JOHNSON AT SHILOH

MINNESOTA EXECUTIVE MAKES NOTABLE ADDRESS

QUESTION OF STATE RIGHTS Does Not Approve of Commonwealth Being Made Subservient to Inferior Federal Courts—Would Uphold Constitution.

Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota delivered at the dedication of the Minnesota monument on Shiloh battlefield, April 10, an address that will rank as one of the ablest public addresses of recent times. Spoken on a battlefield that may be taken as the symbol of the great war for the union, the governor took occasion to tell of the peril that threatens our federal form of government. This peril was emphasized by the recent decision of the supreme court in the railway cases going up from Minnesota and North Carolina which practically makes the state governments subservient to the inferior federal courts. The significance of these decisions is widely understood, and they have given rise to a general discussion of the question of the rights of the states, and Gov. Johnson's speech will rank as an important contribution to that discussion. The honorary address is in part follows:

Representing the people of the commonwealth of Minnesota, we are assembled on one of the historic battlefields of the civil war to pay our tribute of respect and affection to the memory of the sons of Minnesota who here yielded up their lives that they might continue to be a united nation. Their sacrifice was not for personal gain, but in response to the call of duty, and a contribution to the civilization of the age, and for the purpose of perpetuating the institution of human liberty.

I appreciate that nothing which I can say will add to or detract from the glory of their achievement, which in itself is an enduring monument to the patriotism and heroism of the American soldier. Their sacrifice, however, was not different from that which has been made throughout all the ages by their lovers of liberty who believe in a government which might give to all the people the right to life, liberty, justice and the love of liberty was not born in this country of ours; it was created along the banks of the Rhine at Aachen in the battle, even when Rome had reached the limit of her imperial grandeur. Inspiring in fact, with the passing of the centuries, it found its highest expression in the cities of the American continent, where the charter of civil rights, which forever guaranteed to the people of that land the right to the enjoyment of the principles which they claimed to rule by virtue of the

One hundred and thirty-two years ago the great centennial of humanity was conferred from the old world to the new, and here, because of the decision of this country, because of the high character of the man who espoused the cause of liberty, and because of the signal victory achieved by them in that struggle, an opportunity was afforded to the people to live the law the aspirations of the fathers of all the ages. The men who laid the foundation of this government were those who had submitted to the supreme test of patriotism, for those of the founders of this country, the United States were the same who laid and picked their lives, their property and their sacred honor to the test of independence.

While the primary object of a written constitution is to confer governmental powers and to limit governmental departments, the unwritten necessity for such an instrument is to preserve the individual citizen upon the rights of the individual citizen, both from those in office and from those who by means of their wealth and power have an influence far greater than that possessed by the common citizen. And so the constitution of the United States was regarded by its framers as an instrument of the most sacred import, an alteration of which could only be made by the people themselves in whom all ultimate power is vested, and the gift of the fullest discussion and widest publicity.

Under the beneficent government established the nation has prospered and the people are happy. One great cloud came upon the nation in the form of an awful civil war, in which two sections of the country were in conflict with each other. The blood that ran here gave their lives that this nation might be maintained as it is today. On another battlefield of that war, Abraham Lincoln said: "It is for us, the living, that we are dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from this honored dead we take increased devotion for that cause which they have here so fully and so nobly carried on. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from this honored dead we take increased devotion for that cause which they have here so fully and so nobly carried on. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from this honored dead we take increased devotion for that cause which they have here so fully and so nobly carried on."

Therefore, discharging all of our responsibilities as citizens of a country, refusing to surrender our rights of citizenship in any degree, let us so live that the heroic exemplified on this and other American battlefields may not be simply a tradition, and the national wisdom of our forefathers be more legend, but that through us and those to come America will reach her true destiny in the permanent establishment of a perfect union, which shall be so great as to last for all tomorrow, but forever, and be so established that it will be for all of the people, and that their government shall not perish.

The primacy of republicanism... Advancing our civilization so that we will not be recognized by the false claims of selfish interests, and forgetting the American motto, the object should be to attain the greatest good for the greatest number. It is not finally which other people have paid, rather let us hold over to mind that those who framed our government believed in the equality of the people and that the chief aim of government is to maintain the equality.

