The Civic League will meet at the Court House on Friday evening, Nov. 26th, at seven o'clock.

Tip Langford has the largest and finest bed of colery in the county, enough to more than supply Mt. Vernon.

James Byrum died in Madison county in 1871, aged 107. Was born in Hillsboro, N. C., and was never sick in his life.

The first number of the Lyceum course was given at the Graded School Chapel last Friday night. First class is the verdict of all and the house was filled almost to its full seating capacity.

Lost—Between my home and the Christian church, or between the church and W. J. Sparks' residence a gold bracelet. Liberal reward for its return.

Mrs. L. W. Behurum.

Steve Proctor says the first house he built he had a small triplicate, a dull saw and not much of a hatchet, yet that house is almost as good as those he puts up today. But the time he spent on his first one might count something.

A council of the Jr. O. U. A. M., was organized here last Friday night with about 35 members. The council was organized and instituted by members of the Livingstone lodge. T. M. Dess and S. E. Hellard were among those who took the lead and were instrumental in getting the lodge started.

A. B. Furnish was in Barbourville last week where he closed a deal for the grading of seven miles of the road bed for the new Cumberland Valley and Manchester R. R. This is a new line of road being built from Barbourville to Manchester, Clay county, a distance of twenty-four miles. Mr. Furnish expects to be on the job by Dec. 1st. In event he does not sell his stock of goods to local parties, he will ship same to his commissary on the works. Part of his work will be in Knox county and part in Clay.

Ed McKinney, age about 22, son of the Main street hotel man, K. J. McKinney, was born very low since Tuesday with typhoid.

LAYERS—Just before going to press word reached us that young Mr. McKinney was dead. For two or three days it has been a struggle between life and death. The heart failed to perform its functions which made it impossible to combat the maladies of typhoid which had developed in its worst stage. The burial will take place tomorrow at the McKinney burying ground a short distance south of Mt. Vernon.

A thief or bunch of thieves entered the store of Jonas McKenzie last Sunday night taking about 100 lbs. of meat and a large quantity of flour and meal. The entrance was gained through a window in the rear. Capt. Laird of Hustonville, with his blood hounds was telephoned an was soon on the grounds. The hounds made two trails, going the same path each time, but a search of the house revealed nothing, as there were none of the stolen goods to be found at the house to which the dogs went. Who got the goods is yet unknown and will no doubt remain so. The fact that this has been so easily covered up will give them more courage to try the same thing over. Who will be the next victim, so one knows, and to us it seems that it would be good business for our merchants to take some precaution and at least be in better position to hand on the next one. It has been suggested that we need more search dogs to keep out of that one in day time, and we think the suggestion a very wise one. Winter time is coming, not much work and some who would do work say they have not the same. The old saying is which is time saves none.

Glenn H. Hill, colored, better known as Sisk, who has been with the family of W. H. Brown, of this place, for past fifteen years, underwent a serious surgical operation last week and is reported to be getting along well.

POYNTER—Mrs. Ann Poynter, wife of Mr. D. C. Poynter, and a sister of Mrs. W. M. Poynter died last Friday morning after an illness of the most intense suffering lasting a quarter of a century. The pain which she endured no one can conceive. Twenty three years ago rheumatism began and every moment since was one of pain and suffering of the severest kind. The drawn condition of every muscle of the body told more forcibly than all else the intensity of her sufferings. She died at the age of 65 years and nine months old, and when 80 years of age she was united in marriage to Mr. D. C. Poynter to which union there was born one child, Miss Frances. When the mother first became afflicted she devoted her attention to the care of her daughter, then a mere child, assuming the responsibility of caring for her mother and as the years passed, and the mother grew worse, the daughter grew more attentive and painstaking. Never was she known to murmur, but with a glad heart and hand responded to every call, and many times she left the call come day or night. In this particular case, it is told not in words but in acts the most beautiful story of a child's devotion to mother, we have ever heard of.

Do You Read Labels?

Domestic science teachers and food authorities are urging the housewife to carefully read the labels on all food articles.
The laws of most States compel food manufacturers to print the ingredients of their products on the label, and this enables consumers to distinguish healthful foods from those which may be deleterious.

High-grade baking powders are made of pure cream of tartar, derived from grapes. Royal Baking Powder is a type of the highest grade. It is healthful beyond a doubt, and the safest and best to use.

The low-grade baking powders are made from alum, a mineral acid salt, or phosphate of lime. Consumers can learn the character of the baking powder by referring to the label, which must state whether the contents include cream of tartar, alum or phosphate.

