Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
GRANDFATHER FROG GIVES UP HOPE

WITH his legs tied together, hanging head down from the end of a string, Grandfather Frog was being carried by Farmer Brown's Boy. It was dreadful. Half way across the Green Meadow the Merry Little Breezes of Old Mother West Wind came dancing along. At first they didn't see Grandfather Frog, but presently one of them, rushing up to tease Farmer Brown's Boy by blowing off his hat, caught sight of Grandfather Frog.

Now the Merry Little Breezes are great friends of Grandfather Frog. Many, many times they had blown foolish green flies over to him as he sat on his big green lily-pod, and they had seen him when they were out when this one caught sight of him in such a dreadful position he forgot all about teasing Farmer Brown's Boy. He raced away to tell the other Merry Little Breezes. For a minute they were perfectly still. They forgot all about being noisy and teasing.

"It's awful, just perfectly awful!" cried one.

"But what can we do?" asked another.

Nobody replied. They just thought and thought and thought. Finally the first one spoke. "We might try to comfort him a little," said he.

A great cloud of dust and sticks first tiny leaves was dashed into his face.

"Of course we will do that!" they shouted all together.

"And if we thrust our face in the face of Farmer Brown's Boy and snatched his hat perhaps he will put Grandfather Frog down," continued the Merry Little Breezes.

They wasted no more time talking, but raced after Farmer Brown's Boy as fast as they were faster than the others, ran ahead and whispered in Grandfather Frog's ear that they were coming to help him.

The poor old Grandfather Frog couldn't be comforted. He couldn't see what there was that the Merry Little Breezes could do. His legs started where the string cut into the skin, and his head ached, for you know he was hanging head down. No, sir, Grandfather Frog dropped to the ground. He was in a terrible fix and he couldn't see any way out of it. He hadn't the least bit of hope left. And all the time Farmer Brown's Boy was trudging along whistling merrily. You see, it didn't occur to him to think how Grandfather Frog must be suffering and how terribly frightened he must be. He wasn't cruel, no, indeed. Farmer Brown's Boy wasn't cruel, that is, he didn't mean to be cruel. He was thoughtless, like a great many other boys, and girls, too.

So he went whistling on his way until he reached the Long Lane leading from the Green Meadows up to Farmer Brown's dooryard.

Something was in the air. Nothing had something happened. A great cloud of dust and leaves and tiny sticks was dashed in his face and nearly choked him. Dirt got in his eyes. His hat was snatched from his head and went sailing over into the garden.

Grandfather Frog dropped to the ground and felt for his handkerchief to wipe the dirt from his eyes.

"Pshaw!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy as he stood safe by his hat. "It's funny where that wind came from so suddenly!"

But you know and I know that it was the Merry Little Breezes working together who made up that sudden wind. And Grandfather Frog ought to have known, too, that he didn't know. You see, the dust had got in his nose and eyes just as it had in those of Farmer Brown's Boy, and he was so frightened and confused that he couldn't think.

So he lay just where Farmer Brown's Boy dropped him, and he didn't have any more hope than before.

In 1920 it was estimated there were 100,000,000 waterfowl in this country . . . a prolonged period of drought . . . and other causes reduced the number to an estimated 26,000,000 in 1933 . . . at that time there were only 102 federal refuges of all sorts, which covered an area of some 6,000,000 acres . . . the refuge plan was speeded up by Uncle Sam and today there are 206 federal refuges, covering some 50,000 acres . . . and waterfowl numbers have increased to approximately 50,000,000.

A BUSTED HOT WATER BOTTLE MAY WIN THIS WAR!!

—REMEMBER the old time ballad which says, "For the want of a rider a battle was lost?" Well, we're not going to lose this war, but a leaky hot water bottle may supply the extra ounce of scrap rubber that will more quickly give the Axis the axe.

Uncle Sam wants that old rubber right now!

Yes, the government wants every disused or worn out article made of rubber that can be sent to the nation's stock pile, and wants you to help get it there in a hurry!

Oil industry is collecting it!

Starting June 15 and continuing through June 30th, gasoline stations from coast to coast will help collect scrap rubber and will pay....

A penny a pound in spot cash for every pound contributed by you...so take all the old rubber you can collect to the nearest gas station today!

None of the oil companies will receive one penny of profit for this service to the nation. Through the cooperation and efforts of thousands of dealers and gasoline company employees, the scrap rubber will be turned over to the government and will be paid for by Uncle Sam on the basis of $25 per ton (2000 pounds). The difference between the amount paid by the oil companies and the amount paid by the government has been pledged to the USO, Navy Relief, Army Relief and American Red Cross.

May help avert gasoline rationing in Central West

Since a shortage of rubber is considered the main reason for the threatened rationing of gasoline in the central states, this is one important way to do your part, and it may help ward off the need for curtailment of this vital commodity.

Rockcastle

Facts and Stories

By Ralph Griffin

Sometime prior to 1790 a man by the name of Bob Langford came from somewhere down in Virginia and homesteaded upon what was to later become known as the old Davault place, just south of Mt. Vernon. This man brought with him all his goods and chattels, including some forty negro slaves.

Some years later a son of this family built what is now known as the McFerron house, the oldest building in Mt. Vernon, and it is believed that the first white child ever born here may be seen in Elmwood Cemetery today.

The Revolutionary War was still fresh in the minds of patriots of that day folks were liberty conscious, so when the first son was born he named him Liberty.

Liberty Langford grew up to become a business man. He built a tavern over the present location of the hotel. He supplied horses and lodging for passing stock-traders did some trading himself, owned slaves and was considered a prosperous citizen of his day.

Liberty had a son named James. When James married he moved across the river to a place called New Market. It is stated that we know today as the John G. ...

It was Dec. 27th, 1779. A snow-storm had been raging for several days. Liberty Langford had been unable to do any traveling during that time. Consequently Santa Claus had not visited his children on Christmas day. To make the matter more interesting, the wife of Liberty had a birthday and James Stephen was his favorite son. James Langford just had to go somewhere and get some Christmas and birthday presents.

He saddled his horse, told his family goodbye and rode off thru the deep snow toward a little store which was operated at Fine Spring late that night searching neighbors found James Langford's body not far from home. He lay in the snow beneath his horse surrounded by the simple little luxuries which had cost him his life. He had been shot from ambush.

James Stephen and a slightly older brother, Henry, shouldered the responsibility of caring for a family in a home. Liberty Langford, the same man who was said to have bushwhacked his father, according to the rumors of that day.

After he became a man James Stephen Langford became active in Rockcastle politics. He served the county as sheriff, and later as a member at Jaffer and six years as master commissioner. He was fourteen years old when his father was killed; he was twenty-seven when Liberty died. Mt. Vernon last Saturday. We knew him best as "Uncle Tip."

History of a Langford family history are recorded and given to me by Uncle Tip himself some years ago. It would take many columns to record all that he has told me. He has given me about his own family and about the earlier days of Rockcastle. With him to do the prompting or the suggestion I have been able to get what he wanted to see published; thus my own nephew it is still in my files.

