Twenty Correspondents In Signal This Week

Twenty communities in this county are represented in The Signal this week. Such representation gives the readers of The Signal the news of what is happening over the county. Our correspondents are busy each week gathering the most important events in their sections. Every week over five hundred different names are mentioned, and in this way The Signal becomes a family newspaper and a part of many Rockcastle farm homes.

Other newspapers that come to our desk carry fewer correspondents even though their counties are much larger than ours.

Although the news items about our neighbors are a large part of The Signal each week, many other features, such as, court news, news, Broadhead Booster, Livingston News and other news items, interest people who you know makes this newspaper a big bargain at $1.50 per year.

Deadline Soon For FSA Loans

Small farmers whose plans for 1941 operations are being handicapped by lack of capital may still apply for Farm Security Administration loans, according to Charles E. Gibson FSA supervisor for Rockcastle county.

Mr. Gibson said today that applications for loans from government funds set up for the fiscal year ending June 30 should be submitted at the earliest opportunity. He pointed out that no loan can be made unless there is time for the farmer to get the money to use on the farm and home, management plan which must accompany each credit advance.

"Every spring we have to turn away eligible farmers because they apply too late for the necessary plans to be drawn up," Mr. Gibson said. "Farm Security Administration has found that there is a need for the government's investment, as well as lasting benefits for the farmer, come from businesslike and planned-out operation of a farm, not from the cash advance to meet temporary needs."

FSA extends limited credit for purchase of tools, seed, feed, fertilizer, livestock and other supplies and equipment needed for successful operation of a family-type farm. Loans are also made to neighborhood groups of farmers who can purchase used heavy farm machinery of purebred sires cooperatively.

Farmers in Rockcastle County should apply in person at his office in the Vernon Theatre Building, at Mt. Vernon.

Hearing To Be Held On Refunding Bonds

"Pursuant to your petition praying the State Local Finance Officer to approve the issuance by Rockcastle County of $120,000 Refunding Bonds, you are hereby notified of a hearing to be held at this office on Friday morning, May 9 at 10 a. m. for the purpose of determining whether issuance of said bonds should be approved or disapproved."

H. Clyde Reeves

Electric Utilities Tax Rises To New High

Taxes imposed on electric utilities for 1940 rose to a new high of $405,000,000, representing 17 1/2% of every dollar of gross revenue. $7.25 of the average domestic service bill of $38.27 was paid out in direct taxes, leaving only $29.02 of net revenue.

Crippled Children Drive Under Way

County Quota Set At $100

N. M. Smock, county chairman, of Crippled Children drive to raise funds, reports that only a small sum has been turned in to date. The quota is $100.

The Crippled Children Association for the State of Kentucky has accomplished miracles since its organization. Children who are crippled are sent to clinics over the State and to hospitals, where in many cases marked improvement has been shown in their condition. The more money raised, the more good can be done to help these unfortunate children, and Rockcastle county has its share.

Even small contributions will help, and those wishing to make a donation can do so, by sending or bringing their money to the following men, who are on the committee, to raise funds: N. M. Smock, Fritz Krueger, W. R. Champion, E. R. Denney, D. C. Craig and W. L. Simpson.

"No more worthy organization exists in the state than the Crippled Children's, and it should have the full co-operation of our people."

Help Find Early Tuberculosis

Today our nation is calling for men—healthy men—to defend our country. Tuberculosis is still our great enemy; therefore, we know you will be anxious to cooperate with us in the Early Diagnostic Campaign that is carried on through the month of May. Each year this period is set aside for placing special emphasis on the importance of finding tuberculosis early, when it can be cured, and before the infected person has become a menace to others.

Let's begin now and get everyone talking about tuberculosis. Let's make them understand that early tuberculosis can be cured. Tell them how to find it early with the Tuberculin Test and the X-ray. Tuberculosis is still our big problem. Let's unite our nation in our fight against it.

Clean Up, Paint Up Time Has Arrived

This is the time of year when property owners make their annual clean up of their houses and lots. A house that is painted and well kept is much easier to rent, than a dilapidated structure that has never seen a coat of paint.

