Col. R. M. Jackson, banker of London, a Democrat of great popularity, will most probably be the representative of Laurel and Rockcastle counties in the next Legislature. It is a cinch if he yields to the pressure that is being made up in him by both Republicans and Democrats on a tie of the race.

It seems that the Police Judge's race will assume rather interesting shape before the Ides of Nov. have passed. Rev. B. S. Davaul, nominated by the convention two weeks ago, and Jud Adams, the present Judge, who will go on the ticket by petition, will fight it to finish.

The campaign is waxing warmer with each succeeding day. The candidates on both sides are in the field almost day and night.

Judge S. D. Lewis and County Attorney L. W. Bethuram are the principal speakers for the Republican ticket.

Atty. John W. Brown, who is speaking every night in the week, is proving himself a great campaigner.

Judge P. D. Cölyer is working hard for the Independent ticket.

PAPER READ BY DR. A. G. LOVELL BEFORE THE FOURTH STATE DEVELOPMENT CONVENTION.

Rockcastle county is situated in the foot hills of the Appalachian Mountains in the edge of the great Appalachian coal fields about midway between Louisville, Ky., and Knoxville, Tenn., on the Knoxville division of the L. & N. rail road, and the K. C. division of the L. & N. railroad, passes through our county which gives us direct communication with Cincinnati, also. About one-third of its area is in the Carboniferous, and the remaining two thirds in the sub carboniferous formation. All the rock appearing in the surface of sedimentary origin and their dip from Northwest to Southeast is about 22 feet to the mile. The general altitude is 900 feet to 1200 feet above the sea level, but many knobs and ridges reach 1400 to 1575 feet above the sea level.

The North and Western portion have a fertile limestone with good clay bottom, which makes fertilizers profitable in all crops. Small fruit is well everywhere in the county. A variety of raspberry known as the perpetual bearer originated near Mt. Vernon on the county seat. Strange to say, these vines continue to bear fruit from June to November.

The Southern and Eastern portions are represented on the geological map as belonging to the carboniferous period. This section is much more rugged and broken and many of the small streams flow through deep channels or gorges. Some times going from the bed of the stream to the top of the adjacent hill you will find a difference of 600 feet elevation. However these declivities afford fine opportunity to study the different strata or formations and locate those of most commercial interest.

There is a belt of St. Louis limestone extending across the county from Northeast to Southwest is about 3 miles wide, and its combined strata are about 300 feet thick. Samples of this stone taken from different ledges and different localities analyze 97 to 99 percent carbonate of lime.

Above this limestone and along the edge of the coal measure are vast beds of clay. These beds vary in thickness, in area, and in purity. There is one, however, worthy of special mention. It rests on a smooth, hard bottom, and has firm, hard slate roof over it, which makes it easily obtained by drift mining. The vein is from 3 to 4 feet thick, and the average is without a crack being broken extensive. The clay is marketed in the parent on record. It contains no tannic acid, and only traces of potash, iron and sodium are found in it. It is very refractory. The filter which attaches in our coal measure consists in the thickness of the vein, but in the rest of the fields, but is in the character of the coal. Our coal is very high in volatile matter, and by analysis is identical with the variety of the W. Va., coal that is shipped to some point in Michigan to be used as fuel in the manufacture of portland cement. Associated with this coal clay and carbonate of lime is a siliceous shale, the exact composition of the lime in the manufacture of portland cement, in fact everything necessary in the making cement is bunched together on the same property. And there are several such properties.

A few test wells have been drilled in the county, two of which produced strong flow of gas, and three gave a good showing of oil. With a pure strong limestone and a supply of natural gas, the manufacture of lime gas might be made a paying investment. Two of these in the county are known to contain asphaltum. The formation consists of a strata of clear sharp sand 20 to 40 feet thick, saturated with bitumen. This formation is between two coal seams, and the slate over the lower coal seam will burn with a flame until the hydro-carbon is consumed. The famous Rockcastle freestone covers many miles in extent. It is found in tw ledges, varying from 4 to 12 feet thick, and consists of three grades, or more properly, three colors, buff, blue and olive; We think this the finest building stone in Kentucky. It is very popular in all of the large cities of the North and East. It needs more capital to push it.

