Livingston Homecoming

Once again the Livingston Homecoming event was filled with laughter and good times throughout the weekend and organizers say this year may have been "the best ever" in many ways.

Mayor Jason Medley said a large crowd endured the heat to take part in the countless events and he was pleased to enjoy fellowship with so many Livingston residents as well as many who came from out of town.

Starting Friday night, the streets of Livingston were filled with gospel music and throughout the entire weekend, music could be heard throughout the town as popular bands from across the region entertained those who braved the sun.

Local Detention Center overcrowded

Tractor Show

The Southeast Kentucky Antique Tractor Association Show will be held at the Brodhead Fairgrounds October 3, 4 and 5. All tractor enthusiasts are encouraged to attend this free event. The event is open to all vendors. Campsites are on a first come, first serve basis.

Twenty years ago

It was 20 years ago that Americans, as well as many Rockcastle Countians, became concerned that the changing of the Millennial from 1900s to 2000 would cause a nationwide computer crash. Known as the "Y2K Bug" fear struck many who believed computer systems would shut down across the nation.

in their jails, The Rockcastle County Detention Center seems to be keeping up with growth in inmate population...so far.

Nathan Carter, Rockcastle County Jailer, says the local jail population is always more than the detention center was designed to hold, but that the local jail is not as overcrowded as most surrounding county lockups.

In fact, just this week, officials in neighboring Madison County held a community wide event to gather ideas and suggestions to help with massive overcrowding there. And Laurel County is currently building an 800-bed facility, according to Carter.

In the local detention center, Carter says there are currently 123 inmates but only 73 beds.

"I hate that there are prisoners that have to lay on the floor," said Carter. "But that is the hand we are dealt."

Carter says those who have to sleep on the floor have mats and blankets but he still wishes there were more beds, or less inmates.

In fact, just last week, Carter began calling neighboring counties to see if he could move some of the local inmates there because of overcrowding. "But as usual, they are all over capacity right now and they couldn't take them either."

The local jail receives income from the state by housing state prisoners but of the 123 current inmates, only 61 are state prisoners.

As for increasing the size of the local facility, Carter says such ideas are only for the future. "It is a very complex procedure and many guidelines that must be followed in order to even have the DOC (Department Of Corrections) take part in adding or building more space."

The 73-bed limit is set by DOC requirements and Carter is not allowed by law to put more beds in the local facility. "In order to add more beds, you have to add more space," he said. "And unless you are looking at a large expansion the DOC won't even get involved."

So, while neighboring communities are apparently scrambling to find or build more space to increase bed limits, the Rockcastle County Detention Center will remain the same size for years to come, according to Carter.

As facilities in Kentucky continue to expand, those that are overcrowded will send their floor-bound inmates to those facilities as soon as they open, causing them to be filled as well.

"It doesn't matter how big your facility may be, you will fill it immediately and need more space," Carter said.

Jail overcrowding is a problem across the nation and Carter says he doesn't see the problem going away. "I sure don't see crime going down across the county or the state," he said. "There will always be a need for more space in jails."

MVHS Reunion

Anyone who has ever attended the Mount Vernon High School should have received an invitation to the Homecoming Reunion planned for September 14 at Rockcastle County Middle School. Registration will begin at 4:30 with the meal at 6 p.m. The class of 1969 will be honored since this is that class's 50th year anniversary.

Man killed in local accident

By: Mike French

Shawn H. Smith, 23, of Oneida, Tennessee was killed last week in an accident in Rockcastle County.

According to reports, Smith was traveling south on I-75, near mile marker 72, when he lost control of his 1999 Dodge and struck a guardrail and then left the roadway near the Flat Gap Road tunnel.

The vehicle reportedly left the interstate and traveled over an embankment ejecting Smith before the vehicle became partially submerged in a creek beside Flat Gap Road.

The road was closed while crews worked to clear the scene. The Rockcastle County Coroner pronounced Smith dead at the scene.

On the scene were the Kentucky State Police Post 11 troopers and personnel, Rockcastle County EMS, Rockcastle County Sheriff's Deputies, the Mount Vernon Fire Department and the Rockcastle County Coroner's office.

Trooper Seth Whiles is leading the investigation into the incident.

Natural gas line may come soon

— Farmers Market in October

By: Mike French
Editor

Having a supply of natural gas in Rockcastle County is on the top of the priority list for members of the Rockcastle County Industrial Development Authority.

"This would be a huge, huge thing," said Chairman Corey Craig. "To have a gas pipeline in Crab Orchard, Brodhead, Mount Vernon, Renfro Valley and other places that would otherwise not have one, this could have extreme potential."

There is no deal yet but members of the board, RCIDA Executive Director Jeff VanHook and Rockcastle County Judge/Executive Howell Holbrook have been aggressively talking to "all the right people to get it done," according to VanHook.

