KENTUCKY'S CROPS

United States Department of Agriculture

BUREAU OF CROP ESTIMATES

LOUISVILLE, KY.
Aug. 10, 1918.

Kentucky's crop prospects at present may be summarized as being a wheat crop of approximately 12,129,000 bushels compared to 5,000,000 bushels last year; corn 17,774,000 bushels compared to 12,285,000 bushels in 1917; oats 8,929,000 bushels compared to 8,065,000 bushels last year; rye 419,000 bushels compared to 375,000 bushels compared to 375,000 bushels compared to 140,000 bushels last year; Irish potatoes 4,099,000 bushels compared to 3,757,000 bushels last year; and 391,171,000 pounds of tobacco compared to 425,680,000 pounds grown last year.

Corn has been badly damaged by the drought in some sections, but the late corn may be able to very largely to overcome the damage if the rest of the season be favorable.

Although the potato crop is apparently seriously cut, in this state, by the drought, it should be remembered that tobacco crop went wonderfully from drought damage in a very short time last year, and former reports of great drought damage to the tobacco crop have often proved deceptive, because of quick growth late in the season. However, the crop in Kentucky has apparently been seriously damaged.

Early potatoes will probably yield better than the early crop. The sweet potato crop, near Somerset, is reported in good condition, with the increased acreage.

HOW WAR MAKES YOU WANT A SOUND MIND AND BODY

How war, with its indomitable emergencies, its unusual necessities and its specialized minds in the most diverse directions, forces attention to innumerable problems that pertain to health is set forth by a contributor to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"The elimination of the ravages of disease among active troops has rebounded to the credit of modern sanitation and prophylaxis," says this authority. "Military hygiene has set us its goal the attainment and conservation of health in the great body of fighting forces. There is much to be accomplished in the direction of eradicating unnecessary physical inferiority or deterioration associated with disease in all active forces."

For some of the difficulties that present themselves an effective immediate solution is not in sight. In other cases, notably such as are represented by the incidence of typhoid fever and other infections among the troops, the lessons of science are being applied with success. In any event, the world war has provided to many defects which need remedies. It is a wholesome task to apply the contributions of the past when the opportunity arises.

"The conservation of health and the development of physical fitness are a soldier's first duty. Marksanship, military tactics, drill and co-operation are comparatively little when energy, strength and perfection of bodily training are neglected or lacking. This has been demonstrated again and again among 'unsensitized' forces. Hence it is that so much attention is now being concentrated on the establishment of health and vigor among groups of men in training, every where.

"Athletic exercises combined with gun drills for recognition in the routine of a future soldier.

HEALTH AND TYPHOID FEVER

At all times it is of much importance to observe sanitary rules, but this year it is more important than ever before to use preventive measures. The season for Typhoid Fever is now here. Those unfortunate enough to be sufferers from this disease will have less care; the families can not lose time to attend them without foregoing the loss of time very recently this winter. Typhoid can be prevented by cleaning up and keeping clean. All toilets should be cleaned and lime used freely; all hog pens kept clean; no cesspools allowed in back yards; screens patched no and flies kept out of kitchen and dining rooms. Every home in which there is a case of fever should be kept scrupulously clean, and all inmates of the house should be vaccinated as early as the disease is diagnosed as typhoid.
