COVID Update

The Rockcastle County COVID incident rate stood at 66 on Monday. In a surprising turn, though incidents continue to drop, deaths continue to rise suggesting the recent variant is more deadly than the original according to the Cumberland Valley District Health Department. There have been 23 confirmed and 36 probable new cases reported with two additional deaths in the past seven days here. Rockcastle County deaths this week include a 22 year-old female and a 66 year-old male bringing the total to 31 COVID-related deaths in the county.

Fiscal Court meeting

The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday, October 12 at 4 p.m. See next week's issue of the Mount Vernon Signal for details.

City council meeting

The regular monthly Mount Vernon City Council meeting is Thursday, October 21 at 6 p.m. at city hall. The public is invited to attend.

School Board

The regular monthly meeting of the Rockcastle County Board of Education was held Tuesday, October 12. See next week's issue of the Mount Vernon Signal for details.

Irvin attorney waives recent pretrial hearing

An attorney for 52-year-old James D. Irvin, of Brodhead, waived a pretrial hearing last Wednesday, according to County Attorney Jeremy Rowe.

The rape/sodomy case will now go to the grand jury and Irvin will remain in custody on a $250,000 bond awaiting a grand jury indictment.

The case now leaves the county attorney's office and will be handled by the commonwealth attorney's office. Once indicted, a new bond may be set for Irvin, but the court has 60 days to indict him.

Irvin was charged with rape and sodomy last month after a minor girl reported sexual contact to her school counselor.

Fire departments have busy week

As usual, local fire departments have been busy in the past week. Shown above, the Mount Vernon Fire Department was called to a tractor/trailer fire on I-75 northbound Friday. The call came while firefighters were dealing with a residential fire on Davis Street. No injuries were reported at either fire and the Brodhead Fire Department and Rockcastle County Sheriff's office assisted at the scene. Thoroughtruck cleaned up the site. Shown below, another structure fire on Marler Hollow Road caused Livingston firefighters to fight the blaze until it was extinguished. No injuries were reported. The Pongo Fire Department, Brodhead Fire Department and Mount Vernon Fire Department assisted at the scene.

Livingston considering sale of their water/sewer system

The regular monthly meeting of the Livingston City Commission was held Monday night and it was well attended -- so well attended that the meeting had to be moved from the city's office to the old Livingston School cafeteria.

The first item of business was the resignation of City Commissioner Melissa Hahn who, it was recently learned, was not eligible to serve on the commission.

Ms. Hahn read her resignation to the council and it follows:

"Before I became a City Commissioner, I spoke to many people, all of whom I told I was on Pretrial Diversion and that I was the Mayor's daughter. I spoke to the Governor's Office, Chris Johnson of the League of Cities, Diana Gilbert at the Rockcastle County Clerk's office and my probation officer. I did not keep my past a secret. I answered all of their questions openly and honestly. Each one told me that I was qualified to be a Livingston City Commissioner. I received a police report from the Governor's Office saying I am on Pretrial Diversion. It does not say that I am a convicted felon. I received a letter from the Rockcastle County Courthouse stating that my voting rights were intact as of July 2, 2021 and that I have been a legal voter since 2014.

I have been proud to serve the City of Livingston even if for a short time. However, I am resigning my Commission effective immediately."

Hahn went on to say

A preliminary hearing for Derrick Mullins, 39, of Mount Vernon, was held Wednesday, October 6 on charges of attempted murder and wanton endangerment. Assistant County Attorney William Leger, had Kentucky State Police Trooper Richie Baxter give testimony in the case before District Judge Scott Lawless.

The judge found probable cause to hold Mullins for the charges. He will be held on tion of the Rockcastle County Middle School and add the construction of a new middle school building instead.

Talk among school board members has centered around the choice between renovation and a new facility for months but the decision has been made to place the construction of a new school building on the facilities plan. However, there are still board meetings and a public hearing planned before final approval.

Sarah Lamere, with Ross Tarrant Architects, informed the room full of committee members of the plan to add a new middle school facility and explained the beginning processes. Lamere said the new

Ethics board finds commissioners did not break nepotism rules

By: Mike French
Editor

Events, similar to a soap opera script, have surrounded the City of Livingston for several months with accusations of nepotism and unlawful actions almost weekly. In the center of the controversy were Livingston

City Commissioner Melissa Hahn and her father Mayor Dwane King.

Hahn is no stranger to trouble and for the past several months such controversy and public discontentment has followed her into the city government of Livingston.

However, it was found this week, by the Cumberland Valley Area Development District's Ethics Board, that the City Commission and Mayor of Livingston had not broken their nepotism ordinance or ethics commitments. "Everyone needs to know that these accusations were false and my dad and the city commissioners did nothing wrong," said Hahn.

When Livingston Mayor Jason Medley and his City Clerk and other city officials resigned their posts last year, all at the same time, Livingston resident Dwane King was appointed the new mayor, bringing some opposition from the beginning. Partly due to his age (nearing 80 years old) and other residents who had hoped for the seat, King was surrounded with opposition from his first day.

However, over the next few months King could be seen throughout the town carrying garbage bags or sweeping sidewalks and even cleaning windows or painting. While King's work ethics were bringing him

In case you haven't noticed the slings and arrows have been coming at me pretty hard recently for my presumed anti-vaccination stand against the Covid-19 vaccine.