GIVE PEOPLE GREATER POWER

The people of Kentucky are interested, deeply interested, in education, what progress he was making. This is as is shown by the advance made in the last ten years. The people want development and advancement and development and advancement can only be a strong and lasting type, but this can not be accomplished otherwise rapidly or consistently so long as the school system remains in politics. Every good citizen and parent in the state wants the management of their child's educational advantage divorced from politics.
The Superintendent of Public Instruction is a constitutional officer and must be elected at a regular election of state officers, and he can not succeed himself. To make this a little plainer, it might be well to state that the name Superintendent of Public Instruction is one of the many names on the ballot, and interest in the election is centered, not on him, but upon the head of the ticket. Frequently a state ticket is elected on a big political issue, absolutely foreign to school matters, and the result is the Superintendent of Public Instruction goes into office, not as a school man, but as part of a successful party ticket. No business could be carried on with thorough success if the general manager knew that at the end of four years he must give up his position to

"I BOUGHT A BUNCH OF PIGS"

"Get the biggest piece of news yet," yelled Dave Thurman as he rode up to the old blacksmith shop at Ash bottom.

"Well give it to us, Dave."

John Fitzgerald's eyes ran for school trustee.

"No, you're joking. Dave. John, he's too busy a farmer to be a school trustee, besides he hasn't got any big folks teachin' school that I ever heard of."

"That may be so, but I got word about it mighty straight. His wife fell sick he was going to run an' I reckon that's just about as straight as anybody could get anything. Here he comes now on his 'ol bay mare, an' you can ask him for yourselves."

"When the fall, fine-looking man had given the blacksmith some instructions concerning the mending of a doubletree, he turned to the men and said:

"I'll bet anything Dave has told you 're out for the office of school trustee for Ashbottom Sub-district."

"Yes, he said you were going to run, but we couldn't hardly believe it, 'an' swered one of the neighbors."

"By no!"

"Well, because mighty few men ever wanted the trouble and bother of workin' with a young teacher an' a lot of children. Besides there ain't a penny in it an' plenty of hard work if the man does his duty."

"The candidate sat down on the frame of the girassole under the big elm and quietly crossed his legs. For a time he was silent with an odd, bitter smile on his face. At length he arose and said:

"Any one of you men would fight if anybody told you that you really didn't love your children, wouldn't you?"

The men about him nodded their assent and he hurried on.

"You do love 'em, I know you do because I love mine, too. But boys, there's ever so many ways of lovin' children an' it's only lately that I've seen a new way to love 'em. My children have been going to school out at the little school house for five years an' I hardly ever gave 'em a thought, 'voted for any 'ol fellow that wanted to be trustee, but like you have."

"What made you swap around in your ideas?" asked one of the men.

"Feedin' hogs an' keepin' my eyes open."

THE FARMER AND WIFE TEACH

The teacher's supervision, the farmer and his good wife took charge. The farmer took the youngsters out to see his cattle, while his wife explained what he considered the best plan of making them a profitable proposition. Hens and turkeys, ducks and calves, sheep and hogs were judged for points. Tobacco patches, cornfields and meadows were inspected and the best made of crops still on the land of the barn.

The girls were taken in hand by the good housekeeper and shown through her home from cellar to garret. Methods of handling her milk, cream and butter were explained. Full, her turkeys, chickens and geese were visited. She told them what she considered the best breeds, and she then explained the feeding and care of cows. She even got out winter supply of jams, jellies, preserves and canned fruit. Grains, vegetables and told her audience she considered the safest plan of raising an orchard and why that it would be certain to keep the farmers were delighted because they had the children busy with a proper viewpoint. The housewife was charmed because the children saw how closely connected good feeding and good housekeeping were. They were pleased because they mentioned above, one of the best things which centered about the farm. The teacher was glad to be able to have the children busy with their own parents and neighbors who have a farm day or a half day. If every county in the state could have a farm day or a half day, it would force the matter of education home to every parent.

NEARLY ALL PICK SHOOTING.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 10.—Joseph Hillstrom was the nineteenth person to meet the death penalty in Utah. He was the first to choose shooting in preference to hanging — a choice which the State law gives its condemned and its executioners.

On the four who choose hanging, two were Indians who have an instinctive dread of firearms. The third chose this form to give State "as much trouble as possible."

The first two executions in Utah were those of two Indians hanged in 1855. The first man shot was William Crockett in 1861. Utah is supposed to have adopted executions by shooting through the punishment meted out to spies in war time. Where the custom of giving a man his choice of death originated one seems to know. From the earliest days it was in vogue, and none of the old-timers are able to outline the source. The custom was followed through the territorial days and became a part of the State law.

A woman never has been convicted of first degree murder in Utah.

SCHOOLS ARE THE KEYS.

The farms, good roads, comfortable homes, and blooded stock of a community are things to have, but they do not necessarily develop good schools for the children of all the people. That this is true can be seen by a day's drive through any part of the State. The school houses are old and shabby. The school books are old and shabby. The school houses are old and shabby. The school books are old and shabby.

SKIMMED THE CREAM CLOSE

"Has anybody heard the latest news about the Newtons?" inquired Mrs. Jones as the Ladies Aid Society of our dear city adjourned its next and last meeting.