Business houses increase sales by keeping their stores clean and neat. It is a pleasure to shop in a clean tidy store, and it shows that the proprietor is on his toes looking for new business. A well kept store especially restaurants usually get the majority of the tourist business. Most tourists are looking for a neat, clean place to eat or spend the night.

Another point to be considered is that stores that are painted present a fine appearance to the stranger, and is good advertising for a town. Dirty streets that are littered with banana peeling, apple cores and other refuse, certainly doesn't do a town any good.

The good citizen takes pride in making his town look as good as possible. Check up and see when you had a general housecleaning, last.

Cornlanders Growers Form Co-operative

With its program to aid Kentucky farmers to find new crops to replace some of the acreage loss in the production of tobacco, the Division of Markets of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, Frankfort, Kentucky, has introduced the raising of Coriander seed.

Until 1941 Coriander has not been raised on a commercial scale in this State, but it has been used in large quantities by many industries according to the "National Farm Chemist's Council Bulletin," Coriander is a rather easily cultivated plant. It can grow in almost any soil except ground with swampy drainage. The best growth sites are considered to be either a black or rich limestone soil. It is sown in rows 15 to 24 inches apart, requiring from 10 to 15 pounds to the acre and is harvested either with a combine or cut and threshed.

The Kentucky Coriander Co-operative Association has contracted with Joseph E. Segrum & Son for the purchase of all its seed at 25 cents per pound, and the Segrum Co. has guaranteed a minimum return of $60.00 per acre to the producer. This protects the grower as it gives him an assured income.

The L. & N. Railroad owns and operates a total of 4,871.20 miles of track and of this, 2,713.42 miles is laid with 100 pound-per-yard rail; 1,278.38 miles with 95-pound rail and the remaining less than 1000 miles with somewhat lighter weights. Only 7.20 miles of track has rail of a weight less than 70 pounds per yard.

The United States has about thirty percent of the railroad mileage of the world.

Of the three cents you pay to send a first-class letter anywhere in the United States, the government pays the same letter, the government pays one-fifth of a cent for hauling it. If you put a six-cent air mail stamp on the same letter, the government pays the airlines about 7 1/2 cents for hauling it.

Safetygrams

By Fred W. Braun

Four "ins" are responsible for a great many traffic accidents:

- (1) Inattention
- (2) Inexperience
- (3) Incompetency
- (4) Inattention

Inattention is probably the outstanding cause of motor vehicle deaths and injuries today. Inexperienced drivers plus the new, modern machine with its high speed mechanism constitute a menace to safety. Incompetency rules with inexperience; people who are inexperienced in the handling of these new automobiles are also incompetent.

Indifference constitutes a devil-may-care attitude. Some people feel that they must be first to the turn and first to the stop light. They are indifferent to the rights of others and exhibit an utter lack of courtesy.

Money Talks

By Frederick W. Stamm, Economist and Director of Adult Education University of Louisville.

Often times the glamor of foreign trade and the publicity given it overstate the importance of some of our great industries as "buyers" of American goods.

Take the American railroads, for example. Their "shopping list" contains over 70,000 different items. Last year they spent over 200 million dollars for coal, 56 million for fuel oil, and 4 million for gasoline. Purchases of forest products (ties, telephone poles, etc.) amounted to nearly 70 million in 1940. They bought iron and steel products amounting to 400 millions. Purchase of miscellaneous products, such as glass, drugs, chemicals, paint, stationery, food products, etc. amounted to $283 million. These figures do not include the millions spent on new equipment.

For the direct purchase of material and supplies used in everyday operation, the railroads have spent, during the last ten years, an average of nearly one billion dollars a year.

Filling the railroads' enormous market basket gives employment to hundreds of thousands of people in many American industries all over this country.

This is but one of many illustrations which could be used to show the importance of one industry to American life. As important as our foreign customers are, we must not overlook the great domestic industries which furnish the basis for our American economic prosperity.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Albright and family of Hamilton, Ohio were with relatives here last week.