There is nothing to regret in Uncle Tip's except that he is dead, which is left in the hearts of his family and friends. He had lived out his life in a very happy and contented way. He had prayed the matter thru and said that he was spiritually prepared to go. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so shall he be."

During the age of this man's youth only the strong survived. Uncle Tip was a strong man. In his prime he carried a musket and a halberd. He had been challenged he stood ready to die for his convictions, political or otherwise. His friends loved him, his enemies hated him, but there were more of the former than the latter.

He was strongly clanish in spirit and during his lifetime he was the head of his clan. He could have been the patriarch of a John Fox Jr. novel or a novel based on the life of Kentucky Colonel portrait. His home was always wide open to his family, to his friends and to any unfortunate. He was a generous man and he had made his home their own for months and years on end. He kept one impoverished friend for six years, even supplying the man's pocket money.

Uncle Tip never knew how to say no. He would do anything that he was asked to do. He was a man who knew how. He gave away what he had and the average man makes in a lifetime and never regretted a penny, even when he was short himself. During the past five years this man fought death to a standstill and won simply because the word "surrender" was not in his vocabulary. Had he decided that he was ready and willing to go he might have won again and again.

But this five year fight softened him. He lost most of the arrogance of his younger manhood. If he had harbored hates and grudges he forgot them. Some weeks ago a stranger called. He and Uncle Tip had a long, pleasant private talk. When the stranger had

Man Stabbed In Spinal Column

Surgeons Remove Two-Inch Knife Blade

In an altercation Sunday afternoon between Elmer Taylor, 35, and Monty Crowder, 35, both of the Pongo area, a stab wound in the spine necessitating the removal of a two-inch knife blade was inflicted on Taylor by Louisville surgeons, according to Sheriff Walter Sower.

Taylor was first brought here and taken to the hospital and first-aid Dr. T. A. Griffin, was sent to the London hospital. From there he was transferred to the St. Joseph's Infirmary at Louisville, where surgeons removed the knife blade.

The lower half of Taylor's body is paralyzed as a result of the severing of his spinal cord, and physicians hold small hope for his complete recovery, although it is said that he will survive.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Crowder, who is charged with malicious cutting.

It was announced in Frankfort Friday that the State Board of Education had approved the plan for the final distribution of the $400,000 school equalization fund for the 33 poor county school districts and six independent districts, was agreed to.

The equalization fund, authorized by the 1945 General Assembly, provides money for any school district which cannot raise $30 for each child in average daily school membership.

Thirty-six counties were in a position to obtain equalization funds; but Adams, Casey and Estill counties had not met the deadline and thereby failed to qualify.

DEATHS

BURDITT
This community was deeply shocked by the untimely death of Ava June Burdett on June 15th. She was only 21 years of age. She was graduated from the Mt. Vernon High School in May of this year. She died at almost the exact hour of her birth, June 15, 1924.

A diagnosis of the cause of her death was brain tumor and held no hope for recovery, but her immediate death had not been expected.

Through her young life she made a host of friends among both the young and old alike who mourn her passing.

Besides her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Burdett, brother, Raleigh Burdett and a sister, Mrs. Roy Cummins, survive. They have the honor of the custody of this paper and the entire community.

CARRIER
On Friday, June 14, death claimed Phil Carrier, 85, one of Rockcastle's oldest and most respected citizens. Infirmities of old age were the primary cause of his death.

Mr. Carrier was born in Livingston and spent his entire life in Rockcastle county. He was united in marriage to Mrs. Mary Carrier. Besides his wife he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Nannie Durham and Mrs. Willie Dale of Cincinnati, and two sons, Hugh and Felix Carrier of Livingston.

Funeral services were conducted at Pleasant Run Baptist church and the interment took place at Park cemetery.

One of County's Oldest Citizens Passes Away

J. S. Langford, better known to his friends as "Uncle Tip" passed away at his home in Mt. Vernon Saturday morning, June 20th, at nine o'clock. His illness had extended over a period of more than five years, however, it had become more critical the last two months and death was not unexpected.

He was one of the older citizens of this county and had been born here December 27th, 1866, near the home of James and Mary Ann Langford. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dora Childress Langford, two daughters, Mrs. Eliza J. Adams and Mrs. Mary Boggs; two sons, Robert L. Langford and Will Langford; one sister, Mrs. Della Langford; fifteen grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Mr. Langford was a member of the Baptist Church. Funeral services were conducted at the home at 2:30 Sunday afternoon by Rev. W. C. Younce, Pastor of the Mt. Vernon Baptist Church and Rev. W. M. Mahan. Burial was in Elmwood Cemetery.

Dr. J. S. Langford was a member of the Mt. Vernon Chapter, No. 20, of the Elks Lodge. He was also a member of the Mt. Vernon Chapter, No. 20, of the Elks Lodge. He was also a member of the Mt. Vernon Chapter, No. 20, of the Elks Lodge.

DRIVERS FAILING TO BUY RATION STAMPS TO BE FINED $25
It will cost motorists a $25 fine if they operate their cars next Wednesday in the State of Kentucky, according to the Collector of Internal Revenue Seider R. Glenn warned yesterday.

The stamps are being sold at all gas stations in post offices and their substations. If rationing of gasoline becomes necessary, no motorist lacking the $5 use stamp may obtain a ration book, officials pointed out.

Rubber Drive Progresses

Rockcastle County is 100 per cent behind in the present gathering scrap rubber for the war effort. Mr. A. M. Hiatt, Chairman of the Rockcastle County Petroleum Scrap Rubber Committee said today that during the first 6 days of the drive, which started with opening of business last Monday morning, 12, 167 pounds of scrap rubber have been turned in.

The bulk of this scrap rubber consists of old automobile tire casings. At many stations 85 per cent or more of the total tonnage received is in the form of used tires.

He also pointed out that all forms of rubber articles are acceptable including garden hose, hot water radiator hose, rubber boots, rubber mason jar rings, rubber washers and gaskets, rubber mats, inner tubes, rubber belts, and a host of other items. All of this material will be paid for at its gross weight of 1 cent per lb. according to Mr. Hiatt.

Mr. Hiatt urged every citizen to consider himself a part of America's scrap rubber army, and work tirelessly in helping to gather in the scrap rubber, "Slap the Jap with Rubber."

Thanks, A. M. Hiatt Chairman

The Value of Sugar

On the expiration of sugar stamp No. 4 at midnight, June 27th, the value of stamp No. 5 and 6 will be increased to cover four instead of one pound of sugar. The weekly ration for each customer, however, will remain the same, one-half pound of sugar.

May Not Hold Broodhead Fair

Rubber Shortage Is Given As Cause

There is a probability that the famous old Broodhead fair will not be held as usual this year because of the rubber shortage. The fair is scheduled for May 21 and 22, but a meeting of the fair board would decide its fate in the near future.

Mr. W. O. Yaden, secretary of the fair county said that it had not been fully decided to suspend the fair this year but a meeting of the fair board would decide its fate in the near future.

Inflation Came In All Previous Years

Extreme price fluctuations have accompanied every major war in which the United States has engaged, according to Dana G. Carter, editor of the Signal.