RCIDA officials and Mount Vernon City Administrator Josh Bray have been in discussion with gas companies as well as several state officials in a grant-seeking process, to see that a gas pipeline does come through the county soon, according to Craig.

"This would make a tremendous difference in our new TIF District," said Craig. "Restaurants and other businesses would have one less excuse not to locate here."

When asked if a gas line through the county is "probable," VanHook said, "It is our top priority and we are aggressively approaching the project." Craig agreed. "We will get it done. We feel confident that this will happen in our county, and I hope soon."

The board met Wednesday morning after changing the meeting time last month but now plan to hold the October meeting on Tuesday, October 1 at 8:30 a.m. as a trial meeting time.

The board discussed many county issues during the meeting Wednesday, including the new Farmers Market building planned on Richmond Street.

VanHook said the $300,000 to $350,000 project is nearly funded now as he and others have already begun grant requests totaling $275,000.

Members of the board discussed the proposed building design and layout and VanHook said the project is expected to officially begin in October while actual construction will begin in March of 2020. He said the building should be complete by October of 2020.

Craig said he is enthusiastically promoting the building's use for 12 months a year. "We really hope the building can be used for educational purposes and many other uses when the farmer's market is not using the building," he said.

Board members also discussed the possibility of an access road between exit 62 and exit 59 in Rockcastle County. Craig said such a road would provide immeasurable benefit to the county.

VanHook and Holbrook said the project is "on a list of projects" that the state plans in the future and board members agreed that such an access road would be a benefit to the entire county.

Craig also reported to the board that the CDBG revolving loan fund has $257,000 left to be used by Microfoodery. Craig said the plant is moving ahead and should be able to produce product by the holiday season this year.

VanHook also told board members the Family Dollar in Livingston plans to be

Local school board passes tax increase

By: Mike French
Editor

The Rockcastle County Board of Education held a public hearing Thursday, August 29th to give the public a chance to express any concerns about a small tax rate increase.

However, no one from the community attended the hearing and school board members then convened a special called meeting to enact the increase.

The real estate tax rate was increased from 42 cents per $100 of assessed value, to 42.2 cents per $100.

On an assessed value of $100,000, the increase would equal about $2. However, over all, the increase will provide about $85,000 more to the annual budget.

The vote was held immediately after the public hearing and, with no opposition, the increase was approved unanimously.

The September regular meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, September 10 when Finance Director Jenny Sweet said she hoped to have the working budget ready to present to board members

Aces Over

By: Mike French

I woke early Tuesday morning to step outside and find a heavy fog sticking to the ground.

Weeds and grass was soaking wet from dew and there was a tiny, barely detectable autumn nip in the air as I raised my coffee cup to my lips and stared out over the misty field.

I couldn't help it. My mind wandered back to a time when my father and I and old cuz (Brian Newman) had been headed out to our favorite tree stump in the woods with a gun across our shoulder.

Though the temperature would warm quickly, our camo pants and boots would have been saturated with dew keeping us cool as we sat quietly about 50 yards apart.

We would be looking up into the trees, from our carefully chosen perch, and we would occasionally glance over to each other as we sat quietly.

As soon as we heard the first patter of a hundred dew drops hitting the ground, we knew something had shaken the tree limb above enough to shake the dew off the leaves.

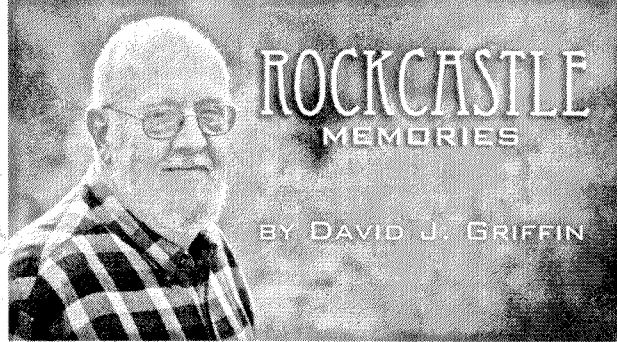

Our hearts would begin to beat faster and we would very quietly reposition ourselves so that we could see the top of the tree above where the dew drops had fallen.

It was never long before we would see a squirrel trotting on a limb or down the side of the tree he had spent the night in.

Looking at each other through the fog, we could see if one of us had drawn a bead in that direction and we would be ready to hear the spat of a .22 and then the thud of the squirrel hitting the ground.

Then, wait some more. One would think that the spat of a .22 would scare others off. And it does for a minute usually. But they come back out really soon and usually there's a whole

Dog Days of Summer

When I was a little boy, my grandfather (Pop) very much disliked that late part of the summer season which he called "the dog days of summer." For a long time, I thought he was the one that named this summer event. When I asked him what he meant, he said, "David Joe, the month of July and most of August aren't fit for a dog." He went on to explain that particular time of the year. "This is the hottest part of the summer; it is sultry, and the thunderstorms are more severe."