Mrs. Bernard Riddle and daughter, Carol Ann of Stone arrived Tuesday for a visit with relatives.

RIGHT—Man o'War as he looks today. The public may visit him at Faraway Farm, near Lexington, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. daily BACKGROUND—Parading to the post at Keeneland race track near Lexington. BELOW—Greyhound, fastest trotter the world has ever known, sets another record at Lexington. This time the mark was set in an unusual way for Greyhound—under the saddle.

(Kentucky Press Association Historical Series) This is one of a series of articles prepared by the Kentucky Press Association which, in 1941 would tell Kentuckians of Kentucky, as Kentucky should be told in the year 1942—Sequel to "Man o'War".

By Neville Dunn Sports Editor, Lexington Herald Last year in the United States a total of 211 running-hunt-steeplechase were decided. One hundred and twenty of them were won by thoroughbred horses bred in Kentucky.

There, in two sentences, is a report of the evidence that the state in the United States can approach Kentucky, especially central Kentucky, in the production of outstanding race horses. The best, the best, the strongest and the soundest race horses have come from central Kentucky. It is so proved on the race tracks every year.

The same can be said of the horses with the flowing manes and tails, and with so much style in their and the horses with the roached manes and tails, and so much snap in their action—the three-gaited saddle horses—that are shown in the most fashionable equine exhibitions of the country, whether at Madison Square Garden in New York, Devon, Pa., Kansas City, Mo., the Kentucky or Ohio Indian State Fairs, or in central Kentucky's own brilliant July spectacle, the Junior League Horse Show.

It likewise may be said of the standardized horses, the sports and the pacers, which year after year dominate the harness-horse sport. No state in the United States has a section quite like central Kentucky when it comes to producing the best trotting horse, the best trotting and pacing horses and the best saddle horses. In fact, any type of light horse, which includes also the hunting horse and the polo pony. It stands absolutely supreme in the United States, and has stood so for many a year.

Superiority Explained Prof. E. S. Good, head of the department of animal husbandry of the University of Kentucky, explains central Kentucky's superiority as a horse-producing section in these words: "The Bluegrass region of Kentucky is the premier breeding ground for light horses because of its ample rainfall, mild climate, abundance of sunshine and a soil rich in calcium and phosphorus, so necessary to produce superior bone, muscle and nerve."

There is one other thing, very important, not so tangible, that Prof. Good did not mention. This is the love that the real central Kentuckians, the native son, feels for a horse. Central Kentuckians love a good horse; and they work ceaselessly to produce good horses. When you mix favorable climate, suitable soil and geographical location with love of a horse you have central Kentucky's full formula for producing good horses.

and do not include the many farms having exclusively either saddle horses or trotting horses but no thoroughbred stallions.

Value 16 Million Dollars "On these farms a survey shows that there were approximately 200 stallions and conservatively 2,500 mares. Conservatively figured at $200 an acre the land in this use would have a total value of approximately $16,000,000."

If one were to try to estimate the value of the stallions on these farms—for example, Blenheim II alone cost $250,000 and Samuel D. Riddle, the owner of Man o'War once refused $1,000,000 for his great horse—the total value of the horse interests in central Kentucky would be staggering.

Many years ago it was discovered that the best race horses in America came from Kentucky. That was back in the days of old Saratoga Park—the daddy of Belmont, Saratoga and the other New York tracks of today. The thoroughbreds which had been brought east to race by their Kentucky breeders and owners invariably defeated the best that came from other states. They wanted to know why, and they began an investigation; that is, the strenuous of them did. Then Kentucky's marvelous facilities for producing horses was brought to light. Of course Kentucky has had known for a long time prior to that—since 1863's that they had the best horses in the land; but now the easterners knew, too.

Origin Of "Hard-Boot" That was the days when a Kentuckian was known as a "hard-boot." This is how it all began on the race tracks of the country, but it has been handed on and handed on until it has lost its original meaning and some use it now in scorn.