During the Revolutionary War prices rose to more than double what they were in 1780. As a result of World War I, conditions were worse when in 1920 it took $22 to buy what $1 had bought in 1912.

Again in 1964 it took $2 to buy what $1 had bought in 1930. As a result of World War II, conditions were worse when in 1920 it took $22 to buy what $1 had bought in 1912.

Government must buy large quantities of materials for the armed forces to carry on modern warfare, continues Dr. Card. Frequently materials are offered higher prices by military supplies than they can get for civilian goods.

If inflation and the evil effects which follow are to be avoided the government must attempt to be attacked at their source. Present programs of the Federal Government involving heavier taxes, priorities for industry, control of prices, raising of consumer goods and the campaign to encourage the purchase of war bonds and stamps all are designed to counteract inflation, he said.

YOUR GARDEN

Radish and lettuce seed present no problem. Both can be sown readily to seed, let standing where they are. Those gardeners who with great effort procured this year a bumper crop of radishes should have been keeping it as long as they can, but it is best to let no other lettuce make seed too close. Fifty feet would be the best distance to have between most of lettuce's pollen is wind-borne, not carried by bees. To reduce loss by shattering, the lettuce seed heads should be loosely wrapped in cheesecloth. To clean lettuce seed and in fact any other small seed, the seeds should be rubbed through a tea strainer or through fine flyscreen.

Any fine chaff that goes through may be blown out easily. Or, it does no harm to leave it.

Turnip seed may be saved from left-over plants of the spring planting, but the fight with the summer insects is so troublesome, and the viability of the seed is uncertain because of having formed in weather unseasonable for turnips, that it is better to save seed from the late crop. In this case, the same method applies also to beets and carrots.

Selects plump, shapely roots, the radish, but they need not be lifted through ordinary winter, temperature in the row they grew. Satisfying begins showing early and the chesnut, which is established and 2 feet between them. Soon, a seed-tail arises, bloom set, and finally seed heads. These, rub through a tea strainer, wash, and the chaff blown out. For beets especially it may be of advantage to wrap the seed plants in cheesecloth, or to harvest them when three appears to be a maximum of ripe seed, or piecemeal as seed matures.

Parsnips and salsify, too, are biennial, but they need not be lifted unless they are in the way, but live through ordinary winter, temperature in the row they grew. Satisfying begins showing early and the chesnut, which is established and 2 feet between them. Soon, a seed-tail arises, bloom set, and finally seed heads. John Young Brown To Oppose "Happy" Chandler

John Young Brown, former Congressman and former Speaker of the House, this week announced he would oppose "Happy" Chandler for nomination for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate. His declaration papers were filed at Frankfort shortly before the deadline Monday night.

In an advertisement released to the press, Brown stated that he would support Chandler for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate. He stated that he would support Chandler for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate.

"Two weeks ago," he said in a personal statement, "I had no idea of the possibility of my being nominated for the United States Senate. I had a comfortable job, I was satisfied to let the other fellow have the office."

"Now, I am back in politics. I have quit my job. As a loyal American, I can't be satisfied to see our Junior Senator re-elected to Washington. Brown will supply the "hocking" reason for his decision in a series of advertisements and in radio speeches.

"It is enough to say now," he explained, "that information came to me that the Senate would re-elect the Senator who holds the office."

Business Men Hold Bond Sale

$2,000.00 Is Raised By Novel Plan

At a meeting of the Mt. Vernon Commercial Club last week the idea of asking business men and members to donate some article for public sale to buy War Bonds was conceived and carried through.

Upon solicitation by Fritz Krueger many articles were procured and the sale was advertised by handbills and held at the courthouse door Saturday at 2:00 P. M.

The school band played several numbers and people gathered to hear E. R. Deany open the sale with a short but inspiring message. Judge J. J. Felton acted as auctioneer and did a very excellent job of it. He sold Eugene Stokes several articles for a total of $600.00. E. E. Deany paid $225.00 for a pair of overalls. Other sales were: Ingersoll watch donated by C. F. Mullins Livingston, to J. C. ...

The total amount received from the sale was $2,000.00, all of which was used to buy War Bonds. The success of this sale surely indicates the patriotic attitude of the citizens of this county.

RUBBER DRIVE ENDS JUNE 30

Scrap rubber collection is one of the very important things that is now under way in the United States. In this county there has been sold a lot of old rubber tires and other items from Livingston and it appears that Broodhead and vicinity have done as well. The boy scouts and citizens in the surroundings of Mt. Vernon have supplied quite a lot of old tubes tires water hose, rubber shoes and boots. The exact amount is not available at present.

This drive will go on until Tuesday June 30th, and we are aware of the fact that there are several tons of scrap rubber that have not been brought in. There are a great many more articles of scrap rubber waiting for this to the War Department. In those people who pleasure ride and wear what rubber they have on their feet.

There is an urgent demand for a highway patrolman in this county to pick up every bunch of joy-riders that gets in wrecks, to teach the people that this is no ordinary time, and everybody should sacrifice, to the extent of saving the rubber and gets in wrecks, to teach the people for business.

Livingston Youth Enlists In Marine Corps

Oscar Lavrenko Durham, 19, son of Mr. Lula Pike, Livingston, Kentucky was enlisted during the past week in the U. S. Marine Corps. He is the first young man from this county to enlist in the Marine Corps in over one year and while here was employed as a railroad signaller. He, together with several other young Kentuckians, departed for the Marine Training Base at San Diego, California.

Churchill-Roosevelt Meetings Presage New Action on Second European Front; Mediterranean Naval Battles Indicate Growing Anglo-American Air Strength

EDITOR'S NOTE.—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Here are the days when this unboxy trio of American Nazi chiefs paraded around in their Bund uniforms. George Froboese (left) of Milwaukee, Midwest bund head, killed himself under a train en route to a grand jury hearing in New York. Felix Mathis (center), former national party chief, was shot in St. Louis. Adolf Hitler (right) was a Chicago leader, is under indictment as a spy.

CHURCHILL:

Hard Meeting

For the third time within a year Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt met face to face to discuss war problems, when the British statesman arrived unheralded in Washington for a series of conferences. Their first meeting occurred last August aboard ship and resulted in the Atlantic charter. The second was Mr. Churchill's visit to Washington last December after America's entry into the war. It resulted in the declaration by the United Nations.

This third meeting, following closely on Russian Foreign Minister Molotov's historic conferences in Washington recently, promised momentous consequences in the prosecution of the war. Two matters of pressing need—the opening of a second European front and further steps to curb dangerously rising Allied ship losses by Axis submarines—were the two leaders.

REDS VS. NAZIS

History Repeats?

Balacava, famed site of Tennyson's poem, "The Charge of the Light Brigade," took its place in modern battle headlines as Hitler had rammed his massed power against the defenses of Sevastopol's fortifications.

The Crimean fishing port—Balacava—where the legendary charge by the British occurred in 1854, was a fierce point of contention between the British and Russian forces in the battle for control of the western Black sea coast.

Possession of the Sevastopol naval base was vital to the British and Russians for it represented a powerful barrier to the approaches of the Caucasus oil fields—a prize which would give the Nazis control and bulwark their war effort.

