IN MEMORY OF MRS. DAVE ROBINSON.

Five weeks have passed since the messenger came to call dear Mother to rest; five weeks the sun has risen to light a restless struggling world; five weeks the silent night have brought fitful slumbers to weary eyelids and through it all Mother sleeps well. And now another day has dawned and again we fall into our places, in the accustomed routine wondering how we can, yet knowing that we must go on and on with the shadow on our hearts, trying to be cheerful for the sake of others whose lives must not be darkened by our private griefs. All day long we thought repeats in self "Mother rest" how true it seems our transient cares. How purposeless our narrow ambitions, how fruitless the tasks that wear our heart and brain. "Mother rest" though so many days have passed, my heart has followed her as the hands move readily o'er the dial, through the hours of solemn pause, while the silent form lay in the darkened chamber to the hour when earth gently closed over all that was mortal of our mother. What can I say dear children and friends of our youth as we grieve together beside the newly made grave of our dear mother and my dear companion. But the stroke has fallen the first hour of a past past. "Mother rest" let us look to the overbearing time and patient waiting for the dawn of the angel ministering unto me. I have tried for days to read mothers face as if had it been all so painfully changed. I weep, this and that with me suffering yet could not see the face of my patient I cannot picture it.

Strive as I may a memory refuses to recall those moments for ever gone between me and it. Mother so perfectly free from pain, that she seems dreamingly surprised that I should remember her suffering. Mother at rest separated from us by so thin a veil, that for one intense moment I realize how slight a transition it is to pass beyond. There is no suggestion of these darker hours in the twilight earnest eyes that are shaded only with a tender compassion for our grief, and I fail most thank her lips move and her voice repeat our comfort the promise, she shall obtain joy and gladness and sorrow and sighing shall flee away. Is it true dear friends that when the hour comes for us to pass with the lo green ear whose curtains never outward swing we have the assurance of His great beyond dimly line that separate us from eternity the unbroken communion with those whom we love of when our few hours of comfort and many hours of denial have been given us. But a foretaste "Mother rest" not in activity who knows but that her sweet influence may be more to our lives now than it has ever been before. Who shall say that this vivid impression of her nearness is fancy to me, it is a joyful belief let us with whole hearted purpose enter into our duties and when all is done we, may enter into test dear children and friends hand in hand. Ever let us grow stronger and happier for each others sympathy and counsel bound together by our mutual joys and griefs and more than all by our glad faith and hope.

Your loving Father, DAVE ROBINSON.

FOR COUNTY COURT CLERK

S. F. BOWMAN.

TO THE REPUBLICANS OF ROCKCASTLE:

Having been solicited by citizens from various parts of the County to again make the race for Clerk, I now make my announcement for the nomination for County Court Clerk, subject to the Republican Primary to be held Aug. 4th, 1917.

Those who are opposing me, would try and have the voters believe that I have had the office long enough, but they have never at any time attacked my official record, which is very gratifying to me. I consider the eight years of experience I have had the best part of my qualification. You who have had work done in this office recently know that is a fact. Your work was done quiet and better, and that I am better able to tell what your debts and other papers have been properly drawn. You know that if they are improperly constructed, will sooner or later cause trouble. My experience asks me to better judge these matters. I would ask the voter to ask himself some questions like these.

Do I expect to better conditions by voting for a change, or better service rendered?

Do I expect kinder treatment, or a more hearty welcome when I visit the office?

If I vote for a change, do I expect a more efficient or better qualified man?

These after you have answered these questions or any others you wish to ask yourself, and I have been weighed in the balance, I believe you will come to the conclusion that a change is not needed in this office.

I hope those who have so loyally supported me in the past will not have cause to change their support now. I believe you will agree that every promise made before my election has been honestly and faithfully kept. I promise if re-elected to continue to render the same kind of service that I have heretofore.

I will make this race on my own merits and not on another's demerits. I expect to treat all candidates with the same courtesy that I would that they show me. I will try and see the voters before the election. If I fail to see you your support will be appreciated just the same. Thanking you for past favors,

I remain, Your friend,
S. F. BOWMAN.

