Senator Edmunds has written newspaper article on the Philippine question. It covers less than three columns, double leaded. He apologizes at the close for not having been able to give the subject full consideration in a newspaper or magazine article; but he has ac-complished more than he could have done in a speech in the Senate. He boiled down the subject. He got down to the naked facts and arguments, and cut the fog out Mr. Edmunds should edit all the time, rather than orate

The sugar war is still going on, and the losses to the American Sugar Refining Company and its rivals, the Arbuckles, Mollenhauer and Dischers, are growing into millions.
