

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

W-U-RELEASE

CHAPTER XVII

He went out into the main cabin, sat down at the table, and laid out a hand of solitaire; but when it was laid out he sat staring vacantly at the cards. He had reason enough to be sick of solitaire. Then presently he became aware that he was infinitely weary, and that he had as much reason to be sick of sleep. He laid his hand on the table, convinced now that there was no longer on the face of the sea any uncertainty worth keeping a man awake; and was almost immediately asleep.

He must have slept a long time, for when the awake daylight was coming in the ports. In front of him on the table had been placed a tray containing a wilted sprig of celery and a glass of cold water that sloshed about with the Holokai's roll; but it didn't seem to him much of a breakfast.

Then as he shook the sleep out of his eyes he was suddenly aware that something was wrong. The sun appeared "waterising in the west; and when he had thought about that a minute he knew that they should have been in Honolulu many hours ago. He could hardly believe that the Holokai had been in Honolulu harbor, and set Karen ashore, and put to sea again, without waking him up; but that was the only explanation he could think of at first. Certainly the Holokai was tearing southward at a roaring clip.

He went on deck and found Inyashi at the wheel. "What's the idea of not waking me up in Honolulu?"

"Hololulu?"

"I don't stare at me like a blockhead?" Dick asked. "What time did I leave Honolulu?"

"We've haven't been to Honolulu yet," Inyashi said. "Well, why do you think you're going?"

"Why—Why—Oh, I was afraid of this," Inyashi moaned.

"Well, speak up! What do you think you're doing?"

"Miss Watson—Miss Watson—she said you had changed the course, Captain. She said you wanted me to bring about and lay for the Marquesas. She said you had decided not to go to Honolulu. She said you were asleep, and she said I was supposed to—"

"Dear heaven," Tonga Dick said. "You go ask her yourself. She's up there in the bow, Captain Tonga. I try to get what course you say. But I don't know what to do when she came and—"

The mainmast was partly invisible; the Holokai's low-slung beams made part of the deck invisible from the wheel. But the real reason that Dick had not found Karen before now was that he had not expected her to be there. It had been very definitely fixed in his mind that she was gone from his ship, gone altogether out of his life.

He went forward hesitantly, partly humble, partly dazed by his luck. He stood close beside her at the rail, and drew her against him with one arm.

"Well, good morning!" Karen said. "Do you always sleep in your clothes? Because I don't think it does them any good."

Dick said sulkily, "We didn't go to Honolulu after all, did we?"

"Certainly not. Silly effort of yours—chasing off to Nuku Hiva. Did you think you'd get away from me as easily as that?"

A great cloud of flying fish went up before the bows of the Holokai, making a flicking rainbow on the face of the warm sea.

TUESDAY: THE DAY OF CONFLICT

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 22:41-39:11. GOLDEN TEXT—"The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner."—Mark 12:10.

"By what authority doest thou these things?" and who gave thee this authority? Such was the challenge Christ faced when He came into the temple on the last day that He was to be able to teach there. The chief priests and elders (Matt. 21:23) asked it because they knew that they had received their authority with their offices, whether appointive or hereditary.

Jesus held no such position, yet He had just driven the money changers out of what He called "the house of my father." The challenged Him, and through the long day He answered. Here we find a rich store of parables, illustrations, unanswerable arguments, as He met the Pharisees, Sadducees, Herodians—all His enemies who though they hated each other, made common cause against Jesus. The discussion concludes with His facing of the Pharisees with:

I. The Ultimate Question—"What Think Ye of Christ?" (22:41-46)

The crux of the entire matter was right there for them, as it is for us, hours later in the temple. The challenged Him, and through the long day He answered. Here we find a rich store of parables, illustrations, unanswerable arguments, as He met the Pharisees, Sadducees, Herodians—all His enemies who though they hated each other, made common cause against Jesus. The discussion concludes with His facing of the Pharisees with:

II. The Final Test—Doing, Not Just Saying (23:1-4)

Having mainly ended their mouths (22:46) Jesus proceeded to a solemn indictment of the scribes and Pharisees. First of all He declared that they failed in the first test of His, which is not words, but actions.