The more I thought about this period of time, I agreed with him. I had more trouble with mosquitoes, ticks, and, most especially, chiggers in July and August. Pop even told me and Kenneth Hansel that we should not go swimming in creeks and local ponds during this time. He said, "The bugs will drive you crazy." He also told us not to fish. "You won't have much fun if you are fighting off the

Points East

By Ike Adams

We're back to Blair Branch Grade School, after being so rudely interrupted by a 3-day, diabetes interlude at the hospital where the cafeteria food was decidedly superior to any food ever served at the Blair Branch School cafeteria.

On the other hand, I'd be willing to be a few $$ that the Blair Branch cooks would have served up a far more appetizing meal if our school had ever had a cafeteria. As it was, the only kitchen appliance in the building was a refrigerator, placed in the back of the "big room" as far from the heating stove as we could get it. The old fridge was used to stock 5-ounce cartons of milk and any lunch bags students might want to cram inside it.

Most of us had dear meat sandwiches for lunch, several times a week. Dear old bologna. I remember one teacher bringing an electric "hot plate" to school so he could fry his bologna at his desk. That lasted about a week before guilt got to him when we sat around drooling like dogs, hoping for a handout or waiting for something to drop off the kitchen table.

Kids who lived only a few hundred yards from the school house usually went home for lunch and most of them got hot meals. After Mr. Back decided the hot plate was more trouble than it was worth, he ate cold sandwiches like the rest of us. If his bologna was fried, it was still cold.

One year (my 7th grade) he made arrangements to have a nearby neighbor cook up kettles of soup or stew that was served to students for 15 cents each, but more than half of us couldn't afford even that.

On days when we didn't take a bologna sandwich for lunch, my younger brothers and I might have a different slice of deli meat such as diced ham "lunch meat", Dixie Loaf or, my favorite to this day, liver loaf.

Fried egg "omelet" sandwiches were often in our dinner sacks as well as sausage or fried pork on biscuits. I've even taken pint jars of milk and cornbread to lunch and we almost always had apple butter or jam sandwiches for dessert.

For several years, my Mom ordered baby, white leghorn cockerel chicks for not much more than the cost of postage to ship them. The female chicks were produced for the egg industry and, since roosters have still not learned to lay eggs, poultry farmers were looking ways to get rid of them, almost at cost. Mom bought at least 100 at a time and up to 300, scattered through 3 or more orders, between January and March. There was no way we could take care of that many babies all at once, but, when one group got up to 3 weeks old, she'd order more.

To make a long story short, our family ate way more fried chicken than we really needed and Mom turned a nice profit selling fryers, at payday, to a few dozen coal miners.

The Adams boys also took a lot of fried chicken sandwiches to school for lunch. In fact, it got to the point that I'd have preferred almost anything to cold, fried chicken for a noon

Keeping in the Spirit of Labor

Dear Journal,
In keeping with the spirit of labor, Stanley and I have labored this Labor Day weekend. There have been a few projects around the house and yard that have needed our attention for quite some time and we finally got the chance to do some of them. So, this weekend we got right to work.

I was off on Friday and I got busy with some indoor cleaning. On Sunday, we really put our backs into it. We got to work on the outside stuff. Stanley repaired a little wagon that once belonged to his dad. He will need it to haul some stuff this fall. He got his saws and saw horses and got to work. He also worked a little on my metal dish safe that has turned into an all summer long project. I got started on cleaning my flower beds and some areas of mulch around our three big maple trees. I ended up and raked part of the mulch out, too. But that is fine, I'll put more in the spring.

I cleaned out the turtle flower bed where Terry and Tilly come to eat. I put them out some tomatoes when I was through. I think I'll get my brother Don to build them a little turtle house for the spring. He likes to make bird houses as a hobby and it couldn't be that much harder to make a turtle house.

I used my walker for resting when I got tired which ended up about as much as I worked so it seemed. We got started early mosquitoes." Later in my adult life, I learned where the term "dog days of summer" came from. It has to do with the sun and the brightest star (Sirius) being in the same region of the sky. Sirius is sometimes called the Dog Star. The Farmer's Almanac lists the dates of July 3 until August 11 to be the official dates of "dog days" in the Northern Hemisphere.

Other events occur during this time of year that make me cautious and even nervous. This is when snakes shed their skin—a process which affects their vision, causing them to strike more often. Ponds are covered with a scum. The humidity is so high that you cannot feel comfortable outside; sometimes it can be suffocating. And the days are longer.

Pop was more intelligent than he was given credit for being. He told us to drink more liquids, limit our time outdoors, and I recall noticing that he only worked in his garden early in the morning or late in the afternoon during this time.

Because it was so hot and humid, Pop would have trouble sleeping in our non-air conditioned house, causing him to move to the porch swing in his underwear, late at night. He was searching for a cool breeze.

I rode my bike a lot during this time of the summer. I would take my bike down old US25 to an area where there was shade. I would ride back and forth, allowing the air to cool my face. Sometimes, I would take off my shirt to assist in the cooling process.