Back to those days, shortly after the War Between the States—and even before—that Kentuckians, picturesque in their language and their manners, wore knee-high boots made of rawhide or some other leather. Paved streets and roads in central Kentucky were hard to the mud, after a rain, was terrific. Constant wading through the mud around Jerome Park and other tracks caused the oil in the boots worn by the Kentuckians to dry, and soon the boots, especially those of rawhide, became hard and brittle.

Most always the men who wore these boots knew how to drive hard bargains in their horse deals, or they sent to the races, against the eastern cracks, horses that were hard to beat. Sometimes, too, these men were experts at drinking hard liquor and some of them, for convenience sake, used their boots as a repository for their pint bottles of Kentucky corn. This combination of circumstances led the easterners to refer to such men—the Kentuckians—as "those fellows who wear hard boots drive the hard bargains, have horses hard to beat and drink hard liquor." Soon all Kentuckians became known as "hard-boots."

To be a hard-boot was no uncommon honor, because it meant that one so designated was a keen judge of a horse and could carry his liquor like a gentleman. Today, sadly, most people think of a hard-boot as a man who operates a very poor racing establishment or owns only a horse or two, most often crippled and patched up. In Kentucky, however, such people are known as "gyps", but the term isn't necessarily derogatory or reflective on the honor, integrity or horsemanship of the one so described.

Kentucky Takes Stakes

Ever since the Kentucky Derby was inaugurated in 1875, the Belmont Stakes in 1897, the Preakness in 1873 and other great stakes, horses from Kentucky have dominated them, because of their former pre-eminence from other states or any other country. Maryland, Virginia, New Jersey, Texas, Missouri, West Virginia, and California, to name the most important of the other breeding states, have tried without success to supplant the Kentucky thoroughbred when the blue chips are down. They win lots of races; the horses from those states, but Kentucky horses win more.

One of the first easterners to discover the marvelous qualities of the Bluegrass region and the miraculous effect of Elkhorn creek in the production of top race horses was Major August Belmont the First. This pillar of eastern racing came to Kentucky and founded the Nursery Stud. Later his son, Major August Belmont II carried on, and in the year that the United States entered the World War against Germany he sold all his horses so that he could serve in the army of his country. That was how Man o'War—a foal of 1917—happened to pass into the ownership of Samuel D. Riddle of Glen-Ridge, Pa.

So wonderful was Man o'War as a race horse, Mr. Riddle decided he would raise his horses nowhere else but in Kentucky, so he came to central Kentucky and purchased Faraway Farm. There Man o'War, at stud, has sired a number of the greatest money-winners of the American turf, and there literally in droves, march lovers of the horse to visit the greatest horse of modern days—Man o'War himself.

45,000 Visitors In Year In his racing commission report, Mr. Underwood wrote: "One year more than 45,000 guests registered in the guest book to see Man o'War, rated with the best, as Kentucky's first tourist attraction, the same as many others have visited the other widely known horse estates to see the famous horse stars of Kentucky."

These tourists who come to the Bluegrass are also overcome by the hospitality of the horse lovers of that community. Every estate, from the elaborate establishments of Joseph Widener, Warren Wright and Col. E. R. Bradley to the more humble farms of the "native sons" is open to visitors and literally thousands of them drive through these stately farms every spring, summer and fall. Probably nowhere else in the world are the private estates of native or absentee landlords open to the general public. In central Kentucky the latchspring hangs out always. Any lover of a horse is welcome.

One farm, Coldstream stud, owned by C. B. Shaffer, trustee and operated by Elmer Dale Shaffer, his son, said in a recent advertisement of the stallions at its place:

"The gates of Coldstream are open always to those who love a horse." Long before Jerome Park was founded in New York, not far from the Broadway of today, Kentuckians were racing horses. A history of the old Kentucky Association track, which passed out of existence several years ago after having had racing almost continuously from 1826 says: "It is traditional that, following the customs of their forebears, these early Kentuckians tried the mettle of their horses by racing them, though they had no roads or tracks when scarcely out of the stockades that afforded the pioneers protection from the Indians."