Notice that He recognized their authority and their teaching, but in severe condemnation pointed out that they did not live what they professed. That is the criterion by which we shall all be judged. Those who think that they belong to some church, or subscribe to a creed, or speak a smooth word of testimony they may then live as they please, will find themselves standing with the scribes and Pharisees on the judgment day. Why keep that kind of company?

III. The Great Hypocrisy—Pride Poising As Piety (23:5-9)

They were, oh, so religious! Insuperating literary and mechanical! God's command that they keep His law always near them in action (hand) and in thought (mind) see Deut. 8:1-10; they may know their leather cases and wear them on wrist and forehead as containers of the written Word. They loved the chief seats and the titles of distinction. And all this was done in the name of religion. What hypocrisy!

But what are we any better? What about the preacher who is happy unless he is invited into the pulpit? What about those who take or accept the titles which our Lord expressly forbids? What about those in the pew, as much as in the pulpit (and perhaps more), who want to be recognized as "the ministers of the church"? To be sure, they do not always wish it to be so crudely put as that, but they do expect to be recognized as much "for" as "of" too, under the name of Christianity. There indeed is the great hypocrisy!

IV. The Right Attitude—Service Not Recognition (23:10, 11)

He that is mastered of Christ is ready to be the servant of all. To exalt Him is to at once do away with self-praise and self-glory. Pride in position, and the desire to be praised and recognized by men inevitably lead a man into a pitfall in which he is humbled. On the other hand, the one who in humility serves the Lord will, to his own surprise, find that God has exalted him. The way up is down.

"Ye shall be hated," said a well-known preacher with whom Dr. Torrey was associated in a great conference, "you and I are the most important men in Christendom in this country." Not long after God set that man aside. Quite different was the spirit of D. L. Moody, who at the height of his ministry for God would say, "There are better men here behind me on the platform to speak when I am through"—and he really believed it.

INSTALLMENT NEWS

This is the concluding installment in the story of the DEEP WATER ISLAND. Alaska.

"What is this?" Dick asked. "Didn't you know that James Wayne has been making additional payments on Alaska, all through the last twenty years?"

"I thought he was; I couldn't prove it, I guess." "You can prove it now. That's a receipt from Garrett Waterson for two hundred—no, two hundred and fifty dollars. Incomplete or not, he was properly paid for Alaska; and that receipt acknowledges it. I thought I'd better get it for you—and save you a headache."

"Karen," Dick asked, "why have you done this?" "I'm sick of having you worry for fear I'm going to reach your island any day. I don't want your old island. You'd better take care of that receipt, and not sit there cackling it all up. You're going to go after it—and I'm sure, after all, Alaska is more than just yours."

"I wondered idly whether if he should let her that this was not so; but let it pass. 'What are you going to do now?'" "I'm going back to San Francisco and look for a job."

"But Garrett Waterson will want—"

"I'm not going to fasten onto him. He's got troubles of his own."

There was a long silence. Dick said, "It seems to me," Dick said, "that you're talking about it as if it were very sensible about it. This is all the way along we've kept fighting over the most trivial things—Islands, and grantholders, and Kanaka girls, and who trusted a lady in James Wayne's desk. It certainly looks as if we ought to run out of tricks to fight and quarrel over, pretty soon."

"Don't you know," Karen asked, "whose lei that was? Don't you know who was with James Wayne when he died?"

"I don't even care," Dick said. "I care. It's taken me a week's delicate work over to find out who you were talking about. And I'm going to tell you about it, whether you're interested or not."

"I just don't think it's important," Dick said. "I do. Because that was what really broke us up. It made you say things to me that were perfectly true. And I didn't know, then, even what you meant when you talked about a broken lei."