To the north in the Ukraine, where the Nazis were attempting to straighten out the long, circular line at Kharkov, battles raged doggedly, with Red army communications reporting successful counterattacks.

FATS AND OILS:

Housewives Contribute

Frying pans, pots and roasters in millions of American homes yielded up a harvest of fat as the national program to salvage grease and oils from the nation's kitchens got under way.

Fats collected in this household campaign will be used in making glycerine an important element in explosives manufacture. Meat markets everywhere will be the nation's agencies where housewives will deposit the salvaged fat. Butchers will then turn the fat over to the renderers.

AUSTRALIA:

Japs Still Menace

Best his countrymen be lulled into a lull that the battle of the Coral sea had removed all danger of a Jap invasion, Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia held aloft a warning flag. "During that time the enemy can be lost," he declared if the Commonwealth fell to Nippon, that Hawaii and the entire North American coast would be open to a Japanese attack and west coast cities would be in danger.

AIRCRAFT CARRIERS:

Lessons Learned

Lessons learned in the battles of the Coral sea, Midway island and the struggle for the Aleutian islands were applied by the house naval affairs committee when it approved an $8,500,000 expansion bill projecting a "Pac-ocean navy." For a definite going to sea airpower was discernible in the bill's provisions calling for immediate construction of 300,000-ton fleet oilers, carriers, while postponing the construction of five 60,000-ton super-battleships.

This trend was the immediate result of the smashing blow dealt Japanese seapower, in recent weeks by American airplane carriers and their accompanying forces. It was testimony that the revolution in naval tactics has occurred as a result of the battles in the Pacific.

In place of the postponed battleships, the navy will rush construction of more than a score of aircraft carriers, with escort vessels and submarines. Scheduled to be completed within a year, they will be distributed among naval forces in all areas in which Axis fleets are operating.

CHINA:

Japs Push On

As Jap armies drove deeper into China and two pincer columns were converging on the strategic 450-mile Chekiang-Kiangsi railroad, the China high command appealed again for an Allied blow that would divert the steadily mounting power of the enemy's invasion.

Discouraging news was made public in the announcement that Shanghai, an important station on the line and capital of Kiangsi province, had fallen.

With all highways sources cut off by the Japanese, China had to depend on the giant American cargo planes to deliver supplies for her embattled armies. This trickle of supplies had to be augmented to full-scale flow of supplies if effective resistance was to continue by Chiang Kai-shek's armies.

PEACE TECHNIQUE

Cooling Off

A clue to post-war peace technique was discussed by Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, when he advocated "cooling off" period after the war—before final terms are made.

In effect, the American statesman urged that both the victor and vanquished plan together and prepare to preclude future wars.

The epic sea and air fighting centered around two Italian-led British convoys—one leaving Alexandria for Tobruk and the other leaving Malta. The latter carried badly needed supplies for hard-bested British garrisons.

In two days of death-struggle fighting, the British and Americans sank 10 Italian ships, and the convoys safely to their destinations, sank or damaged seven Italian warships, and shot down 33 planes.

LIBYAN FRONT:

Nazi Fox

With the Suez canal as his eventually hoped-for goal, foxy Nazi general Erwin Rommel continued his harassing thrust against the British forces in Libya.

Whether Rommel's dream of a drive to the Suez and a possible link-up with German forces in the west would ever materialize depended on how stout was the British resistance. Tobruk, recently reinforced by a huge British convoy, was the immediate target. The tide of battle had surged back and forth, with the Nazis registering a superiority in tanks and anti-tank strength. Hope for the British lay in receiving further supplies from the sea.

The seriousness of the Libyan situation was evident from the fact that the Axis offensive succeeded in splitting the British army—one force withdrawing to Tobruk to make a stand while the other withdrew to positions near Egypt.

ARMY PAY:

$50 for Bucks

Uncle Sam prepared to add at least $10 more per month to the pay check of every enlisted man in the nation's armed forces, when President Roosevelt signed legislation granting the first general military pay increase in 20 years. Non-commissioned officers, "have-tails" assignments changed to "haves," American soldiers and sailors thus became the highest paid fighting men in the world. The lowest grades—back privates and apprentice sergeants—will receive $50 a month, as against $30 formerly.

Officers above the rank of second lieutenant or ensign got no pay raises, but were allowed boosts in their subsistence and rental allowances.

One result was hoped for by sponsors of the legislation—that was to eliminate recruiting competition between the army and navy. It had been charged that the navy had been in better position to obtain recruits since it could offer more attractive ratings. The uniform pay schedule would, it was believed, equalize the appeal of all services.

U. S. Beginning to Realize Value of Blimp Armada

Dirigibles Found Successful in Anti-Submarine Warfare; One Man Given Credit for Stepped-Up Production.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

Until two navy training "blimps" bumped into each other some days ago, most people had almost forgotten if they ever knew—what those lazy looking, cigar-shaped airships were doing in the war.

The dirigible has been unlucky that way—it mishaps get into the papers, its achievements are forgotten. But today a prediction made in March of 1941 is being proved and the blimp is coming into its own as a vital factor in anti-submarine warfare.

It was in March a year ago that I wandered into the press club one afternoon and a friend beckoned me to join him at a table where he was sitting with a young officer, tall with a very square jaw and a mouth taut as a hair and the look of the sea and wind in his eyes. It was Capt. C. E. Rosendahl. He was saying, in less formal language:

"Believe it or not, as far as the navy is concerned, our fear-ful little dirigible is the swiftest and most maneuverable plane in the air and the mine—our continental dirigible is nearly 5,000 miles and the approaches to many of our important seaports would be a tempting feasting ground for enemy submarines."

Actually, that sentence was quoted from a manuscript that he had just written and had with him in his portfolio. A leading weekly had refused it because it was considered "untimely"—what nonsense to think that enemy submarines would be so rampant on our coastal waters! Later, in September of the same year, the article appeared but to most people the subject was still purely academic.

It is no longer academic. After one of the most determined and for a long time futile battles in the history of naval warfare, Captain Rosendahl, now in charge of the navy's lighter-than-air activities, has been asked for, and most of them are in service. Their record has been so good that there is little doubt that the navy will approve the building of 72 more—and perhaps some of the big ones.

The story of Captain Rosendahl is the story of a man who has been a naval aviator since 1914. He was a naval history who "wouldn't give up the ship."

Abiding Faith

He started that program when he flew his first dirigible, aboard one-half of the dirigible Shenandoah, the other half torn loose and hurtling to the earth. He landed his half safely. The accident that shocked the world didn't even jolt Rosendahl's faith. It simply gave him more faith in the dirigible as a construction of dirigibles. Later the dirigibles Akron and the Macon were lost, and public sentiment was such that the idea of dirigibles as practical craft was shelved. There was a renewed interest when the Hindenburg made its successful flight to Germany but when its hydrogen-filled bag exploded a damper was cast on efforts to build an American lighter-than-air fleet. Experts called the defeat of the Hindenburg—had been completed and final judgments can be coolly and rationally rendered.