"Why no, Mr. Newton ain't sick again, is he?" asked Mrs. Smith.

"Oh, no, he's all right again. In fact, he's paved our farm twice lately in his way to town," continued Mrs. Jones. "The news I was referring to was that I heard it mighty straight that the whole family's going to move to Louisville."

"Well I never. What's taking them to Louisville? Why I supposed they'd always live in this neighborhood. It was only year before last that Mr. Newton had that big of fashionable house done over from top to bottom 'an' water an' gas put in."

"It's the children that's taking them. You see Nellie'll be fourteen this winter 'an' she'll finish the eighth grade by Christmas. She naturally wants to go to High School. An' then here's Henry, the next one; he wants to get ready to go to the State University, so there you are."

"Well I never. Look here, what're we going to do 'd like to know. If it wasn't for me, it'd be very long until we won't have any children worth mentioning in our school, an' we've got many strong members left in our church, an' no neighbor hood that's fit to live in either. The Newtons ain't the first family that's left here 'an' gone to Louisville to educate their children."

"Well I should say they ain't," counted the people that have left here in the past five years on the fingers of both my hands. An' 'doses that have left were the best we had, too."

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Carre Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Caron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

"The doctor was called in, and his treatment failed me for a while, and I was soon confined to my bed again. After this, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair. At last, my husband got me a bottle of Carlin's, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. It can now walk two miles without tiring me, and am doing all my work."

"If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Carlin's, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Carlin's for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Carlin's today."

Announcing Shipment of Bischof Coats AND Suits

A regiment of new coats and suits has just marched into our store!

A grand array that includes among its well ordered and complete ranks every whim of fashion for fall and winter. In the range of styles and general magnitude, this display will far surpass anything we have ever had.

You'll keenly enjoy seeing the new materials. And the styles! Pocketed skirts, pocketed coats, millinery touches, jaunty semi-Norfolk styles, plain tailored modes, convertible collars—but we couldn't name half of the new touches!

There's not an unattractive coat or suit in the whole lot. Bischof garments are noted especially for their individuality, their clever touches, their perfect tailoring on even the most inexpensive garment. You'll marvel too, at the genius that succeeded in getting so much style and such good ideas into garments of heavy materials.

You don't want to miss this fashion display. Come early and stay as long as you like—there are so many things to see and admire that an hour slips by before you know it.

The Golden Horseshoe

The 20th anniversary (1716-1916) of the discovery of the Royal Governor of Virginia, Sir Alexander Spotswood's expedition of 1716-1717, is being celebrated in the most fitting manner possible. And for the first time in two hundred years the Boone Way will make possible the easy passage of the rocky ways encountered by Spotswood and his companions. The Kentucky Gazette sincerely hopes the Order of the Golden Horseshoe may be revived and that it is, the very first man on whom we would like to see the decoration conferred is Jim Maret—the man who put Boone Way on the map of America, and in doing so, surmounted difficulties and conquered obstacles every whit as big as those encountered by Daniel Boone himself, or any other of Kentucky's pioneers.

Somewhat rather call him Jim than James. Nobody refers to Davy Crockett as David, and most of us would have difficulty in recognizing Kit Carson in Major Christopher Carson. In the decoration conferred is Jim Maret, and as mentioned people are proverbially generous. The Kentucky Gazette believes they will not object to other parts of Kentucky adopting the president of the Boone Way as "Our Jim" likewise.

As for the Order of the Golden Horseshoe, it has a good, round, red blooded sound. Nothing offered so fittingly about such an occasion. When Sir Alexander evolved the idea of the Golden Horseshoe, he must have been gifted with prophetic vision—surely no other order could be quite so peculiarly and distinctively symbolic of Kentucky as the Order of the Golden Horseshoe. And no other decoration would serve quite as well to be conferred on Jim Maret, because the fact that twenty eight miles of perfect roadway between Crab Orchard and Cumberland Gap are now assured is due to the high courage, the brilliant spirit and the splendid daring with which Jim Maret addressed himself to the task which at the first was declared impossible of consummation, by most of those to whom he applied for co-operation.

There were no decorations or honors for Jim Maret in the early days of the big project, and if anybody had conferred upon him the decoration of the Golden Horseshoe, he would most likely have exchanged that horseshoe for postage stamps, because he was a little old trapper, and the postage paid was pitifully meagre.

Indeed, as one writer has said: "Jim Maret, with his little old battered typewriter has carved the ninety-eight miles of the greatest highway as surely as Boone did the Trail" 140 years back.

The movement on foot to build a monument to Jim Maret should have the support of every citizen with a spark of gratitude in his make-up. And it will have abundant people know Jim Maret served them for some years, and receiving a dollar reward for his services. To them Jim Maret is Jim," and before very long the monument will be a fact.

Meantime, the Kentucky Gazette would say, as the nation recently said to another "Jim"—our Indiana neighbor—"Good luck, and take care of yourself, Jim!"
