LEVEL GREEN

No stir in the young milk market yet, tho' we have some pretty good ones that need selling.

James Broyles bought a large lot of calves heretofore at prices ranging from six to eleven dollars per calf.

The R. R. surveyors are now camped with us, looking out, surveying, and we hope, locating the connecting link in the Louisville Southern, but of course I can't tell how it will pan out.

An intelligent and I could say a handsome lot of young ladies from Brodhead, chaperoned by Mrs. J. T. Cherry, gave us a short call on last Sabbath, while visiting the surveyors' camp. Call again ladies and make your stay longer with us.

R. L. Brown, of Somerset, has been with his sick brother for a week, and while here issued a call for a meeting of the democrats to consider matters of importance to the party. Let us have a full attendance and then get the part of "wise men."

Since the rains came, raising vegetation, trade in live stock has revived too to a short extent, but we have too many live brutes in our hands yet for the short crops, and our wretched prophets are predicting a long hard winter, to which must be taken in consideration.

The "institoot" as Prof. called it, has come and passed into history, and the most that can be said for it, is "It has passed." While we love the institute and have spent many pleasant and profitable days there, and even learn something when we attend, yet we very much doubt the propriety of such an institution at this time of year.

There is much sickness of one sort and another, in our neighborhood. Now, Samuel Brown has been confined for a fortnight, with a severe fever. Aunt "Liz" Thompson, one of the best women of earth, was called to take her will, and she died, and she was a few days since. She was the mother of 12 children, all of whom lived to be grown except one, and eleven of those are still living.

The methodists have just closed a meeting of great length at the Chapel, where men, and women too, profess "Sanctification." What is sanctification? Now I believe in it, because the Bible teaches it, but I have never been able to see and realize it as some other do; of profess to do, but then I'm only a "Campbellite," and perhaps have been taught some errors.

The news of the assassination of the President caused quite a shock in our town, and had the act been committed in Epsilon Roller, the perpetrator of the hellish deed would not have lived one short hour afterward—we still feel the sting, shame and disgrace of some kindred crimes. Summary justice will have more effect on such cattle than anything else, and go further to deter others from committing like deeds. No such a feat as the man who shot McKinley should ever be honored by a legal trial or executed in the usual way. All proved anarchists should be driven at once from our country, or sent to the penitentiary, for they will continue to give us trouble just so long as they are among us.

BUCK VERNON.
P. S.—Our son, Sam, somewhat improved at this writing (Wednesday), and he hopes to be in school again soon. R. V. II.

Take the Signal and get all the news all the time. From all over county and State.

COMMENTS OF DIFFERENT PAPERS ON OUR DEAD PRESIDENT WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

William McKinley did more than any other President to dissipate sectional feeling.—Omaha Bee.

His administration will live in history as one of the most auspicious in the annals of the Republic.—St. Louis Star.

The American character was honored by his life. In purity of mind and purpose he stands next to the immortal Lincoln.—St. Paul Globe.

History will record that under President McKinley the country attained its highest degree of prosperity. The foundation of this prosperity is an honest and stable currency, and for defending and safeguarding this his Administration deserves and will receive lasting credit and honor.—New York World.

America still produces men of the type of Abraham Lincoln, and has the discernment to select them for the highest trust. The President is dead but his memory will long be cherished by those who survive him.—Philadelphia Record.

He who so left his impress on his times the shadow of William McKinley will rest on the republic until his country has gained the fullest extent of that glorious promise which was the delight of the dead President to paint.—Kansas City Times.

Mr. McKinley was a man of strong and solid mind, if not of brilliant intellectuality, and history will give him high rank among our Presidents.—Baltimore Sun.

Let us of the South mourn for him today, for we owe him love and reverence.—New Orleans Picayune.

There is no blot on the escutcheon there is no spoiled page in the long history.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

When a President succeeds in practically forcing the whole world to his way of thinking he must needs be reckoned in history as a great President.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

He was lulled into his long sleep by the music of "The Union Forever" as it came softly by his dwelling from East and the West, from the North and the South.—Chicago Post.