VICHY FRANCE:

'Discontent Grows'

Somber were the words 86-year-old Marshal Pétain spoke to the French people on the spot and avowary of his nation's military collapse.

Admitting that his recovery program had suffered many setbacks, the aged chief of state declared that "discontent is growing" and warned that the government must undergo sterner measures of punishment to stave off unrest, public anger and greed.

Pétain made no reference to Pierre Laval in his brief radio speech, although he had declared recently that he and Laval are going along "hand in hand and in complete understanding."

Only the opposition of the incapable, but a "lack and sometimes ineffectual administration" when the blimp was a sub gives it its own type of machine gun fire, drops bombs or depth charges, then throttles down, flies low and keeps the submarine observation until the destroyers or planes which it has summoned appear. In World War I Allied blimps spotted 49 submarines and dropped bombs on 27. European waters are now covered with too many enemy planes for a blimp to survive. But the absence of enemy submarines is a great help. Our unbounded monopoly of non-inflammable helium gas, our geographical situation make the blimp an ideal weapon for American defense."

Rimless Capabilities

As a warship, the dirigible's proponents say, it can be an effective aircraft carrier.

A rigid airship can carry ten attack bombers and has a range of 1,000 miles without refueling. Its planes would not need the heavy landing gear required of planes that are on the ground and therefore their speed would be greatly increased. Furthermore they could be launched at high speed for the airship's own speed of 40 to 50 nautical miles per hour.

In answer to the charge of vulnerability, the airship's wings are highly maneuverable. It Japan found that out at Midway? That the airship is vulnerable to only one enemy weapon—submarine-launched torpedoes—can be attacked by the guns of other ships and submarines as well as planes. The airship keeps out of range of all of them. And the loss of an airship carrier would not be as costly in money, replacement time or personnel as a surface carrier.

Amphibious America

America is going amphibious. That sounds professional. It is really just a natural deduction of what happened at Midway. A desperate, desperate temper, by a conversation I had before the battle of Midway with a wind-tanned, salt bitten sailor-man whose head was still in the air. He was king of the men who made the Yankee clipper queen of the seas, weather-beaten as if made of driftwood, mellow as old port.

Here is the way he sized up the war in the Pacific, as he saw it before Midway through the calm eyes of a man whose temper had cooled by a crackling fire that warmed his mug, harbor light in whose dancing shadows he read a long life with his face bared against salt spray.

"As I see it," he said, "our navy has nothing to be ashamed of."

He had read, he said, the books about naval warfare, most of them. He raked out the titles I couldn't follow. But when it came to the ever talked about airplanes, And there was very little about submarines. And not much about landing planes. And he said that the men leave their ships under war conditions and become land fighters—"

"I don't know where they learned that. And when the history of this war is written you'll find out that there would have been a lot more Maccassar straits if the Japs hadn't learned what we were doing before we did it. You'll find that more than once, when they did find out, they ran away."

A 35,000-ton battleship requires 42,000 tons of land to launch it. That's just the amount of land required to feed the workmen who built it.

The United States marine corps has a record of participation in every major campaign. The men are armed with knives, pistols and sacks of hand grenades.

During World War I, airplane engines had to be overhauled every 50 hours. Today, because their vital parts are made of stronger materials, few ten-thousandths of an inch, they can go 600 hours without repair.

Charges for funeral services must conform to ceilings established by the general maximum price regulation.

Even Senators Can't Get Military News... War Forces Business to Make Gambles

WASHINGTON.—Announcement that the crew of a certain U.S. naval vessel had "celebrated" their third sinking of their ship by the Japanese radio since last December 7 illustrates the extraordinary lack of information about losses—and some victories—in this war in the hands of the public.

Probably in no war in history has there been more rumor and less information.

There is no comparison whatever with the situation which existed in the last war, although dispatches could be sent just as speedily then as now, and every government was trying in one way or another, to use propaganda for its own ends and prevent the propaganda of the enemy from having the effect the enemy desired.

The chief reason for all this secrecy in this war of course is high strategy, which exists to an extent and on a scale never before dreamed of. Let's consider the matter of the battle of the Coral sea. The United States government has announced that this is written has not admitted the loss of anything more than two planes in that battle. Jap claims as to our losses in the range until they finally counted a battleship as well as two airplane carriers and numerous other ships.

'Connections' Mean Nothing

All sorts of people with all sorts of connections have lined up until what really happened to our ships in that battle.

While there is general acceptance of the statement of Gen. Douglas MacArthur that the Japanese were "fantastic" the thought of most of the inquirers has been that that was less more than two planes, and probably some small surface craft.

The inquiries have been made in some instances by the administration senators who had close friends on ships in the southwest Pacific.

Remembering the case of the cruiser Houston, which was not admitted to have been sunk until weeks after the Japanese announced it, and from which not a single sailor was learned, as far as we have ever learned, was rescued, these senators, worried about their friends, have tried to find out the safety of certain other ships.

The senators in question failed to discover even whether the ship in which they were interested had participated in that engagement!

This is not written in criticism, but in commendation. It is unfortunately true that if senators had learned the truth the information would not have died there. Within a few days the scraps of information would have been pieced together.

A check-up of estimated losses indicated on the enemy obtained from that enemy's capital is pretty near priceless in guiding future operations.

It isn't only the military and political leaders who have to make decisions involving vital gambles on any day or any night.

Industry is against the same thing; and even the little business man has to make up his mind on courses of action which may lead to losses if things break one way or other.

Building Management Faces Difficult Decision

Take the matter of a big office building in Washington. This building has three furnaces, which have been all to be replaced by hot water ever since the building was constructed.

Now the building management is trying to cut down the consumption of oil by 50 per cent (the first order was for only a 25 per cent reduction).

It would be comparatively simple for the management to the building be cold next winter, and tell the tenants it was sorry, but a temperature of 55 degrees, or whatever should prove to be possible, was the best it could do.

Actually the building management could do precisely that, for the tenants would not be able to find other quarters, Washington being so crowded.

But naturally the management is scratching around trying to find some way to soften the blow. It figures it can save only 12 to 15 per cent at the maximum, without producing hardship.

So now it is considering putting in coal stokers. If it can get the stokers—of at least one and possibly two boilers, and the local downtown office building it can not pile up a stock of coal, as can the regular household with a cellar. Its cellars are much occupied.

How to Cook

by Lynn Chambers

Time for Jam

With the abundance of the fruit and jelly season, you homemakers will want to make the most of these garden products for winter use. This year it is doubly important for you to can fruits and jellies wisely, as this will help you not only in conserving the nation's resources, but also assure you of delicious accompaniments to your meals during cooler weather.

Since sugar is used in canning not only as a sweetener, but as a preservative, the government will allot five pounds of sugar per person, in addition to what you receive in your ration, so that you will have sugar for canning.

6 cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, crush thoroughly or grind about 2 quarts fully ripe raspberries. Remove some of seeds by sieving part of pulp, if desired. Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure prepared fruit into a 5- to 6-quart kettle, filling up last cup or fraction of cup with water if necessary.

Place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. (To reduce foaming, add ¼ teaspoon butter may be added.) Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Jam takes slightly less than jelly, and you will work an economy by making use of the fruit in addition to the saving on sugar.

