't have been more than seven or eight at the time. We liked to look through the big Sears and Roebuck catalogue and pick out things we liked and guess the color of the next car to come own the road.

I live in Mount Vernon now and they live in Somerset and we don't get to see each other very often. The cares of life have separated us and we go for months without talking or visiting, but when we do, it is like we saw each other the day before.

A few days ago one of the twins called in tears and very worried about her sister. She was in the hospital at Somerset in the ICU and things didn't look good. It took me by surprise. Now, I was upset and in tears, too. She also mentioned that several people were praying for her sister and would I pray as well? I believe in it or else I wouldn't be here with all of the cancer I've had.

The next day I went to the hospital expecting the worst but actually she was some better and able to talk. The prayers were working. She continued to get better by the day and is at home now. I was sure thinking for a minute that I was going to have to get that big bunch of purple flowers for her funeral. I can't remember where I put my glasses ten minutes ago, but I can remember a request from over fifty years ago.

It is good to have true friends, especially those who have endured the tests and trials of life with you and weathered the storms...old friends.

The above picture is of Johnetta School at present. The below picture is the building and property prior to June of this year.

Saving our history and memories

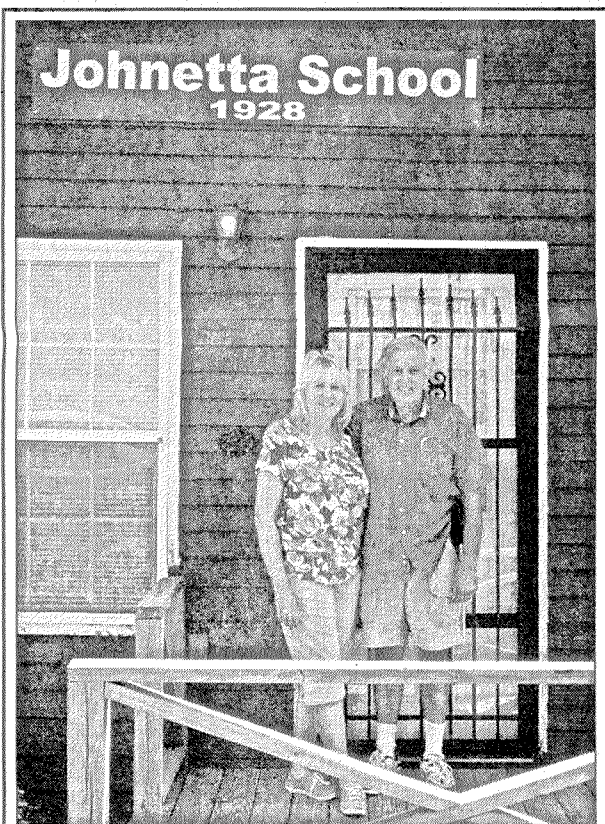

After seeing many one room schools in Rockcastle County torn down or decayed beyond repair, Ken and Carolyn Holt purchased the Johnetta School located at 3822 Climax Road, Orlando, in June of this year. The previous owners that had family members attend this school lived in Ohio and purchased the school in 2001. These previous owners made extensive repairs and it was used as a family gathering place until 2014. Due to sickness in 2014 the owners stopped using and maintaining the school and property.

The Holt's were seeing the school deteriorate each year. Carolyn had always heard stories about the school and knew many of the students that attended. Her father Roscoe Himes was one of the students. According to school records, the school started in 1928 and ended in 1974. Charlie Napier was the last teacher to teach at the school.

Many past students and others have visited the school during this years renovation. Carolyn is collecting and asking for information and pictures of the school and students during its active years. She would appreciate any old pictures of the school and students and willing to make picture copies and return the original back to the owner. The Holt's address is 4012 Climax Road, Orlando, KY 40460 or call 606-256-4475.

The Holt's said many people are encouraging them to make the school a Historical Bed and Breakfast. This would provide some income for future maintenance and other expenses. At present, no plans are made other than preserving the school for current and future generations.

Ken and Carolyn Holt purchased the Johnetta School in June of this year.

Plans are to collect more original era school items for the inside of Johnetta School.