I have always disliked this part of summer. But it does make me look forward to fall, the changing of the leaves, and the added touch of a crispy feeling to the evening air. And, of course, one of the things that I anticipate most is being able to sit near a "gnat smoke" fire in one of our fire rings next to our house on the mountain. Hang on, it won't be long.

My 8th grade teacher, Monroe Caudill, brought a "Dagwood" type sandwich to school every day that usually had 2 or 3 slices of fancy deli meat layered with Swiss cheese, lettuce and onion. They not only looked tasty but they were virtual works of art!

One day I came to school with a couple of Mom's biscuits stuffed with fried chicken. Mr. Caudill took a glance at my lunch and nodded at his masterpiece. "I'll swap with you," he said.

We may have set a world record for the amount of time it took for those sandwiches to change hands. I later learned that he really believed he had gotten the better end of the deal. I know, for an absolute fact, that I did.

family around very close.

It would take five or six of the little rascals to make a good meal for all of us and by the time my mom added the gravy and biscuits and fresh garden maters, we would have a meal fit for a king.

We three guys would be cleaning our guns after the hunt while mom filled the house with the smell of squirrel in corn meal and flour.

Squirrel season was the time of year I looked forward to all year long.

I sat in every classroom through high school, during the fall, planning on that Saturday morning and old cuz spending the night with me, or me with him, so that our Saturday morning would be ready to go.

I suppose everyone has some childhood memory that comes to their mind quite often. I am blessed that mine involves family and joy and freedom and love and good, good food.

about eight and worked steady until around five. About two, we broke for lunch. I had some cold rotisserie chicken in the fridge and some garden tomatoes, so that is what we had for lunch. We ate it outside and it was like a little impromptu picnic. Then, it was back to work.

Obviously, I haven't found anybody that would "work for food" as I had commented about earlier. I can't even find a nice young man that isn't afraid of work to come and help me, even for money. He needs to be young and healthy so he can do all that is necessary.

The next day, on Monday, was Labor Day. Our projects weren't done and by now I had strained my back and twisted my right knee and hardly able to move on Monday. I had Stanley to grease me down in Aspercream and fetch the ibuprofen. In a while I was able to get around a little but not much. I knew I couldn't work like I had the day before but I did a few things. Stanley had to take it easy somewhat, too. He did hang some mini blinds and a few other minor jobs here and there.

I did string some fresh beans and baked some sweet potatoes and made some hamburger steaks. I guess you could say that Stanley is working for food.

Three ways to get kids motivated to move more

(StatePoint) Getting regular physical activity helps children meet developmental milestones and promotes mental and physical wellness. However, forming this healthy habit works best when you get started early. To motivate your kids to move more, consider the following ideas:

- Go on an outing: At least some of the time, be sure to select active outings. This way, physical activity will become a natural part of your family's lifestyle. For example, go skating or rock climbing instead of to the movies. If you're going on a picnic, hike or bike to the picnic site and bring along frisbees, balls and other toys and games that keep people moving.

- Put on your dancing shoes: It's easy to get kids moving and grooving with fun dance games. Especially those that incorporate innovative and interactive tech such as the new VTech Kidi Star Dance. By wearing motion-activated bands, kids can learn 20 cool dance moves step-by-step by following the animated dance instructor. Once kids learn the moves, they can put them together and dance along to the included music. Color-changing lights flash along to the music to make kids feel like a star. Play four motion games or create music through movement by playing 14 different effects, including drums and magical fairy sounds. Give the second band to a friend and challenge them to a game or dance-off. Connect your own MP3 player or load songs using a microSD card to add more music so kids never get bored.

- Take evening walks: Instead of heading straight for the couch in the evenings, make a ritual of taking a short walk first. This is a great chance to chitchat, get some fresh air and even promote better sleep. Kids may not be able to travel too far at first, so start with a brief walk around the block. As they begin to build endurance, extend it a bit farther or consider turning the ritual into a friendly race.

Physical activity is not only great for you, but it's also a lot of fun. By incorporating games and activities into evenings and weekends, parents can play an active role in getting kids motivated to move more.

How close is too close when it comes to living near your family

(StatePoint) While you can't choose your family, you can choose how close you live to them. A new survey suggests some healthy boundaries between parents and in-laws make for a happier family relationship -- something to keep in mind when shopping for a home.

Fifty-seven percent of respondents in the survey from Ally Home, the direct-to-consumer mortgage arm of Ally Bank, say there should be at least some driving distance between where their parents and/or in-laws live and where they live. An even greater percentage of gen Z respondents (63 percent) -- and millennials (62 percent) -- felt some distance was important.

"We're deep into the home buying season, and we're seeing first-hand how excited consumers are to find and then be able to afford the home of their dreams," says Glenn Brunner, mortgage executive with Ally Home. "But as Ally Home goes through that home-buying journey with them, it's clear that there's more than just the house and yard that go into making a home the right fit. Buyers are thinking through things like the neighborhood, school system, access to good hospitals, and yes, just how near or far they prefer to be to family."

