Facts and Stories

Some three hundred and seventy-five have been called to the present un-named war, over half of these are unenters. Should our old average hold good the great majority of these boys will return by fall so how they licked the Jap and the Nazi.

Time and space do not permit this week but from time to time we shall probably drop in stories and experiences of the last war, as told by Rockcastle men. Upon the streets of Mt. Vernon you may meet, almost every day at least, two men who served as commissioned officers. We recall two others who were wounded in France, one of whom lay for thirty-six lower apex (the butterfly) and then spent almost two years in hospitals before returning home. Another flew in England, while still another spent years in Panama.

A county man in uniform toured the country with the "Anti-Bug" theatrical troupe in the interest of bond sales. A motorcycle dispatch rider roared over darkened French roads with lightning, until he made the mistake of riding too close to one of our own miles. The mule kicked him off the machine and almost ended his army and military career. It is doubtful for a year to say that he was a bit near-sighted and probably mistook the boy for a Hun (as we knew them then).

Other doughboys served as corporals and sergeants, many of them. At least two of our Military Police and gosh only know how many were kitchen police.

Anyway, we are going to write about some of these fellows from time to time. Their experiences may seem to show distressed parents, sweet hearts and friends that boys can travel far from home, experience a lot and still return to tell the tale.

Rockcastle Facts and Stories

By Ralph Griffin

Several mornings ago a large contingent of draftees relatives and well wishers came down to the station to see the boys off, the band played and they were toasting the departing boys.

The following day an ex-serviceman expressed a friendly criticism in connection with this event and his criticism might be worthy of the hour. Said he, "the band played our National Anthem and but few people understood; folks who were seated continued to talk; most of them looked self-conscious, as if they knew something was expected of them, but they didn't know so I am sure that every one of the draftees were scattered thru the crowd so that they could not be distinguished from casual spectators until they boarded the train."

Our critic continued, "when I left for the last war things were done differently. We draftees were lined up in the station, the band played and we recognized us. When the band played 'The Star Spangled Banner' and when the flag was unfurled, every person present arose to salute and every hat was removed. Folks wept and cheered; we left home feeling that everyone was behind us to a man — we had a flag and a country worth fighting and dying for."

The man who made these remarks has a perfect right to express himself as one having knowledge, for he has served his country nobly and well. He suggested that the American Legion should assist upon the occasion of the next departure, that everyone cooperate in a patriotic demonstration really worthwhile. Legion officers please note.

As the affairs of our present war continue to encroach more and more of our daily time and thought; as more and more wartime restrictions make themselves felt in every home; as an ever increasing number of boys leave for the front; as we are beginning to realize the gravity of the situation and to think and talk about the last one. You may think it upon your streets any day. You may think it upon your roads and highways, and you may think it upon your hearts. I remember that in the last war, "You'll have an audience in a few minutes."

Ten years ago — five years ago, an ex-serviceman who wanted to reminisce about his war experiences could hardly have expressed his feelings more eloquently than he did at the beginning of this war. Now his war is over and he is beginning to command respect and attention again.

Last week we have been reminded of a conglomeration of things connected with the World War. Can you remember, for instance, that a twenty-five pound bag of flour? If you don't you may try a youngster or your memory is "bad." And a farmer who could not sell his wheat at a hundred dollars worth of gold clover seed. Maybe this present era of frozen prices won't seem so bad when we recall these things.

There is another encouraging recollection. About five hundred boys left this country to see the World War and, if our memory is correct, all returned but twelve, or fifteen. A few of this number were killed in action while the others died of natural causes.

Baptist Church

By Rev. W. C. Younce

I am not accustomed to the use of language of eulogy. I have never before in my life spoken any words of praise to women. I must say, however, that this has been said by orators and poets since the creation of the world in praise of womanhood. We were completed it would not do them justice for their service in the interest of civilization. Who of us is unwilling to honor the most women of our country? It is a greater honor to be a woman than to be a man.

Let us first do justice to the women of our country. Some have mothers still with them. Others have mothers in the home above. Whatever the case may be, well may we pause to honor them.

In this connection, we want to take this opportunity to express our appreciation of the mothers of our country. We want to honor them for their service on account of sickness or old age. A few years ago their faces were seen at the church; but now they are at home to be seen only by those who visit them.

We salute our mothers who have sons in the armed forces; also the wives whose husbands are in service.