Racing Older Than Stone

"The earliest printed records of racing and the breeding of thoroughbred horses in Kentucky are found in the Kentucky Gazette, (then spelled Kentucky Gazette), which made its initial appearance at Lexington, Aug. 1, 1787, nearly six years before Kentucky was admitted to the Union."

"At that time a number of thoroughbred stallions, some of them having been imported from England and others having been brought from Virginia, were standing in the vicinity of Lexington, and there was racing on the 'Commons'."

"Prior to 1787, it appears, to have been the practice of the horsemen at Lexington to indulge their charming pastime in Main street, but the town ordinance that they should go to the 'Commons,' as the level stretch, now occupied by railroad tracks and known as Water street (in Lexington) then was called, on the Commons."

"The Commons had for its southern boundary a small stream of water, called Town Fork, and emptying in Elkhorn Creek. Town Fork now is covered with arches and situated to building and is a part of Lexington's sewage system."

"South of Town Fork was a sloping elevation to High street, and this formed a point of vantage for spectators when there was racing on the Commons."

These early Kentuckians learned quickly that their breed of horses, which had romped in their pastures, gently rolling, a sea of movement from the blue-tipped blue-grass that rippled in the breeze, were the best in the world. They still are.

SLANTS

By W. L. S.

R. O. Roby felt so bad about his "rite-up" last week, that he decided it was impossible to catch fish in the daytime, he would see how they would bite at night. Accordingly in armed himself with a big gas lantern, the latest type of bait and an oversize fishing pole and set forth. He took along the wife for company. After an hour of fishing Mrs. Roby had snagged five, and Husband Roby had yet to get a nibble. He could stand it no longer, becoming irritated with rage and chagrin, he let out a violent kick, knocking over the gas lantern which promptly exploded. Gas from the lantern lit on Roby's hand and became ignited causing a bad burn and ending the night's fishing. If he were Roby, he would let the little wife do the fishing, while he assisted in taking the fish off the hook, baiting, stringing the catch or other menial tasks.

The people of this country are becoming aware of the strike situation. Strikes have become an old defense work, which might mean the salvation of this nation, if we went to war. As far as judging the right or wrong of either side we state frankly that not knowing the inside of the arguments, it would be impossible to give our views. Big industrialists have many evils, but working conditions have improved. In practically all large plants, and wages are high. Still some of the workers want more, more they want shorter hours. Some definite agreement must be reached so all strikes will end soon.

The point that many workers overlook is the fact that the capitalists must make money before they pay out money. Whenever a large plant ceases operations the worker suffers. The capitalist usually has enough money laid by to live comfortably for many years. The workers' savings are soon used, and he is penniless. A large firm has tremendous expense and must have a large volume of business to make a profit. When business falls off or the company is paying too high wages, a loss is incurred. If that goes on for two or three years, the largest firms would be forced to close.

Smaller plants scattered over the country have to compete with big business. If they are to get high wages, many will have to shut down. The men who run the plants, being highly skilled men will promptly be placed in good jobs, will be the majority of the workers will be unemployed. The worker must have his rights, but there are two sides to every question. The laboring man has advanced a long way in the last eight years, but all the good that has been accomplished could be lost if a spirit of reconciliation is not taken soon.

Baptist Church

By Rev. W. C. Younce

George Elliott has somewhere this beautiful sentence: "When death, the great reconciler has come, it is never our tenderness that we repent of, but our severity." How many millions of severing souls have found the loss of their loved ones have found the sharpness of death sadly sharpened by the memory of harsh words they have spoken? No, it is never sorry, at such a time, that he has been too patient, too forbearing, too forgiving, too kind, loving and merciful.

It is a fine thing to form the habit of looking ahead to the time when we may lose those who are near and dear to us, either by our own carelessness or by their departure from the better world. Such an anticipation is not foolish, it is only sensible. Any looking ahead is sensible if the fore-glimpse is of something sure to come, and something against which some provision should be made. Not to foresee it is imprudence.