Other survey findings included:

- Call First Before Popping In: Thirty-seven percent of respondents agree family should not live close enough to just pop in and say hi. An even greater percentage of millennials -- 42 percent don't like the idea of the unannounced pop-in.

- Adults Need Their Own Space: Almost two-thirds of Americans say that while they love their adult children, they don't want them living with them. Millennials don't like how things are trending, either. They worry more than any other age group that at some point they will have their adult children, their parents or in-laws living with them.

- Proximity is a Top Stressor: The survey also presented respondents with a number of stress points and asked which ones ranked top when dealing with family. Thirty-eight percent of respondents named "living within five minutes of parents or in-laws" as their top stressor, out-ranking "cooking a complicated meal for a mother or mother-in-law" and "hosting family for the holidays."

"Much of a person's preference regarding location has to do with cultural norms, since extended families living together or nearby one another is common in certain cultures. But more often, having some physical distance between family can help create a healthy boundary. Ultimately, it's up to family members to be open and honest about their own boundaries and what makes them most comfortable," says William X. Kelly, a marriage and family therapist.

A good choice for a home is one that makes you happy. When shopping for a home, don't forget to take the family factor into consideration.

BULBS – Landscape With Them

In January 2016 we had benefit of an El Niño year, and that meant I successfully planted nearly a thousand tulip bulbs, plus some various other bulbs, in the middle of winter. But, the proper time to plant spring blooming bulbs such as tulips and daffodils and squill and hyacinths is actually November in USDA zone 6. Let's study up a bit, and see if bulb planting for a more lovely yard in the spring might work for you.

Once hot weather is over, but before the ground is frozen, is planting time for trees and large shrubs, and also for those bulbs that grow into narcissus or tulips.

Bulbs aren't cheap. (Unless you have a friend or relative digging up and dividing or discarding some and they offer you freebies.) So, a few bulbs placed here and yonder may be nicer than no bulbs at all, but some organization and planning would be advisable, so as not to waste time and effort and money; but, rather, use them wisely.

Many flowers that come from bulbs love deciduous shade. That means a woodland area can be all abloom, and get sunshine to the plants, before the trees leaf out. Tulips and iris are two that need more sun, but there are many kinds of flowering bulbs that will do well in a woody area or on the shady side of a house.

Deer love anything that grows in winter it seems.

“RCIDA”

He also said paperwork for the Marathon Station to be located adjacent to the Family Dollar Store is underway and "things should start moving ahead now very soon."

VanHook also discussed the ongoing lawsuit with Eagle Manufacturing and said the county is waiting to find out the actual value of the theft that the lawsuit is addressing before the suit can move ahead.

“Event”

There were several changes this year as organizers work to make the event better each year. "Everyone seemed to love all the changes this year and we are so pleased that everyone had such a great time," said Medley.

Visitors also had the chance to see some of the changes in the town itself as new sidewalks and improvements to building fronts as well as construction of the new Family Dollar Store were evidence of Livingston's growth and development.

In fact, guests seemed to enjoy the event so much this year that visitors were offering to help next year. "We already picked up some new volunteers to help us with next year's event," said Medley. "We start planning next year's Homecoming the day after this one is over."

The small town atmosphere continued throughout the weekend according to Medley. "There was no trouble at all," he said. "Police kept a close eye on everything making sure everyone was safe but there was no trouble anywhere in our fair town."

The event has become one of the more popular events throughout the county each year and Medley says he plans for next year to be just as good. "There is no other way to explain the Livingston Homecoming than to say it is just a special event."

Yards to Paradise

But, no, your daffodils and hyacinths will be safe. (Tulips: no, you can't have everything be deer resistant or mouse resistant, etc.)

Tulips and other spring blooming bulbs will get a bit ugly after blooming, but you can't mow them down until their leaves are brown or dead and the bulb is mature and waiting patiently in the ground to bloom again next year. (Cut off the foliage too soon, and there won't be many blooms the following year!)

So, you may want to plan some companion plantings. Groundcovers such as vinca minor or plumbago or mondo grass might work. And a plant such as hosta that comes up after most early bulbs have bloomed works well as a companion plant for tulips and daffodils and hyacinths.

You can plant in random groups for an informal look. Or, for a formal look, plant in organized beds or rows. Perhaps with other colors or sizes acting as a border, or a 'sandwich' of color. Monocromatic plantings make a bold statement, but the cottage garden can have whatever colors a person likes and still be attractive. Bulb mixtures may offer more blooms for the buck.

Plant some bulbs where you can see them. In winter you may not be outside much—if you can see them from the window of the house or your car you will appreciate them much more. (If you love cold weather, then, plant them wherever you'll bundle up in a coat and take a winter stroll.)