We welcome Master Preston Pennington Nunnally, son of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Nunnally, into Grade Roll Department.

We extend our deepest sympathy to Mrs. Delbert Parker in the death of her father.

Broodhead Christian Bible School, 10 A. M. - Lester Cass, Superintendent

Sunday is Mother's Day. You are invited to attend our Mother's Day Services. Who can measure Mother's love? Can we reckon the love of a mother by yards or pounds or gallons? Like all the best things of life, it cannot be estimated. So with character. It can't even be seen — much less weighed. So honor your Mother by attending Church and Sunday School this Sunday.

Morning Worship: 8 o'clock. Subject: "Mothers. Yesterday and Forever." Evening Worship: 7:45 p. m. Subject: "Power of the Cross." This message will be centered around a patriotic service of the Patriotic of the "Old Rugged Cross." We cordially invite you to attend this service as it is something different from the services usually held in the Church. Plan to come.

Christian Church Notes

Sunday is one of the great days of the Church-year. This being Mother's Day, it should first of all be a day when all worshippers pay tribute to Mother. Then it should be a day when Mothers and fathers as well, take account of the responsibility which they have taken on. Mother's day is a fine time to say nice things about our mothers but if this is all this day means to the Christian, we might as well not say them. More than a few praises this day should carry with it a challenge and dedication on the part of both parents and children that the home relationships might be made full and meaningful, that in the home spirit of mutual help and mutual help, understanding and that parents might impart those qualities of life to children that makes them fine Christian citizens of tomorrow. This great task can be best accomplished with the teaching help of the church and under the banner of the Kingdom. So parents, be with your children on Mother's day and together worship the Lord.

The message of the morning will be a challenge to those who have the responsibility of rearing children. At the evening service we will hear a report of the C. E. Convention.

Success of Dairy Union Effected by Price Parity

Farm Authority Believes That 'John L. Lewis' Will Frighten Every Farmer Into Solid Attacking Front.

By BAUKHAGE (News Analyst and Commentator.)

WNU Service, 1345 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America, is well on the road to uniting the farmers of America, but not in the way he planned when he started to organize the Dairy Workers under the famous "district 50" of his powerful UMW.

That was my purpose for a friend of mine in Washington, an official who has spent his days with farmers and farm organization heads and big size clothing with the "farm program" throughout most of his adult years.

He believes that John Lewis, by trying to unionize agriculture, is doing a devil that will frighten every farmer into a solid attacking front.

Lately the return of gentle parity to the land had begun to have its disintegrating effect on the farmers. Their long-sought goal reached, they began to turn back to their separate interests.

"The farmer won't lay down his hoe and pick up a pen and sign a petition and a contract if the thing is going steady had when he can manage to make both ends meet he keeps his eyes on the sky and waves of his own way."

"It's been the history of every effort to make a union between city and farm. The farmers have been farm organizations but they can't stand like the one in the thirties to really bring them together."

"I've been absolutely new to this. It's the history of every effort to make a union between city and farm. The farmers have been farm organizations but they can't stand like the one in the thirties to really bring them together."

Propaganda

After a long and careful study and analysis of German propaganda, the experts tell us that Hitler is not the man to win the war. Democracy is dying. Our armed forces are weak. The New Order is inevitable. Our War Coast is in danger. The danger there is no point in fighting on.

BRIEFS:

The Poles have now returned to the front line underground fighting used by them under the leadership of Czarist Russia. Now they are said to have a greater centralized organization and more planning. Many forbidden newspapers are published. Many German soldiers and officers disappear. The military recreation projects are being suspended during the war because 95 per cent of their personnel are engaged in war work.

County Agent News

By Robert F. Spence
Rockcastle county welcomes Mr. and Mrs. Cotton to new county borders. Mr. Cotton has recently purchased a farm of 80 acres in Dickertown community with the idea of making it his permanent home. The other night while sitting on the porch of his remodeled home he said to Mr. Cotton, "I am better satisfied here than anywhere we have ever lived."
Mr. Cotton moved from Madison county. He is a general farmer and believes in good livestock. Last year his eight cows paid him $100 per head with cream and a calf. He plans to start some pure bred stock on this farm soon.
Mr. and Mrs. Cotton are not only increasing their food production to help win the war but they have a son now in service in Texas. The farmers join the county agent in welcoming you both to our county. We hope you will get to know all the neighbors who will keep you satisfied in our county.

