GUILTY!

Says the Jury in Case of Caleb Powers. Life Sentence was Given

FIRST TO SPEAK IN

The Jury Room Was a Republican—Changed Mind After Hearing the

EVIDENCE AGAINST POWERS

Youtsey Went into Trial Yesterday, Although Quite Sick

The case against Caleb Powers was given to the jury at 1 o'clock p. m., Saturday. Only fifty-three minutes were consumed in the jury room before they brought in a verdict of guilty against Powers, one of the accused accessories to the murder of William Goebel. Two ballots were taken, the first, ballot stood eleven for life imprisonment and one for hanging; the second ballot, all agreed on a life sentence. Powers will try for a new hearing.

The case against Henry E. Youtsey charged with the murder of William Goebel was called Monday, but continued until Thursday on account of the illness of the defendant. The attorney's for the defense asked that the case be continued until the October term of the court, on the grounds that Taylor and Finley were two very important witnesses and that they would be there to testify for Youtsey at that time, but Judge Cantrill immediately overruled the motion, saying: "There was no assurance that the two men would be here at time" Youtsey will in all probability be the last of the assassins to be tried at this term of the court.

Talks with jurors after they left the courtroom at Georgetown developed the fact that the 53 minutes consumed in the jury room was taken up mostly with reading aloud the instructions and waiting for Judge Cantrill to return.

When the jurymen entered their room, Juror Stone, the oldest man on the panel, was elected foreman. Juror Porter, the only Republican on the jury, was the first to speak. He said: "Gentlemen I am a Republican, and I have said that I did not believe Goebel's murder was the result of a conspiracy. I did not think Caleb Powers could be guilty, but I have heard the evidence, and I am convinced he is."

Others also made talks, and it is said one of the men on the jury intimated that he thought the death penalty ought to be inflicted. However, when a ballot was taken all 12 of the jurors voted for life imprisonment.

The jury which sat in the case was composed of eight Democrats, three anti-Goebel Democrats and one Republican, as follows: I. G. Stone, farmer, anti-Goebel; Harris Musselman, farmer, anti-Goebel;

W. Q. Tinder, farmer, anti-Goebel; A. W. Craft, merchant, Democrat; W. P. Munson, farmer, Democrat; W. H. Oldham, merchant, Democrat; George Murphy, Democrat; Ben Ford, farmer, Democrat; J. T. Mulberr, farmer, Democrat; J. T. Crosswait, carpenter, Democrat; J. C. Porter, school-teacher, Republican; Alonzo Kemper, farmer, Democrat.

One of the jurors said to-night that the jurymen were influenced in making up their verdict by many things in the evidence, but that some of the chief points were Powers's own admission on the stand that he organized the crowd of 1,200 armed mountain men which came to Frankfort January 15, his corroboration of parts of the testimony of Noakes, Golden and Culton, the evidence that he gave Youtsey the key, and that the shot was fired from his office.

At last the Powers case has been decided, and one of the most noted cases in the history of the State, is completed. It has proved beyond a doubt to all fair minded men, be they Jew or Gentile, that Gulton and Golden told the truth; and that one of the blackest conspiracies that ever polluted the fair name of any State has been unearthed, and that the accomplices in the murder of Gov. Goebel are many. From the evidence introduced accessories before the fact and accessories after the fact abide in almost every nook and corner of this grand old Commonwealth, and especially in the Mountain District. Long have the people of the Mountain part of Kentucky borne the name of being a blood thirsty set, and more clearly has the exposure of this diabolical plot proved the truth of statement. Born and reared in these mountains, we love so dearly, we are indeed made to feel sad to know that the finger of scorn will be pointed at us, let us turn any way we will. Years and years shall have come and gone; generation after generation shall have passed away; many of those who are living today will be known no more forever, yet the stain of the murder of our lamented Governor will yet remain to haunt those who claim the Mountain part of Kentucky as home.

It seems that we have an Indiana right at home in the shape of Harlan County. While Taylor, Finley and others crossed the river to seek protection under the wing of Gov. Mount, the other boys, including John Powers, who is practicing law, corresponding for newspapers, etc., are under the all protecting power of Harlan's brave Governor. We suggest that when a Democratic Governor of Indiana is elected this fall that Taylor et al. remove their headquarters in Harlan county home-

For sometime the subject of good roads has been ably discussed through the columns of the SIGNAL by Dick Varmon and others, and of course, we are row, and have been all the time, in full sympathy with everything they have said on the subject. We are at a loss to see how even the most skeptical could now have any doubts as to the wisdom of building pikes in our county. So far as we are individually concerned, we don't travel the roads a great deal, but we know there are a thousand ways in which we would all be benefited thereby. As one of our correspondents said: it's too plain a proposition to call for argument, but the thing to do is, keep it before the people, not let them rest 'till they get to business, and get at it in earnest. We have waded mud and water up to our knees long enough, and are just as much entitled to some of the comforts of life as any other people, it we have the energy to strive for them.