"Only you had told me." "I couldn't tell you because I didn't know. I know now. When you went into your uncle's office, and found him dead, there was a broken lei of ginger blossoms on the floor; and you thought that was the lei you gave me. And I've had to talk to Teura and Liliua, and Hokano, before I even found out that much."

"You mean to tell me that you weren't there? You weren't with James Wayne that night at all?" "Of course not. But I've pieced together what happened, now. The lei you gave me that night was a lei that Liliua made for you; but that night she let the men take it. And I made another lei for Hokano; and he was wearing it, when he came looking for that night."

"You mean that it was Hokano who—"

"Hokano was looking for Liliua. I could have told him where to look for her. But he couldn't find her, because she was in your room."

"Karen, I swear that nothing—" "Oh, I know. As a matter of fact, a malicious little twinkle flickered in Karen's eyes—" "I had already warned you to lock your door. But Hokano didn't know anything about that. He saw James Wayne's light; he stepped into James Wayne's office through the window, and demanded to know anything about that. He saw your uncle was furious that a large, very wet Kanaka should be crashing into his office through a window. His anger was too much for him; on top of everything else. He stood up and threatened Hokano; and then suddenly collapsed and was gone. Hokano leaves his desk, to see if he was really dead. The ginger blossom lei caught on the corner of the desk and broke; and just then Teura came tapping at the door, peddling her glass of milk."

"Hokano told you this?" "Most of it. Who else could? He was the only one who knew." "This is all very surprising," Dick said. "I don't think so. I don't think it's even interesting. I went to the trouble to find out because I wanted to know what you were talking about. I can't remember now why I thought it mattered."

"And I still don't think it matters," Dick said. "Don't think it matters at all what either one of us has said or thought or done." "In short," Karen said, "you haven't a leg to stand on; so that being the case, you favor calling the whole thing off."

FLU AND PNEUMONIA

It has been interesting to watch the progress physicians have made in controlling certain ailments.

At one time the results obtained in the treatment of appendicitis brought praise or blame to the surgeon who performed the operation. The fact that the patient or the attendant failed to call the physician until it was too late was never considered.

When it was found that taking food or a laxative during an attack of appendicitis was responsible for many deaths, the death rate in appendicitis immediately dropped.

The next step cutting down the death rate was a careful operation within 36 hours from the beginning of an attack.

Another dreaded acute disease—pneumonia—is being fought successfully by the use of "new" drugs, as they are called. During the flu epidemic of 1918-19 physicians had no special or specific drug with which to fight pneumonia which so often followed the attack of flu. There was always the question as to which drugs or drug were most effective and whether the heart stimulant should be used early or late in the disease.

During the autumn and winter of 1940 and 1941 the epidemic of the spread epidemic of flu, followed as before by pneumonia. By the use of the sulfa drugs, the death rate in pneumonia continued to fall de-

However, physicians using new drugs in pneumonia state that "the prevention of death from pneumonia still depends much on the promptness with which the patient calls the doctor." Statistics show that in 40 per cent of the fatal cases the doctor was not called until the fourth day of the illness or later, and in 52 per cent not until the eighth day or later.

A gratifying point about the new drugs is that they save such a large percentage of pneumonia patients among the young and middle-aged. In cases of very young children who did not get the best of care, and in older individuals with heart, kidney, blood vessel and chronic chest conditions, the sulfa drugs have been of great help.

Treating Liver and Gall Bladder Cases

It is known that among the many duties performed by the liver is the storing of glycogen—sugar—which can be used by the body when the amount of starch or sugar eaten is not enough for the body's needs.

An editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association giving the results obtained by research workers, points out that while the storage of glycogen in the liver is important, the presence of protein in the liver is even more important from the standpoint of preserving the liver cells from damage.