"Ripe Blackberry Jam"
(Makes 11 6-ounce glasses)
4½ cups prepared fruit
6½ cups sugar

To prepare fruit, grind or crush thoroughly about 2 quarts fully ripe blackberries (not black caps). Sieve about ½ of ground or crushed pulp. (For Spice Blackberry Jam, add ¼ to ¼ teaspoon each cloves, cinnamon, and allspice, or any desired combination of spices.)

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure prepared fruit into a 5- to 6-quart kettle, filling up last cup or fraction of cup with water if necessary.

Place over hottest fire, adding powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. (To reduce foaming, add ¼ teaspoon butter may be added.) Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute.

"Ripe Strawberry Jam"
(Makes 12 6-ounce glasses)
4½ cups prepared fruit
6½ cups sugar

To prepare fruit, grind or crush thoroughly about 2 quarts fully ripe strawberries (not black caps). Sieve about ½ of ground or crushed pulp. (For Spice Blackberry Jam, add ¼ to ¼ teaspoon each cloves, cinnamon, and allspice, or any desired combination of spices.)

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure prepared fruit into a 5- to 6-quart kettle, filling up last cup or fraction of cup with water if necessary.

Place over hottest fire, adding powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. (To reduce foaming, add ¼ teaspoon butter may be added.) Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute.

"Ripe Peach Jam"
(Makes 12 6-ounce glasses)
4½ cups prepared fruit
6½ cups sugar

To prepare fruit, peel about 2½ pounds fully ripe peaches; pit and grind or chop very fine. Add ¼ to 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves and allspice, or any desired combination of spices, to ground or chopped peaches. Squeeze juice from 2 medium lemons. Slice Brazil nuts very thin. Add to fruit mixture.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, filling up last cup with water, if necessary. Add lemon juice and mix well.

Bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns to cool slightly. Remove floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Relishes are excellent to serve with meats of any kind for they give the meal added zest. Here's a recipe for a real sugar-saver:

"Cherry Relish"
2 cups sliced cherries
1 cup seedless raisins
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ cup honey
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup pecan nuts

Mix all the ingredients except pecans and cook 1 hour, slowly. Add pecans and cook 3 minutes longer. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal at once.

Sugar Substitutes.

If you feel that you cannot use sugar in all of the canning recipes given here, you may substitute, with certain ration here are the rules for substitutions:

If you are using a bottled fruit pectin recipe, you may substitute 2 cups light corn syrup for 2 cups of the sugar. Do not use more than 2 cups of corn syrup in any recipe, however, as this will give unsatisfactory results.

In a powdered fruit pectin recipe, you may use 1 cup light corn syrup for each cup of sugar omitted. But do not try to use all corn syrup in the recipe instead of sugar. You may substitute corn syrup for only ½ the sugar required. For example, the recipe calls for 6 cups of sugar altogether, you may use 3 cups of light corn syrup, but you must also use 3 cups of sugar.

If you get lost and bothered over your cooking and household problems when you can get expert advice on them, Lynn Chambers, your problem to Lynn Chambers, 912 South Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois, encloses stamped, addressed envelope for your reply.

TO YOUR OWN HEALTH

by DR. JAMES W. BARTON

A CAUSE OF GOTTER

Five years physicians have always looked for the "cause" of the severe form of gotter. Infection of teeth, gums, sinuses, and other parts were blamed, and if no cause could be found, it was said to be due to some cause unknown.

In a recent book, Dr. Leonardo C. Perrusi, Buenos Aires, points out that careful study of 24 selected cases of hyperthyroid gotter, he finds in each case some emotional disturbance to be the cause.

In one chapter he reports a case brought about by sudden fright. In another case, the cause was an inferiority complex—emphasizing ambition. Another was caused by a domestic or family problem that could not be solved. Intense or unbearable irritability (itching) was the cause in another case. Watching an unusually sentimental play in a theater was the cause of one case. The fear of general disease caused the thyroid condition in another case. Cases were due to (a) death of a relative and a situation of desolation and (b) prolonged sickness of the husband.

After analyzing the above and 15 other cases, Dr. Perrusi concludes that in almost all cases of severe gotter, the disease is produced by emotional disturbances which excite the thyroid gland to intense activity by way of the sympathetic nervous system. He does not think that infection or other factors cause severe cases, as 15 of the cases that he has seen have occurred "in predisposed individuals as a result of emotional disturbances."

What are the predisposing factors in thyroid disease?

Among the predisposing factors are inferiority complexes, lack of harmony or co-ordination of the various glands of the body, emotional disturbances, the geographic position of the country, the activity of the patient's life.

What is the treatment suggested by Dr. Perrusi? The usual treatment has been given, that is, iodine, X-rays, or surgery, and in addition all patients should be psychoanalyzed to find out and remove the emotional factors responsible for the development of the disease.

Ulcerative Colitis Subject to Emotions

Some years ago it was found that many nervous and emotional individuals suffered with diarrhea for weeks following a period of constipation and then by diarrhea again. There was a constant "uneasiness" in the abdomen. The stools were often covered with mucus and the ailment was called mucous colitis.

With this mucous colitis some patients also had cramps of the stomach and of the small intestine, which is often within an inch or fraction of an inch of the stomach. It is called "colic" because it is now known that both peptic ulcer and mucous colitis are due to the same conditions—nervousness and emotional factors. The treatment in both ailments is the same—eating bland non-irritating foods and trying to keep as calm as possible.

There is, however, a severe form of colitis called ulcerative colitis where the colon—large intestine—is greatly inflamed with severe or dangerous bleeding.

That even this severe form of colitis is also due to emotional disturbances, particularly anxiety—prolonged fear—has been the opinion of many physicians and a statement of two Mayo Clinic physicians, Drs. Charles J. Donald and Philip W. Brown, recent substantiates this.

In the American Journal of Digestive Diseases, these physicians state: "There is no question that the mental attitude of the patient may contribute to the onset of an attack of ulcerative colitis just as anxiety can aggravate the condition of patients who suffer from duodenal ulcer. Fear of food, fear of getting far away from the toilet, and what is referred to as 'just fear' seem to add greatly to the problem in the case of these patients. Their chances for recovery depend upon good food. Protein is the most important article; chiefly red meats, fish, kidneys, sweetbreads, and lean pork in those that can tolerate pork as it is very rich in vitamin B-1."

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore
 By Gordon Wilson, Ph. D.