Col. T. C. CAMPBELL of the prosecution in the Powers case said: "The verdict proves that politics and murder may be regarded as mixed in Kentucky." Let us all hope that what he said may be true. It is a fact, that no honest man will deny, that in some parts of this State, juries are selected on account of their political views, and in many instances, they decide the case the way their political prejudices tell them to decide it. One cause of so much murder in our State is on account of politics entering so largely into the trials of the accused. No one can blame the lawyers for taking advantage of such a state of affairs; in fact, they have it to do in order to prove true to their clients. We are afraid Col. Campbell's words won't hold good in all parts of the State as they did at Georgetown. We know whereof we speak in this matter and it is a shame to the once fair name of our State.

This hottest campaign ever waged in Kentucky, will open up in a few days. On one side will be Mark Hanna with his hoodle, backed by the corporations of the whole United States, and Taylorism, while on the other side will be the great common people. Who are going to be victorious? Are the people of this proud old Commonwealth to sell their birth-rights for a mess of pottage? No, they will never do it, and when the smoke shall have rolled away next November, old Kentucky will show up with a Democratic majority of twenty thousand. We have a good, safe Democratic majority, beside what Republicans are going to come over and help us, and they are not a few. They can't nor won't stand imperialism by McKinley and Hanna in the United States, nor government by assassination in Kentucky.

The Powers have fought their way to Peking, though China is at peace with the world. This is a peculiar state of affairs, and if this is peace, what the fur-iv, is war should be declared. The Japs seem to be doing the principal part of the fighting, and they are paying themselves to be fighters too. It strikes us that if the Chinese don't want to be converted to the Christian religion, it is their business. At any rate we can't see the propriety in taking so many chances. Let's get our people out of there, and keep them out, 'till we can have some assurance of their safety. It is not an easy job to whip four hundred million people, even Chinamen, and the sooner we can honorably withdraw from there the better.

The Brown Democrats, with twenty-six in attendance, met in Louisville last week for the purpose of reviewing the situation, and seeing what they think is best to do, and the indications now are, that but little will be done. It is hoped that they will see the error of their way and return to their first love, as the election law is to be modified, the great bone of contention.

J. J. WILLIAMS DEAD.

J. J. Williams, aged 73, died of heart trouble at his home, in this place, at 6:45 a. m. Monday morning. For several months it had been a struggle between life and death with him. Not since his store house burned here three years ago, this summer, has he tried to engage in any active business, more than to look after his already large accumulated fortune.

Mr. Williams was the wealthiest man in the county and one of the few of our citizens who has succeeded in making an independent fortune. He leaves a wife and six children to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and a loving and affectionate father. Many of us have heard it said that there was nothing in his power that he was not willing to do for his family—his family's pleasure was his pleasure, and that, we can say of but few men. The funeral services took place from the Christian church at 8 a. m. Tuesday morning conducted by Rev. Coie, after which the burial took place in the cemetery.

A telegram from Alliance, Nebraska, late Sunday evening, brought to the friends, and relatives in this county, the sad news of the sudden and untimely death of B. C. Richardson. Mr. Richardson left this county early in the Spring and went to Alliance, Nebraska, where he erected a fine brick building and engaged in the grocery business. On last Sunday, a strolling musician by the name of Cline, came into his place of business accompanied by a lady. Cline was very boisterous, and during the conversation, the lady became offended at some remark made in the store, by whom it was made is not known, and Cline immediately started a fight, in which he was knocked down by Richardson. Cline and the woman were both put out side of the building and went off, every one thinking the trouble was over; but Cline soon secured a revolver and returned, hunted Richardson up and as soon as he found him, opened here, one shot taking effect in the stomach and the other in the shoulder. Richardson died Sunday night. Cline was arrested and placed in jail. Mr. Richardson's remains were brought to Berea, his old home, Wednesday morning, where the burial took place Wednesday afternoon. Richardson leaves a wife and six children besides a host of friends to mourn his loss.

The cases of Henry Youtsey, charged with the murder of Gov. Goebel, and Hollan Whitaker, John Davis and Tailow Dick Combs, indicted as accessories, were continued until October 2. Youtsey was too ill to stand trial now and the attorneys agreed to let the other cases go over. Whitaker, Combs and Davis were granted bail in the sum of $3,000 each, which they gave and were released.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

OF COD-LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES

should always be kept in the house for the following reasons:

FIRST—Because, if any member of the family has a hard cold, it will cure it.

SECOND—Because if the children are delicate and sickly, it will make them strong and well.

THIRD—Because, if the father or mother is losing flesh and becoming thin and emaciated, it will build them up and give them flesh and strength.

FOURTH—Because it is the standard remedy in all throat and lung affections.

No household should be without it. It can be taken in summer as well as in winter.

The second Annual Meeting of Middleboro Fair and Carnival will be held this year, Sept. 12, 13, 14, and 15th. The affair promises to eclipse, in every way, last year's fair. A new half mile tract has been built, besides many other improvements on the grounds. The racing promises to be a feature, as good purses have been hung up, and several strings of horses will be there to compete. This year the amusement feature will consist of several high-class shows, such as "a flying girl," "a slide for life," balloon ascension, parachute jump, Oriental American dancing girls, Tribe of Arab Acrobats, big men and little women, besides many other Midway features. One premium of ten dollars in gold is to be given to the best country rider. One fare for the round trip on all railroads.