Tiger Pause

Brodhead Elementary has been recognizing students that have displayed good character inside BES during the first weeks of school. Recommendations are made by staff to Mr. Derrick to award students with a certificate of character to call attention to those students that have gone over and beyond in making BES a better place to be and a better group to be around.

We will continue to look for our standout characters and their "Tiger Pride" traits – Thoughtful, Inclusive, Generous, Empathetic, Responsible – Polite, Respectful, Integrity, Doing your BEST, Enthusiastic. Brodhead Elementary Kindergarten students that received a character award during the month of September were: Zoey Martin, Reed Day, Kendra Waters, Airibella Taylor, Zac Moore, and Trevor Hancock.

Brodhead Elementary 4th grade recently had some very special guests come to visit. Our 4th graders just finished reading the book "Ellie's Story" about a dog that was trained to be a search and rescue dog. After finishing the book, Brodhead 4th grade invited Mr. Bill Leger with his dog Layla and Mr. Tony Bullock with his dog Hunter to come and speak to our students about search and rescue dogs. Our students had some thoughtful questions to ask our speakers and enjoyed getting to see Hunter and Layla actually go into the search mode. Students learned about how the dogs are trained and heard about some of the things that the dogs were able to do.

Brodhead will continue to operate on normal schedule on Thursday, October 4th. The high school and middle school will dismiss at 2:45. BES walkers will be dismissed at 3:00 and Parent Pick-ups will start shortly after. Our bus riders will be participating in bus drills and should be on schedule for home arrival.

There will be no school this Friday, October 5th and Monday, October 8th for fall break. Everyone have a restful four day weekend and we will see you on the Tuesday, October 9th. Save the date, Brodhead parent-teacher conference will take place on Thursday, October 25th.

New Berea College GEAR UP programs grants announced

Partners for Education at Berea College is the recipient of two new Gaining Early Awareness and Readiness for Undergraduate Programs (GEAR UP) grants that will help students in 19 Kentucky counties prepare for college and receive the support they need to achieve success in postsecondary education.

The U.S. Department of Education grants, worth a combined $109 million, will allow Partners for Education to work with a range of postsecondary institutions and key organizations to serve almost 20,000 students in 66 schools by offering a comprehensive set of programs – to parents, students and schools – that support a sustainable college-going culture. The array of services will be aligned to accomplish four overarching goals: lift educational aspirations, build academic skills, connect academics to college and career, and engage parents as partners.

The grants, referred to as GEAR UP: SOAR and GEAR UP: Opportunity, will build upon successes Partners for Education has had in the past braiding different research-based programs together, and will continue the work started by former GEAR UP grants at Berea College.

"We have provided GEAR UP services in Appalachia since the program's inception in 1999," Sara White, director of programs at Partners for Education, said. "During the past 19 years, we have invested in sustainable strategies and best practices proven to mitigate low graduation rates and college completion. "This past spring, high schools in our existing service region reported higher ACT scores and college-going rates for their senior classes," she added. "We look forward to continuing the work we've been doing for almost two decades in eastern Kentucky!"

GEAR UP: SOAR will serve Bell, Breathitt, Harlan, Perry, Knott and Whitley counties, and GEAR UP: Opportunity will serve Clay, Estill, Garrard, Jackson, Knox, Laurel, Lee, Leslie, Madison, Owsley, Powell, Pulaski and Rockcastle counties.

Students will receive services from multiple programs designed to assess and improve academic skills. Mentors will work directly with students to improve challenge areas and services will be tailored to address preparation gaps. Students will also build academic skills and confidence through the National Math Science Initiative's advanced placement training incentive program which uses the College Board's Advanced Placement curriculum and exam as a framework to provide students with materials to study and opportunities to practice for AP tests.

Programs like the Governors Commonwealth Institute for Parent Leadership (GCIPL) will engage parents and caretakers in their students' education. The programs create pathways for parents and caretakers to become more informed and involved in school, so they can be resourceful agents of change. Parents and caretakers also learn about college admission processes and how to apply for financial aid, so they can help guide their students.