That's fine, I am big, old girl and can take it. The old part even makes it easier because as I've gotten older I have decided that I would always mean what I say and say what I mean. If anyone doesn't like it then the choice is obvious, you don't read this column.

To clear up a point about my stand on the vaccine, I am not anti-vax per se. All seven of my children received every vaccine known to man at the time they were supposed to. I am anti-mandated vaccine of a vaccine that obviously doesn't work if those vaccinated have to be protected from those of us unvaccinated. If readers have misinterpreted my stand, I hope that helps but if it doesn't so be it.

I had COVID in February of this year. I am in the most dangerous age group, I had pneumonia with it and I have COPD which is supposed to be a death sentence with this disease. I spent four days in the hospital at Somerset and then it took me two+ weeks to be able to, by myself, negotiate the two steps from my garage to the utility room in my house. But, I did and now have immunity at least as long as with a vaccine and, according to some doctors, seven times, or more, longer.

I was delighted to see this week end Southwest Airline pilots taking a stand against their employer's mandated vaccination. A mandate that has no paper trail of authority, not even an Executive Order from Biden (and we know how he loves those) and no authority for the mandate has ever been established by OSHA, the federal agency designated as the whipping boy for carrying out the illegal mandate.

OSHA claims authority to do this under the authority of a rule granted the agency by the OSHA Act of the 1970's called an emergency temporary standard or ETS. This rule was made to be used in times of duress to protect employees from

I guess it is true after all. We old, white, married Christian, Republicans are simply out of style anymore.

According to the younger, "everything is acceptable" generation, and the left wingers who cater to them for votes, we older patriots are just too old fashioned to deserve a voice. The new "the world owes me" generation, who believes there should be no consequences for one's choices, are convinced us old folks, who actually have life experience, have no idea how things should be done.

This group of liberals, who claim no one should judge others and everyone should be free to identify as anything they want and no one is responsible for their own actions, have picked out some exceptions to those standards. If you are male, then you are sexist. If you are white then you are racist. If you are Christian then you are closed-minded. If you are older, then you are old fashioned. If you simply love America, you are a racist, old, closed minded and sexist.

It is pretty obvious to most of us that the Democrat party has become the anti-Christian party. They even cry "Boo" at the idea of mentioning God's name in their party's platform. They fight the Ten Commandments in schools and federal buildings, they fight nativity scenes, they support murdering babies to birth, they don't support hard work and they spend till the country is broke then cry about credit limits. It's pretty clear. If it is against the Bible, or the Constitution, liberals are for it.

The Finest Sorghum

A few weeks ago, I wrote a column about my love of molasses, and I said at the time, that I would be looking for new sorghum in the area. To my surprise, I learned that the Dyer family (Laura and Sid), at the Farmer's Market in Mt. Sterling, made molasses on their farm in Sharpsburg.

Sid told me to try a jar of his molasses and see how they compared to the others that I had tried. The next morning, I poured some of his molasses into a saucer over a chunk of butter. I whipped the mixture into a paste and carefully placed it on an English muffin. Oh, my goodness, was I surprised. Sid's sorghum was the best I have ever tasted! I decided to go back and purchase more for the coming winter months.

When I asked Sid what his secret was, he told me the following: "I only boil my cane sugar once." He explained his process to me. "It is important how you handle your cane. After I strip and cut the heads off the cane, I let it lay about five days. Then it is squeezed and I cook the sugar very slow." Whatever he does, the final product is wonderful.

[If you would like to contact the Dyer family, their address is: 277 Lower Sharpsburg Road, Sharpsburg, KY 40374]

As a young man living with my grandparents (Pop and Mommie Katie) in Mt. Vernon, sorghum molasses was a normal staple found on the table for almost every meal. It was Pop's request that the sweet condiment be available every time we had homemade biscuits. And we had homemade biscuits a lot.

I can see him now as he prepared his favorite biscuit topping. He always began with a small saucer and fresh butter to start his formulation. Into the saucer he placed a large hunk of butter; then he covered it with molasses. He proceeded by taking his fork and

Dumped Like Unwanted Trash

Dear Journal,

Since August Stanley and I have been on a project. It started when we had been notified that there were two stray dogs in a certain area that needed help. We drove to that area and yes, there they were. As it turned out there was another lady, Tina, feeding them as well. She lived in London, but was coming over to Rockcastle to care for these dogs. We told her that we lived here and could help. We took three and four day shifts in feeding and watering these dogs. They were obviously unwanted or loved any longer and thrown out like two

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bit puzzled...

Dear Editor,

In last week's edition of the Signal in your comments to Mrs. Deloris Reppert Morris' letter to the ED, your comments left me a bit puzzled. If you are campaigning for no vaccinations then your words about illegals being bussed to the interior of the US makes no sense. You are mixing shots and Americans from South of the border. If "they" need to be part of the mandate then you support vaccinations if not then I am confused. I believe lil ol me has the solution anyway. Stop the mandates and the publicity, just announce the places where shots are being given. Then everyone who is a nonvax can just stand there with their finger in their ear. They will not be able to stand the ignoring and will stampede to get a shot yelling "THEY are trying to kill me give me a dose". Ain't life fun? Well Vaccinated

Don Jones

Mt. Vernon, where the water still tastes bad, KY

I'm sorry, calls for another Ed's Note: The only reason I said what I did about illegals not falling under the vax mandate is, until they do, the government has no standing to mandate that I, a legal citizen, be vaxed. “grave danger from exposure to substances or agents determined to be toxic or physically harmful or from new hazards.” You know, like chemical spills or chemical factory explosions or oil spills or, now, a disease with an over 99% survival rate up to middle age.