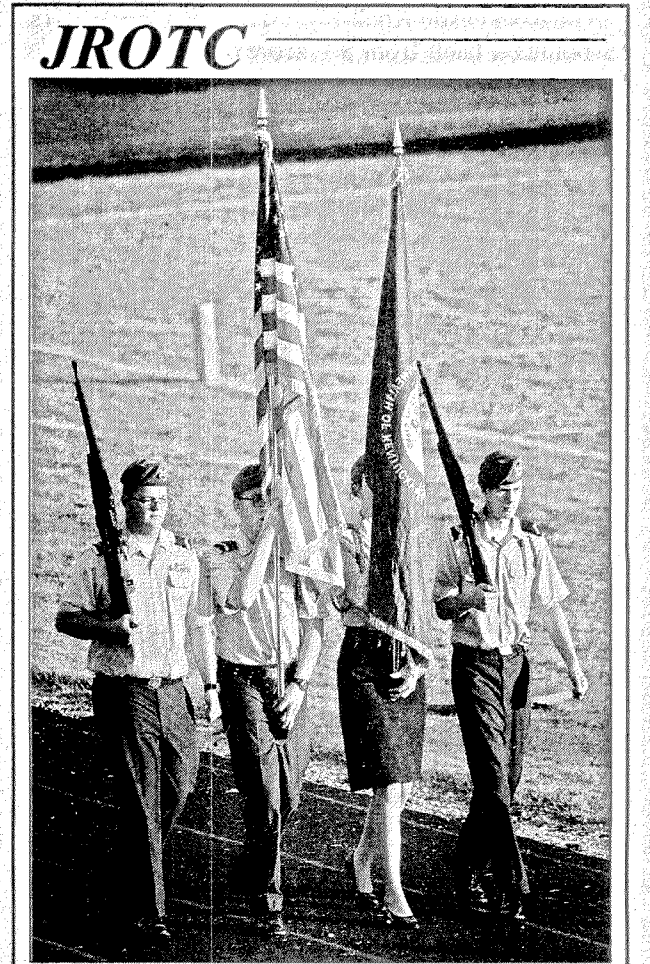

Let your bulbs multiply!

Two or three bulbs planted in a clump or "hill" will become ten or twenty in a few years, giving a bigger and brighter blooming. Don't disturb them very much. Instead, pick the best spots for the bulbs, and leave them be for a glorious spring show for many many years.

This short article isn't meant to cover all there is to know on the subject. Rather, it's to get your imagination going, which may lead to you dreaming of spring this fall. And, if you're so motivated, come up with a plan, buy the bulbs, and plant some this fall for lovely blooms at your place next year. Reserving bulbs early for fall planting will help assure you can find the right bulbs for your landscaping needs.

Rockets best Rebels 41-33 for first win

The Rockcastle Rockets bounced back from a 40-0 loss last week at Somerset to even their record at 1-1 with a 41-33 home game win over the Casey County Rebels Friday night.

The Rockets first score of the game was set up by a blocked punt by junior Rylee DeLeon that gave the Rockets the ball on the Casey 13 yard line. Following gains by seniors Josh Thacker and Zach Taylor, quarterback Noah Parkey took it in for the score with almost eight minutes remaining in the first quarter.

The point after kick failed.

On the Rocket kickoff, Casey County took the ball to the Rockets 35 yard line but failed to make the first down and the Rockets took over on their own 27. On the next play, at the 5:10 mark, Thacker took the ball 72 yards for the touchdown. A two point conversion by Taylor was good and the Rockets were up 14-0 at the end of the first quarter.

The Rebels were on the march in the second quarter with first and 10 on the Rockets 42 when sophomore Drew Mink picked off a Rebel pass to stop the drive. The Rockets then had to punt the ball away on their drive and Casey took over on their own 42 and, two plays later, were at the Rockets 43 with a first down. However, three incomplete Rebel passes later, and a high snap on the punt gave the Rockets the ball on Casey's 32. Four plays later, Parkey hit sophomore Landon Dillingham for a 19 yard touchdown pass. The extra point kick was good and the Rockets were up 21-0 with 4 minutes left in the first half.

The Rebels got their first score of the game on their next possession on a pass play to the Rockets 20 (with 1:52 left in the first half) and the Rebel runner took it in for the score. The extra point kick was blocked and it was 21-6.

The Rockets weren't done though. With 17 seconds left in the half, Taylor scampered in for the score. The extra point attempt was blocked and it was 27-6 at the half.

In the third quarter, a pass interference call against the Rockets helped set up the next Rebel score, a 32 yard touchdown pass. The extra point was good and it was 27-13 Rockets with 9:53 remaining in the third quarter.

The Rebels kick-off went out of bounds and the Rockets started their next possession from their own 35. On three carries, Thacker took the Rockets to the Casey County 25 and later picked up another first down on the Rebels six and, three plays later, Taylor scored at the 5 minute mark. Parkey ran for the two point conversion and the Rockets were back up 35-13.

