Coming on March 23, Easter Sunday will be earlier this year than it has been since 1856. For ninety-five years there has not been an Easter Sunday earlier than March 23, and during the remainder of the twentieth century there will not be an Easter observed earlier than March 23. In 1856 Easter Sunday fell on March 23. Since that time it has twice been on the twenty-fifth of the month, but never earlier. In 1893, ninety-five years ago, Easter fell on March 23—the earliest date on which it has been observed for centuries.

On Friday afternoon, February 27th, the Home Economic Department of the Woman's Club held its regular meeting at the dormitory. In response to requests from several of the ladies, Mrs. Clark demonstrated poultry, business file, for which she has gained an enviable reputation, and pineapple tarts. The ladies have asked that light bread and rolls be demonstrated at the next meeting. All who are interested in this are most cordially invited to attend.

Also the Woman's Club has held no Friday evening meetings, its various departments have been represented in active work. Mrs. Wolcott's address took the place of one Home Economic meeting, while the educational department took special interest in the lectures of Mrs. Mark and Lock. All departments have given way to the play at the Graded School, but regular work is now to be resumed.

THE HENDERSONS of Rockcastle County are descendants of Judge Henderson of North Carolina, who founded the Transylvania colony in Kentucky, leaving Hillsboro, N. C. on March 21, 1775 conducted by Daniel Boone. See our very interesting letter from the Tar Heel State in this issue of the SIGNAL. It is of peculiar interest to citizens of this and most other Kentucky counties.

A few years after above date Jacky Mear, grand-father of the writer and Johnathan Cook our great-grand-father in company of Mitchell Hill and others left Hillsboro coming to this State. The two first named settled in Garrard county and the latter in Rockcastle then Lincoln county. Mr. Cook died about 1840 Jacky Mear died 1803 and Mitchell Mear died about 1859.

We understand there are some three or four along the proposed route of the new railroad from Livingston to McKee who have refused to give a right-of-way and are objecting to the road passing through their lands. It seems to us that a few moments sober thinking should put these men right when they consider what it will mean to this section of the county; not only in providing an outlet, but the great business industries that it will open; the amount of labor that will be furnished in the opening up and handling of the fine timber and coal territory that the proposed road will open and the amount of money it will bring into the section. These parties all live in Rockcastle as the right of way, has already been secured from McKee to the Rockcastle county line and let us hope that no stumbling block will be thrown in the way by any Rockcastle county citizen who is not an expert in the matter. It is a matter of such importance to the county and especially those along the route. A little earnest thinking is all that is necessary for any man to put every thing right.

Judge S. H. Lewis showed the order (Jury) returned made to his father by William Henderson, C. A. Redd and others in the year 1864 conveying a tract of land lying some three miles South West of Mt. Vernon and long known as the David N. Lewis place now owned by Judge Lewis. The deed has two so-called internal revenue stamps thereon, although the Judge says one would have sufficed.

A Washington dispatch says president Taft's nominations for the following Kentucky post offices failed to be confirmed by the Senate and president Wilson will have the manager of the post matter at these points: Benton, Clay, Clermont, Corbin, Burlington, Glasgow, Grayson, Harrodsburg, Hazard Jenkins, Keok, Lawrenceburg, Leitchfield, Lyeisore, Mt. Vernon, Olive Hill, Smith Grove and Taylorsville.

NOTICE TO THE BOYS.—All boys who want to be enrolled in the Rockcastle County Boys Club that will please send me their names at once. We will try and have our premium list in about six weeks. Mr. McKee offers a thorough bred Duane Jersey pig to the boy who wins the one acre production contest provided there are as many as fifty boys to enter the contest. When writing please state whether or not you will want seed corn.

Yours truly, J. W. KINCAID, Supt.

There was a meeting of the Mothers Club last Thursday afternoon at the Legion Memorial School. The attendance on this afternoon was the best we have had this year. Due to the fact that the mothers of the primary grades of the graded school have joined with mothers of the kindergarten as the primary of L. M. S. there seems to have infused into the club new life and interest.

Among the points of vital interest to the parents and children that were discussed was that of a car law which resulted in the framing of a petition to this effect, to be put before the town board. The next meeting of this club will be held at the Graded school the last Thursday in March and all the mothers of Mt. Vernon are invited to be present.