Of course, Southwest and the pilot's union both denied the sick out (one explanation has it that the December 8th mandate for the vaccine is causing pilots to take their built up annual and sick leave before the mandate deadline kicks in and they quit).

The most embarrassing part of the whole weekend for Southwest (2,000+ flights cancelled) was that they, with the usual arrogance of a big right leaning corporation, explained that the cancellations/delays were caused by “bad weather and ATC (air traffic control) issues” which translates to the fact that only three of 36 air traffic controllers at the Jacksonville Center showed up to work this weekend, pilots called in “sick” and teams to cover were not available.

But then, you've got the hundreds (thousands?) of stranded travelers sitting in airports in Florida watching United, Delta, American Airlines, etc. take off despite the “bad weather and ATC issues” which obviously only affected Southwest flights and which Southwest thought was an adequate excuse for the stupid public.

Son Travis, returning with his family from a Florida Fall break vacation was caught up in it. He had to change to Allegiant out of Sanford, fly to Evansville, IN, then drive to Lexington (where they live), then to Cincy to get their car. They left son's, Alec's, suitcase at the Enterprise garage in Evansville. Travis's in-laws drove up to get that Sunday night. And, worst of all, for a teenage boy, they left Alec's AirPods in the rental car.

There's also the fact that Moderna and J&J are still being used under Emergency Use Authorization since Pfizer BioNTech Covid-19 vaccine is now approved by the FDA for persons ages over 16. It is being marketed as Comirnaty and the FDA admits that they still do not know how long a duration of protection the vaccine will provide. And, they do not know, they say, if Comirnaty will reduce the transmission of the virus that causes the disease.

I'm not going to quit resisting this mandate. There is now data on the long term effects of the vaccines and, even at my advanced age, I want something else to take me out besides something that I purposefully injected into my body (or by my commercial plane crashing because the pilot got a blood clot from the vaccine and collapsed at the controls).

There are a great many more things to be outraged about with this administration. For example, there is our Attorney General Merrick Garland who recently issued a memo directing the FBI to investigate parents as domestic terror threats for what he claims is a “disturbing spike in harassment, intimidation and threats of violence” against school boards.

The New York Post calls the memo a “shocking abuse of his office on behalf of left-wing activists who have been using schools as brain-washing factories for future social justice warriors. It was designed to intimidate parents and stop them advocating for their children.”

The “advocating” is against teachers teaching Critical Race Theory which, as best as I can determine casts black children as “victims” of white children who are “oppressors.” And, of course, some of the textbooks that are being used to teach children about different “genders” while also explaining graphic sex to them (at the kindergarten level, in some cases).

Garland's memo comes five days after the National School Boards Association wrote an inflammatory letter to Biden accusing parents of a “form of domestic terrorism and hate crimes.”

The NSBA demanded urgent action against parents by the DOJ, the FBI, the Secret Service and the Department of Homeland Security and suggested utilizing the “Patriot Act in regards to domestic terrorism.”

Actually AG Garland should recuse himself from this matter at all since his son-in-law's company is peddling curriculum for CRT and recently signed a $1M+ contract with a California school for the program.

And the beat goes on, right?

once referred to people like me as “those deplorable people who cling to their Bibles and their guns.” They were actually saying that is a bad thing. Personally I thought it was the world's greatest compliment.

If there is anything another person could ever say about me, to make me proud and pleased with my reputation, it would be to claim Mike French clings to his Bible and his guns. Yes I do!

If there is anything I want to be it is a Christian, who believes the Bible, AND a patriot, who believes in the Constitution Heck yeah, I cling to them. You're welcome.

But, in general, some of the new breed of kids feel like all the work I have done in my life, and taxes I have paid, should help support them so that they don't have to work like I did. Many of them even believe that the two jobs I worked to pay my way in college should mean their college is free. And there are some who think that because I got up at 5 a.m., scraped my windshield and drove to work every day for 40 years, whether I was sick or not, that means they should be able to lie in bed all day and use my taxes to support that lifestyle. The problem is, many Democrats support their ideas.

I don't. But in this new “feel sorry for me” world, where so many believe it is okay to burn buildings and steal what they want as long as they can claim they had a difficult childhood, we old fellows, with work ethics, just don't fit in anymore.

We still believe a person should earn what they have or do without. We believe there is nothing wrong with being lazy, as long as you are willing to do without food and shelter. We believe killing innocent babies is a sin. We believe a man born with man parts is, and will always be a man, and all the operations and girly-actions on earth won't change that. We believe in marriage before relations. We believe it takes a good man with a gun to stop a bad man with a gun and that bad men will ALWAYS have guns no matter how hard Nancy Pelosi whines. We believe no race of people owes any other race anything. We believe every law should apply to all people equally, including elected politicians and their families. We believe you have a wonderful child who deserves the world, but that your child too may not come in first place every time. We believe a cop who arrests a dangerous common street thug is a hero instead of a criminal and no liquor store-robbing Fentanyl addict should have a statue. We believe soldiers and veterans are American heroes and should be honored and respected. We believe the American Flag should be respected and all who are present, when it is honored, should stand at attention or be thrown out the hard way. We believe every person who took part in the riots and looting in the summer of 2020 should be in prison. We believe a President, who orders the military to abandon civilians, should be in the same cell as the rioting thugs.