"I'm excited to be involved with such a strong initiative that provides resources to our communities spanning southern and eastern Kentucky," Kristen Sutherland, associate director for GEAR UP at Partners for Education, said. "With federal funding and district in-kind commitments to match, we have a partnered investment each year to provide resources for families, communities and schools. Our funding is designed to increase high school graduation rates and to inspire continuing education as a lifelong pursuit."

Matthew Chasteen makes a tackle in the Rockets' loss Friday night. Head coach Scott Parkey said after the game that Chasteen had his best game of the year on defense. Chasteen picked up six tackles on the night with three of them for a loss. He also had 2.5 sacks. Jaden Payne and Zach Taylor also had six tackles on the night as well as one sack each. Also pictured is teammate Sam Philbeck who had four tackles and one sack.

Logan Brown makes a tackle in the Rockets' 40-6 loss to Wayne County Friday night. Brown had four tackles on the night for the Rockets. Head coach Scott Parkey said after the game, "We had several missed opportunities in the first half that hurt us. A couple of defensive turnover chances, missed key point of attack blocks on offense, and one guy out of his lane on a kickoff led to them getting and keeping momentum. To be successful, we have to be able to consistently make the routine plays through our fundamentals. We are improving, and honestly, it is at a very fast pace. We are seeing things being done consistently in practice now that we haven't all season long."

Senior Zach Baker put in another hard fought night on the offensive line during the Rockets' game with Wayne County Friday night. Coach Parkey said after the game, "Zach Baker has been consistently good on the O-line all year, while Blaine Rumsey is really coming into his own at right tackle." The Rockets will travel to Russell County this Friday night for a 7:30 p.m. kick-off.

mal amount of time has been spent recently on the filing of suits and injunctions against Eagle Manufacturing and its owners. However, now that the injunction is in effect and the locks have been changed, Vanhook and Craig agree that the board and fiscal court can aggressively seek others who may want to lease or purchase the building. “We are looking for the best possible fit for our community,” said VanHook. “Not just a big number of instant jobs to report. But a company with long-term goals that is community oriented and can be a part of Rockcastle County as we continue to grow.”

Craig agreed saying “we can approach new clients for that building that fit into our plans and once the I-75 ramps are complete we can better use a regional atmosphere to attract them.”

“We have spent so much time and effort dealing with the Eagle issues that it has held us up in some ways,” said VanHook. “Now we can get back to basics of promoting our community and moving forward.”

Craig said the new ramps are going exactly as expected and will provide major access to Rockcastle at a new level. Microfoodery reports being 80% complete. In fact, VanHook said production may start as early as November 16 at about the time the microfoodery road project is expected to be completed.

Full production is not expected until after the first of the year.

“Things are going as expected at Microfoodery. Maybe not on the timeline we had hoped, but the project is moving ahead very well,” said Craig.

Craig also mentioned a possible $1 million Community Development Block grant that the county will apply for once the Microfoodery project is complete but plans to apply for the grant cannot be complete until the plant environmental cost estimates are completed.

More information about the grant will be discussed once final cost estimates of the plant project are completed.

The Family Dollar store locating in Livingston is also moving along according to plan, according to RCIDA officials. Vanhook said the latest site plan for the building will rotate the building 90 degrees placing is sideways on the property but providing more parking.

He said the Family Dollar will use 1.25 acres of the county-owned lot leaving a little over 3 acres for future development. “We will be able to use their construction and site work to fill and level out our three acres making it ready for whatever we do with it,” said VanHook.

Extension Service County Programs Assessment Survey

The Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service (Extension) is the local outreach arm of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, Food and Environment and Kentucky State University College of Agriculture, Communities and the Environment. The goal of the Extension Service is to provide practical, research-based education that helps individuals, families and communities solve problems and improve lives. Extension provides value to communities through educational programs and information in areas like farming, gardening, parenting, budgeting, family health, youth, community and economic development.

The local Extension Service employees are interested in better understanding the issues that are important to you in your community. In response, Extension can tailor new and existing programs to address the highest priority issues that directly impact you, your family and your community. You do NOT need to be familiar with Cooperative Extension to complete this survey. The survey should take no more than 15 minutes to complete and all of your responses will be completely anonymous and confidential.