The Army's Air Corps Reserve for the next three years. If the Army pilots desire to leave the service upon the completion of the three-year tour they are paid a cash bonus of $500. It has been estimated that it costs the Government between $15,000 and $25,000 to train each pilot. Thus each army flying cadet who qualifies receives approximately a $25,000 education. At its conclusion he may qualify for a commission in the Regular Army Air Corps and make a career of the service, or he may qualify as a pilot or other aviation position with civilian aviation companies.

Men in college are invited to visit the Board during the stay in Lexington and take the physical examination and then complete their school semester or degree before starting their training. Taking the physical examination puts the applicant under no obligation to enter the Air Corps. High school graduates without college credits are given free schooling at Lexington, where non-resident applicants from other Kentucky towns are undergoing a refresher course preparatory to taking the next mental tests, to be given in May at Louisville.

Men whose draft numbers are up may take the physical examination and get deferment from the local boards pending notification to enter the board training. However, the local board must be notified that the applicant has been tentatively accepted, upon his passing the physical examination at Lexington, in order for the deferment to be effective, it was stated.

In the list is Somerset, Ky., recently visited by war department representatives who, it is understood, have a favorable report on the proposed site, near that city.

I KILLED, I SHOT IN CLAY COUNTY

John Hensley, 23 years old, was shot fatally, and Kelly Baker, also 23, was shot in the arm, shortly before dark Saturday on Goose Creek, about three miles from Oneida.

Baker, of Co. C, 11th Battalion, ARFC, at Fort Knox, was brought to the Pennington Hospital here, where Dr. Walter G. Pennington, attending physician, said he would recover.

The physician quoted Baker as saying that the shots were fired by Elbert Roark, a man and Hensley were attempting to leave Roark's automobile.

Baker related that they and a brother of Roark had been playing poker and that they had won about $10.00 from the Roark brothers, and that shortly afterwards as they were riding home in the Roark automobile, Elbert insisted on selling Baker a car for $20, which he refused.

He added that Roark was drunk and was afraid he would run the motor into the river, and that he and Hensley got him stopped.

Viennese Star Shuns "Glamour," Prefers Her Hollywood Ranch

By HALSEY RAINES

A reticently alluring young lady with raven-black tresses, who suggests the Helen of Annabel of Edgar Allan Poe's lyric eulogies, is Hollywood's number one 1941 exponent of the Viennese tradition. She is lissome and languorous Hedy Lamarr, whose twin hobbies are raising chickens and painting fences around her acre-and-a-half California "ranch" and who is now co-starred with James Stewart, Judy Garland and Lana Turner in M.G.M.'s forthcoming "Ziegfeld Girl."

Miss Lamarr's pet dislike is the by now somewhat shoptown phrase, "glamour girl." She doesn't like it to be directed at her, and she feels it's apt to be sort of boomerang compliment wherever used. Her insistent appeals to play comedy rather than clothehorse parts led to her appearance as an overalled Soviet motorwoman and a backer of the Pennsylvania-farm girl in her latest two parts.

The young Austrian star's simplicity of manner is utterly genuine. She came to this country with nifty and effusive publicity manes, exploding about her at every turn; she dodged reporters whenever possible, but won the reputation of being a model subject whenever an interview was granted; she suited the ordeal of being elected 1940 Class Day favorite by a score of American colleges; and she kept right on buying three day-old chicks for that miniature Tyrolean farm.

Just an adolescent school girl with large, bright staring eyes when she first visited a picture set in suburban Van Nuys, she was caught up by fortune in one of those Cinderella-like transformations that sometimes convert the most imaginative movie press agent. Her clothes were drab and rather poorly selected, her make-up was hardly none and her hair and hat an imposition. Dr. Wilhelm Steadler, the movie producer who now in Hollywood, spotted her and suggested a hair comb-over and restyling. The young lady demurred, explaining that she was just a visitor, went home, thought it over and eventually returned. It was then too late to get any consideration for a walk-through in the picture set just being finished, but a month later a test was made and a small bit assigned

She likes farm life.