So yes, I guess we are not needed anymore. Clearly our leaders in Washington do not agree with any of these things that about 140,000,000 of us believe. So don't worry. We old, white men will be gone soon and America will be rid of us Bible-toting gun packers. Still, I can't help but wonder if the liberals know that, before we go, we are making sure our kids love the Bible and guns both.

plies to those wanting to kill babies in the womb until birth -- not to people who don't want any drug forcibly injected into their body. I have also had and recovered from COVID, and am in the most dangerous range for the infection (only over 95% survival rate).

Be well and be safe...

Dear Editor,
Thank you for taking my call today regarding

Britt Jeffries, the young man who contracted covid in Florida. Britt is the grand nephew of my wife, who married the granddaughter of my brother-in-law. All of us were amazed at the speed with which this disease put the young man in a specialized life support unit. Within almost a day or two after admission Britt had to be transferred to a major medical facility and put on a life support system, typically used for open heart/lung surgery. He is in his early thirties and has been married for about 10 years.

As your newspaper has reported, our local hospital has been overwhelmed with covid patients. There was a touching piece with comments from staff venting their frustration, fatigue, and depression with the caseload here at Rockcastle Hospital.

Britt's situation has brought this disease closer to home for our family. We would hope and urge that you would exercise care in getting accurate information to your readers here. Unfortunately, our government health agencies have made things more confusing, with conflicting directives. The polarization of our electorate, and governance, has at times, reminded me of a car going at high speed down I-75 with two drivers fighting for control of the wheel. As the words in a song from the 1960's go:

Nobody's right if everybody's wrong - Buffalo Springfield - 'For What It's Worth' - 1967

There's a saying in engineering: In God we trust - all others must bring data! The numbers of unvaccinated patients filling our hospitals speak for themselves.

Be well and be safe!

mixing the two ingredients until they were thoroughly blended into a yellow jelly-like consistency. This concoction was then carefully layered on top of a hot biscuit and devoured by my grandfather. I am certain that it was his favorite morning treat. This is where I learned to prepare my molasses.

Pop had a friend in the neighborhood who owned a team of mules. Pop had this gentleman turn his garden each year, and they became friends. On several occasions, Pop took me with him to watch his friend make sorghum molasses. As anyone can imagine, I was thoroughly impressed with the process.

After Pop and I watched the molasses-making process, we always took several jars of the sweet, brown liquid home with us. I can never remember being without sorghum in our pantry. It truly was a staple in our home. Mommie Katie and Pop both loved the taste of “lasses” for breakfast, and, on occasion, at other meals.

I guess I will have to make biscuits tomorrow.

pieces of unwanted trash. They had lost their social skills and were daily going back to being wild. There is no telling how long they had been there. They had lost faith in people, and I do too quite often, but that is another story. We couldn't even get within several feet of the dogs. Evidently, they had been dumped separately and formed a friendship out in the wild. One had on a collar and the other one didn't, so they probably came from separate homes. In any case, they have a powerful bond now.

As the days turned into weeks and the weeks turned into months the dogs became more trusting of us. Stanley started calling them “Thelma and Louise” from a movie by the same title that came out a few years ago. I haven't seen it, but I think I'll watch it when I get a chance. There was also a woman by the name of Connie from London that had a cabin not far from where the dogs had been dumped that lured them to a cabin by feeding them hot dogs every few feet. Now at least they had a little more secure place and shelter by staying on the porch. She started caring for the dogs, too. Soon, a girl by the name of Angel started coming from London to help. Now, we had five in our little group.

We were becoming concerned as the weather will soon be getting cold and snow can't be too far away. By now, Louise has become pregnant, or “with pup”, as I say. Friday night we decided that those dogs needed to be caught...now. Connie, Stanley and I, with help from our friend, Tam, went to the cabin for that exact purpose. Connie and Stanley caught the little brown dog, Louise. Thelma refused to be caught so we had to let Louise loose, as they must stay together. We had to leave both of them. Well, all for another day...very soon. Saturday evening came along and it was our turn to see about the “the girls”. We got there and all seemed fine but tragedy had befallen one of the girls.

Poor Thelma had been hit by a car. Her front right leg was broken and swollen. It had happened within the past twenty-four hours. Thelma couldn't walk. Stanley helped her to the car and lifted her into the back. Thankfully, Dr. Chism agreed to see her at his office, so we took her straight there. He put a splint on her leg, gave her some medicine, and kept her at the office.

I cried almost all of the way to the office over Thelma and having to leave poor Louise behind. I didn't know if Louise could even stay by herself without running away or just what could happen to her. Stanley called Connie and she came from Wolfe County where she had gone for the weekend to help get Louise and thankfully she was successful. With Thelma in the hospital, so to speak, we could focus on Louise. We met Connie at the cabin and got Louise, and then it was on to the London Walmart for a crate. So, Louise is here in the living room with food and water waiting to deliver in a few days.

I've often wondered why some people take their pets way out in the middle of nowhere or anywhere else to throw them out like a piece of trash. I believe that this is one of the sorriest most low-down inhumane things anyone could do. Is it because it is against the law, KRS 525.130? Could it be because they are ashamed of what they are doing? Maybe it is because they don't want this loyal being to find its way back to them. Who is the true piece of trash? Do they not realize that there are shelters for their unwanted pets? Of course, they will probably only be put to sleep because of overcrowding, which I hate. Why not be responsible and get your pet spayed or neutered? Yes, I am aware it costs money but don't people have money for other frivolous things they want, like cigarettes, tattoos, and lottery tickets? It is a matter of priority.