An interception, late in the third quarter by the Rebels, set up their next score of the game when, with 11:04 remaining in the fourth quarter, the quarterback took the ball in from the four yard line for the TD and it was 35-20.

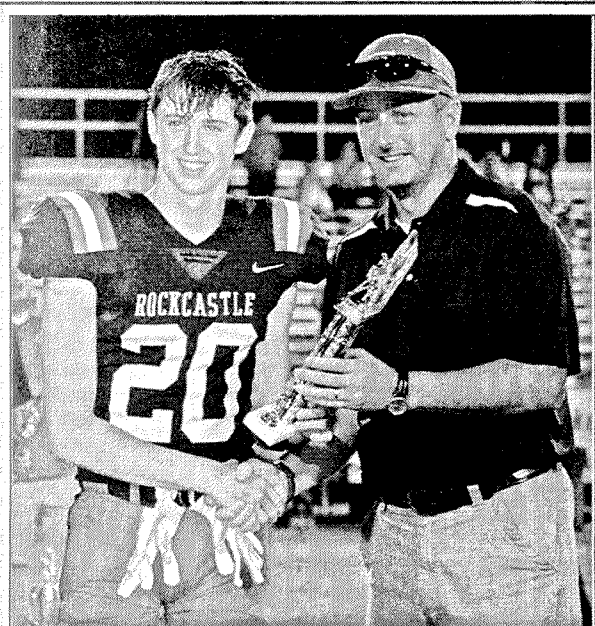

The Rebels scored twice more in the fourth quarter, one set up by a fumble recovery by the Rebels who scored on the next play from the Rockets 44. The extra point attempt was no good and it was 36-26.

The Rockets had to punt on their next possession and a personal foul was called against the Rockets for hitting the Rebel catching the kick after he had called a fair catch. Then a pass interference call against the Rockets gave the Rebels a first and 10 on the Rockets 39 and a pass play gave the Rebels their third score of the quarter at the 7:55 mark. This time, the extra point was good and Casey was within two at 35-33.

The extra point attempt was blocked but the Rockets were back up 41-33 for the final score of the game.

Coach Scott Parkey said after the game that his team "played much more aggressively this week." He went on to say, "The offensive line was much improved. Those guys opened up some nice running lanes for the backs. Josh Thacker had a really good game with the ball in his hands. We have to continue to improve on some of the details of our offense but overall, we like our progress to this point."

The coach also commented on his defense, saying that the secondary played well. "The guys up front did a good job of hurrying the quarterback and forcing him to make throws earlier than he liked."

Offensively, the team was led by senior Josh Thacker with 207 yards rushing in 16 carries and scored two touchdowns. Quarterback Noah Parkey, who was five for 10 in pass attempts for 69 yards, also rushed for 63 yards on 14 carries and scored one touchdown and one two point conversion. Senior Zach Taylor got 36 yards on 16 carries and scored two touchdowns.

Thacker also led his team in pass receptions, getting 45 yards on two catches; sophomore Landon Dillingham got one catch, a 19 yard touchdown pass, and senior Jacob Loudermilk caught two passes for five yards.

Junior Mitchell Buckner attempted three extra point kicks and converted one of them.

Defensively, Zach Taylor was credited with six total tackles, two solo; Rylee DeLeon and Matthew Chasteen got five total, including three solo for DeLeon and two solo for Chasteen. DeLeon was also credited with two defensive sacks and Chasteen and Isaiah Didelot got 1/2 defensive sack each. Didelot, along with Josh Thacker, Noah Reams and Christopher Mink, was credited with four total tackles, with Thacker's all solo tackles.

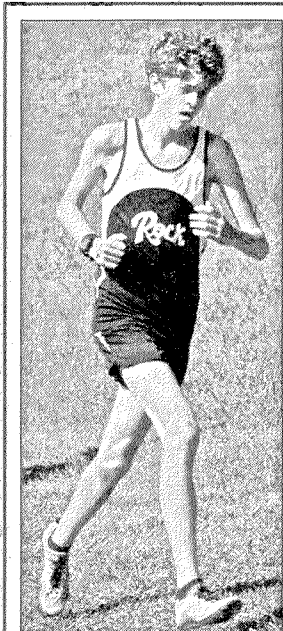

Others credited with tackles were: Isaiah Dehart and Landon Dillingham, three each; Jacob Loudermilk and Trevor Todd, two each and Logan Brown and Landen Broadus, one each.

Next week the Rockets will host the Wayne County Cardinals, who has "one of the best, if not the best running backs we will face all season," according to Coach Parkey.