Whether his fate was to couple itself with Lincoln's, stricken down at the very threshold of a second term of office, or he was to be spared to imitate the example of Washington and retire, his work completed, amid the plaudits of his countrymen, he could safely count on the impartial judgment of history to link his name with those of two great Presidents to whom beyond all others this country owes the impulses which have made it an indivisible and sovereign Union.—New York Times.

He did more to unify his party than all of his party had done before him, and wherever he visited the South he was made to feel in numerous manifestations the gratitude of Southern hearts.—Atlanta Journal.

The simple truth is all that he could have asked for himself, and that has been expressed best, perhaps, by Senator Hoar, who described Mr. McKinley as the best beloved of our Presidents.—Detroit Free Press.

It can scarcely be denied that Mr. McKinley was the most popular President who has ever filled the executive office.—Montgomery Advertiser.

The nation mourns for McKinley, the South laments at his death, the whole world was weeping and sobbing nation.—Atlanta Constitution.

Splendid as he was as a statesman, inspiring as a political leader, magnetic as a man, great as was his public career, the finest and the noblest side of McKinley's character was the devotion he showed as a husband.—Buffalo Express.

McKinley stepped into the skies from the summit points of accomplished finalities.—Brooklyn Eagle.

This history will give him a place among the wisest and most beneficent and most devoted of our rulers can be predicted with absolute safety.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

This is no hour for an attempt at a measure of the man, who must stand in years to come as a typical American of his time.—Manchester Union.

Neither our times nor coming times will see in the White House a kindlier, purer, more lovable gentleman.—Hartford Courant.

He has laid the country under such a debt as insures him a place among the greatest men who have ever served it.—Washington Star.

He will take his place among the powerful Presidents, that greatness of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, William McKinley.

As Washington stood alone in the crisis of the nation's birth, as Lincoln stood alone in the crisis of the nation's threatened death, so McKinley stood alone in the crisis of the nation's growth, a milder term, but a period fraught with equal terror.—St. Paul Dispatch.

History is bound to rate the McKinley Administration one of the most successful in our history and to rate McKinley one of our really great Presidents.—Hartford Post.

Land, Stock and Crop

GOV. BECKHAM'S PROCLAMATION.

FRANKFORT, KY., Sept. 14.—Gov. Beckham issued the following proclamation this morning:

To the heads of the various State Departments—Gentlemen: A great sorrow has fallen upon our country, and the people to-day are mourning the loss of their honored President, who died this morning at 4:15, the victim of an assassin's bullet; and a mark of respect to his memory, and in order to show our grief, I ask that the building be closed during this day and all official business be suspended.

Respectfully,
J. C. W. BECKHAM,
Governor.

The request was immediately complied with.

The Governor later issued an order to the Adjutant General to have all flags of State buildings placed at half mast and directed that the Coxes building be draped in black, which was done.

LIVINGSTON

W. C. and John A. Mullins were to Mt. Vernon, Monday. Mrs. Alice McGuire returned home from Paris, Saturday. Miss Martha Ham, of Mt. Vernon, is visiting Mrs. Sam Ward. Mrs. Grace Ward and children, of Atamont, are visiting relatives here. Judge Morrow, of Somerset, was the guest of Bill Dillion Saturday and Sunday. Miss Effie Meadows, of Pine Hill, is the guest of her sister Mrs. Lawrence Rose. Mr. and Mrs. James Tucker are visiting the Tucker and Stevens families, near Maywood. Mrs. John Shearer, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. McGuire returned to Maywood Monday. Bettie, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wix Dillion is very low, at this writing and is not expected to recover. Mr. and Mrs. D. S. McKinney and Mrs. Sue Mullins, were in Cincinnati a few days this week, attending The Fall Festival. Misses Lela and Myrtle Hendron, of Henderson, Madison Co., who have been the guests of Mrs. Lewis Dillion, returned home Wednesday. Mrs. Bettie Broddus, of Lincoln Co., was called here Wednesday, on account of the serious illness of her grand-daughter, Bettie Dillion. Misses Luva Herrin and Mattie Billy returned home Monday, after a pleasant visit with Mrs. Graves and other friends of this place. Miss Beacie Maddox, who was the guest of her Aunt Mrs. J. T. Blackburn, and Mrs. W. F. Toombs, returned to her home in Knox Co., Saturday.

