Counting it only in dollars and cents, how much did that last cold cost you? A man may not always stop work when he has a cold, but perhaps it would be better if he did. It takes about ten days to get rid of a cold under the usual treatment. That time can be much shortened by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and proper care of yourself, in fact a bottle of this remedy in the house is a mighty good investment during the winter and spring months.

E. R. GENTRY IN GERMANY

Bitburg, Germany, Jan. 3, 1919. Mr. E. S. Albright, Mt. Vernon, Ky.

I suppose if I were writing an article for publication, I would style this letter "In the Enemy's Country". I left Paris on the night of Dec. 26th, going by way of Chateaufort, Chalons, Epervier and Toul, reaching Nancy at ten o'clock the next day. I spent a couple of hours in Nancy getting baggage rechecked and additional movement orders and left there for Metz at a little after 12 o'clock. I was mighty glad to have this daylight ride across the old battle line, or rather lines, north of Metz and for once I was glad to be on a French train which ran slow, stopped often and stood a long time when it stopped. I was in the same compartment with a Lieut.

tenant who knew the country well and it was my first ride in a German coach, being one of those recently turned over to the Allies. There has been a great deal written about the devastation and destruction caused by war, but no one can adequately read what I had already seen. I had no real conception of a battle field. For miles you could only see the effect caused by air raids and bursting shells, towns destroyed and great shell holes everywhere. Then came the towns which were right at the front, the last on the French side being Pagny, a town of possibly a couple of thousand people and completely destroyed. I do not believe there was a house in it which was left decent to live in. South of this place for several miles the railroad communication had been cut of course since the beginning of the war and the road destroyed. It has been rebuilt since the armistice was signed. For several miles the battle line had extended along this railroad with the French and American trenches on one side and the Germans on the other. While Engineers were rebuilding rail roads and blown up bridges as fast as possible the trenches and dugouts are just about as they were. In many places the lines of barbed wire entanglements were only short distance apart. It seemed almost unbelievable that so much intricate system of trenches and lines of wire entanglements continued on and on for hundreds of miles along that great battle front. There are still great ammunition dumps containing literally millions of all kinds of shells still along here and all along the railroad lines were American soldiers. The roads are lined with miles of camouflage both on the Allies' side of the line and the Germans' because it must be remembered that they knew how to camouflage as well as we. In one place I noticed what appeared to be a small hill but the Lieutenant told me it was all camouflage and that beneath it could be hidden hundreds of men and tons of ammunition. At another place a narrow gauged railway led up to a hill and entered a dugout where the officer said two regiments of our soldiers had been concealed in little underground city. It was practically the same on the German side of the line. Great shell holes everywhere, growing larger and fewer right to the gates of Metz, which we reached after four o'clock. We had until seven o'clock to get out of there but as it soon got dark we saw very little of the city. I had a good supper in a restaurant near the station among a cosmopolitan group of people as you could find. I ate at the same table with some American soldiers and a civilian Frenchman. The waitress spoke both French and German; an English and Belgian officer sat at another table near a group of Italian soldiers who were having the same of their lives, while at another table four Germans talked glibly in Dutch. From Metz I went to Coblenz by way of Trier (called Treves by the French) reaching Coblenz about 11:30 at night. You know I was afraid to get into Louisville in the night unless I had a room reserved, fearing that I would get no place to stay, but thanks to the last nine months I have gotten over that until getting into Coblenz, a city of around sixty thousand at midnight did not worry me. You know in this war life there is always the opportunity to just not go to bed. I knew I would not be admitted to any hotel without an order from the U. S. Billeting officer, after about an hours walk I located him, only to be told that every available place was filled. While I was standing there, so after another half an hour, two Captains and a Lieutenant came in on the same errand as myself and received the same kind of a reception. While we were pondering on a good place to stay up the billeting officer had an idea. He said he had beds reserved at certain places for two Colonels and two Majors and that he would risk taking them. The Captains said they thought they could be Colonels for the night if the Lieutenant and I could take the part of Majors. As I had sat up all night of the train the night before, I was ready for anything, so after another half an hour, and the help of two German policemen we found the place in a private home. We sounded the alarm and after a middle-aged woman came to the door who spoke fairly good English and received us kindly. She put us up and inquiring if we would breakfast there the next morning which I did. I do not know what became of the officers. The next day I was sent to another German home where I spent three nights. You know under the terms of the armistice, the German government must furnish this lodging and it is done in this way as far as I know. The headquarters of the Y. M. C. A. with the army of occupation. I