Money In Chickens
How is $62 for a monthly income from a flock of 103 White Rocks when all feed cost is paid? Mr. and Mrs. Walter Durham, Horse Lick, has 166 white rock hens from which they get 128 to 133 eggs daily. They sell these eggs for 36 cents per dozen to the London Hatchery.
In addition to the 166 hens, the Durhams have 50 to 2 1/2 lbs. each. These young birds are being fed out in the woods where they are plenty of shade, water and grass to scratch in. All the cockers from this flock will be sold this week.
Mr. and Mrs. Durham have two girls who are 4-H club members. These girls have 450 white rock baby chicks in the brooder house four weeks old. This flock has a total of 1216 birds on the Durham farm.

More Chickens and Money
—Dorine McKinney, of Willalla, has 67 to 90 eggs daily from her flock of 103 White Rocks. She is getting 26 cents per dozen for her eggs which are being sold to the open market.
Mrs. McKinney has just finished brooding 400 White Rock chicks losing only 10 during the 10 weeks brooding period. The chicks weigh two to two and one-half pounds. She expects to sell the cockers right away. After culling the pullets she hopes to have 75 to 85 pullets to start through the coming fall and winter for egg production.
Do Sheep Pay?
Clyde Lintville, Lexington, can answer the question as to whether or not it pays in dollars and cents to raise sheep. In 1938 Lintville purchased a flock of Northwestern Black-faced ewes which cost him $10 per head. In 1939 these ewes made him $9.93 per head. In 1940 they made $22.00 per head. In 1941 they made $13.05 per head. In 1942 he sold these ewes for $15 per head. This makes a total of $46.93 income in four years for four years or $11.70 per year. Putting it another way we made $11.70 on the $10 invested. What do you think about it?
180 Acres of Hemp
We now have 180 acres of hemp signed up in Rockcastle county. We would like to have 200 acres more making a total of 380 acres.
Growing hemp seed is not taking as much chance as growing corn or tobacco. The Government will buy the seed when produced at 88 per bushel. In other words, we have our hemp seed sold before we produce them. The average land will produce from 8 to 20 bushels per acre.
After this week it will be too late to plan to grow hemp seed this year. Farmers interested in growing seed this year should call at the county agent's office at once and sign up. We grow hemp to help win the war. The Japs have cut off our hemp supply. Won't you grow a few acres of seed this year?
4-H War Bonds
The Wildlife 4-H Club has invested $1,765.90 in war bonds, according to Wayne Stewart, president of Kentucky Federation of 4-H clubs, who is a member. There are 35 boys and girls and three leaders in the club. Some of the money came from the sale of scrap iron, rubber and paper.

Quality....
In electrical appliances is more important than ever now!
WITH the manufacture of virtually all electrical appliances banned for the duration, it's going to be necessary to take good care of your present equipment. Make it do if you can, but if replacements are necessary, buy only best quality appliances that will assure you of lasting, trouble-free service. They may have to serve you a long time, so it's short-sighted economy to buy anything but the best.
Right now, you can still find nationally-advertised appliances of proven reliability in stock at your dealer's and in our showrooms. But the present supply is limited and most items' cannot be replaced, so early purchase is advisable. Take advantage of present favorable terms by buying your essential needs now.

THIS IS THE STORY OF CARBOLOY

How a Most Strategic Material of the War—Invented in Germany—Was Made Available to the United Nations

More Precious Than Diamonds in War Production... Carboloy is an American trademark for cemented tungsten-carbide, an alloy second only to diamonds in hardness, more precious than diamonds as a vital material in America's war program. It is used for the tips of cutting tools, and for wear-resistant dies. Carboloy is used in small quantities; it is difficult to make and difficult to use—but it has never been scarce in modern times. There is no scarcity now.

Invented in Germany—Krupp Protected by U. S. Patents... Cemented carbide was invented in Germany—it belonged to Krupp of Germany, and this made all the rest of the world Krupp's customer. In this country, Krupp was protected by patent grants from the United States.

General Electric Creates Independent Production... The General Electric Company two years before this had begun research on tungsten-carbide and foresaw its importance in industrial production. For immediate use in its own plants and for easier availability to others, General Electric undertook the long and arduous negotiations for the American rights. Limited rights were obtained in 1928, with Krupp continuing to export the material to its United States customers—a business which languished, however, as General Electric painstakingly developed its own Carboloy technique. This paved the way for General Electric to make the United States entirely independent of Germany for its cemented tungsten-carbide supply as early as 1936.