Hand-shaking will be plentiful from now on until after the fifth of Aug. The candidates will want to meet and talk to the dear people, but the funniest thing about it all is, we Democrats can stand off and see one of the blindest fights in the ranks of the rats we ever saw. — W. M. Hicks, who purchased a farm near here a few years ago, informed us Wednesday that he had killed three snakes since Jan. 1st. It seems that Mart intends to keep his name at the front. Mart says he has retired from the matrimonial field until this fall, as he wants to put out a large crop and does not want to get tangled up in a love affair. He said he had heard that where a man's heart was his thoughts would be also. As high asaters are he did not wish to get in a love tangle.

THIRTEENTH EPISODE

The Hidden Face.

Enoch Golden looked at the heavy shadows about his daughter's eyes... "Margery," he said with an effort at sternness... "I can't help it, father," she finally acknowledged... "But I don't believe David Manley is any more dead than I am..."

"Then why has there been no word of him... This question, apparently, was not an easy one to answer... "I'll tell you what I believe, my girl... "How should I know?" asked the calm-eyed young woman...

Behind the Door Was the Figure of a Young Woman... "You are unhappy?" he quietly inquired... "You seem to appear only on those occasions when I am..." "You are wondering at this very moment if young Manley will ever come back to you..."

to the driver of a mysterious limousine... "Follow that taxicab," he commanded his driver as he leaped into the still-moving car... The man in the limousine sat tense and silent, watching the slight for miles after mile...

"But what are you going to do?" demanded the young girl... "I'm going to show that I'm still your friend, and at the same time prove that this man is your enemy..." "But that particular maid, realising apparently that events were shaping themselves into some final issue, lost no time in loitering along the hallway..."

The Flash for Help... Legar was waiting but he was unable to make a move... "You'll find him," shrieked the white-faced maid... "You don't seem exactly crazy to see me," she announced as she watched Legar look the door through which she had just entered...

"Just a moment, gentlemen," this masked stranger suavely announced, although the starchy of his voice was very material reason... "This house!" echoed the astounded old millionaire... "You'll find him," shrieked the white-faced maid... "You don't seem exactly crazy to see me," she announced as she watched Legar look the door through which she had just entered...

"Just a Moment, Gentlemen," This Masked Stranger Suavely Announced... arm, she noticed, was carried in a voluminous white coat... "Didn't I tell you to keep away from this dump?" he wrathfully reminded her... "Well, I didn't come because I wanted to..."

"Listen to me, my girl, I've been at this game longer than you have, and I've learned that the times when I've been away have been the times when I've been most successful... "What?" he quietly asked... "The man in the limousine..." "Legar continued to stare at her, still motionless..."

Williamburg Saddle, out of the stiffness which apprehension which fell over the little group... "You will," calmly announced Legar... "Not on your life!" was the girl's quavering reply... "And I shouldn't be waken and held over that paper? Where do I get it?"

"You come back here as fast as you can as quick as I want you to work, you'll just about get back in time to see the picture of your friend in the yellow mask..." "But Betsy LeMarsh's friend in the yellow mask..." "Ready hands were there to take possession of that battered and breathless captive of attack..."

"So you're the man of mystery, are you? You're the hero who keeps dead wall between him and the world, eh? Well, my valiant hero, we'll soon see you in a different light..." "Williamburg Saddle, with her mouth slightly agape, stood halfway between the chair and the wall, watching the man with the iron claw stepped slowly and audaciously close to the chair in which the helpless Laughing Mask sat..."

It was, in fact, in the office of the hotel itself, where High-Collar Davis, the house detective, leisurely pursued an evening paper for certain racing returns close beside a returned and robbish clerk in a red vest... "What's wrong?" asked the house detective...

"What's wrong?" asked the house detective... "Instead of replying, the house detective took out paper and pencil, and carefully watching the winking and blinking bulb, wrote a number of letters down on his slip of paper..." "That's the first time he's solemnly announced, 'I ever saw an electric bulb talk Morse!'"

"That's the first time he's solemnly announced, 'I ever saw an electric bulb talk Morse!'" "Well, I'll be blowed!" he finally ejaculated... "What's wrong?" asked the house detective... And its driver seemed possessed of a surprising intimate knowledge of suburban side roads, for as the black limousine drew up on it the dust-covered open car suddenly swerved to the left, dipped into a narrow valley, and took the rise to the railway track like a swallow rounding a cliff head...

Colorado County and Columbus, and Her People in the Early '70s.