The Rockcastle County Extension Service is asking those with computers to fill out an online survey at www.bit.ly/KYExtension. Any other individuals who would like to fill out a survey may fill out a paper copy at the Extension office at 1050 West Main Street ~ Mt. Vernon, KY.

The board spent time discussing the possibilities that will be available once the new exit ramps into Mount Vernon are complete. “We are ready for the growth that is coming to that area of our community,” said VanHook. “We are currently promoting that area and it’s going to happen.”

Craig agreed that now that boat season is past and traffic will be less congested, changes to the area will happen fast. “In the next few months, we will see big things happen in that area. It’s about to take shape,” he said.

Members also discussed a conference that VanHook plans to attend on October 29 which will provide with many site selector and real estate prospects for Rockcastle County.

“This conference will be well worth the time and money,” said Craig. “We will be in contact with various commercial professionals that may prove very helpful to our community.”

The next regular meeting of the RCIDA is planned for November 5 at 11:30 on the third floor of the Rockcastle County Court House.

District” at a cost of $5,000 per month. This process is expected to last no more than four months.

According to VanHook, the purpose for the report, and the designation as a TIF District, is to prepare for expected growth in the county since officials believe Rockcastle County, and the cities within the county, are about to explode with growth in the next few years.

VanHook said the report analyzes the local tax base and then shows the tax base expected to come to the county after the growth. Once listed as a TIF District, the county is afforded countless programs that are not otherwise available.

One of the biggest changes, according to VanHook, would be the county’s ability to keep a portion of the sales tax collected in Rockcastle instead of sending it all to the State of Kentucky as is done now.

“We are one of the very first to try this,” said VanHook. “Some others have done it but not in this area.” This is because officials are expecting more growth in Rockcastle County than any other county in the area has experienced in many years.

VanHook said being a TIF District provides the county with programs that greatly increase local revenues without costing citizens more tax dollars.

Still, there is no guarantee Rockcastle will meet the requirements to be a TIF District. “It’s one of those things where you have to pay to play,” said VanHook. “You don’t really know how important the report is until you have the report done. But unless you have it done, you could be missing out on a tremendous amount of programs that can benefit our community greatly.”

VanHook talked about millions of dollars that the county could qualify for over the next ten years if it becomes a TIF District.

“We are just trying to stay ahead of the curve and make sure Rockcastle County gets everything we have coming,” said VanHook. “There are many programs that could keep our tax base right here in our county instead of sending local dollars out of town.”

According to Commonwealth Economics Feasibility and Impact Analysis webpage, the report includes an “overall assessment of the size and the scope of the proposed TIF Project, detailed assessment of each potential project element in direct relation to the governing statutes, and recommendations to refine the project in order to meet TIF qualifications.”

VanHook said the report will be presented at a public hearing once it is completed and hopefully the very complicated municipal issues can be addressed in a simpler language.

“Fire”

Livingston Fire Department also worked the scene keeping the flames from entering wooded areas or neighboring structures.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation. There were no injuries.

Then a few hours later, on Saturday morning, firefighters were called to another structure fire on Old Rocky Road.

Once again upon arrival, firemen found the home completely engulfed in flames. The Brodhead and Brindle Ridge Fire Departments also worked the scene.

Investigators are looking into the possibility that the two fires are related but do not know for sure at this time. Investigators are also looking into the cause of this fire which also completely destroyed the home.

Once again, no injuries were reported.

“Water”

Water Works in the Burr/1004 area. The advisory includes the Brush Creek area and has been issued due to a water main break in Mount Vernon.

Since Mount Vernon supplies the water for portions of Kentucky American Water and Western Water Association, many of those customers are included in the advisory as well.

Officials suggest checking with the City of Mount Vernon to see when the advisory is lifted but officials expect it to be lifted by the weekend.

A boil water advisory means customers should boil any water they intend to consume or cook with. This includes ice. Customers should turn their ice makers off until the boil water advisory is lifted.

is a “transition year” in scoring since the state is “moving towards a new accountability system during the 2018-19 school year.”

Fifty-one schools in Kentucky were listed as CSI schools and 418 were listed as TSI schools. All others received the “other” classification.

All three Rockcastle County elementary schools and the middle school received the classification of “other” which is the highest ranking available this year.