The act of just dumping your pet is such a cruel thing. They don't understand where they are or why they have been done like this. They are without food or water in a dangerous place, usually. A cat is almost impossible to catch. We saw a yellow cat in caring for the girls, but we never could catch it. The coyotes probably did, though. Why should the former owners worry? The cat is gone, right?

The rescue job is never easy. It is done out of love and concern for animals. Many thankless hours are spent feeding and catching the animals, money for food, medical expenses, miscellaneous items come from out-of-pocket, not to mention time that could be spent doing a great many other things. And there is the stress of it. It all is a terrible burden to put on such a few people willing to do rescue. We could really use some help. We are considering forming a rescue for Laurel and Rockcastle Counties. Half of our group lives in Laurel already. Your help is needed and very much appreciated if you would. Please contact me if interested.

RCHS to celebrate 50th Homecoming

RCHS will celebrate their 50th Football Homecoming this Friday night at halftime of the Rockets game vs McCreary Central.

Several events are planned for the night including a recognition of the first RCHS football team and the Football Hall of Fame Induction ceremony, both of which take place prior to kick-off.

There will also be a student tailgate and cook-out, as well as an RCHS Alumni Welcome Center with a gift for all returning RCHS graduates who stop by. A recognition of past football Homecoming Queens 1972-2020 will also take place.

The RCHS Cheerleaders will be hosting a reunion and former cheerleaders will be joining the current team on the sidelines during the game.

The RCHS Student Council sponsors the Homecoming King and Queen ceremony, which will take place at halftime, and will be providing a $500 scholarship to both winners. Gates open at 5:30.

Where Are The Nine?

The question concerns the ten lepers who were healed in Luke 17:17. In the history of mankind, no disease has been more dreaded and painful than leprosy. It has produced years of misery. The disease advances slowly but surely. The joints separate, the fingers, toes, and other members of the body begin to fall off one by one, leaving a body in a terrible condition. Life continues to go on as the body becomes weaker day by day.

Ten leprosy men who stood a far off pleaded with Jesus to have mercy on them. Luke 17:11-13 The Lord healed them. Only one turned back and thanked Jesus for their new lease on life. Luke 17:15-16 and he was a Samaritan, a man least expected to express gratitude to the Lord. Jesus asked the question, were there not ten cleansed? But where are the nine? The question concerns gratitude.

2. Ingratitude is one of the blackest and most despicable sins. It describes the wicked who forsake God. Romans 1:21 Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were they thankful. This pictures a rebellious people in the last days. The Bible says, 2 Timothy 3:1-2 This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful. God has warned us about ingratitude. 1 Samuel 12:24 God wants us to consider the great things he has done for us. Ingratitude is one of the weakest and worse faults.

Israel is a good example. Even though they were a blessed people they forgot God. Deuteronomy 32:18 Moses said of the Rock that begat thee thou art unmindful, and hast forgotten God that formed thee. These people soon forgot how it was like just a few years ago when they were in bondage and treated like slaves, beaten, very little food, no freedoms, how soon we forget.

When Saul was weak and unknown, he was grateful servant of God, but when God elevated him to a place of power and fame, he forgot the source of his blessings. 1 Samuel 15:10-26 Prosperity often leads to ingratitude. Some must hit rock bottom before they learn to appreciate their blessings. Man seldom ever appreciates the well until it runs dry.

Many times, we are like the nine, and King Saul, and Israel we think these blessings that we receive everyday are owed to us and we never give God the thanks. May we always count our blessings and be grateful for every blessing. Thank you for reading this message, I pray God has blessed you with the things you need and more and we always stop to remember where our blessings come from. Shea Taylor

Shea Taylor named Mr. Health & Fitness

Shea Taylor has been named the first-ever Mr. Health & Fitness.

Thousands of athletes worldwide were selected to compete and the winner was selected through an online voting system.

Taylor was introduced to the industry at a young age, through sports conditioning, and it has become his way to make an impact in the world.

As an amputee, fitness has allowed him to continue to be active and never take life for granted. Shea is a lifelong athlete and continues to inspire others to face challenges head-on.

As the winner, Taylor received the title, a two-page feature in the iconic Muscle & Fitness magazine, and $20,000.

Both in the competition and in life, Shea's motto is, "In fear, I trust," which helps him to go the extra mile. "I would have rather tried and failed than to look back down the road and live with regret."

Shea, the son of Coy and Linda Taylor, plans to donate to the National Osteoporosis Foundation to help fund research and awareness of bone cancer.

The competition was sponsored by Magnum® Nutraceuticals, NEBBIA™, and JAWKU.

construction would be a first priority on the upcoming facilities plan and includes space for 625 students.

The gross square footage of 86,823 and net square footage of 61,645 in the plan is currently set by Kentucky Department of Education standards and may be adjusted by the committee and the school board as the process continues. The net square footage includes all spaces that are student-usable spaces such as classrooms, gymnasium and other rooms. The gross square footage includes the entire building including spaces such as rest rooms, mechanical rooms and corridors.

The estimated cost of the building project was also set by the KDE at $23,076,068. "This is not the actual cost of the project," Lamere said. Instead, this is a starting average number that KDE uses when considering funding and is based on the number of students enrolled. Nor does that cost include any plans for the existing middle school building.