BY JAMES MARET. After an absence of forty-one years, the writer is a visitor to the scenes of some of his boyhood days in Columbus and Colorado county. In December, 1875, the family of George S. Maret, of Paint Lick, Kentucky, landed in Columbus, the writer being a member of the family. Mrs. Eliza Maret, the mother, was the sister of Judge George S. Smith, who came to Texas in the early '50's from Rockcastle county Kentucky, where he was successful in the practice of law and was Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas under the Confederacy. He wielded great influence for the interests of county and state during the days of "carpet-bagging" following the war. He died from Yellow Fever in 1878, when large numbers of citizens at the county seat were laid down by that awful scourge. Judge Smith furnished the bridge to build the first railroad-bridge across Colorado river at Columbus, when that point was the terminus of the Sunset Route. In those days all locomotives were named. The first one the writer observed on arrival at Hartsville bore in box car letters the name of "Judge G. W. Smith."

In 1872 Texas had no railroad connection with the "states," and all Southern Texas was reached by steamer or vessels thru the Gulf, thence over the small "salties" of N. R. in existence. The Galveston, Hartsville, and Beaumont

Antonia Railroad with terminus at Hartsville and Columbus, with a little more than 100 miles of track, was owned by T. W. Pierce. The writer learned from a telegraph on this road at Columbus and Borden, and was spent for a time at the latter place in 1875. Returning to Kentucky to recuperate his health, he met a girl there; then it was all off to Texas. After thirty-six years' death claim of her, leaving the writer a desolate old man, who was come to the Lone Star State to visit his brother, S. G. Maret, did sister, Belle, Ca. et. of San Antonio, and Mrs. M. E. Harlan of Colorado county, whom he had not seen for 41 years.

The change during these years makes one almost heart sick. The writer finds that three people in Columbus who he knew in 1875, Messrs. E. C. Gronce, L. Wreede and George W. Bone, the latter, a Knuckian, came to this place in 1873.

"May, whom the writer remembers, have passed over the great divide. Among them can be mentioned Judge G. W. Smith, 1822-1873; W. W. Wooten, 1828-1883; John Hester, 1831-1889; George Augustus Jones (70 years a Mason) 1798-1887; D. W. Hare, circa 1849-1873; Henry Lee, 1816-1868; Henry Haddock, 1828-1867; John Zuegel, 1818-1884; Jennie Thack er Bridges, 1838-1892; George S. Maret (father) 1812-1877; W. C. Best, (brother in law) 1834-1897; Robert L. Fuard, 1831-1878; Thomas Oaker, 1833-1867; Arthur Oakes, 1842-1862; and many, many others.

In coming by train over the prairies between Hartsville and Columbus, in 1872, gangs of deer could be observed from the car windows, sometimes as many as a hundred could be seen in a drove. Wild ducks, crant and geese, by thousands, covered lakes and lagoons; turkeys, prairie chickens, cr, ker-l-o, snipe, pheasants, etc. Jack and cotton tail rabbits, and fox and weasels were in abundance, and fish were plentiful. In those days round steers could be bought at 5 cents a pound, a good beef steer ten to fifteen dollars; good ponies from ten to twelve dollars; and other things at proportionate rates. Land could be bought by thousands of acres at your own price and terms. Cattle went up to 1.25 cents in 1873, and greatly pleased the growers and dealers.

Specie was about the only money used. The writer usually received $4 to specie in exchange for a $5 greenback bill. Many people, especially the darkeys and Mexicans, refused to accept that "Yankee" money, the latter stating that he wanted heavy diners which the winds couldn't stampede.

Most of the county offices were held by what the people called "carpetbaggers," during reconstruction days and were in evidence up to 1873 in Colorado county.

The citizens of Texas, whom we have met, are certainly making a reputation in Southern hospitality for which she has been noted ever since the days of Houston and Crockett. The writer has been given every possible attention by the enterprising and pushing people, including members of Chambers of Commerce and highway officials at San Antonio, Rockport, Corpus Christi, San Antonio, Beaville, Columbus and other points which he has been fortunate enough to visit during the past month.

