The insurance men who met in Baltimore estimated the loss at $100,000,000 against $20,000,000 paid by newspapers a short time after the fire.

Other conservative estimates make the loss still lower, or not exceeding that of Boston, which was $10,000,000.

The fire was $10,000,000. Many insurance companies were forced to the wall by the Chicago fire, but such companies are stronger and better equipped than those, and not much fear of failure is felt as a result of the Baltimore fire.

In a remote settlement, known as Culbertson, beyond the Beech River, in Nelson county, lives Jas. Culver, the oldest man in Kentucky.

Culver is one hundred and eight years old, and comes of a family noted for its longevity and hardihood.

For over a century Mr. Culver has dwelt in the same locality, and—astonishingly—his great-grandfather is in full possession of all his faculties, as well as the most perfect health.

His physical strength is something marvellous, and he is able to perform as much work as a day, as a man half his age.