According to Marcus Reppert, Director of Student Services, students currently in virtual classes are still considered enrolled students and are included in the building space needs estimates.

Superintendent Carrie Ballinger said the district faces an extremely tight time line due to the required meetings before any approval can be given to be eligible for funding in the next legislative session. "In order to be eligible for funding, this item must be on the agenda in the December Kentucky School Board meeting." This has to be completed prior to the legislative session," she said. "We have to hold this first meeting to amend the plan and then another public meeting Monday, October 18 to vote to approve the plan. Then there must be a special called meeting of the school board, then another public meeting and then another board meeting for final approval. All this has to be done for the board meeting on November 9 (26 days from today) for final approval in order to be on the KSB agenda in December."

The renovation of the middle school in the facilities plan was shown at $15,587,383 which was the amount removed from the facilities plan. The committee addressed a few questions to Lamere who responded in detail to each question.

Ballinger also addressed the debate between renovation versus new construction. "In order to qualify for this funding, we would have to opt for the new building over renovating the existing building," she said. "We just have to show the need for the new building."

Some committee members questioned the size of the proposed new building and space required, but Ballinger explained that these standard KDE estimates need to be used for the beginning process in order to meet the December deadline. However, she said all the estimated numbers may change as the actual design of the new building is underway.

The plan also includes $4,503,196 in planned renovations at Roundstone Elementary School, $5,449,040 in renovations at Mount Vernon Elementary and $1,275,000 in renovations at the high school. The total district needs for renovations and construction throughout the district was listed as $40,050,398.

There were also other plans in the district that are not in the current total, including $735,000 for high school football locker room renovations among other renovations throughout the district.

Other smaller renovations and repairs are on the facilities plan but are not included in the district total needs yet since those projects are not finalized.

The October 18 meeting is planned at 5:30 p.m., once again giving the public a chance to provide input. Then at 6 p.m. the committee is expected to approve the new facilities plan.

more supporters, opposition continued to speak out against him and the city government loud and often.

Then, just months ago, two City Commissioners also resigned their post, leaving the city scrambling to fill the seats. It was not easy to find replacements. In fact, officials had tremendous trouble finding anyone interested. Eventually, Mayor King appointed his own daughter Melissa Hahn to fill one of the seats but no one could be found for the other. Eventually, by law, Governor Andy Beshear's office appointed the final seat.

This is when the biggest trouble started. Opponents of King said by appointing his own daughter, the mayor had broken the city's Nepotism ordinance. But that was the least of Hahn's worries. The year before, Hahn had pled guilty to two counts of trafficking in a controlled substance (Methamphetamine) and was currently on a pretrial diversion program which did not allow her to hold a public office. However, Hahn says she did not know that she could not hold public office, though her diversion program lasts through January 10 of 2024. "The first thing I did was check with the parole office and make sure I could be a commissioner," said Hahn. "They assured me it was okay."

As expected, complaints were filed and a public social media campaign began against Hahn's eligibility, King's appointment of her and the city commissioners who approved the appointment.

Two residents of Livingston, Sandi Singleton and Larry Davidson, filed nepotism complaints with the Cumberland Valley Regional Ethics Board against Hahn, King and the City Commission.

As if that weren't enough controversy, King then announced his resignation as mayor due to health reasons and his daughter, Hahn announced that she intended to run for his office.

At this time, County Attorney Jeremy Rowe began looking into the allegations. He originally found that since Hahn was not considered a convicted felon, unless she broke a term of her pretrial diversion agreement, her holding of a public office was "a grey area that requires more investigation." Later the same day (last Monday) that investigation showed that she was not allowed to serve in public office. "In one of the terms of the agreement that she signed, she had lost her right to vote and her right to hold public office," Rowe said. "According to the pretrial diversion agreement, Ms. Hahn is not eligible to be commissioner or mayor of Livingston."

Once Rowe's finding was provided to Hahn, she contacted her parole office once again to discover she was never eligible for office at all. "I am not in trouble because I was told it was okay to be commissioner," she said. "But now I have to resign effective immediately."

The good news for Hahn came later in the week when she received a letter from the Cumberland Valley ADD Regional Board of Ethics which answered the complaints filed against King and the City for breaking the ethics ordinance. The letter, signed by Chairman

Larry Gabbard, said Mayor King and the Livingston City Commissioners "did not violate the Livingston Code of Ethics" when Hahn was appointed as commissioner partly due to pay scales and other terms in the ordinance. "After all the accusations and trouble a few are causing, I need everyone to know that the mayor nor the commissioners did not violate any ordinances or ethics," said Hahn. "I resigned because of the clause in the pretrial diversion terms that we had all overlooked by accident. But no one acted unethically or violated the nepotism ordinance."

Frankfort Update

State Representative
SB 5 economic
A Week in Review:
Committees Talk Education, Staffing Shortages, and the Economic Climate

This week's legislative committee meetings provided plenty of information to share with you in my regular update. Legislators heard from a variety of stakeholders on issues such as: staff shortages, food supply chain disruption, schooling during the pandemic, and the current economic climate. I hope you will take a few moments and read these brief summaries. As always, just reach out if I can provide additional information.

IJC on Judiciary: Committee members met to discuss issues faced by the juvenile detention centers, including staff shortages and lack of training among staff working with Kentucky's incarcerated youth who range from ages 10 to 21. Members also heard presentations on a couple legislative proposals, including animal cruelty cost-of-care, which would expedite the cost of care hearing, creating a system that's fair to owners, taxpayers and animals.

