THE NEW WEST POINT.

STRENUOUS LIFE PROVIDED FOR THE YOUNG CADETS AND FUTURE OFFICERS.

Up to Make Men Quick and Self-Reliant across America, being Made to Institution—Social Life a Feature

The United States Military Academy at West Point has long enjoyed an international reputation as the finest training institution in the world, and its prestige will be considerably enhanced upon the completion of the new scheme of improvements now under way and upon which Congress will expend more than seven million

GUARD MOUNT AT WEST POINT.

Dollars are they are fully completed in the year 1912. Already the creation of the "New West Point" has progressed far enough to prove how beneficial will be the undertaking.

While the primary purpose of Uncle Sam's unique institution on the banks of the Hudson River is, of course, to educate young men for positions as officers of the United States Army, the importance which has won for it world-wide fame is due to the marvelous efficiency of the mental and physical training without regard to the use to which the knowledge is to be put. It is in the interest of this ambition to graduate perfect specimens of American manhood that the costly improvements here being carried forward.

Nearly Trebles Present Capacity.

For one thing the new buildings will provide accommodations for 1,200 cadets, instead of for 450 as at present, and these new structures will also include a new gymnasium, riding hall, academic building, cadet headquarters, etc., as well as a handsome hotel for

The social side of life at West Point has unquestionably proven one of the greatest attractions of this unique school, admission to which is sought by young men in all parts of the country. Ordinarily the West Pointer has only half an hour daily—the interval following supper—but he can suit his own convenience after noon however, the lads are freed from two o'clock until 6.30 o'clock, the supposed "Wednesday" there is almost freedom from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until 6.30 o'clock. As such times the famous "Platina" Walk, where so many romances have had their beginning is a meet for a considerable portion of the young men. On Saturday evenings from 8.10 to 10.30 o'clock there is dancing.

When They Camp Out. In the eyes of most of the cadets is the happiest portion of the year at West Point is the summer interval when the whole battalions go into camp in the wooded area on the north side of the Academy grounds, remaining under canvas from June until September. During this season visitors are especially numerous and the social life at the Point is at its best. The cadets at West Point are in very truth picked men, for not only is admission gained by passing a very severe entrance examination, but there are examinations scattered all through the four-year course, and if a cadet fails to come up to the mark in any of these periodical tests he is almost certain to be dropped from the rolls. Indeed, so severe is this weeding-out process that only about one-half of the young men who enter West Point succeed in graduating.

A Democratic Institution.

One phase of conditions at West Point which is calculated to make every American proud of the institution is the splendid democracy which prevails. Special privileges are unknown at the Point. The boy whose father is a multi-millionaire wears the same grade of clothing, sleeps in the same kind of a bed and eats food that is precisely on a par with that furnished to the cadet who started his life with a bootlick. Each student at the Military Academy receives from Uncle Sam the sum of five hundred dollars a year and out of this he must purchase all his necessities at the "store." If he spends more than the allowance such excess is debited which is only charged against him and must be liquidated from his future pay.

Is Now Looking for an Irish Castles. Wants a Local Premier—Native American Might Hold Such a Position.

The Duchess of Roxburgh, nee Goelet of New York, after many fruitless attempts to find a suitable residence in Ireland, has entrusted the matter to Lord Barrymore, who married, as his second wife, the widow of Arthur Post of New York, and thereby, quite naturally, greatly improved his financial position. This is one reason he is partial to American women and willing to do all in his power to assist them. Few men know Ireland better than he does. At one time he was one of the best hated men in the country, and diligent students of Irish history with-

It is a very pretty little bit of characteristic history that Duncan Forbes, the historian, records in reference to this succession of James Innes as fifth duke that "his pedigree of thirty descendants proceeds regularly from 1153, and that in all their long line the inheritance never went to a woman, that none of them ever married an ill wife, and that no one ever suffered for their debts."

THE DUCHESS OF ROXBURGH.

In the last quarter of a century would say that it is a wonder he is still here. He is looking out for a house for the Duchess in picturesque Galway. A fine mansion, constructed of Irish granite, and situated between the sea and the mountains on the Midland and Great Western Railways, has been projected in this corner of the kingdom. The estate attached to the house is of little value, but the Duchess and her husband are beautiful. There is plenty of fishing and shooting in the neighborhood, and the weather is always fine. It attracts many distinguished folk.