Under our system of government the nation has not had a material development hitherto unknown. The people have progressed beyond the dreams of those who lived a century ago. But with the development of the country changes of economic conditions, and particularly with the growth of great private corporations performing many of the functions of government, has come the necessity for the exercise of strict government control over the administration of the laws enacted to restrain the rich and powerful from encroaching upon the natural and legal rights of the poor and weak.

The constitution of the ancient republic of Rome, which for 500 years had received the vote of the people as supreme, was expanded by executive interpretation and contracted by executive administration, until Rome had so completely outgrown its democratic conditions as to become only a tragedy and a caution. We explore the aid of him on his to preserve us from the errors which retarded Rome, and the avoidance of which America may travel on that distant and realize that fulfillment which will be the inspiration of rich-thinking men of all ages yet to come.

Our government is divided into three separate and distinct coordinate branches: the legislative, the executive and the judicial. Danger will surely come to this republic when any of these departments becomes impotent in the slightest degree to perform the functions of the other.

And while now and then it may be that a court of the land, in constraining the constitution, may nullify a section of the law, it is not to be held that the people of the country will rise above the fallibility of judicial tribunals and assert and preserve their own rights. Our duty is not to criticize the executive, the legislature or the judiciary. Very recently there has come from the highest judicial tribunal in the land a decision of vital interest and consequence to the American people. It is stated by one member of the court, which has rendered this decision, in our governmental system and would inaugurate a new era in the American judicial system and in the relations of the national and state governments. It would enable the administrative federal courts to supervise and control the official action of the states as though they were dependencies or provinces. It would place the states of the union in a condition of inferiority never dreamed of when the confederacy was adopted, or when the eleventh amendment was made a part of the supreme law of the land.

It is the result of this decision, it is to my mind, one of the unhappy incidents in the history of our republic, because the very theory of our government is based upon the right of the states to control absolutely their own domestic affairs.

If, then, our whole system of government is changed, have we not only retarded the progress of the republic, but have we not gone back a century toward a centralized form of government which is not to the advantage of the people? What this government needs is not more power. What it needs to-day is to so distribute that power, and to so arrange that all citizens will have equal opportunity. America has been denied the opportunity to exercise American opportunity should not mean a granting of special privileges to any class, race, or tradition, but the means for culture, education, property and contentment.

For nearly a century and a half America has presented to the world the spectacle of a happy, prosperous and intelligent people, maintaining a pure democracy founded upon their supreme will. The hallmark of a democracy is that the powers of government are close to the people. Throughout the world, wherever democracy is advanced, its progress is marked by a greater measure of self government to each community. Will the American people turn to the setting rather than the rising sun? We know by a class and interfere with the free will of each individual to deprive our sovereign states of that measure of home rule which until now they have held so dear. Let us be true to ourselves. I cannot believe it. Upon the contrary I believe that the limitations of each, which have been so evidenced in the past, will be minimized in their full vigor in the future.

SECOND TIME.—For the second time we call attention of our distinguished subscribers to the fact that a recent ruling of the Post office department compels us to cut from our list all who are as much as one year in arrears.

Under the new school law, there must be at least one graded high school in each county. The citizens of Brodhead, who are always on the alert for every good enterprise that will help their town are making a strong effort to land the school.

News has been received from Kansas, of the death of Mrs. Bettie Elmore, widow of Wm. Elmore who used to live in Madison county between Berea and Paint Lick. Mrs. Elmore was a sister of Alvah Maret of this county. She had been living in the west 18 or 20 years.

We are glad to state to our readers that Mr. Henry Beatty, of Walnut Grove has decided to move his flour mill to Mt. Vernon and was here Saturday to have the plans drawn for his building and place for lumber. The mill will be located just back of W. M. Poynter's store.

Information has just been received here of the death of James M. Maret, in Colorado. He was a brother of Alva Maret, Wildie and a cousin of James Maret, our townsman. Mr. Maret left this county 35 years ago and spent his life among the mines of the various Western states. He was about 57 years of age.