IJC on Agriculture: Members discussed several pressing issues within the state. Those issues range from the present Food Supply Chain disruption brought on by the COVID-19 pandemic, Chronic Wasting Disease, as well as Food Insecurity, and the current state of affairs at the Kentucky State University Land-Grant Cooperative Extension program.

IJC on Education: Legislators serving on the IJC on Education received a report on new data on the pandemic's profound impact on academic performance. Legislators also discussed the mental health aspects of our students. Counselors and social emotional learning specialists from three school districts sadly reported that the number of suicidal thoughts and threats in schools skyrocketed. The districts suggested the increase of student mental health concerns are hinged between virtual learning and the extended exposure to trauma and stress while learning online. The committee also heard from Boom Beans' CEO and the Executive Director of Awesome Inc. about youth entrepreneurship opportunities in Appalachia. Both discussed how they partner to bring innovation and entrepreneurial skills to students and connect them with founders in rural parts of the state.

IJC on Appropriations and Revenue: Committee members received an update on the current economic climate as well as the specific impact on agriculture and wholesale distribution. Agriculture Commissioner Ryan Quarles testified that the agriculture industry is facing various supply chain issues, including inadequate access to replacement machinery parts, inadequate infrastructure to process beef, and higher commodity prices. The Kentucky Wholesalers detailed supply chain issues facing the industry. Members also discussed the American Food Group beef processing plant, which recently decided not to build a facility in Christian County following opposition from local community members. Legislators expressed the great need for a new beef processing plant, as cattle either has to be processed locally, or be sent 500 miles away to be processed. This results in larger costs for producers and consumers, and issues for the supply chain.

 that she had received a letter from the Ethics Board of the Cumberland Valley Area Development District saying that they had found no evidence of nepotism in her appointment as City Commissioner to fill a vacancy due to a resignation.

(You will find a separate story in this week's issue of the Signal from the CVADD's Ethics Board to Ms. Hahn explaining their decision).

Former Mayor Dwane King's letter of resignation was also presented to the board and officially accepted. King resigned at last month's meeting citing health reasons and undue stress.

Following those two items of business, five citizens asked that their name be put in for consideration to fill the vacant commission seat. They were: Bonnie Reeves, Sherry Goforth, Larry Davidson, David Mahaffey and Rick Parker. That seat, along with the mayor's, will have to be filled in 30 days or the appointments will be made by the governor's office.

Acting Mayor Leroy Lamb then threw the floor open for discussion by those present.

The main topic of discussion was the, in some places, lack of water pressure. David Mason told the commission that he had been without water pressure for eight weeks, a problem that he said he has actually had for years. Others in the room joined in with the same complaint, even to Acting Mayor Leroy Lamb who said his water pressure is also very poor. "I have a 3/8" line running from my meter to my house so that keeps my water pressure down."

State Representative Josh Bray spoke to the crowd and told them he was aware of the city's really serious issues with their water and sewer system and was available to help in any way possible. He mentioned that the county had $1.865 (half of an over $3.6M grant) in infrastructure money that will be prioritized for various projects in the cities and counties.

However, Mayor Lamb said that the city currently owes $50,000 to Woods Creek, their water provider, and $2,500 remaining on a $25,000 fine levied on the city by the Division of Water over their sewer treatment plant and they did not have anyone certified to run the day-to-day operation.

Adam Caswell, Director of Government Affairs for Kentucky-American Water spoke to the group and detailed how his company could improve the facilities for the city's water and sewer customers if his company was to purchase the systems. Caswell said the costs to customers for an average bill of 4,000 gallons would be $38 but was unable to tell them exactly what the sewer charge would be.

City Clerk Amanda Thomas said that customers now pay $32.32 for 2,000 gallons of water and a sewer charge of a little over $17.

As a last item of business, the commission on a motion by Lamb voted 2-1 to begin the process to sell the water and sewer plant by publishing a Request for Proposal for Purchase of Water and Wastewater Facilities. That notice is expected to appear in next week's Signal. Commissioner Durham voted against the motion.

October proclaimed Pork Month in Kentucky

Commissioner of Agriculture Dr. Ryan Quarles celebrated Kentucky's swine industry by proclaiming October as Pork Month in Kentucky.

"Pork plays an important role in our state," Commissioner Quarles said. "Our farmers play an equally important role in the hard work they do to raise healthy lean meat for consumers in our state and beyond. While we celebrate Kentucky Pork Month, let's remember the hard work our farmers do every day to raise this nutritious commodity."

Pork is an important product to the national diet with the average American consuming about 50 pounds of pork per year. Pork is packed with important nutrients and minerals. In addition to protein, it also provides thiamin, niacin, riboflavin, vitamin B6, phosphorus, zinc, and potassium.

Kentucky pork sales make up 2.5 percent of total cash receipts for Kentucky agriculture. The sale of market hogs and pigs brought Kentucky farmers $128 million in 2020, up by more than $16 million the year prior.

"Join my family and others across the state as we celebrate Pork month," said Benji Hudnall, Kentucky Pork Producers Association President. "I encourage Kentuckians to enjoy pork at meals this month of October. When you add pork to your plate, you're supporting farm families like ours."