SERVICES

In obedience to the proclamation made by President Roosevelt, as well as the Governor of our State, she pleases a whole, regardless of religious faith or political belief, met at the courthouse yesterday at 11 o'clock, where appropriate services, conducted by the Rev. A. E. Ewers, were held in memory of our late President, William McKinley. Dr. Ewers spoke for about thirty minutes in a most pleasing and interesting way, dwelling extensively upon the character and greatness of the late President.

DINNER

Mr. W. R. Ridger, our first class and up-to-date hotel keeper, prepared a delightful dinner yesterday, in honor of the local bar and visiting attorneys. Those present were: Judge T. Z. Morrow, Judge J. W. Alcorn, Judge G. W. McClure, Judge R. G. W. Hanks, Dr. P. A. Pennington, C. C. Williams, J. W. Brown, M. C. Miller, Judge J. B. Hahn, Dr. A. O. Lovell, Commonwealth's Attorney J. N. Sharp, L. W. Schwaner, E. E. Albright, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Beharum and Dr. and Mrs. Ewers. To say that it was greatly enjoyed by all would be untrue and to Mr. and Mrs. Ridger no due credit from this most delightful and delicious dinner.

MISTAKE - In our last issue, we stated that Ed Jones, who was killed at London, was in a crap game, but it was a mistake, and Jeff McQueen was the Rockcastle county man, engaged in the game and got into trouble with Early, of Corbin, and Jones only stepped up to prevent it.

CIRCUIT COURT

Circuit Court convened Monday, Judge Morrow on the bench, Commonwealth's Attorney Sharp at his post, and a large array of lawyers seated in the court room, with very little business to do, and but little doze. Up to today not a single jury case has been tried.

GRAND JURY

A. E. Albright, J. Cash, J. E. Craig, J. T. Proctor, David Preston, W. H. Cummins, D. L. Sigmam, Moses McNew, Owen Allen, W. M. Dowell, W. M. McHaigie, Allen Keck.

PETITE JURY

John Adams, W. F. DeBorde, Richard Pike, A. C. Towery, W. M. McKinney, J. N. Griffin, J. H. Preston, J. C. Warren, Henry Reynolds, J. M. Lear, W. M. Payne, W. B. Sigmam, J. J. Purcell, Jas Dolan, J. F. Dooley, R. C. Adams, G. A. Proctor, Squire Thompson, Mart Hix, H. C. Kirby, R. L. Bray, J. C. Rymel, W. M. Hayes and O. G. Black.

But few cases were called for trial Monday or Tuesday, owing to the fact that the docket was extremely light this Court. Emma Azbill was brought before the court on a charge of malicious cutting and shooting; was given bond in the sum of $500, which she was unable to give and was sent to jail. Harpo Mize charged with murder for killing Robert Whitaker, was allowed bail in the sum of $1,000 which he failed to give and was placed in the custody of the jailer. The case against Joe Mize for gambling and W. M. Grant for carrying concealed weapons, were both continued. Robert Payne was fined $25 and ten days in jail for carrying concealed weapons, Sam Bryant, Jack Hansel, Jim and Harris White were each fined $25 for gambling.

ATTORNEY ROBERT A.
FRIEDRICH'S EX-PERIENCE IN ALASKA.

For something over two years General Robert A. Friedrich was United States Attorney for Alaska, and during that time convicted more criminals than all his predecessors combined since the Territory came under the sway of civil government in 1884. The result of his labors is that life and property in Alaska today are said to be safer than in any State or Territory west of the Mississippi River.

General Friedrich writes this account of the Horton murder, and as he was the prosecuting attorney at that trial he may justly be considered as one in authority to know whereof he speaks and not the man to be other than an impartial judge.
In this respect his story is witness for itself.

The murder of Horton and his young wife on an island in the wild Alaskan waters is certainly one of the most fiendish and remarkable in the history of crime. None the-less interesting is the character of Horton. His evolution from a red-handed savage to a God-fearing man is made consistent through the virile pen of General Friedrich.