However RCHS received a classification of TSI which means “even though RCHS scored higher on all indicators than the cut scores set by the state, one set of student groups scored below cut scores and will be a focus for improvement,” said Mattingly.

Superintendent David Pensol agreed that local schools are performing as well or better than previous years but changes in assessment methods and means of reporting those assessments don’t always show those extraordinarily high achievements.

“Rockcastle County Schools will continue to place student’s learning and individual student needs as our top priority,” he said. “I am very proud of the hard work of our students and staff and the results we have received.”

Mattingly is currently delving into the details of the complicated new system and plans to provide a detailed report about the assessment results to the Rockcastle County School Board next Tuesday, October 9, during their regular monthly meeting.

Signal office will close at 12 noon on Friday, October 4th

Jerry Denny killed a nice 10 point buck Saturday, September 15th in Rockcastle County. “I just want to give God the glory for a good hunt.” Denny said.

Several County Farm Bureaus have used the "book barn" idea to promote Ag related topics. The purpose of the barn is to have a common area for the library's books on Agriculture and farm related topics to be placed. Along with the barn, we also had several Ag related books, including American Farm Bureau's book of the year, "John Deere, That's Who" to add to their collection. The first barn built was presented to Mt. Vernon Elementary School's library. The goal is to place one in each of the Elementary schools!

Large crowd celebrates Livingston School Reunion

A large crowd celebrated the annual Livingston School Reunion at the Preston Parrett Gym on Saturday night September 29. Larry Hammond emceed the evening program.

Billy Wayne Bryant conducted the ceremony to induct three high scoring basketball players into the LHS Basketball Hall of Fame for 2018. All three of this year's inductees are members of the 1,000 point club, each having scored more than 1000 points during their varsity career at Livingston. Walter Ballinger, class of 1959, was named to the all-district and all-region teams in 1959. He scored 1043 points during his career. Jerry McClure, class of 1964, was named all-district and all-region in 1964. He scored 1043 points at Livingston. Lonny Mink, class of 1969, was named to the all-district team in 1969. He scored 1583 points during his varsity career.

Coach Parrett's daughters, LaJoy Graves and Tanya Clark were present for the evening activities. Walter Ballinger and Jerry McClure participated in the ceremony. Lonny Mink was recognized posthumously. His daughter LaDonya, granddaughter Emmie, and widow Darlene McClure Worley attended the ceremony.

The 2018 Livingston

School Alumni Hall of Fame inductee A. Eugene Taylor was honored for his life and career achievements.

As the first son of, Arnel and Mary Clouse Taylor, Arnel Eugene was born in Cincinnati, Ohio. The family moved back to KY when Eugene was a small child. He and his two brothers, Ronnie and Gary, spent their early years in the Sand Hill area near Livingston.

Eugene began his schooling at the Victory School and transferred to Livingston School in the 5th grade.

Around the age of twelve Eugene's family moved to Livingston where his dad served as the Livingston Postmaster for several years.

He met his bride-to-be, Sarah Moore, while they were students at Livingston and they were married in 1960. After he completed his service in the U S Army, Eugene and Sarah moved to New Carlisle, Ohio. He began working for Brinkman Tool & Die.

After about 12 years in various tools shops Eugene obtained a job with General Motors where he retired after 22 years.

While working for GM, Eugene honed his metal working skills and began to build a machine shop business out of his garage.

In 1994, he and his two sons, Tim and Steve, established EST Tool and Machine Company (EST) in a small shop behind Eugene and Sarah's house.

In 1999, the entire Taylor family moved to Brodhead and relocated their business.

Born out of a hobby interest in hot rods and custom machine work, EST has grown to a business housed in 48,000 square feet with more than 50 employees.

EST Tool and Machine, Inc. provides tooling and machining for several industries including Aerospace, Automotive, Forging, Plastic, and Railroad. Eugene has partially retired from EST but is always available when son Steve calls for help with a special

My name is Melinda Gillum Dalton and I have spent 20 years preparing to be your next Family Court Judge.