With more than 1,600 swine operations across the commonwealth, Kentucky ranks 17th in the nation for total swine production. Though they can be found throughout the state, most of Kentucky's hogs are raised in western Kentucky, near production of their primary food source of corn and soybeans.

At the end of 2020, Kentucky had approximately 460,000 total head of swine, up from 435,000 the year before. But that number is only a portion of the more than 1 million hogs and pigs Kentucky farmers sold at market last year.

Pork is eaten by more people than any other meat in the world. Kentucky farmers are producing what consumers around the world want.

The Community Care Center is located at 1007 Fairview Loop Road in Mt. Vernon.

Community Care Center (CCC) Program Director Sarah Evans and President Ken Holt are shown above unloading many boxes of clothes and shoes as well as other items Monday. The items were donated to the Daniel Boone Community Action Agency on Main Street in Mount Vernon. The CCC provides such donations to many locations in the county.

Local Community Care Center gives many items to those in need

By: Mike French
Editor

"Whoever is generous to the poor, lends to the Lord and He will repay him for his deeds," Proverbs, 19:17.

Some seem to enjoy giving even more than receiving and Ken Holt, and those who work with him at the Community Care Center in Mount Vernon, must be among them.

Holt retired after 40 years at Hyster and has founded the Mount Vernon Community Care Center at 1007 Fairview Loop Road. "I have been financially blessed and I just want to help people in need," said Holt. "I believe in giving to those who need and once I retired, I couldn't think of a better way to spend my time."

Holt serves as the President of the Center and, with the help of Program Director Sarah Evans and Steve and Kathy Clark, hundreds of local citizens in need have new, warm clothing for the upcoming winter.

Holt and his crew gather new items from sources around the region or anywhere in the world who is willing to give. "We take items from anyone who has a giving heart," said Holt. "We don't take used things. Only new things and we take them to organizations or people or places who have a need for them."

Since he retired, Holt says he has given away dozens of tractor/trailer loads of items that have been donated to the center. This week, he and Evans delivered a pickup truck load of items to the Daniel Boone Community Action Agency on Main Street. One of those who helped unload the countless boxes of new clothing and shoes, said the donations provide a lot of help for many people. "Some people come to us with nothing except the clothes on their back," said one worker. "This kind of thing can make a difference in their entire life."

Holt stood outside the Daniel Boone Community Action Agency with countless boxes showing workers at the center some examples of the new items he was donating Monday. "Everything is new and still in the plastic and with the help of groups like the Christian Appalachian Project, and others, we can donate all this to help those in need," he said.

Holt says he and his crews will help anyone who is truly in need. "It doesn't matter who or why they are in need," he said. "As long as they are in need, we want to help and that's what we do."

Holt has delivered new clothing, jewelry, shoes, gloves and countless other items to many different places in Mount Vernon and he says he turns no one in need away.

"So many stores and businesses are willing to donate to our center," Holt said. "They call us when they are overstocked or have extra items for any reason. This helps them and it helps the organizations involved and most importantly, it help those in need."

A lot of deliveries were cancelled last year due to COVID-19 restrictions but Holt says the center is back up and running full force this year.

Anyone willing to donate new items to the center or is in need of clothing or other items is encouraged to call the center at 859-661-0808.

RCMS sophomore Lexi Dotson had an outstanding performance, placing 23rd overall out of 227 competitors with an awesome new season's best time of 20:28.27 at the Haunted Woods Classic hosted by Oldham County on Saturday. Her time was also the third fastest of her career for a 5,000-meter race. She will compete again next Tuesday at the CKC Championships in Danville.

Seventh grade defeats LexCath 36-26

RCMS football playing in state tournament

The Rockcastle County Middle School seventh grade football team opened play on Saturday in the Kentucky Middle School Football Association state tournament with a 36-26 victory over Lexington Catholic.

Head coach Jamie Todd's crew, which was the 7-seed in the Region 3 bracket, got on the board first when Blake Mullins entered the endzone with 3:51 remaining in the first quarter. Jacob Camel's 2-point conversion put the Rockets up 8-0.

LexCath quickly answered a few plays later, but the conversion attempt was no good to keep the Rockets up 8-6 going into the first quarter break.

Camel would notch a touchdown of his own with 2:55 left in the first half giving Rockcastle a 14-6 advantage.

Mullins found paydirt once again, but from the defensive side of the ball just 0:17 later when he intercepted a Knights pass attempt and returned the ball for a touchdown. Camel's conversion run gave the Rockets a 22-6 lead with 2:38 left in the second quarter.

Rockcastle would take a 22-14 lead into the locker room thanks to a late second quarter touchdown and subsequent 2-point conversion by LexCath.

Xavier Leger scored what eventually would prove to be the game-winning touchdown in the third quarter. Kaiden Lovell conversion was good to give Rockcastle a 30-14 lead.

LexCath responded with a passing touchdown to pull within a 30-20 margin before Leger would put the nail in the coffin with his second touchdown of the game.

The Knights, who came into the contest as the number 10-seed in Region 3, would tack on a touchdown with less than a minute to go, but the damage had been done.

With the win, Rockcastle advances in the KYMSFA 7th Grade Region 3 bracket to play on Saturday, Oct. 16 at two seed Georgetown Middle School.

The RCMS 8th graders will also be in action on Saturday at Georgetown Middle when they take on East Oldham in the KYMSFA 8th Grade Division 2 Region 3 tournament. Rockcastle is the third seed in the bracket while East Oldham is the sixth-seeded team.