To millions of readers Alaska, with its 500,000 square miles of territory, with a population of only eleven human beings to a hundred square miles, is a veritable land of mystery, unknown and unknowable.

Within this imperial domain are countless thousands of acres, consisting of mountains and valleys, upon which the foot of a human being has never trod and over which eternal and everlasting silence has held unchallenged sway since that earliest morning of time when the choral symphonies of the stars first rang out through celestial space.

The coast lines of Southern Alaska are broken at intervals of from one hundred to five hundred miles apart by villages and hamlets, whose inhabitants daily look on mountains which no one of them has ever scaled or explored nor has the remotest idea of ever attempting to do so. Even to those who have dwelt for years along its waterways or have prospected the streams and foothills for gold its great interior is a terra incognita.

The authentic history of Alaska has never been written. We are as yet uncertain as to its boundary lines. We paid $7,500,000 for it and received as evidence of our title an instrument which, if the transaction had been between individuals, would have been denomi-ated a "quit-claim deed."

The Emperor of all the Russias—so the instrument reads—through his Privy Councillor and Envoy Extraordinary, Edward de Stoeckl, on the 30th day of March, 1867, affixed his signature to a paper which in the parlance of diplomatic conveyancing is called a "Treaty of Cession," whereby his Majesty the Emperor conveyed to the United States of America "all of Russia's rights, franchises and privileges in said territory or dominion and appurtenances thereto." The territory conveyed is described as follows:
"Commencing at a point in the parallel of 54 degrees 40 minutes north latitude, and between the 131st and 152 degree west longitude (meridian of Greenwich), the said line shall ascend to the north along the channel called Portland Channel as far as the point of the continent where it strikes the 56th degree of north latitude; from the last mentioned point the line of demarcation shall follow the summit of the mountains situated parallel to the coast so far as the intersection of the 142nd degree west longitude (of the same meridian) and finally from the said point of intersection the said meridian line of the 142nd degree in its prolungation as far as the frozen ocean."

And this is mostly all we know of Alaska. It is no wonder, then, that fertile and elastic imaginations, when their owners attempt to write anything Alaskan, reveal wildly and madly when turned loose in these practically limitless realms.

I recently read a story in the June number of a well known publication, which goes far to strengthen this theory, and which largely influence me to give to the readers of the Sunday Call the true history of what under the circumstances and conditions was the most remarkable case in criminal history of the Northern Pacific Coast, namely the murder of Florence and Burt Horton by Alaska Indians in 1899, and their subsequent trial, conviction and sentence.

For the benefit of those who have read, or may read, the story referred to, I will explain that it is entitled "The True Story of Ke-beth, the Aleut."

As United States Attorney for the District of Alaska it devolved upon me to prosecute Jim Hanson —the "Kebeth" of the aforesaid story, and his companions in crime, for the cruel murder of that unfortunate young couple.

Burt and Florence Horton were natives of the little town of Eugene, in the State of Oregon, and at the time of their death had been married less than one year. A few weeks after their marriage they migrated to Skagway. He was 27 years of age, and a member of high standing of the orders of Elks and Knights of Pythias. She was 19 years of age, and a devout member of the Episcopal church. From Skagway they went to White Pass, a camp at the head of the terrible trail of that name, over which thousands toiled, and many died, in the early rush to the Klondike country. At White Pass, during the summer months of 1899, the Hortons kept a little restaurant, and many a worn and discouraged miner went on his way more encouraged and with a lighter heart after he had broken his fast at the little eating house near the summit, where Florence, Horton, with her handsome girlish face and winsome manner, administered to his wants.

In the fall of 1899 they returned to Skagway and took up their residence with Mr. and Mrs. Sessions, whom they had known years before. About the first of October Mrs. Horton being in delicate health, her husband concluded to take an outing and spend a few weeks hunting and fishing at the head of Sullivan Island, on Lynn Canal. He accordingly purchased a small boat and such necessary articles, including a tent, as would make camp life comparatively comfortable.