Roxburgh Castle is the English residence of the Duchess. It is a large and imposing building, with a long and narrow facade, and a central tower. The Duchess is a woman of high rank and is known for her beauty and her love of the country. She has a large estate in Galway, and she is looking for a house to live in there. The Duchess is a very popular figure in Ireland, and she is known for her generosity and her love of the poor.

He Broke up the Meeting. A temperance lecturer, speaking in Kerri, N. H., reminded his hearers of the story of Dives and Lazarus. He pointed out how, when Dives was in his bed, he did not ask for beer or whisky, but for one drop of water.

Dancing is Considered a Necessary Adjunct to the "Point." "Now, my friends," said the lecturer, "that does that show from the book of the last instantly applied. It shows where you are, and it shows where you are going to."

VAST PETRIFIED FORESTS.

ANCIENT VOLCANIC UPEVALVES IN ARIZONA DISCLOSE HUGE STONE LOGS.

Far-Flung Admantine Forms Millions of Years Old—Preserved by the Government Against Spoil—natural wonders.

Once they were a forest of stately pines grown to a height far beyond that attained by the trees of today. They passed, and through some unexplainable act of nature they were uprooted, prostrated to the ground, probably buried beneath the earth by volcanic action and the snows of glacial days. Next came the waters of floods, flowing over the pine trunks and covering them with layers of the green forest were swept away. Past periods of time passed, the seas advanced, retreating, but their waves did not touch the earth, and the petrified forest was left in its original position. The rocks of the earth were, and are, still in the same position as when the forest was living. The petrified forest is a natural wonder, and it is a great attraction for people from all parts of the world.

stone. The mineral wood is converted into sheldony, opals and agates, and many of the pieces closely approach the condition of Jasper and onyx. The degree of hardness attained by them is such that they make an excellent quality of enamel.

yellow, blue-purple and lavender; and each piece has every natural appearance of wood, though all are as hard as steel. Here and there sections show signs of decay arrested by the peculiar progress which controlled the slow transition to mineral. The traveler sees small chips upon the ground, and on picking them up, finds them as heavy as so-much lead and as dense as glass. The Government, which allows big visitors to carry off little pieces of this character, prohibits the removal of any large blocks.

Huge Stone Log Bridge.

But after all, the climax of all this scenic beauty is the "Natural Bridge," consisting of a great petrified trunk lying across a canyon 20 feet deep, and forming a natural foot-bridge on which men may easily cross. At the point where the bridge crosses the canyon is about 30 feet wide, but the trunk lies diagonally, and measures 44 feet between the points at which it rests on the sides of the canyon. The total length of the tree exposed is 111 feet, and measures where it crosses the center of the canyon, 10 feet in circumference.

In the past few years the log has begun to show signs of yielding to the peculiar inclination of all petrified trees to crack up into incense pieces; in fact, in several places transverse cracks have already appeared. The Government, in order to preserve

It seems that it is rather a hard matter for some people to get it fixed in their mind just what the game law is, as regards rabbits and squirrels. The law only applies here from Sept. 1st to 31st, and during that time it is illegal to kill any of the game, but all the other time of the year, kill all the rabbits and squirrels you want to, and whenever there is a fine imposed for so doing, let us know and we will put it off and all the cost.

W. D. Whitehead is thinking of putting in an electric light plant for Mt. Vernon, however no definite plans have been made. Mr. Whitehead already has the boiler and engine and is in a splendid position to put in the plant at a very reasonable cost. If the people of the town want the light at a small cost, they will more than likely be a go; however Mr. Whitehead is not willing to put in the plant and take chances on the light at a small cost, but at six cents per month will insure the plant. A meeting of importance to the farming interests of the State is the first annual meeting of the State Farmer's Institute which will be held at Frankfort February 27th and 28th at 10 o'clock. The object is to bring the farmers of the State into close relations to each other. It is hoped to have a farmers' club in each county and the State Institute is to be the central body. CALLED.—We have just received from Henry Thrill & Co., of St. Louis, one of the largest firms of its kind in the west, a complete line of dailies, consisting of European papers, well known, and full of interesting news, and which will offer to the trade for much less than it would cost for the same time if bought elsewhere. Our list will close, if it does not surpass any one of our catalogues which will show this season. Those wishing orders should order for our representation before placing the order, lest by so doing you will save from fifteen to thirty per cent. on the order.