ROCKCASTLE'S NEEDS. An extended trip through this county will impress upon you the fact that the assertion that has been made for years that the taxable timber in general will not be realized and our people are turning to day labor for a livelihood.

PINE HILL'S BIG WORKS.

(Jm)

At Pine Hill, this county, where the company owns some 2000 acres of mineral lands, the Kentucky Portland Cement & Coal Co. are going ahead steadily with the big undertaking of erecting their buildings, plant etc. The writer took a few hours one day last week in the company of A. B. Furnish, the Cashier of Bank of Mt. Vernon, accompanied Mr. Harry Snyder, the K. P. bookkeeper, to the plant at Pine Hill and looked it over. Superintendent M. A. Steckel and peace officer Frank Catron met the writer at depot and conducted them over to where the big building operations are under way, a distance of something like a half mile from the railroad station and is reached by a standard gauge railroad track over which the K. P. Co. runs its own steam locomotive in transferring cars between the station and the works, coal tipples included. Just before reaching the works we came upon V. P. Freeman, the guard, who sees that none gets by without a pass or being properly vouched for. This is one of the company's rules to prevent accidents to outsiders or others who have no business upon the premises while building operations are going on. This rule is also applied to employees when not at work on the job. No loafing around the plant. The first things we encountered after passing the guard were four immense upright steel cylinders placed on heavy concrete foundations and lined with thousands of fireproof brick. This is the lime plant and when put in operation will turn out seventy five tons of hydrated lime daily. These kilns are each 25 feet high and 17 feet in diameter at the bottom and requires 1,200,000 bricks in their construction. A large building for machinery etc., is being erected in connection with the lime works for its treatment and handling; size of building 155 feet long, 70 feet high, placed on a massive concrete foundation. The kilns will be fed from the top which is reached by cars run up an incline and stratified to work almost automatically. The coal used for firing will be run up on the same incline and dropped into chutes leading down to the furnace doors some 20 feet above the foundations of structure. The lime when taken from bottom of kiln falls into tram cars which carry it to another portion of the building where it is treated and milled or hydrated ("slacked" by progress) in which condition it retains its strength indefinitely and can be used for any purpose for which lime is adapted. It is claimed that this product can be sold as $4 per ton. All machinery in connection with this plant is run by electric motor; such as the stone crusher, concrete mixer, hauling coal cars between mines and tip house. Everything done is put up in first class order with a view of strength and safety. No shoddy work goes with these people. They propose to put the plant up in proper shape regardless of first cost. The track and wires to mine, the tip house, in fact everything in connection with the plant shows that a master hand is directing affairs and that the Superintendent manager and employees are carrying out instructions to the letter. The electric light plant is no small affair either. Lights are found in the plant, office, commissary and extend from Rockcastle by Pennsylvania, (cottages) boarding houses and along paths between the various cottages perched on the picturesque mountain sides among huge boulders and fine shade trees. Cottages No. 1, is the mine office, commissary and kitchen which will be 1000 feet long with varying width from 45 to 120 feet and from 20 to 70 feet high, with a capacity of 2500 berths, of excellent daily. There is an abundance of coal on the property which will be utilized for manufacturing purposes right at mouth of mines. Shipments of this coal to market is of secondary consideration. In the office is found Harry Snyder, an expert book-keeper who has charge of all accounts and the pay roll which now amounts to upward $6000 monthly there being 267 employees now on pay roll. In one part of the office building is the "blue print" room in which is a large case containing all blue prints pertaining to the lime plant, of which there are one hundred in number and of the cement plant one thousand sheets are required to illustrate the plans and specifications of this proposed immense building which will require something like a year to complete. C. T. Simmons is assistant book-keeper. J. W. Dreibach is general manager with head quarters in Lincoln building in Louisville. Telephone connection has been direct with the works from Louisville over the Chamberlain telephone and the Rockcastle Home companies through Mt. Vernon. Headquarters keep posted daily via telephone as to what progress is being made on the exterior. M. A. Steckel is Superintendent in charge and keeps things moving. S. M. Hummel is assistant superintendent. G. Renberg, field engineer is on the job. L. C. Smith chief electrician, and a good one too. Mat Seibert foreman of carpenters with Elmer Jones assistant. Andrew Gearty foreman of building crew. Howard Manned the structural steel foreman knows his calling alright and is right there with the goods when wanted. John Pope, of Livingston, is pulling the throats on the K. P. & C. Co. No locomotive, a little fellow but goypryful in its work of switching and transferring the cars, pulling service robots as a hoisting engine. John, with big No. 1, keeps about as much noise on the track as a big engine. C. C. Howell is master of passengers at the company's commissary which is a model of its kind, neat, clean as a pin and well stocked with seasonable merchandise. Emmert F. Bryant does the telegraphing and following on two telephone lines, the railroad and home company at the depot and is constantly figuring on how much more work he will have to do at his station when the K. P. gets to running full blast and wondering how many assistants the company will allow him when the time arrives. It's didn't have time to learn the hobbies of any of our friends on the works but was told that Mr. Seibert particularly enjoyed the music of squealing boys under the cliffs near "Pennsylvania" on cold nights. Peace officer Catron and Mr. Snyder are raising pure blood swine and poultry in South Valley. Val Freeman, the guard, thinks the company ought to furnish him with a blue suit with big brass buttons and a policeman's "billy". Emmert Bryant will answer a short quick "ring" when made on any old line. Steckel has had the office and cottage No 1 telephones rewired with barbed fencing wire, no, four strands, to withstand the heavy voltage created by his "dutch" talk over them. Elmer Jones, says some of the bunch are good riders if they could manage to climb to the back of a horse.