I began practicing law in 1997, after clerking for one year on the Kentucky Supreme Court for former Chief Justice Joe Lambert at his office in Mt. Vernon. I then returned to Somerset to begin practicing law with my father – the late Judge Robert E. Gillum. From 1997 through today, my practice has exclusively been in the areas of Family Court – Juvenile Cases, Domestic Violence Cases, and Divorce. During that time, my Family Law practice has always been in Rockcastle, Lincoln, and Pulaski Counties.

I have practiced all three of these areas of the law with 3 different Rockcastle County Attorneys; 5 District Judges; 3 Family Court Judges, and 4 Circuit Court Judges. In each court and under all those Judges, I have constantly maintained a practice in Rockcastle County. I am the only candidate for this new Family Court position that can tell you that I have real experience in all three areas of Family Court in all three counties. If you select me as your next Family Court Judge, I am already familiar with the Courts and personnel in Rockcastle County because I have been here since day 1 of my career.

I am married to David L. Dalton, an assistant Commonwealth's Attorney in Rockcastle, Lincoln, and Pulaski Counties. Our 20 years of marriage has allowed me to be a working mother of 3 triplets, Samuel, Benjamin, and Elizabeth – age 14. I attend First Christian Church in Somerset, where my husband and I both work with the church youth programs. I also enjoy volunteering with the Science Hill School system in several areas – from basketball to the academic team.

I have experienced the joys of being a mother while maintaining a 3 county law practice. I daily apply the wisdom of my mother – the late Francie Gillum – a teacher with the Somerset School System. My mother believed that everyone – regardless of background or circumstance – was due respect and courtesy.

Rockcastle County deserves a Family Court Judge that has the right experience and a proven work ethic. I plan on making sure that everyone that passes through Family Court is treated with dignity and respect, while keeping the cases moving toward a timely and just resolution. In short, I will work hard, listen well, and act justly.

On November 6, I would be honored to have your vote for your next Family Court Judge.

Paid for by Committee to Elect Melinda Gillum Dalton

DO-AHEAD GARLIC MASHED POTATOES

You can make this up to four days before you want to use it. That leaves more free time to visit with family or friends. 9 medium-sized potatoes 6 cloves garlic Salt and pepper 3/4 cup milk 1/2 cup heavy cream 1/4 cup butter Peel potatoes and cut in pieces. Place potatoes and garlic in a large saucepan. Cover with cold water. Cover and heat to boiling; reduce heat to gently simmer for 20 to 25 minutes. Drain. Shake pan over low heat to dry. Using an electric mixer, mash potatoes and garlic until no lumps remain. In a small saucepan, heat milk, heavy cream, butter with salt and pepper over medium heat. Stir occasionally, until butter is melted. Set aside 1/4 cup milk mixture. Add remaining milk mixture to potatoes in small amounts until potatoes are light and fluffy. Amount of milk mixture needed depends on type of potatoes used. Grease a 2-quart casserole. Spoon potatoes into dish; cover and refrigerate up to 24 hours. When ready to bake, preheat oven to 350°. Pour reserved 1/4 cup milk mixture over potatoes. Bake uncovered for 40 to 45 minutes until hot. Stir potatoes before serving.

PARMESAN CAULIFLOWER 1 head of cauliflower 1/2 cup plain bread crumbs 1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese 1 tablespoon milk 1 egg 2 tablespoons butter, melted Preheat oven to 350°. Separate cauliflower in flowerets. Cook in salted water for about 7 minutes. (Can also be cooked in microwave in a covered dish with a little water added to dish.) It should still be slightly crunchy because it will cook more in the oven. Drain. Mix bread crumbs and parmesan in a plastic baggie. Beat egg with milk in a shallow bowl. Dip cauliflower in egg wash, then into baggie. Coat all pieces. Arrange in buttered casserole dish. Pour melted butter over cauliflower. Cover with foil. Bake for 10 minutes, and then remove foil. Bake for another 10 minutes.

Suicide candlelight vigil held at Rockcastle Regional Rockcastle Regional Hospital hosted its first suicide candlelight vigil to remember those lost to suicide, offer support to those who are grieving, and give hope to those who are struggling.