In the next film, one dealing with young romance and having a particularly guttural—singing title. The producer's decision centered. Next came "Man About Town" (Money isn't Everything), in which she registered still more. From this picture, "Ecstasy," and other European efforts to "Algers" was still a long jump—eight thousand geographical ad-innumerable psychological miles—but Hedy made it with shining colors. Then came "Lady of the Tropics," "Boom Town," "Comrade X" and "Come Live with Me." And now, if they'll keep the banner labeled "glamour girl" in the other corner of the sound stage, she'll be perfectly happy.

Christian Endeavor

We had 31 present at Christian Endeavor Sunday, with Tabitha Craig as leader. She had an interesting lesson on "How we got our Bible." Several talks were given which were very good.

The convention is being talked about more and more. We have several delegates planning to go.

The program at the convention will include speakers of national prominence among young peoples work. There will also be a recreational director, and a team of twenty young people will introduce delegates to folk-games and lead in good times.

The banquet will come on Saturday night and the fees will be about 50 cents.

Mary Ann Davis is leader next Sunday night April 27 and she wants a large crowd out to back her up and take part in the services of this Endeavor.

Doris June Murphy, Publicity Chairman.

"The Difficulties of Modern Radio" or "WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

CHICAGO—"Names Make News"—every place—but in radio, use of names is a matter of great importance—you may end up being called a few. Just ask Gill and Demling, the co-anchors of the Monday night NBC SHOW BOAT program.

During a rehearsal for the SHOW BOAT broadcast the boys brought of a clever joke which used a man's name in the punchline—that is, the place folks are supposed to laugh. Radio and its restrictions make it necessary to clear a name, so it may be used on the air. On looking in the phone book, the boys found there was only one man that name listed. With their broadcast to go on shortly, the boys left the rehearsal to get the radio just as they were to be released. They called at his house, but were informed the man had gone to the barber. They went to the barber shop, and in their frantic haste, scraped shaving soap off the customers, looking for their man, causing a mild riot. After running up a small fortune in cab fares, chasing the man from place to place, they returned to his house to find he had gone to a radio broadcast. They proceeded to the broadcast, paced the man before the curtain and his signature and entertained the audience of the show, and suddenly remembered their own show when they heard the theme of the show, which preceded their coming over the speaker. They got to their own radio just as the announcer was reading the opening comment, and a man's name as air before they could tell anyone in the control room they had permission to use the man's name. Three of the program's producers suffered a slight case of heart failure—when the restriction came out that the stars might not show up. . . . All to make one gag do-able without being sued! Hint: Never mention names to Gill and Demling.

IT'S OLD COUSIN IVORY'S TIME

I am glad to express my many thanks to the good people of this county. After seeing and talking with many they have given me great encouragement in my race for jailer, which I appreciate very much. So I feel myself safe now for I believe the good people are backing me. They tell me that I am the man they should back and will discharge my duty as an honest, clean, sober officer of Rockcastle County. I am not entirely without experience for I served as a helper at the jail for eight years. As I see it a jailer does not have to be a university graduate or a society dude but a man to meet you fair and square every day alike with kindness, courtesy and good judgment and be sober 365 days of the year. What you will do for me and say in my behalf will be highly appreciated and I never forget my friends.

Yours,

Due to the war news of the past week, with all of its horrors and setbacks for the principles of liberty it only serves one purpose and that is that it will cause us to double our efforts on all fronts. Our call for Selectees will be speeded up, roads, buildings, munition plants, training, guns, tanks, airplanes and everything that goes along as part of a defense program and might say right here that an aroused public will see that we have co-operation from labor, if we can get it by boards appointed by the President, then we should have a Selective Service Law enacted for labor, examine them just like we are doing for the boys for military training, throw out all that are not fit for work from any cause, and those that are passed let them go to work wherever the Government chooses them and make their salary $21.00 per month with board for them and dependents, under this plan our mines and factories would all have to call off their strikes and go to work where they might have to shoot a few dictators before sundown and send a lot of reds to concentration camps—but that would only be another blessing of this war.