The marriage in Lexington this morning of Congressman Harvey Helm and Miss Mary McRoberts Bruc came as quite a pleasing surprise to their many friends. It had been conceded for some time that they would marry, but the secret of the approaching date was so well kept that even their closest friends knew nothing about their intentions until the would-be bride had left by auto for Lexington, where Congressman Helm had arrived on the morning train from Washington City. A dispatch was received stating that they were joined heart and hand at 11 o'clock in the parlors of the Phoenix Hotel by Dr. Ben J. Bush of the Second Presbyterian church. They left on the 11:40 train for Washington City, where Congressman Helm will be present at the adjournment of Congress, after which he and his bride will take an extended tour. Miss Bruce was accompanied to Lexington by Mrs. H. J. McRoberts and daughter, Miss Ann Lavin McRoberts, who witnessed the marriage ceremony. They will return this afternoon.

The bride who is one of Staunford's most popular young women, was reared here and is loved most by those who know her best. She is the daughter of Col. I. M. Bruce, now located in Florida; is an exceedingly handsome brunette, very stately and genteel. She has been Staunford's postmaster under Wilson's administration and has made a most excellent one. Painsstaking, obliging and courteous, she has made the patrons of the Staunford post office her closer friends, serving them well. Possessing executive ability, the office has been managed without fiction and the public has been served for very satisfactory results.

Congressman Helm has been in the public eye for a long time and in this county, he served it as county attorney and in years ago was elected to Congress. His record there has been brilliant and one of his friends is proud of it. He is a good lawyer, an able advocate, a pleasing speaker and a hearty handshaker. He knows more people than any two men in the Eighth Congressional district and can call by name every man and boy in Lincoln county. And we might add that he has a fair acquaintance with the fair sex. His friends here home are anxious to get him by the hand and tell him how glad they are that he has taken a sensible step that of making a good woman his wife—and many have sent messages of congratulation over the wires to their friend and Congressman—Interior Journal.

If you want the money and want to be charter members of the association you must be there and sign the articles of association and make written application for a loan.

If there are others whom we have not seen, who are interested, and think they would rather borrow money on long time loans at 5, 5 1/2 or 6 per cent, than pay 8 per cent on short time loans, you are invited to attend this meeting where the whole matter will be explained, as best we can.

On March 2nd, Dr. Ganfield, President of Centre College, Danville, Ky., will give a lecture at the school building. This is to come in as one of the Lyceum numbers. Dr. Ga field is one of the best orators in the South, having been on the lecture platform with our best citizens. Don't fail to hear him.

We are very grateful to the respondent at Burr for the mention given our school in a recent issue of the Signal.

There were two boys and girls who dared to face the severe weather during February and had neither abate nor tardy regards against them. Our enrollment to date is 327. Another thing worthy of mention is that we had about thirty patrons present last Friday afternoon to our "Red Ribbon" exercise.

The declamatory contest was a success from every point of view. As a boy had his speech worked up to a high degree of perfection from the material they were delivered you would have taken them to be experienced orators, when in reality it was the first attempt or nearly every one of them. I took some time for the judges to render a decision, as several of the boys were considered for the medals when everything was taken into consideration. William Davis, of our school, took the first prize. Bethurum delivered the medal in his usual pleasing manner and expressed a desire to make this contest an annual affair. The judges were Judge Bethurum, of this county, Rev. A. B. Porroff, Broadhead, Ky., and Mr. Paul Damere, of Kentucky Wesleyan College, Winchester, Ky.

The High School Chorus Club rendered their selections in good style. We were also favored by a trio, composed of Misses Mullins, Litton and Kincaid. See "Cupid at Vassar." Coming!

TO THE VOTERS OF ROCKCASTLE COUNTY: I take this means of announcing to the public my candidacy. I am a candidate for the nomination of Jailer of this county, subject to the Republican Primary on Aug. 14th, 1917. I have a few promises I desire to make to the people if elected. I promise to make you a sober officer and help enforce the law so far as it is my duty to do. I promise to treat prisoners just like I would like to be treated if I were in their place. I do not ask you to vote for me just because I am a poor man and need the office. I think that is one of the last and least claims to bring before the people and ask their support on. I think I have the qualifications necessary to make the county a good jailer. I ask you who are not personally acquainted with me to enquire after me and after satisfying your selves, I would then ask your help and support. I am only asking your help after examination, as I myself have always tried to vote for the best men to fill our offices. My Republicanism stands unimpaired and unquestioned. I thank you in advance for any favors shown me. Yours Resp't. LOUIG SOWER.