Formerly when any aimless wanderer came into a country neighborhood, the people called them Gypsies or Indians, though it is highly doubtful whether either of these races was represented in any given hundred of these vagabonds. All sorts of wild stories went the round about how these strange people stole children. I wonder just how much our parents believed these yarns and how much was told as "reasonable factness" with sorts of favorable prices, such as those near-springs of big trees, were inhabited once or twice every year by these mysterious wanderers. Since I lived near a big spring that formed the water supply in dry weather for a whole community, I had a good chance to see these people. Of course this was long before cars were in the area, hence the vehicles were horse-drawn. Sometimes the owners were horse-traders by profession and they had a lot of disreputable-looking neighborhood boys who would offer them for sale or trade. Many people feared to trade with them. Does, too, were a part of their stock in trade, but the dogs were for mere ornament or company. One old Indian, some of the children from across the creek told us that some Indians were camping about a mile from where I lived. That night our nearest neighbor and his children and his wife and I went out and I tramped through the cold dew, staying close to the lantern to keep from being grabbed by some invisible wild animal or Indian, to see these wondrous creatures. I have suffered many disillusionments in my life, enough to make me cynical, but probably no disillusionment hurt or hurt as did my sight of these reputed Indians. There were two or three families, sitting around a campfire, which in itself was romantic enough. But they were not dressed as Indians; they were clothing so that it would have been hard to tell the color. If they had ever bathed their faces, there was no visible sign. There were no feathers, no bows and arrows, no warwhoops. We crouched by their fire, shivering from cold, fear and disappointment, and asked them some perfectly idiotic questions, much as we might have questioned a bear if we had thought the same sort of hillbilly English that we had heard or (heard) all of our lives. When we asked a man if he could speak any Indian, he rather proudly said he could and addressed some jargon to his wife. She very promptly told him in the same "jargon" that she could not understand or words to that effect, as any one could have told from the tone and from the fact that he made no further effort to illustrate the glorious language of the noble red man. I can still remember how scrawny was the naked little boy who decided to crawl into a pair of pants while we were sitting by the campfire. We sat around a few minutes and then followed the lantern back across the footlog and through the still colder and damper dew to our homes, with one or two cherished dreams, a delirious killing blow. To this day I have never learned whether the people were Indians or merely had not washed off the dirt for a few days or weeks. I rather suspect that the latter was the truth. Anyway, it was hard to see the public savage so unpossessing in appearance; the disappointment at this destruction of my ideal made seem a little less romantic than they might have other wise.

We apologize for all the errors in last week's edition; also this, but we ain't had no such fun since the day we got our whippers sound up in the job press-ers. That sounds like bad English, but we just heard a salesman at the Swanky Hotel bragging on how he worked his way thru college selling some kind of brushes and he said "aint got no" and "snug up and climb over" so we thought what's good enough for a college man is good enough for us, too... one unquaint thing noticed here is how long the horses ears are—they look like black zebras. —Dr. Webb, webster

How to Get Better Service

FROM YOUR ELECTRIC TABLE APPLIANCES

With electric table appliances out of production due to war, you'll want to take good care of the ones you have in order that you can continue to enjoy their step-saving convenience. Here are some suggestions that will prove helpful:

ELECTRIC TOASTER
 Be careful in cleaning your toaster. Never put it in water. Wipe outside with damp cloth, using mild abrasive if necessary. Heating element cleans itself when you turn on the current.

Most toasters have removable crumb trays. Use a small brush to wipe out crumbs if your toaster has no tray.

Be careful not to drop your toaster; it may break connections or damage thermostat.

COFFEE MAKER OR PERCOLATOR
 Never immerse a metal percolator in water. Stand on dry drainboard, wash inside with warm soapy water, rinse and dry. Wash outside with damp cloth, being careful not to let water get into electrical connections.

If you have a glass coffee maker with cloth filter, rinse filter cloth thoroughly with cold water after each using. Between usings, keep cloth in glass of cold water.

If you have a metal coffee maker or percolator, substitute a tablespoonful of baking soda for coffee occasionally and proceed as before when you were making coffee. This will remove coffee oil adhering to metal and eliminate that bitter taste.

If your percolator refuses to heat, a fuse may have burned out. Remove bottom plate and replace with spare fuse or get another from your dealer.

WAFFLE BAKER
 To clean waffle baker, wipe edge of grids with clean dry cloth. If any particles stick on grids, remove with wire brush. Never wash grids. It removes absorbed grease that prevents sticking.

Wipe any spilled batter from outside with damp cloth, then polish with soft polishing cloth. Never put waffle baker in water.

If waffles stick, due to improper preheating or insufficient shortening in batter, remove all particles from grids with wire brush, then with a small brush thoroughly cover grids with salad oil or unsalted melted fat. Connect iron and heat until grid begins to smoke. Pour in enough batter for one waffle and bake until done. Discard this waffle—as it has absorbed excess conditioner—and you won't have to grease waffle baker again if you take good care of it.

CONSERVATION of rubber is vital to Victory and the cooperation of everyone is a national necessity!

Southeastern Greyhound Lines, already in all-out effort, now goes still further. It is following the Governmental recommendation for 40-mile-per-hour maximum... to conserve tires.

War-time travel has reached unprecedented volume... facilities and equipment have been pressed into service of military men on duty-trips and furloughs, government men on important missions, war workers between defense plants and homes, civilians on business.

It's a big job to maintain accommodations to meet the increased demand and provide emergency service. But Far bigger is the all-important job of every possible contribution toward Victory. Compared with that, a few minutes additional running time becomes a very small matter.

We've got to win this War. Rubber is needed, urgently, and Greyhound has pledged its cooperation to conserve it.

Indigestion And Pains In Limbs were so Severe She Could Walk Only A Short Distance. Retonga Again Proves Merit.

Public demand for the famous medicine, Retonga, continues to grow as well-known residents continue to testify to their relief through this famous gastric tonic, and Vitamin B-1 medicine. For instance, Mrs. Elizabeth Oakes, highly respected resident of 516 Walnut St., Louisville, and formerly a well-known resident of Marion county, happily declares: "Indigestion, sluggish elimination, and pains in my limbs got me to where I could hardly do my housework. I had a very great relief whatever I did eat found gas in my stomach until it was so nervous I could hardly stand it. I had to take strong laxatives regularly, and I had dizzy, swimming headaches until sometimes I could hardly stay on my feet. My knees were so sore and painful I scarcely got an hour's sound sleep all night long. I could walk on

W.M.W. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Con Camaron is arrested as a robber and murderer who has riden since the day of the trial someone had him on the trail with three fugitives, Joe Wells and two top hatters. They were the usual acquaintances Con picked up in Frontera, but circumstantial evidence is against him. The only man who would apparently does not know that Con is the cowboy who saved his life a few days before in Wild Horse, when Lowe was nearly killed in a quarrel with "El Buckramatic" Doves, and the man who rode with Lowe and a deputy called "El Mochacho." Now jailed as a suspect, Con tells Lowe to wire Wild Horse and have his old trail boss, Buzz Upperman, or his pal, Caramba Vaca identify him. Lowe does so, but neither Upperman nor Vaca can be located. So Con and another prisoner, Jeff Allmon, have their only chance to escape. They have just succeeded in dropping to the ground from a window in the supply room.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER VI

Flat upon their bellies in the ditch, the two waited. Jeff whispered to Con that his horse was in the corral behind the jail. He had heard Nevill Lowe order it brought out. "So's mine. Corral gate's locked. So's the saddle-shed door. Our hard-earned horse is in a locked case in Lowe's office."

Clouds blanketed the sky, but occasionally the moon shone for a minute or two. In such an interval of pale light, they saw a dark group halfway between courthouse and cottonwoods, coming their way. Accompanied by furious men, the group moved nearer ditch and cottonwoods.