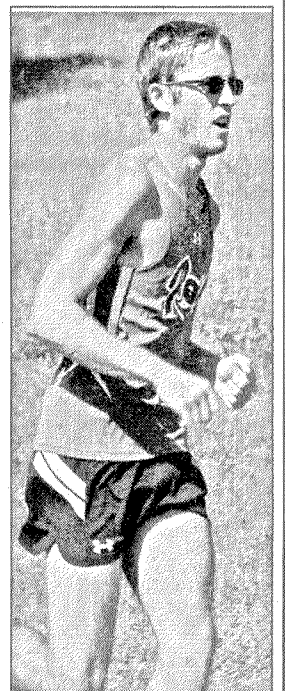

Parkey also said, "the crowd last week was great and we would love nothing more than to see The Rock packed again this week supporting this team."

Kindness

It would be really sad to think we were so strict on the doctrine of Christ but missed Heaven because we didn't treat others with a Christlike attitude. Harmful attitudes and personality conflicts can cause as much harm to a congregation as error on matters of worship or the plan of salvation. If the world observes a mean attitude, by the one who professes Christianity, what influence for good can we have on the world, zero? To the church at Ephesus write, Ephesians 4:32 And be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ sakes hath forgiven you. This command that was given many years ago is still just as important and needed in the house of God as it was when it was penned, maybe even more.

To be the proper example of a Christian we must be kind. Others will be influenced when we are good to them. How many problems in congregations and homes could be avoided if men and women, boys and girls would labor to be kind one to another, as the Bible teaches Proverbs 19:22.

In our present society it seems that many are living on the edge, from broken homes, debt that is overwhelming, or the loss of a job, we never know exactly what, but we know that kindness from someone who really cares can make all the difference in the world. The desire of a man is kindness.

The definition of the word kind means benevolent or gracious. It means not harsh, not sharp, not bitter. It identifies one who is mild and pleasant in nature. Even if these traits were not ingrained in our hearts during our younger years, we can work to add those traits to our life, it will make our life so much richer.

No matter how many times we get burned for doing the right thing, we must never lose our desire to be kind and helpful to others. I know I appreciate the kindness of others, when things are not going right in my life it means a lot. It takes no more effort to be kind than it does to be mean.

Galatians 6:2 Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ. Our kindness doesn't always consist of a good deed or a large gift. Many times, all it takes is a kind word or a hug or just a beautiful smile can make all the difference in the world.

I cannot tell you how important it is that we all grow to be more kind in our life, on this earth especially if we are Christians. Just think how much better homes would be, schools would be, the workplace and also at the house of worship. Galatians 6:10 As we have therefore opportunity let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith.

It is a shame when brothers and sisters in Christ treat each other with anger and are ready to fight or to kill. These shouldn't be in our society and they should never be in the house of God.

Thank you as always for reading this article. I pray as always your are well, and you are still counting your blessings. We would love you come and worship with us at the Chestnut Ridge Church of Christ, Mt. Vernon, Ky. If you would like to get in touch with someone all you have to do is call these numbers below.

Tiger Pause

Welcome back to all of our returning students and families. A special Brodhead welcome to all of our new students and their families joining us this school year. Brodhead Elementary has had a wonderful first month of the 2019-2020 school year.

to work with the youth of the Brodhead community and we will never take for granted the trust you place in us to take care of your children while they are in our care.

Our rigorous curriculum and the continued implementation of the new standards makes it more important than ever for the school and home to continue to build a stronger partnership working together to make each and every child successful in their adventures.

We can't do it without you! Keys to Success - Be here early to be on time (Brodhead starts our breakfast program at 7:30 and students are starting morning work in their classroom at 7:50) - Set and follow a student routine (Set sleep patterns, travel arrangements to and from school, homework and practice schedules) - Keep up the communication (Feel free to contact Brodhead staff with any questions or concerns 758-8512).

Brodhead Elementary was honored to participate in "Hats Off to Abby" on Friday, August 30th. With a $1 donation, students were able to wear a hat in honor Abby's memory. All proceeds will go to two scholarships awarded to one male student and one female student at Rockcastle County High School. Brodhead students were able to raise well over $100.00 for the event.

Brodhead Elementary School would like to take this time to thank a special visitor Dr. Callie Shaffer. Dr. Callie took time to share a message with our 1st-5th grade students during Monday Morning Meeting. Students became familiar walked away with information to understand how their bodies function when they become ill. Dr. Callie's time with our students will be put to good work 'as' our students strive to keep themselves free from sickness by using the proactive tips that were shared. Thanks again to Dr. Callie Shaffer for sharing with our BES students.

Back to School brings time with friends. Students eating lunch from BES third grade are: Harrison Craig, Khloe Bussell, Laurel Lyons, Cierra Edington, Aiden Daugherty and Zander Bullock.

The Rockcastle Garden Club is donating a book to each of the county elementary schools to be used by teachers and students when talking and learning about gardening. The book titled We Are The Gardener's is written by Joanna Gains (of "Fixer Upper" fame on HGTV) and her children is a beautiful illustrated book that details how the family got interested in gardening and the many setbacks and rewards of gardening. Above Club member Teresa Isaacs is shown presenting the book to Melissa Neeley, librarian at Brodhead Elementary School.