Less to General Electric for Many Years—Art Taught to Industry... In times of peace and 1928 was such a time—the measure of success of industrial adventure is to be found in profit to the adventurer. By such a measure, Carboloy could not be called successful. Initial expenses were great. For a time the Company lost at the rate of $1000 a day, and once had an operating deficit of more than a million dollars. One of the major contributing reasons was the continuing high cost of development, standardization, and training. In 1936-37 alone, training courses were given to 10,000 men in industry. Moreover, six major price reductions were made in the face of operating losses, until the standard tool blank had been reduced in price 90 per cent.

Faith and Persistence... Depression was still another reason—labor-saving tools could not be sold to industry or labor at any price. But General Electric, with determination that now seems providential, kept on—increasing its capacity, granting new licenses, condoning instances of unlicensed production, staying ahead of its market.

Production Multiplied Forty-five Times in Four Years... Cemented tungsten-carbide could easily have been a source of weakness here, as it was in England, had it not been for General Electric's policy of continued expansion. In 1939, the production of the Carboloy Company was less than 20,000 lbs.; in 1940, it was 55,000 lbs.; in 1941, it was 163,000—and in December came Pearl Harbor, Now, in 1942, the Company's production is going at a rate that is 45 times that of only four years ago.

Britain Dependent upon Us... By contrast, British companies, which had been content to continue as customers of Krupp, found themselves cut off from the vital material when Poland was invaded. But the General Electric Company was able to supply substantial quantities to British industry immediately and since then has continuously filled British orders. It has, in like manner, filled Canada's requirements since 1936. It is currently supplying Canada, Russia, and other United Nations. All this—5 additional production, the greatly expanded needs of an American industry.

An Inspirational Story of American Industry... Thus, the story of Carboloy does not end in "too little and too late." Like many previously untold stories of American industry, it continues, a sturdy and inspiring example of public service born of private enterprise, and characterized by hard work, ingenuity, investment, research, risk, and courage—a familiar pattern on this side of the Atlantic. General Electric Company, Schenectady, New York.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

Over the entire period of its existence up to January 31, 1942 the total net profit of the Carboloy Company was 2.5 per cent of sales.

KEEP WATER'S MIND by ALAN LEMAY

INSTALLMENT EIGHTEEN

THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Watson, believing herself to be the heir to Alakoa, the island estate...

"Colt isn't just what I would have picked. Certainly would want to marry him myself," said Watson. With an effort Dick said: "I don't see why not."

CHAPTER XVI

With his crew rounded up and fresh water aboard the Hokoiaki, Dick Watson went ashore to phone Honolulu by wireless.

He sat at James Wayne's old desk, up stairs in the office. Dick Watson himself had built, and fiddled with the phone for the better part of half an hour before he got a connection which he had to wait Charles Wong whom he reached at last.

"I've been trying to reach you for two days," Wong chattered. "I was about to come to Alakoa. Everything is terribly upset—it's absolutely necessary that you come here."

"What's the matter now?" "Your brothers are absolutely unable to reconcile themselves to the fact that they cannot reach agreement with you, an almost certain thing that they will try to break it."

"Why—why you haven't heard?" "I haven't talked to Honolulu since my brothers left here."

"Who—me?" Dick said stupidly. "Yes—there are certain special provisions that seem intended to give your brothers a practically zero income, but you are given a fifty-one per cent interest, and absolute management of everything."

...writing aboard the Hokoiaki.

"No, sir—my personal belief is that it really cannot be done." After that it was still necessary for Tonga Dick to explain to Charles Wong that he could not come to Honolulu yet—that he was going to Nuku Hiva.

"This thing will be in probate a couple of years yet," Dick conceded. "Two or three weeks isn't going to make any difference."

"You remember the night when I boarded the Seal, and made you come back to Alakoa?" "Could I ever forget it? You were extremely practical and unpleasant. I could have killed you."

"I didn't know then that you were running off to Honolulu to marry John Colt. But I was afraid you wouldn't. I didn't really think that it would do your precious grandfather any good to bring you back; I was pretty sure it wouldn't even recognize you."

"Interference with other people's affairs is usually a mistake." "I'm not sorry I turned the Seal. As it turned out, it actually did pull old Garrett Watson through, I think."