Thus a patient seriously ill with liver and gall bladder trouble, in which operation has become necessary, has heretofore been given meals rich in starch so the good supply of glycogen would be present at the time of operation. The discovery that protein will give greater protection in less time is a great step forward in the protection of liver tissue.

These experiments appear sufficiently conclusive to warrant the adoption of a high protein, high starch, no fat diet in the before operation treatment of the patient seriously ill with disease of the liver and gall bladder.

Another discovery as to the value of the protein diet is that swelling of the parts of the body due to an excess amount of water in the tissue following operation, or injury in fact, is due to a great extent to lack of proteins.

Under normal conditions the swelling (edema) due to operation begins to disappear 48 hours to 72 hours after operation, but if not enough of the protein is present, swelling actually increases causing a mechanical obstruction of the passage of food from the stomach into the small intestine.

The suggestion, then, is in these liver and gall bladder cases, that the diet consist of 80 per cent proteins, 20 per cent starch, and no fats.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Is there any nourishment in buttermilk? Why is it recommended in diet for colitis?

A.—There are calories in a glass of buttermilk. It is recommended because it helps prevent intestinal putrefaction, is soft and bland—does not irritate.

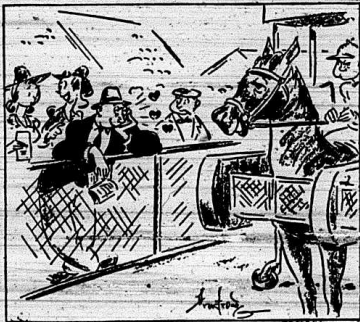

Q.—Could you tell me if there is a cure for involutional melancholia? Is drug treatment of any help?

A.—Ask your physician about the use of ovary extract.

Work Today

Plan For Tomorrow

Straight thinking is important today, as Government war expenditures bring increased earnings for many families.

Prudent persons will take advantage of today's opportunities to pay off their obligations and get out of debt... to invest regularly and as much as they can in U. S. Defense Bonds... to save in advance for heavier Taxes next year... to lay aside a reserve fund for post-war readjustment.

Think straight... and think about tomorrow.

In normal times, every organization is thought of in terms of its normal function. With GREYHOUND, it is transportation... the means of carrying you from where you are to where you want to go... comfortably, dependably, inexpensively.

But in times like these, GREYHOUND assumes a much broader aspect: As the family car becomes an item to be preserved, GREYHOUND moves into the breach to play a dual role.

To its normal function as a carrier, it now contributes a service of incalculable value as a conservator of rubber, metals, and fuel. With greater carrying capacity per pound and per gallon of these precious elements, buses are in the forefront in the efforts toward national defense.

Carrying business men on trips, war-workers to jobs, selectees to induction centers, service men to camps and on furloughs, GREYHOUND is doing double duty on America's Highways to Victory!

92 YEARS OF PROGRESS

A Historical Tour of the Louisville & Nashville R.R.

Depression Days

The L. & N. weathered the dark days of the Depression better than most American railroads. It completed its $3,000,000 bridge across the Ohio River at Henderson, Ky., on December 31, 1932, and helped construct the gigantic Cincinnati Union Terminal which was completed on March 31, 1933.

Free pick-up and delivery of less-than-carload freight was inaugurated in the early part of 1933, as were lower passenger fares and both of these innovations proved to be such desired successes that they have been retained to this day.

The daily-except-Sunday broadcast of the Pan-American over Station WSM was inaugurated on August 15, 1932, and has been heard by millions of listeners. It is now on the air at 4:03 p. m., C. S. W. T.

Only a modern and efficiently-operated railroad can provide the best service to the public. Pursuant to such a policy the L. & N., in 1933, began the abandonment of unproductive tracks and the dismantling of over 250 obsolete locomotives and 4,000 wooden freight cars and units of work equipment, much of which has been and is still being replaced by modern rolling stock.