Rockcastle Regional Chaplain Luther Allen led the vigil by lighting four central candles representing grief for those lives lost, courage for those left behind, in memory of the times shared, and love to share with family and friends. The flame was then passed around the group as a symbol of solidarity and a sense of hope and support to spread throughout the community.

Judge Debra Lambert also led a discussion on suicide awareness and prevention. As a QPR Institute Certified Instructor, Lambert encouraged the group that anyone can help prevent suicide. "It's important to be able to recognize the warning signs of suicide and be courageous enough to start a conversation with those we love who we feel might be at risk."

QPR stands for Question, Persuade, and Refer - the three simple steps anyone can learn to help save a life from suicide. During QPR training, a person will learn how to become a gatekeeper.

A gatekeeper is a person in a position to recognize a crisis and the warning signs that someone may be contemplating suicide.

Just as people trained in CPR and the Heimlich Maneuver help save thousands of lives each year, people trained in QPR to become gatekeepers learn how to recognize the warning signs of a suicide crisis and how to question, persuade, and refer someone to help.

Gatekeepers can be anyone, but include parents, friends, neighbors, teachers, ministers, coworkers, and many others who are strategically positioned to recognize and refer someone at risk of suicide.

"The ability to recognize the early signs of suicide is vital in reducing the risk of a person taking their own life," said Lambert. "For those contemplating suicide, they may feel alone and overcome with a feeling of hopelessness. When someone who has noticed the warning signs of suicide begins to ask them questions, oftentimes, that person will feel a sense of relief that someone has noticed and wants to help."

Lambert reminded the group that asking questions from a person who is not at risk for suicide is not going to cause them to become suicidal. "Never be afraid to ask questions from someone you feel may be at risk for suicide."

The training to become a QPR gatekeeper is simple, straightforward, and only take about an hour. During the training, a gatekeeper will learn to recognize the warning signs of suicide, know how to offer hope, and know how to get help and save a life.

"The gatekeeper training equips people with the training to recognize those early signs as well as the confidence to begin a conversation with them through the question, persuade, and refer model," said Lambert.

Lambert will be offering a free and open to the community QPR gatekeeper training class at Rockcastle Regional Hospital on Monday, Dec. 10 at 5:30 PM in the Education Center on the third floor of the Outpatient Services Building. Those wishing to attend, may contact Jana Bray at 256-7880 or j.bray@rhrcc.org to RSVP.

If you are having suicidal thoughts or are worried that someone you know might be suicidal, contact the Suicide Prevention Lifeline, 1-800-273-TALK (8255).

How Shall We Escape So Great Salvation

2 Peter 2:4-6—For if God spared not the angels that sinned but cast them down to hell and delivered them into chains of darkness to be reserved for judgment. If the angels cannot escape the judgment of God, can we? Many today must think they can or they think there is going to be no judgment, because sin continues to grow worse and worse in this country. A nation that claims to be a Christian nation. Folks what has happened to us when we no longer fear God or respect His word, our creator, the one who giveth life and sustaineth life. The Bible tells us clearly in Hebrew 9:27—It is appointed unto man once to die then cometh the judgment.

Neglect is a big factor in the downfall of the moral of this country, neglecting to pray, to read our Bibles and to study our Bibles. A lot of people read the Bible but very few take the time to actually study it.

2 Peter 1:10—To give all diligence to make your calling an election sure. That is why we must continue to work and pray and be busy every day in the vineyard of the Lord. The way we can do this we find in Matthew 6:33—To seek the Kingdom of God first, when we do this people are to see a change in our lives for the better and they should, if we are Christians. We need to ask ourselves are we seeking the Kingdom of God first when we regularly miss church on the Lord's day, to go shopping or fishing or hunting or a nature walk, those things are wonderful, but nothing is as great as being with brothers and sisters and worshipping Jesus Christ in spirit and in truth.

The apostle Paul writes in Phil. 3:7-8—But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Jesus Christ. For whom I have suffered loss of all things and do count them but dung, that I may win Christ. The apostle Paul had lost all the material blessings in this life several times, but he said they are worthless or useless, his salvation was the important thing he had, and he was not giving it up. How would you feel if you lost your home, your job, would you feel like your world just stopped? That is the way most people would feel today. Because in society today, we have so much, and it comes so easy, we can take God for granted. 1 Tim. 6:10—For the love of money is the root of all evil. Let us be careful what we love.