FARMERS URGED TO INCREASE CROPS

AND HELP CUT DOWN HIGH COST OF LIVING IN KENTUCKY BY GREATER PRODUCTION.

COMMISSIONER MAKES APPEAL

Crops During Past Year Too Short To Supply Average Rural Family Itsell, in View of Cohen After Investigating Costs.

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Frankfort, Ky.—Farmers of Kentucky are urged to increase their crop plantings this year, Commissioner of Agriculture Cohen addressing them to that effect. He says: "After an earnest and careful investigation in this state relative to the high cost of food products—the necessities of life—the basic cause is that the farmers of Kentucky during 1917 failed to plant and produce a sufficient amount of food products, not alone to supply the local demand, but an adequate amount for their own family consumption, and are today buyers in the open market for such.

"The citizens of the cities and towns are not expected and can not plant and produce these necessities, thus relying upon the farmers, and when both country and city people become competitive buyers in the open market for these products, it is no wonder that prices soar to the present unreasonable proportions.

"The first duty the farmer owes to his family is the production of a sufficient amount of food products to sustain and feed the members of his household. This being done they are independent. Then conserve the products at hand. At this time when so many efforts being put forth to take the need and advantage of conservation of home products, it is due through organized work, through bulletins and through teaching, and for wants in the farmer, who has learned this lesson of production and conservation. In this way he will be surprised to find to what an extent this larger production and caring for the surplus stock will mean in money in his pocket and sustenance to his fellow beings.

MOTHER! LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste. Liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat, or has a hot, red, or swollen throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs." It does "wonder," it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation, poison, sour and fermenting waste will get out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleaning" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Beware of the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has had directions for babies, children of all ages, and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle.

Miss Chinn brought with her Miss Ada Winkle, of Jefferson county and placed her in Langdon Memorial school on a scholarship made possible through Mrs. Wolcott. This scholarship is to be permanent by Mrs. Wolcott, who is much interested not only in the club work in the county, but in Langdon school as well.

The wife of Green Morgan, who once lived in the Freedom section of this county, died at her home near Lanesboro last Sunday. Mrs. Morgan had been suffering for several months with tuberculosis. Mrs. Morgan was a sister of Mrs. Jesse Livesay of near town.

AND MIDDLE ADJUSTED TO FRUSTRATE ACTION OF SENATE MINORITY ON ARMED SHIP BILL

CABINET IN FAVOR OF BREAK

With Germany—Message Sent to the Chinese Minister in Tokyo Commending the Republic to Union of Allies Under Certain Conditions.

Washington—President Wilson has informed the country in a statement that he may be without power to arm merchant ships and take other steps to meet the German submarine menace in the absence of authority from Congress...

More than 500 of the 531 members of the two houses were ready and anxious to act; the House of Representatives had acted by a overwhelming majority, but the Senate was unable to act because a little group of 11 Senators had determined that it should not.

At the same time the President authorized the further statement that what rendered the situation even more grave than it had been supposed that it was, was the discovery that while the President under his general constitutionality, had the power to do what he had asked the Congress to empower him to do, it had been found that there were more and far-reaching possibilities of national danger than any other country has known within the whole world.

CHINA PROBABLY NEXT POWER TO ENTER WAR

Rewards For Her Being Negotiated at Capitals of Allies—Reported As Certainly Break Will Come.

Washington.—Negotiations looking to China's entry into the war against the Central Powers are in progress at Peking and in all the Entente capitals.

It is regarded as practically certain that China will sever relations with Germany and declaration of war probably will follow next week.

China desires to procure the complete results of the Bona Indemnity which, total more than $30,000,000 a year, and continue until 1940. If she entered the war, the indemnity otherwise would be paid to Austria and Germany could be repudiated.

MADE $5,000 OUT OF HOGS

On his Western Canadian Farm.

It is getting to be a long drawn out story, the way that Western Canadian farmers have made money. Many of them a few years ago, came to the country who had more than their few household effects, probably a team of horses and a cow or two, and sufficient money to do them for a few months, until they got a start.

"I first started grain farming, but did not care for it. I have since made hogs my specialty, and you may see by the foregoing statement for 1919 that I have not done so badly."

"Land has increased in value 25 to 27 per cent in value during the past few years, now selling for from $25 to $35 per acre, and I have made out about $27 a quarter section yearly."