The following relative to the new school law will be of interest to our readers:—

The law goes into effect June 15, 1908. The county is to be divided into Educational Districts before July 15, 1908; each school district elects one trustee on the first Saturday in August; the Division Boards organize before August 31, 1908; the first election of teachers under this law is held the last Saturday in June, 1909; the first meeting of the County Board of Education is held the first Saturday in September, 1908. It will be seen that the school session of 1908-9 will not be affected by the new law.

Judge R. G. Williams, an ex-judge of Rockcastle county, has presented the Fiscal Court of the county an enlarged picture of himself, which will be hung in the court room. Up to this time, a picture of Judge T. Z. Morrow was the only picture in court room.

There is to be found in almost every other court house in the State pictures of a large majority if not all of the County and Circuit Judges, and we see no reason why the matter should be so seriously neglected in Mt. Vernon. All living ex-judges, both County and Circuit, are requested to furnish good picture of themselves to be hung in its proper place in the line of succession and the relatives of those who are dead, are earnestly requested to take the matter in hand and see that good likeness enlarged form is furnished at an early date.

When a man pursuing the daily peaceful avocations of life goes around with a revolver on his person, it is prima facie evidence that he is either a fool or a criminal, and in either case he ought to be locked up.

ANNIVERSARY!—Next Tuesday will be celebrated by all I. O. O. F. lodges as the anniversary of the order. Mt. Vernon Lodge No. 319 is preparing for appropriate services on that night. Several good talks on the order its original purpose etc. will be given. On that night will also be given work in all four degrees. Every member of the lodge is earnestly requested to be present. Members from other lodges are always welcome.

It is with much pleasure that we note the fact, that there will be more farming by twenty-five percent done in Rockcastle this year, than ever before. In the Eastern part of the county, fields and new grounds, are being cleaned up, new fences built and a general appearance that the farmers have come to the realization of the fact that more attention should be given to the farms. In the northern and western part of the county the prospects for splendid yields from well kept farms has never been equaled. Wheat and oat fields one after another and as fine as many of those in the Blue Grass are to be seen for miles in every direction. The acreage of corn will exceed by hundreds of acres the output of any former year. More than twenty car loads of fertilizer has already been distributed throughout the county and still there is more yet to come. On last Monday the fifteenth car since, March 1st, arrived at Brodhead and yet that will not be sufficient to supply the demand from that point with Mt. Vernon, Livingston, Wildie, Orlando and Conway coming in for a fairly good amount. We are glad to see our farms being looked after, and with this we may confidently look for a better and more prosperous Rockcastle. Good farms calls for better roads means a better every day, and for everybody. More farming and better farming is the thing Rockcastle has long since needed.

Men who contribute money to buy votes and bribe the people's representatives, as well as those who discharge it, are deadly enemies of the republic. Their greed and love of power are greater than their love of country. They impair popular respect for law, which is the only safe guard for life and property; and it will be an evil day for the nation when its preservation depends upon their patriotism and courage. They may masquerade in the garb of righteousness, and address the people in the language of patriotism, but their virtues are assumed; they are hypocrites and assassins of liberty, and would welcome a dynasty rather than shed their blood in defense of popular government.

The Republicans of Rockcastle County are called to meet at the Court House Mt. Vernon, Kentucky, April 25th, 1908, at one o'clock standard time, to select delegates to attend a Delegates Convention of the Republicans of the 8th Congressional District to be held at Shelbyville, May 5th, 1908, which Convention will elect a Member of the State Central Committee and two Delegates to attend the Republican National Convention at Chicago, June 16th, 1908. Said District Convention will also nominate a candidate for Elector to be voted for at the election to be held November 3rd, 1908. Delegates will also be selected to attend the Republican State Convention to be held in Louisville May 6th, 1908, which Convention will elect four Delegates at large and four alternates at large from the State of Kentucky to attend the National Convention. Said State Convention will nominate two Electors at large, to be voted for at the election to be held November 3rd, 1908. All Republicans of this county are invited to attend said Mass Convention, and it is to be hoped that they will do so.