Whiteford R. Cole, the L. & N.'s 16th president, died on November 17, 1934, and James B. Hill, the present associate head, succeeded him on November 27, 1934. Under his leadership many changes have been made. During 1935, 1936 and 1937 nearly all of the L. & N.'s day-coaches, including cars and equipment, at a cost of over $1,000,000. Five Family Pullmans were inaugurated at principal points on the System. Out of these grew the present-day Safety-Friendly Service consisting of employees and their families, which constantly stress the value and importance of Safety and Friendly Service in the railroad's work. An employee suggestion system was also begun in January, 1937.

Today—all over America—the ring of steel wheels on steel rails is beating forth an inspiring tune of courageous endeavor. Neither wind nor rain, mighty mountains nor swollen rivers can stop the railroad. As you stand about the all-new cars of carrying men and material in order that this country may achieve victory with minimum loss of life and in the shortest possible time, the L. & N. Railroad is proud to do its part in the War effort.

Rockcastle

Facts and Stories

By Ralph Griffin

One of the first church buildings erected in Rockcastle county was at Rock Springs, two miles north of Level Green.

The first church building located in the vicinity of Mt. Vernon was upon the hill just west of the town, upon the site of what later became the fair grounds and was built in 1810.

There was an old cemetery near the church building, where seventy-five hundred small tombstones and markers were standing as late as 1900.

A later building served as a combined church and school until the year 1860 and was located upon the Skeggs Creek Road, just south of U. S. 150.

This building still stands upon U. S. 150, near the courthouse in Mt. Vernon, and was used as a newspaper office and as W. P. A. headquarters.

Boone Fork Church, about one mile from the present site of Brodhead, was built soon after the organization of Rockcastle county in 1810.

It became a noted gathering place for the old and the young, and many interesting events were conducted there by celebrities of the early days, among whom was Jackson John Smith.

Friendship, near Level Green, Union in the western part of the county and Flat Rock, near Dudley, were three well-known churches of the earlier days.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Increasing U. S. Air and Naval Power Demonstrated in Pacific Sea Battles; U. S. Wants Car Owners' 'Extra' Tires; OPA Decrees Gas Quota for East Coast

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Reprinted by Western Newspaper Union.)

The strategic importance of Madagascar to the two main supply arteries of the United Nations armies in the east are indicated by the above map. By capturing the key naval base of Diego Suarez, British Commandos supported by marines, infantry, air force and naval units, assured protection of these vital supply lines.

MADAGASCAR: 40-Hour Triumph

A 40-hour epic of British Commando glory culminated in a victorious conclusion when the Diego Suarez naval base on the northern tip of Viceroy-ruled Madagascar surrendered to British troops.

While French army outposts still hold military control over the Madagascar hinterlands, the fall of the huge naval base assured the United Nations possession of the vital gateway to their eastern supply routes. Moreover, it was vindication of a new spirit of aggression which made the Japs "miss the bus."

PRESIDENT OF PERU: Closet Latin Ties

Closer knitting of relations between Latin America and the United States was seen in the visit of President Manuel Prado of Peru to this country.

When Senator Prado arrived by clipper plane, it marked the first official visit in history of a South American president to the United States.

Significance of this precedent-making official visit lies in the future of Pan-American relations as Nazism was seen in the fact that Peru was the first Latin American to break relations with the Axis under the accord reached last January at the Rio de Janeiro conference.

Prado's visit to the United States is an important step in the official extension of Axis propaganda from Peru.

RUBBER: U. S. Wants Tires

Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, intimated that county fairs, football games and other public gatherings might have to be curtailed this year in the interest of rubber conservation, when he announced that the government planned to purchase extra tires from private car owners.

That requisitioning of civilian tires means would be undertaken, he said, "Purchases will be on a voluntary basis."

At the same time the Office of Defense Transportation disclosed that it was drafting plans for "rationing" civilian travel by train, bus or airplane.