Since the beginning of this war our engineers, inventors, chemist, and research workers have done a wonderful job, our airplane industry has made progress by leaps and bounds, we now have the best in the world and the fastest, and the production, all though hampered by shipping strikes is the nearest of any country in the world, and what has all this done for us, just this, it has put the Airplane fifty years ahead of time, and what does that mean to you and me, it means simply that you and me will be traveling by air instead of the old slow down here on the ground, it also means that your town and my town and all towns in this Country of ours are now a landing field and passenger service like we have a Depot of Bus station now, and we do that be fine, and at the close of this war we will have thousands of well trained young men to pilot these airplanes—well you say you do not want to ride in a plane, you are afraid it will fall. Now lets look back a few years, your grandfather felt the same way about the railroad train and your father had the same feeling about the automobile, but they adopted it later on and we will do the same.

There never has been a time in history when the creative minds were working harder and accomplishing more than they are today, new weapons of defense and destruction for the enemy, all these as well as thousands of others that in peace time be used for our comfort and pleasure.

Under the stimulation of our warfare, our chemist, doctors, surgeons and researchers are giving us new medicines, new treatments, that are fifty years ahead of time, and with these new drugs, vaccines and serums we will not only profit during war by the saving of lives from disease, but in peacetime as well.

As individuals we are all naturally lazy, we sleep, we dream, postpone and put off, but when we are up against it, when we see and know something has to be done, we get busy we go to work with brain and muscle, and we keep at it until we do something to solve the problem. Collectively as a nation we now have a problem and that problem is the defense of democracy, and our form of Government. We are solving that problem, and all that we left living after this World War No. 2 is over will profit by this experience, we profit when we have to do something. When we are not forced to do anything well we just drift and there is no profit individually or collectively.

National Boys And Girls Week April 26

Our community, along with hundreds of others throughout the United States will observe National Boys and Girls Week, April 26 to May 3 inclusive.

The week's activities will stress such important phases of youth development as spiritual guidance, education, vocational training, hobbies, citizenship, recreation, home life, and health and safety. The main objective of the week is to focus public attention upon boys and girls, their problems, and their needs, with the ultimate aim of fostering and stimulating community activities directed toward general welfare of the younger generation.

Major John L. Griffith, Chairman of the National Boys and Girls Week Committee and well known as Commissioner of the "Big Ten" Athletics, said in a recent statement, "I have come to realize more than ever the importance of proper youth training, not only in athletics, but in loyalty and good citizenship. There are groups in America engaged in sowing seeds of destruction—destruction of American ideals and principles, and Boys and Girls Week can play a large part in overcoming this type of youth poison."

The observance of National Boys and Girls Week had its beginning 21 years ago when the Rotary club of New York city sponsored a Boys Week. The idea spread so rapidly that by 1926 the observance was celebrated throughout the United States and Canada. The week's program is not confined to larger cities but is actively participated in by thousands of smaller communities. The result has been a greatly increased community interest in the welfare of boys and girls; and the work of organizing a local observance has drawn various community agencies together in such a way as to make them realize the advantage of year round co-operative efforts in behalf of their boys and girls.

Name Vessel For Kentucky Marine

The memory of a Kentucky officer of the Marine Corps, who completed a brilliant record, will be honored by the naming of a new transport of the USS Fleet, according to an announcement made recently by the Navy Department.

Born in Hopkinsville in 1889, Major Logan Feland served as a captain in Company F of the 3rd Kentucky Infantry during the Spanish-American War. He entered the Marine Corps in 1899 and subsequently served in the Philippines, Panama, Cuba, Santo Domingo, Mexico and on numerous vessels of the Navy.

He commanded a battalion and later the entire Fifth Regiment in France during the first World War and was cited six times for gallantry in action, receiving Distinguished Service Medals and Service Crosses from both the Army and Navy in addition to the Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre with bronze star and four palm leaves. Ten years later General Feland commanded a Marine Corps Brigade in Nicaragua, and was decorated by that country for helping to bring about an orderly form of government. Following his retirement from the Marine Corps in 1933, he lived in Columbus, O., where he died of a heart ailment on July 17, 1936. He was buried in Arlington cemetery.