at Hillsboro, N. C. in January 1913 and left there with his colonists March 1st 1913 for Kentucky under the guidance of Daniel Boone. The first page of the diary is a copy of the General Law of England relative to the public lands in her colonies. The second page is the interpretation of that law by the Attorney General of England. Then comes several pages embracing a contract with the members of his colony, two of whom sold their plant tools and negroes to my great grandfather in order to go with this colony. I own those lands to-day by inheritance. Then the incidents of the journey were given in a very interesting manner. But one that struck me very forcibly was that on 10th of June there appeared at his camp one William Finlough from Fredericksburg, Va., who came to his camp to purchase some of his land, and brought the news of the battle of Lexington, which was fought on the 19th of April previous. At the present day such news would be flashed to the whole country in a less number of seconds than it required days in those times.

Henders in seemed to have had trouble over his lands. The State of North Carolina sought to title upon the ground that he was dealing with the Indians instead of with the State. Virginia fought his title upon the ground that if the boundary line was extended between Virginia and North Carolina, it would be found that he was on the Virginia side of the line. The Tadeators upon the ground that the lands in question was as much their hunting grounds as it was of the Cherokee, with whom he was dealing.

After the Revolutionary war was over and the Virginia and North Carolina boundary lines had been determined, the state of Virginia compromised the matter with him. He was the same Judge Henderson who the "Regulators" took off the bench at Hillsboro and entered up the docket to suit their own views. I have letters from him to my great-grandfather, before either were married. He belongs to one of the most distinguished families of this State and who are still distinguished. He seems to have greatly depended upon Daniel Boone.

Excuse me for having digressed so far. Being interested in all that pertains to Boone and Henderson, I allowed myself to drift. Indeed I think the route of "Boone Way" should be worked from Hillsboro, N. C. to Kentucky.

I read you, in this, a reprint from the Charlotte paper that will no doubt be of interest to you. I hope to meet you at the Federal Aid Convention in Washington, D. C. on the 6th. March. There I wish to say something in behalf of our proposed Southern National Highway.

Right here I wish to thank you most gratefully for the support of your state, through you, in securing the Central Route instead of the Gulf States route. Since coming home from Asheville, I have tabulated both routes and find that counting the States contiguous on the right and left of those in which the route is located, along with them, the Central will serve 117 Congressional districts while Gulf states route would serve only 117 a difference of 30. Then the remote States left on the central route is Florida with 4 districts; while the remote states left out on the Gulf States route are Kentucky 17, Missouri 18, making 35 districts. So we did the thing at Asheville, in voting the Central route.

With best wishes and my renewed thanks.

Very cordially your friend, BENNEHAN CAMERON.

We imagine we see men packing their trunks and grips preparing for a home coming; we imagine we hear them singing the following: "We are homeward bound, Won't you join this defeated crew." etc. While up on the other side there is a rush, men coming from all parts of the U. S., hoping that the pie will hold out until all can get a slice. Let us hope that the next four years may be a prosperous time.