Civilians "who expect synthetic rubbers to bring any relief" are doomed to disappointment, he declared. All such rubber is ear-marked for the nation's armed forces.

PACIFIC SEA BATTLES: U. S. Shows Power

A crucial test of the United Nations' increasing strength in the Australian sector was given as Japanese sea air might missed northeast of the key coconut island thrust, from New Britain, the Solomon Islands and the Loyalties Archipelago.

Within a five-day span American warships and planes had taken a toll of 10 Japanese ships either sunk or badly damaged. Engagements were the heaviest since the battle of the Java sea.

Concentration of the Japanese naval forces in the Australian area was regarded as a threat to the steadily expanding U. S. communication lines in the South Pacific.

Japan's strategic power in this area lay in its possession of the Solomon Islands which form stepping stone to the Austro-Malayan flank starting from Rabaul on the island of New Britain and extending down to New Caledonia.

GAS RATIONING: East Coast First

Eventual gasoline rationing for the entire United States is now a definite possibility when the Office of Price Administration limited the sale of motor fuel in the Atlantic seaboard area to two to six gallons weekly to "non-essential motorists."

The OPA's order included three types of ration cards: "A" for non-essential motorists; "B" for essential users such as defense workers, public service officials and others; "C" for professional and other.

LIVESTOCK SHOW: War Casualty

Industry's necessary war-time restrictions on the nation's transportation facilities, was the decision by its directors to cancel the International Livestock Exposition here annually in Chicago for the past 42 years.

The anticipated lack of transportation facilities to handle the livestock formerly shipped here from all sections of North America was declared the principal reason for the cancellation.

Traditionally the mecca for rural Americans of all ages in the week-end, the show would have attracted an estimated 400,000 last year.

Rent Ruler

Charged with the responsibility of setting up machinery to place ceiling on rents affecting more than $8,000,000 persons, Paul A. Orter, deputy administrator of the Office of Production Management, is directing the federal rent control program under the supervision of Price Administrator Leon Henderson, Landlords in affected areas have until June 30 to stabilize rents in line with OPA recommendations.

'BACKDOOR THRUST': Japs Use Burma Road

Japan's "backdoor" invasion of China via the Burma road continued into Yunnan province despite U. S. army air attacks which knocked out 17 enemy planes in a single week. Seriousness of the newest thrust to China's resistance was seen in the decision of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to take personal command of the Burma road convoys.

CHARGE ACCOUNTS: Time Buying Curbed

Every American citizen used a charge account or an installment purchasing plan to acquire the goods he uses in everyday living was affected by the Bureau of Consumer Affairs' new order.

Specialists Sought: Also Allied Nationals

Two moves to increase the flexibility of the army were made when the war department announced the creation of the new army specialist corps and the selective service headquarters declared that nationals of all-allied nations will be able to join either this country's forces or those of their home nation.

MISCELLANY: Honolulu, Hawaii, First American

Honolulu, Hawaii, first American area to suffer Axis aggression, beyond again, was prominently determined by war effort through, by oversubscribing four times the Islands' May quota of $250,000 War Bond quota.

U. S. Army Mans Outposts Of Far-Flung Battle Fronts

United States Assumes Military Command In Area Many Times as Wide as Its Own Borders.

By BAUKHAGE, News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1845 E. Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. Spring has unleashed her fluttering green scarf over the capitol, the stark pattern of black branches of winter sunless skies was gone. Behind the classic portico of the Treasury building I could see, from my high window, pointed tree tops like a side comb to a gray "fog" of light.

That was May in Washington as the "new" century began of a century. But there was a grim signature in the upper corner of this picture framed by my office window. It was the "new" modern-strictly, brutally, 1942. It was the silhouette of a parapet, the top of a tall hotel and on the penthouse roof a cork cylinder pointed upward—an anti-aircraft gun. But that did not hold my attention. I have seen hundreds, if not thousands, of those guns in the past weeks. It was a doughboy under his rounded helmet sitting on the top of the cork cylinder, his feet in space as his watchful young eyes followed the skyline.