spent three days there before I was assigned for work. The people were kind to me, bringing me coffee to my room in the morning, and also in the afternoon if I happened to be in the room and always refusing to take a cent for it. The fact is they are doing all they can to please the Americans, because they expect something, and are pinning their faith to the fact that they will save themselves, but they will never escape the full responsibility of this war and I do not believe they will fool even the American soldiers by their forced kindness. When I see it, it only brings to my mind that only a few months ago these same people were parading these same streets with bands, playing and flags flying because the news had reached them that their infernal submarines had sunk another ship load of innocent women and children, or Red Cross nurses and wounded soldiers. Why, while I was in Coblenz, I saw post card pictures of the retreating German army as it passed through with flying colors and the population covering them with flowers and waving handkerchiefs just as though they were victors instead of a bunch of whipped cubs. There has been no change of heart that quick. They curse the Kaiser and yet you will find his picture in nearly every room of their home and their 1919 almanacs contains his picture on the cover. President Wilson may be right in saying there is a difference in between the German people and the German government, but as far as making full and just reparation for every atom of expense caused by this war, there can be no difference. They must pay the last dollar and they can do it. They have their industries in each of their cities have not been destroyed. With the occupation of a few items, they are in better shape for food than either England or France. I bought practically the same meal in Coblenz as in Paris and at little more than half the cost. The Y. M. C. A. in Coblenz is serving a better meal in Coblenz for two and a half francs than they serve in Paris or other French cities for five. The city of Coblenz today looks more like one of our American cities than any place I have seen since I left home. Broad streets, modern buildings, beautiful shop windows, stocked with practically everything one needs. They are really so much like our own shop windows that it made me homesick and yet they howl to the world outside that they are starving. Coblenz is really a lovely little city situated on the Rhine at the mouth of the Moselle, which I think is agreed to be the most beautiful river of Germany. The principal part of the city is on the western bank of the Rhine and on a plain just above the river, while just across the river one of the old fortress castles for which the Rhine is famous rises to almost four hundred feet in perpendicular natural stone or concrete, above the river. This fort is occupied by our troops now and I was told that with all its walls and passageways it would accommodate a defending army of more than sixty thousand men. I talked the military police out of a pass to cross the river and visit the fort. It is a wonderful place and the view for miles up and down the Rhine and up the Moselle valley is one never to be forgotten. This old fort was first begun by the Romans in the 1st century. Napoleon occupied the town on his famous march to Moscow and a statue erected by him still stands though the inscription has been so changed that it seems now to be for a different purpose than that for which it was erected. The Kaiser has a Royal Palace here which he spent part of the summer with all his court. It will be a mighty cold summer before he spends another here. I attended an American Church service last Sunday in the Chapel of this palace in the afternoon and another at evening in another part of it known as Festival Hall, which has been taken over for entertainment purposes for the American army. I forgot to tell you that while standing on top of the old fort, Logue Hast's son, Albert, walked right into me. I had not even heard of him, since I left him at Camp Taylor. I had a nice talk with him and was certainly glad to see him. He told me there were some Rockcastle boys in this old fort across the Rhine, but I only had a short time before my pass over the river was out. I did not get to see them. I saw one other but as I did not know his very well at home cannot call his name. I crossed over the river in a ferry but as I came back I walked the old pontoon bridge which is one of the oldest things about the town and pictures of which you have doubt, less seen many times. On the last day of the year, I was sent up here to Bitburg, a little town several Kilometers from the Luxemburg border and almost due north of Trier. Coblenz is a beautiful ride from Coblenz up the Moselle to Trier and it is wonderful ride. The railroad winds right up the beautiful river, the banks of which look almost like cliffs for hundreds of feet. It does not look like a goat, much less a man could get up them and yet those Germans have terraced those banks from the high road work up and have them covered with vineyards. In the first place I do not see how they have done it and then how in the world it can pay for the outlay of money and labor necessary to do it. I do not like this country or the people. One thing I suppose is that I had just gotten to where I could get around among the French with the few words I had picked up and now I am simply

 day at Hazard of appendicitis.
 For several months he has been employed at Lenoxy, Ky. About two weeks he had been sick with flu and on Saturday appendicitis made its appearance. He grew worse so rapidly, that by the time he could be removed to a hospital, it was found that an operation was impossible and the dead came in a few hours. He was married to a wife, who was Miss Alice Manas and one child. The remains were brought here Tuesday and laid to rest Wednesday in Elmwood cemetery.