When the mob appeared at the jail, no one was to be seen on the streets, and the Jailor, G. P. Johnson and his night guard, Luke P. Blevens, were in the office of the jail, which is on the front corner of the courthouse square. The jailer says that there in all about 100 men or more; that pistols were leveled at him and he was ordered to deliver Bowers to them, and to raise any alarm. After some resistance the latter opened the door and then the doors to the lower cage.

When called by the men Bowers came out. The mob tied his hands behind his back, placed the rope around his neck and led him out in his clothes, but not his shoes. When Bowers saw the men he cried, "My God, I see the rope," and asked for time to pray, but was told that he did not see George Farris time to pray.

The men were disguised with white caps over their faces. They were armed with guns, pistols, axes, crowbars and dynamite. They were stationed all about the jail and several shots were fired. An alarm was raised until the man was hanged.

SOME OBJECTIONS TO GOVERNMENT RATE MAKING.

October, 4th, 1905. Richard Olney, of Boston, former Secretary of State to President Cleveland, has an article on "rail and rate making in this country" in the North American Review, which is attracting much attention. Mr. Olney is decidedly opposed to government ownership of railroads.

But when government ownership of the railroads is seriously considered, not dual political systems as at once seen to present problems of the gravest character. Every railroad of consequence is engaged in two kinds of transportation in transportation that begins and ends in a single State, and in transportation that runs beyond State lines. Hence, if government ownership of railroads is regarded as the inevitable price of economic recovery, the first question is, which government is that to own the railroads of the States of the United States?

Mr. Olney declares that government rate-making raises issues which concern the division of power between the several States, and the Federal Government, which has not been fully and finally passed upon by the national supreme court, and he says of it submitted to that tribunal. Mr. Olney estimates that a quarter of a century ago, would in all human probability have been determined adversely to the jurisdiction of the general government.

In his opinion if it is competent for the national government, under the commerce clause of the constitution, to own and operate all the great railroads of the country, it must be also competent for it to own or control and operate all the great highways of the country.

"The rate-making power," says Mr. Olney, "is the very essence of the ownership of the transportation business. In this respect the transportation business is like any other, and the severance of the ownership of a business from the power to determine the terms of that business is impracticable in point of fact, it is deemed also impossible in point of law."

Admittedly these legal and economic objections Mr. Olney does not believe in the practicability of governmental rate-making. He says that the railroads will find themselves in the vital matter of their charges not by their private owners, but by two public bodies—one representative of the local interests and the other of national interest, and both antagonistic to the private owner concerned. Under these conditions the rate-making is like anything else, just, reasonable, equitable rate-making becomes impossible, and a situation is created intolerable alike to the public and to the public and the same of course—unless the whole scheme of rate-making is given up, and the railroads are left to their own devices, it is given up.

The citizens of London and Laurel county met in mass convention in the court house Tuesday and adopted resolutions condemning the action of the mob. A grand jury has been empowered to investigate the matter, and every effort will be made to indict and punish the guilty parties.

Because of this I do trust and hope that my friends over the county will do all they honorably can to help the candidates on the Independent ticket for the office of Sheriff of said county, for which I should ever be very grateful to those who led me a helping hand in this race. LEVEL GREEN

Our citizens are very busy now, supplying their coal houses with fuel which will soon be needed. Molasses making is about over and now comes the corn gathering. Wade Brown has returned from the sanitarium, Stanford and reports that he is very much improved. He is now able to resume his work as teacher. Buck Varmon, the well known scribe from this place and who wrote an article to the first SIGNAL, ever published, is gradually growing weaker, but says he still has hope. The health of our community is better than usual, in general, in ways. We are doing well selling, hiring and moving among our citizens. Sam Vanhook will soon migrate to Misont. John Finnam, one of our energetic farmers is thinking of returning to Stegg's creek from whence he came. -Helen county men are returning to Pulaski county, looking out on a farm. While our own good citizens are hunting "richer pickings" in the "wild West," energetic farmers are flocking to fill their place. Among others who contemplate purchasing is a lad who is on a trade with Henry Catron, of means, and who says he will have a sale of his property to-day preparatory to going to Kansas. -H. C. Borington reports that he will be returning to the city to do work for the road. There were an election every year the contest between the Independent and Republican candidates is growing very warm in this section of the county. It seems that the independent will receive a large majority of the Democratic vote and a large Percentage of Republican. The good sober voters of the county must see to it that they vote honest and upright officials and men who are not afraid of their duty, regardless of ticks they are running under. Their skill seems to be a large amount of an ink in the woods as there are several wagons will go to the station every day from "Buckle roads." Mrs. Broughton who attended the State's United Sunday School Convention in Pulaski reports the meeting a success. Otis latcher is now hauling potatoes instead of manipulating the air. Wade Brown is now in the hospital at Mt. Vernon Tuesday. Dr. Price says he still enjoys the life of his hands, which follow the faces around these hills in his pursuit.