Yards to Paradise

By Max Phelps
MOLES: How Deal With Them In The Yard?

If you have a mole problem, then "congratulations" since you likely have healthy, rich soil which is supporting all sorts of life down below the surface. And the moles have shown up for the delicacies spread out like food on a buffet bar.

While moles don't tend to hurt too much, they can sure make the yard lumpy. And they may disturb grass roots and this result in some brown spots in the yard when dry weather and hot sun comes along.

Big fat grubs and luscious earthworms are mostly what the moles are after if they are tunneling in your yard. This is a sign of rich organic topsoil which supports abundant life just below the surface.

Moles are carnivores—this means they don't eat your tulip bulbs—blame that on voles, mice, squirrels and chipmunks.

In fact, moles can be good for a yard, especially for established trees. Their rooting around aerates the soil naturally. (You won't need the lawn guy with the aerator.) And if your neighbor has moles but they never venture onto your property, then you're either putting something on your lawn that kills the grubs and worms, or your dirt is so sorry that the moles aren't interested in the effort they'd have to put out to get a measly lunch in your yard!

Let's get to the point. If you have moles you may likely be wanting rid of them.

How do you do that?

The most sure way is probably to trap them with a trap that will be set out over one of their main tunnels, and spring loaded. When the mole comes down the tunnel where the trap is set, sharp metal spikes are sprung, and that mole isn't going to bother you again.

Poison "peanuts" are another way to kill the moles. Poke a hole into their tunnel, and put some of this poison into the hole, then cover or compress the hole with our foot. When the mole eats the 'treat', it will get ill and probably die.

Castor oil is a natural solution. It will chase moles away from the area that has been sprayed with castor oil, or where it's been spread in granular form. This is like using Preen to control weeds, you have to keep on doing it every 3 months or they are likely to return with a vengeance. The castor bean can also be grown in the landscape and flower beds, and moles will leave the immediate area of the castor bean plants.

Other solutions might include "wack-a-mole" where you see them actively pushing up soil and take a shovel or blunt object and "whack" them. A good yard dog can sometimes be taught, or even have the natural instinct, to go digging into the mole tunnel and get the critter and kill it. Sometimes they will bring the "bounty" to your feet or doorstep. (Looking for a little affection and praise.) You could also apply pesticides to the yard so nothing lives, and the moles will find nothing to eat at your place.

Some folks seem to be able to live alongside of moles without major issues, but hopefully these solutions will be useful if you want to deal with the moles in your yard or garden.

KU is also proposing changes to the rates for other customer classes. These customer classes and the changes in their associated annual revenue changes are listed in the tables shown below. KU is also proposing changes in the text of some of its rate schedules and other tariff provisions, including substantive changes in its terms and conditions for electric service and miscellaneous charges. KU's proposed rates reflect a proposed annual increase in electric revenues of approximately 7.11%.

The estimated amount of the annual change and the average monthly bill to which the proposed electric rates will apply for each electric customer class are as follows:

Electric Rate Class	Average Usage (kWh)	Annual $ Increase	Annual % Increase	Monthly Bill $ Increase	Monthly Bill % Increase
Residential	1,139	50,433,651	8.10	9.63	8.10

The monthly residential electric bill increase due to the proposed electric base rates will be 8.1 percent, or approximately $9.63, for a customer using 1,139 kWh of electricity (the average monthly consumption of a KU residential customer). KU is proposing to withdraw Adjustment Clause TCJA from service and cancelling the associated billing credits effective when new base rates change. When the TCJA Surcredit is cancelled when new base rates take effect, the total monthly residential electric bill increase will be 11.7%, or approximately $13.47, for a customer using 1,139 kWh of electricity.

KU is proposing numerous revisions to the rates, terms and conditions for service under Pole and Structure Attachment Charges - Rate PSA, including expanding the availability of the schedule to internal communication network facilities of governmental units and educational institutions. If approved, the rates terms and conditions for attaching communication network facilities of such governmental units and educational institutions will be subject to Rate Schedule PSA.