Though an unintentional oversight, but something for which we never expect forgiveness, we failed to have last issue the expected and very much deserved mention of the entertainment at the Willing Workers at the Grand Circuit on the 2nd of Feb. previous Friday night. We have not had anything by local talent that was enjoyed more. Every number on the program brought a hearty applause from the large crowd which filled the chapel to its capacity and the meeting of the Willing Workers, simply brought down the house. About $35 in receipts was realized, which is very satisfactory, both for the cause that it is intended and to the good women who were very anxious to make it a success.
 All money which goes into the hands of the Willing Workers is sure to be used right and for noble purposes, and for that reason we always rejoice to know their efforts are rewarded.

COUNCIL OF NATIONAL DEFENSE

It is the opinion of people generally that the Mass Meeting at the Court House on Monday did a great deal of good in arousing a grossing people to a sense of duty and making them more determined to suppress bootlegging.
 The organization as outlined at that meeting is not complete and cannot be completed until we have a meeting of the committee men and organize the committee for the county, and then organize each voting precinct. To perform this organization, it is deemed necessary to call a meeting at the Court House in Mt. Vernon, February 15th, at 1 p.m. We shall expect every man who is on the Committee whose name appears elsewhere in this paper to be present, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

This meeting will prove how general the interest is in suppressing bootlegging, and the absence of any of those men who were elected on the committee will indicate the lack of interest.
 When the citizens should have been at this great movement.

The fact that it is apparent that the United States is going dry in 1920 is no reason why we should fold our hands and put up with the lawlessness that now exists waiting for the Government to control the situation.
 When the citizens of Rockcastle County have done their duty bootlegging will be suppressed and not until then.

 one Underwood Typewriter, also fish place now occupied by Mr.

 Ramsey.

Gingham 15 cts per yard at Drummond's store.

I had bought the Main street restaurant. I have been too busy this week feeding the people to write an ad, but just seen of following the crowd to the popular Main Street Restaurant, where we serve hot and cold lunches with good Old Kentucky hospitality. JOHN RENNER, Prop.

A new precedent has been set by the present Grand Jury and that is in having that body opened with prayer, before organization. This custom should have been practiced long ago, but it has now let us hope will be in the future. Rev. W. D. Mullins, the Magistrate from the 4th district bears the distinction of being the first minister to open that body in Rockcastle with prayer.

Good heavy work shirts 50 cts at Drummond's.

CHRONIC CONSTIPATION

There are people who never have a movement of the bowels without it is produced by a cathartic. Most of them have bought that condition on themselves by the use of mineral waters and strong cathartics that take too much water out of the system and aggravate the disease they are meant to relieve. A mild laxative tone like Chamberlain's Tablets affords a gentle movement of the bowels that you hardly realize has been produced by a medicine, and their use is so not likely to be followed by constipation.

The Boone Way Man received a much valued Christmas present in the way of a fine Hamilton watch movement, which was placed in the heavy coin silver case the old road scout has been carrying for the past 10 years.
 The donor was Mr. J. T. Welch, Secretary—Treasurer—General manager of the Independent Packers Perillizer Co., Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Welch had some assistance rendered him by Mr. M. when he took a course in a Louisville commercial school some 3 years since. This is not the first instance of his remembrance to his old preceptor. "Jack" never forgets a favor shown.
 Col. Maret has assisted fifteen boys in his day, into business life, and is proud of it, even tho' only seven of them ever showed their appreciation, possibly just taking it for granted, and in the hurry of life let the matter slip their memories, or misunde-standing the value of assistance at the proper time in early age.
 "Jack" Welch is a brother of Richard, at Mt. Vernon, and of Mrs. J. E. Vowles, Middleboro, and Mrs. Katie Linton, Louisville.
 He has had great success in his line of endeavor, and "being holding the responsible positions he does, owns a large block of stock of his company, of which he was one of the organizers, having a $5,000 position at Louisville, a number of years since for that purpose.