To me he was the symbol of a million men at the peace work in the Arctic to the Antipodes, scanning strange skylines, soon to see them all turn purple.

Never in history has a nation sent its sons out to as wide-flung a front as that which America is guarding today. In the United States, a terrible machine been built by a single people.

In less than half a year a nation that yesterday spent less on its army than on its movies, its autos, or its cosmetics has begun to man the outposts of the United Nations. Gradually the United States has assumed military command in an area ten, perhaps 20 times, as wide as its own borders.

To survive this ordeal requires the full, unflinching indifference of the soul or the faith of saints and martyrs.

Canada Struggles For Financial Independence

Changing its business all around in the last 18 months, Canada has today. Changing the business of a hundred million people is a long haul. We've only just begun to get down to cases in Pearl Harbor. But when the President told us about forgetting the "creative confidence" of the Roosevelt era, we have made since April 28 in Washington to carry out his seven point cost-of-living program most people began to realize that we are on the way.

From the moment you get off at the bus stop in Montreal, filled with uniforms and the folks there to meet them, you realize how important Canadians are to Americans, how important Americans are to Canadians, and how vital it is that each of these good American neighbors see eye to eye, work together to bring forth "more and better and breed and birth" and to greet each other frankly and freely as brother North Americans.

Canada is big—a little bigger in square miles than the United States. It has a tenth of the people to support the American great heritage. Unlike the United States, one-third of the Canadians are French-speaking and two-thirds of Thanks To Retonga I've Gained 15 Lbs.

Few People Suffered More Distress From Indigestion, Nervousness And Weak, Rmndown Feeling States Mrs. McGrew, Tells of Trouble.

Gratefully giving Retonga full credit for her regained strength, after years of suffering, Mrs. Ina McGrew, well known resident of Leitchfield, Ky., declares:

"I had regained fifteen pounds of rugged good health. I went from being a nervous wreck to a healthy, happy woman. I had lost my appetite, and every bite of food I forced down seemed to turn sour and fill my stomach with gas until I felt like I would smother. The headaches I endured were simply terrible. My nerves were so badly on edge I never seemed to get enough sleep. I was many pounds overweight, and I felt so weak that everything I tried to do seemed beyond my strength.

"Retonga is the first medicine I ever found that brought me real relief. I have a splendid appetite now, and eat what I want without feeling any distress. My nerves have settled down, and it's a joy to sleep like I do every night now. I feel worlds stronger and better all over. The biggest favor I can do anyone suffering as I did is to tell them about Retonga."

Mrs. McGrew was reared in Big Chilly, Ky., but has lived in Leitchfield for the past four years. Many friends in both places, Retonga is a purely herbal, stomachic medicine combined with Vitamin-B1 for digestion, nerves and strength. It is a non-substitute. Retonga may be obtained at Maggard Drug Store, Mount Vernon, Ky. —Adv.

night, and thus closed the Mt. Vernon Meeting, which for coldness at first and warmth at last we have never seen surpass. A new Christian Church was erected in Mt. Vernon in the year 1824, and the old building was sold for business property. The following list of preachers has served this church since its organization: Bros. Dicey, Pogue, Huffaker, Elliott, Whentley, Mills, Collier, John Will Gibson, Martin Owens, Jim Chestnut, Charles Kirtley, James Allen, James Hatt, Geo. McCall, Joseph Ballou, Richard Forrer, Ira B. Boswell, Campbell, David Hartsfield, James Cole, Percival D. McCallum, John Masters, Oerter, Harry Schaffer, Geo. Timley, H. T. Young, Howard Burnett, J. W. Ligon, J. W. Borwasser, Chas. G. Roe, Will Groby, W. A. Fite and Aubrey Russell.