"The climate here is better than Dakota in that we do not have so much dry wind; the winters are similar to Dakota."

"As for farming in general, the growing and feeding of live stock has proved to be a more sure thing than the grain farming, if continued year after year, and if every farmer follows this he will be ahead of the game in the Western Canada during the early spring, and in fact, all season until November, and the highest prices for Western Canada grain."

"I feel satisfied with my success in Alberta." (Sgd.) A. E. MERRIAM, Dalnora, Alberta, Jan. 12th, 1917.

There will be the greatest demand for farm lands in Western Canada during the early spring, and in fact, all season until November, and the highest prices for Western Canada grain."

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Quinn's Experience Ought to Help You Over the Critical Period.

Lowell, Mass.—"For the last three years I have been troubled with the change of life and the bad feelings common at that time. I was in a very nervous condition, with headaches, backaches, and all kinds of ailments. I tried a good deal of the time but was unable to do my work. A friend said to me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did and it has helped me in every way. I am not nearly so nervous, no headaches or pain. I must say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best remedy any sick woman can take."

ESKIMO DESERTS DANE KING

Mené Peary Wallace of Etah Takes Out First Papers as American Citizen.

Mené Peary Wallace, formerly of North Greenland, has taken Peary's "Eskimo boy," a few days ago forswore allegiance to the King of Denmark and received from C. W. Schuster, of the naturalization bureau the only "first papers" ever issued in New York to an Eskimo.

"I don't know whether I'm on the road to being an American citizen or whether I've been on the American citizen right along," Mené said. "Etah is away up toward the pole, about 3,000 miles nearer than Cape Sibley, where the Danish government exercises its northernmost jurisdiction, but American expeditions to Etah on the map as you would see the place."

"Etah is some place," he declared, smiling. "It has a population of 400—living in several houses, a mayor, no police, no schools—but when you're lived in New York for a while a bit of blubber and caribou meat goes hard."

WILSON AGAIN IS MADE PRESIDENT

Chief Executive Inducted into Office With Due Ceremony.

PATRIOTISM MARKS THE DAY

Vice President Marshall First Takes the Oath—Imposing Inaugural Parade in Large Military in Its Nature—Flags and Illumination.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.
Washington, March 6.—Woodrow Wilson has been inaugurated president of the United States for the second time, and Thomas R. Marshall has been inaugurated vice president of the United States for the second time in company with the chief executive.

For several nights prior to the inauguration, Washington was aglow with light. Thousands of American citizens came to the capital of their nation from all over the United States to witness the ceremonies attending the inauguration. The situation of the country in reference to its foreign relations added more than a touch of solemnity and a distinct flavor of patriotism to the entire proceedings. Washington in a city of flags at all times, but it became ten times a city of flags today before the ceremonies of inauguration.

President Wilson drove from the White House to the capitol with his wife at his side. In the carriage with him were two members of the congressional committee, and a large number of Secretaries of State and other officials.

Vice President Marshall, with Mrs. Marshall in the carriage with him, was escorted to hike manner to the capitol. Big Crowds, Many Flags
From an early hour the sidewalks were crowded with persons waiting to see the president and "the first lady of the land" pass beneath the archway to the place of the oath-taking. All the windows commanding a view of Pennsylvania avenue also were crowded with onlookers. The red, white and blue was everywhere in evidence. The only foreign flags to be seen in Washington were those flying from the flag poles of the foreign embassies and legations which, even though they are located in the city of Washington, are recognized as being foreign territory.

President Wilson was sworn into office before the inauguration of the vice president-elect. The president-elect was sworn in the senate chamber. The legislative day of March 3, so far as the senate was concerned, had been continued by resolution until the hour of 12 noon of the calendar day March 6.

The president pro tempore of the United States, the members of the cabinet, the foreign ambassadors and other notable guests occupied seats immediately preceding the carriage of the presidential and vice presidential parties and of Col. Robert H. Ellard, insurance chairman, was the famous United States Marine band. The president had as his guard of honor the squadron of the Second United States cavalry.

The Vice President and Mrs. Marshall were escorted by the Black Horse troop of the Culver Military academy, Indiana, the state of which the vice president and his wife are natives.