"You may as well know, Karen, that there's still plenty of time for you to marry John Colt." "You may as well know, Karen, that I'm not going to marry John Colt."

"You were going to, weren't you?" "Yes, I was going to. I was hurt, angry, and disgusted with the whole thing. I wanted to get away from Alakoa and everything about it."

"I thought you might be afraid of that," Karen said. "But you don't need to be—not any more. I have a present for you, Dick."

By the time they were well out beyond the coral, Dick was trying to think of a plausible excuse for wanting her up there. He rigged a tray with a fish sandwich, a stalk of celery, a whisk, a cup of coffee, and a cup of tea, and carried it back to her bunk.

"That really is a very attractive tray," Karen said. "I don't see how anyone could resist it. I think I would like a dry Martini with it."

"Go to thunder," said Tonga Dick. "Listen—I want to tell you something."

"I'm not going to marry John Colt." "You may as well know, Karen, that I'm not going to marry John Colt."

"I'm not going to marry John Colt." "You may as well know, Karen, that I'm not going to marry John Colt."

"I'm not going to marry John Colt." "You may as well know, Karen, that I'm not going to marry John Colt."

"I'm not going to marry John Colt." "You may as well know, Karen, that I'm not going to marry John Colt."

MONDAY: THE DAY OF AUTHORITY

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 21:27-32 GOLDEN TEXT—My house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples.—Isaiah 56:7.

Modern presentations of Christ in picture and sermon often give us the impression that He was an egotistical man who went about doing great little deeds of kindness. One almost feels that He spoke in a hoarse whisper and that He fearfully avoided the difficulties and dangers of life.

Such a picture of Christ, however, is obtained from the Bible. Yes, He was gentle and kind; He did good about doing good; He was altogether unselfish.

I. Jesus Stimulates Faith by an Act of Judgment (vv. 15-22). In the morning as Jesus returned to Jerusalem, He was hungry. He had probably spent the night in prayer after His time of fellowship with the disciples (Mark 11:11).

In a swift miracle of judgment, He condemned the tree, which soon withered. Some have assumed that He acted in anger, but that is evidently not so. His act was not to Israel and to the Jew, but to the fig tree, which was a figure of Israel (see Hosea 9:10, Joel 1:7, Luke 13:6-9). They are nations that the outward signs of fruit, that is, the "leaves" of temple worship, teaching of the Law, etc., but they are without repentance and faith, of real love for God (see Rom. 2:17-23). Judgment was certain, and our Lord cursed a useless tree to try to awaken the people to their need.

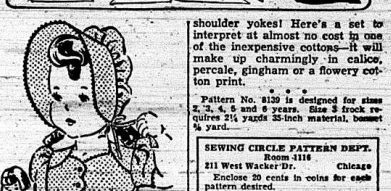

So our Lord comes to us to look beyond the foliage of Christian profession, and to see the heart and belongings, of our correct doctrinal views—to see if there is any fruit of real Christian living. How often He must turn away in sadness because there is none.

This miracle was not only a sign of judgment; it was used by our Lord to stimulate the disciples' faith. What had been seen was only an indication of what faith (and not it was their confidence). The presence of God to those who, abiding in Christ and with His Word abiding in their heart, ask according to His will, in faith nothing doubting, is without limit.

II. Jesus Stimulates Praise by an Act of Authority (vv. 12-17). For a second time He drove out from the Temple those who had made it a place of merchandise, of commercialized theology. This is a majestic picture. The Son of God set His feet into the center of this unholy traffic and with mighty, holy indignation (not anger) drives it out. The people who had suffered long because of this religious racket, which paid a nice "cut" to the priests themselves (probably as a "gift" even as such practices are managed in our day), were jubilant.

The boys who were in the temple (for such is doubtless the meaning of the word in v. 15) were delighted at this magnificent exercise of His divine authority that they were clean as "Hosannas," which, as we have suggested, were really "Hurrah for the church," instead of some of the things they are saying. The chief priests and scribes were "seen and heard" (v. 15) both by the acts of Jesus and the praise of the boys. They would be! And they have a host of descendants who hold places of authority today, even in the church—who would be much displeased if such things were done again. But why hear them? Is it not high time that the people of God honored their Lord both by faith and good works, regardless of what men may say? Ought we not to please God rather than men (see Acts 5:29 and Ps. 56:4)?