In the year 1897 a Baptist Church building was built in Mt. Vernon. The organized Baptist Church had been here for many years but without a regular church. Services had been conducted in the Christian church since its organization in 1824. The Mt. Vernon Baptist Church occupied this building until the year 1930, when they were able to construct a fine and more modern church home.

The following pastors have served this church since the year 1867: J. C. Carnick, W. Ericson, Rev. Allen, Rev. Janerson, Rev. Mitchell, T. H. Duke, Fred Jones, Webb, Taylor, J. W. Mahan, E. S. Gaylor and W. C. Younce.

Since the days of Rockcastle's organization in 1810 there has been a slow, halting, much interrupted but steady growth of church organizations within the county. In 1942 the county was as rich as the best of Livingston and, in fact most sections of Rockcastle, are well served by such churches.

Poultry Pointers For May

The demand for fresh eggs will be good throughout the coming summer. Flock owners should therefore keep laying hens at least two months longer than usual and maintain high average production by (1) continuing the feeding of good laying mash; (2) keeping the flock supplied with clean, fresh water at all times; (3) controlling lice and mites and (4) culling all hens that haven't laying. So many farm flock owners do not know how to cull for production but all can and should learn. Extension Circular 3003 is supplied without cost by your county agent. Save valuable feed and increase your profits by keeping only the laying hens.

Warm weather is here and millions of eggs needed to feed our soldiers, sailors, workers and allied will spoil unless farmers give them better care than they have now. Summer is our patriotic duty to prevent this loss. Sell all roosters as soon as the hatching season is over. Gather the eggs more often and hold them in the coolest place available until they are sold.

Coccidiosis

For the next two months one of the greatest hazards to marketing fryers on time and having good pullets for fall and winter layers is coccidiosis. This coccidiosis, if possible, recognize it quickly and control it if it appears.

Many organisms causing coccidiosis are passed in the droppings and must be in the presence of warm air and moisture for a day or more to become dangerous. They are the birds and feed and water from contaminated feeders, water fountains, floors and ground and are carried into the intestines of the birds who die, multiply and cause severe damage. There may or may NOT be bloody droppings. Affected birds are poorly productive. Death losses may be high in broods under 10-12 weeks of age.

The organisms causing coccidiosis may be carried long distances on shoes or on birds, flies, rats and mice. Don't visit other brooder houses, poultry flocks and don't permit visitors in yours.

Treatment of sick birds is not satisfactory but many affected birds can be checked and outbreak of disease can be checked quickly if the birds are prevented from picking up additional supplies of the infective organism. Confine the birds to the house and avoid dampness. Don't spray or scrub but dry clean the house and scrub and salt the feeders and fountains each day for 8 or 10 days. Put down clean-litter or take it to a place on the farm never used by poultry.

4-H Rally Day

Our annual 4-H county Rally Day will be held in the auditorium at Mt. Vernon Saturday, May 16. It is expected that every club will be represented at this meeting. The program starts promptly at 9 A. M. and closes at noon. The 4-H clubs were completed and organized last week with a total membership of 200. These clubs were organized at Cave Ridge and Victor. Mr. Loyd Mullins is the general-leader at Cave Ridge and Mrs. Willie Thomas is general leader at Victor. The county agent met both of these clubs and completed the organization assisted by Clyde Lavinle, 4-H club leader at Livingston. These two clubs promised to be outstanding clubs. The Victor club had a complete program at its first meeting with special music by a quartet. We welcome these two new clubs into our circle which makes a total of 36 clubs with a membership of 1,001.

Tom Litter Contest

Each year the state of Kentucky carries out a Tom Litter Contest. This year the contest will be held at the State Tom Litter Contest, which is to receive a ton of pork or more out of a litter of pigs in six months' time. Application cards can be had at the county agent's office either in Berea or Mt. Vernon. There are a number of farmers who have a splendid opportunity to win some of the cash prizes and medals offered in the state contest. Farmers interested should get in touch with the county agent.