The West Point cadets and the Annapolis cadets took part in the procession. In addition to these young soldier and sailor organizations there was a large representation of the forces of the United States as properly called by name from post and garrison duty. In addition there were troops from Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, and some other states of the Union representing the National Guard.

A patriotic and picturesque feature of the ceremonies attending the inauguration was supplied by the presence of the United States Marine band. The band, which was led by its commander, was accompanied by the band of the United States Army. ate door, the main corridors of the capitol to the place set for the oath-taking. On reaching the inaugural stand, Woodrow Wilson took a place directly in front of Edward D. White, the chief justice of the United States, and the chief clerk of the Supreme court, James D. Maher. The sergeant-at-arms of the senate and the congressional committee on arrangements were immediately on the left of the president. The vice president, the associate justices of the Supreme Court and the members of the senate sat upon his right.

When all were assembled Chief Justice White, having in his right hand the Bible upon which the hands of many former presidents had rested, advanced to Woodrow Wilson and administered to him the oath which is imposed by the Constitution of the United States:

"You do solemnly swear that you will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States and will to the best of your ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Woodrow Wilson said in a firm voice, "I do," and he became the 28th president of the United States of America. Then the president delivered his inaugural address to the people.

In years past the presidential party always has entered the White House for luncheon prior to the review of the parade from the stand in front of the executive mansion. This invariably in the past caused such a delay that it was decided this year to do away with the luncheon festivity.

President Wilson with Mrs. Wilson, the Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, and two members of his cabinet went immediately to the little inclosure, which was built in the middle of the great grandstand in front of the White House and from which the chief executive viewed the parades.

It was the gravity of the situation in connection with our foreign affairs which gave to the inaugural ceremonies their serious tone and patriotic features. The parade of the White House and from which the chief executive viewed the parades.

At the forefront of the parade as it left the capitol were, of course, the president and the vice president of the United States with their guards of honor. Major General Hugh L. Scott, U. S. Army, was the grand marshal of the occasion. George R. Linkins was the marshal of the civic organizations which took part in the marching ceremony.

FRECKLES

New is the name of the best of those... Many letters are being received at the Nebraska experiment station asking whether or not it is profitable to feed lambs at the present high price of feeders.

If one can get a margin of 50 cents on the selling price over the buying price, it may be a profitable transaction. This is the answer of the animal husbandry section of the experiment station. Two years ago, when corn was 90 cents and alfalfa 78, gains on lambing cost $480 per hundred. Last year with feed at the same price, lambs fed heavily on corn made gains at $5.50 per hundred, and those receiving alfalfa made gains of $7.00 per hundred. Consequently, a 50-cent margin between buying and selling price should mean a nice profit to the careful feeder who gets satisfactory gains.

DAILY GROOMING FOR HORSE

It Gives Animal Excellent Appearance and Stimulates Circulation—Time Well Spent.

A few minutes spent daily in currying and brushing a horse is time well spent, in the opinion of David Gray, assistant in animal husbandry in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"The skin is of considerable importance currying and brushing will insure a healthy condition," said Mr. Gray.
"In the legs, especially, need daily care. In cold weather if it is necessary to wash them they should be thoroughly dried before being exposed to the open air. Mud should not be allowed to collect on the fetlocks, as it is apt to cause scratches and sores on the heels during the past year."

and about the feet. Sores, scratches, and unsightly spots are often caused by mud and manure settling in the hair, the drying of the mud causing the skin to crack.

"In harvest time, particularly, the horses should be kept clean, as long hours of work, dust and sweat, and heat will combine to make proper care of the skin a necessity. Sore shoulders and other affections, due to lack of care on the part of the owner, have often caused great loss of time and money."

Many letters are being received at the Nebraska experiment station asking whether or not it is profitable to feed lambs at the present high price of feeders.

FOODER IS NOT SUFFICIENT

Cannot Be Dependend Upon Alone to Carry Stock Through Winters to Best Advantage.

Good stock fodder is good roughage to carry stock cattle in winter, but alone it is not sufficient. If you have some thirty acres to follow the cattle, feed broken ear corn. This pays better than to grind the feed and use corn and cob together. Experiments at the Illinois station show that broken ear corn is practically as good as corn and cob meal from the standpoint of beef production while hog raising. Cattle thus fed, make three to four times as much gain as those following cattle given good feed and corn alone to carry their stock cattle to best advantage.