BROWN MEMORIAL SCHOOL

Believers in the strength of numbers will, of a surprise, probably access for Brown Memorial, when they learn this year opens with six or eight pupils and remember that last year began with seventeen. The first night of the year was on the chair strength of school. Its true power lies in the earnestness of the students. So it will mean much to the thoughtful people to know that the teachers frankly say, they have never been in a school where the pupils were more zealous to learn, or more willing to be taught, than they are here. Speaking of the instructors, our friends say that the students face strong reasons to thank Miss Taylor and good fortune for securing such a well equipped faculty. Miss Demorest, of the Primary department, holds a degree from the Michigan Teachers College. This occurred will be referred to the state school teachers, who are attending the Normal class at Christmas as they will thus have an opportunity to become acquainted with the most approved teaching methods. Mrs. Leonard, who has charge of the fifth grade, is a graduate of Wellesey. -It will be remembered that the graduates of Hamilton College, Lexington, have, just within the last year, been admitted to the Freshman Class at Wellesey. Miss Henderson, of East Cleveland, Ohio, instructor in the seventh and eighth grade, received her college training at Wells College, N. York. Miss Siscoes, who teaches in the High School, comes from Boston University. Miss Jordan is from Arkansas. She has studied piano and voice under leading instructors in the West and East. During the St. Louis exposition she sang in the Arkansas Building. Miss Smith, who has charge of the dormitory home comes most highly recommended from Adrian College, Michigan, where she was matron during the last school year. The dormitory, by the way, is, despite Miss Taylor's imperfect in one respect. It is not large enough. It held eight students and has been turned away for lack of room. Miss Taylor, however, feels quite cheerful over it, and hopes that the number and earnestness of the pupils may so increase, that all succeeding dormitories may prove similarly imperfect.

BRODHEAD

Mrs. C. Leece returned home after a two weeks' visit to homefolks at Rockhold. She was accompanied home by her sister, -Miss Anna Peters, who has been employed by Cramer Smith Lumber Co., as stenographer, has returned to her home at Owensville, much to the regret of some of our boys -Every body was much surprised Thursday morning when they awoke and found that Lester B. Hilton and Miss Clyde Cass had eloped to Jacksboro, Tenn., where to kind hearts were made beat as one. Lester Hilton is one of our nicest boys. He is 23 years of age and a son of Harry Hilton also agent for L. & N. Railroad Company at Pine Hill, Ky. -Miss Cass is a daughter of J. R. Cash, a farmer in this place. She is one Kentucky's fairest maid and was loved by everyone that knew her. She will be missed a great deal in our society circles as well as in many other towns, and we heartily congratulate Lester on attaining such a lovable girl. The Brodhead Young Men's Club entertained at a reception at 11th Street in honor of the Blue Devil Society (The Young Ladies Club). Refreshments of all kind were served and a fine time was had until the wee hours of early dawn. Those registering were Misses Maud and Francis Forbes, L. A. Sasse and John Eva Hilton, L. A. Durban, Hamble McFay and Henry Anderson. -Miss Bettie Hicks left Sunday for Mt. Vernon where she entered school Monday. The party at the "Pinky" Hotel given last Saturday night by the ladies of Arthur Mahan of Williamsburg, was largely attended and highly enjoyed by all present. Light refreshments were served at the proper hour. The speaking last Saturday night was fine and a large crowd of attendants. -G. High Dubbs is visiting in Knoxville this week.