"On the edge of the ditch above Jeff and Con some of the men halted. Moonlight showed the grim business men thirty yards from Con and Jeff, the dim shapes of horses under the giant trees, movement of the men beside them. Two men came at the front from some distance toward the building. Con stiffened automatically.

"Over!" one of the men panted. "We couldn't find them fellows downtown—"

"Half-over," Jeff grunted. "We seen enough."

The pair broke into a run and Jeff indicated a door standing open giving upon a dark room. He led the way inside and Con heard him saying, then the click of a door beginning to be familiar, of a lock yielding.

"Come on!" Jeff commanded. "Put your hands up when you get in."

They moved fast and surely to loop their horses, and saddle.

Very quietly, they walked the horse away and then the man who was beginning to be familiar, of a lock yielding.

"House ahead a little ways. Across that hogback. The man's all right. Friend of Dud Paramore's. We can rest easy. Rest too if you're a Texan of Tivan. Then at the mile-covering hard trot. Jeff led the way into the rough room, the door closed behind him. Jeff looked familiarly around and called it more than twenty miles to Tivan—about twenty.

Lesson for June 28

ALCOHOL FACTS VERSUS DRINKING PROFAGANDA

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 17:17; 23:32; Isaiah 5:26-32; Hosea 4:11; Joel 3:2; 3:3; Ephesians 5:18.

GOLDEN TEXT—"I sinners estate, consent thou not."—Proverbs 8:10.

The facts are on the side of the one who opposes the liquor traffic, and the facts are so plain and so devastating that the industry does not care to face them. Their "best bet" is to use propaganda so skillful in preparation as to disarm the reader. If the propaganda is truthful, it is only because it has to be, and only in that measure.

Our lesson suggests several points in the liquor propaganda, each of which we can prove to be untrue.

1. They say, "Liquor Life, That's What We Are Here For" (Prov. 21:17).

Consider the life of the liquor trader. They carry the beautiful lady, the brilliant young man, the socially correct surroundings, riches, ease, etc. They suggest that even the grandest in the home approve the use of intoxicants to bring comfort and pleasure to the breadwinner in the home.

What is the truth? Liquor is not here for pleasure; he is here to serve God. History demonstrates that the nation that lives "pleasure, especially in connection with the use of intoxicants, is doomed to extinction.

2. They say, "Liquor Is Not Dangerous" (Prov. 23:32).

It is presented as a pleasant and harmless stimulant, when in fact it is a scientific poison to both mind and body. It is the highest functioning part of the brain, the personality level, which is first put into eclipse by the action of alcohol (Carson Taylor).

3. They say, "Who Opposes Liquor Are Fanatics" (Isa. 5:20, 21, 22).

The prophet answers that claim by pointing out that those who favor the use of alcohol are the ones who call evil good and good evil, etc. A little study of liquor propaganda as it appears in the advertising of the industry soon demonstrates that fact. Of late they have been trying to convince us that beer is just a soft drink for the home. Any policeman who has seen a man drunk on beer, and any social or religious worker who has seen the destruction it has wrought in the home and in society, knows that it is not true.

4. They say, "Strong Men and Leaders Are Drinkers" (Isa. 5:22).

Sadly enough, many of our leading men do indulge in liquor, but if the truth were out, it would be known that they are less capable as leaders and weaker men for their use of it. And who has not seen a leader become a poor derelict by the alcohol route, or a strong man become a jittery mental, moral, and physical wreck in the same way?

The work of a nation in both war and peace is done by sober, steady, trustworthy men who have a "clear head," not because they use a certain whiskey but because they do not use it.

5. They say, "The Pleasure Is Worth Price" (Hosea 4:11; Joel 3:2, 3).

The wicked ones who captured Israel felt they made a good trade when they gave a boy for a harlot, or exchanged a girl for wine. The modern system of making merchandise of boys and girls is not an openly crass as that, but when you figure the cost of alcohol to our land, be it the cost to the girls who have their own into iniquity, or the cost of tavern hostesses and the boys who have lost everything sacred because of their use of it, you will find it a very unprofitable investment.

Remember too that the beer makers are deliberately using this way to cultivate a taste for beer in the minds of young men—our future customers—and we are letting them get away with it, right in the army camps.

6. They say, "Drinking and Religion Go Well Together" (Eph. 5:18).

The contrast of Paul gives that the wine is the brand of falsehood. Being drunk with wine is the exact opposite of spirituality.

Liquor interests know that if certain men are to be led to believe that wine at dinner, beer as a soft drink—and an occasional social cocktail—is not incompatible with the most conscientious Christianity, they will make the most of it. They will make the most of it when soldiers and sailors can be digging into it and be entertained.

For it realizes that the one great advantage of the American flag is

Big Wind From Motor

The army air force's new $2,500,000 wind tunnel at Wright Field near Dayton is equipped with a 40,000 horsepower, alternating-current induction motor that develops a 400-mile-an-hour wind, says Collier's. Largest of its kind ever constructed, this motor can't be turned on until notice has been given to the electric company, so it may be prepared for this load, which is equal to the capacity of one of its largest generators.

What's a musical comedy got to do with winning a war?

PLENTY! We're building an army of men—not machines. And men have minds. And minds need freshening... and change... relaxation.

So one of the biggest undertakings of the USO is the sponsoring of free entertainment, through the cooperation of the movie and theatrical industries, at army camps, naval bases—wherever the fighting men of the USO go to train or dig in.

USO Camp Shows, Inc. is actually the biggest single theatrical enterprise the world has ever seen. It books 264 shows for the boys every week, which play to an average nightly attendance of 50,000.

It contacts movie stars, theatrical headliners, big name bands and their leaders. It routes all these... plans their itinerary... arranges the most convenient times when soldiers and sailors can be digging into it and be entertained.

For it realizes that the one great advantage of the American flag is ing man is his ability to think for himself, to make the most of any situation, to fight as a liberty-loving individual.

And this is one of his great differences from our enemy.

To help carry on the all-important work of maintaining the morale of our fighting forces, the USO needs your help... it needs your contribution.

Your dollar has many demands on this year. Many of these demands must be met—others deserve to be met. And among these latter, the plea of the USO for whatever sum you can contribute merits your earnest consideration.

For we have a war to win, and the USO is directly concerned with the men who must—and will—win it.

Deep—far for the men who are digging in!

Send your contribution to your local chairman or to USO, Empire State Building, New York.

Flat upon their bellies in the ditch, the two waited. Jeff whispered to Con that his horse was in the corral behind the jail. He had heard Nevill Lowe order it brought out. "So's mine. Corral gate's locked. So's the saddle-shed door. Our hard-earned horse is in a locked case in Lowe's office."

Clouds blanketed the sky, but occasionally the moon shone for a minute or two. In such an interval of pale light, they saw a dark group halfway between courthouse and cottonwoods, coming their way. Accompanied by furious men, the group moved nearer ditch and cottonwoods.

"On the edge of the ditch above Jeff and Con some of the men halted. Moonlight showed the grim business men thirty yards from Con and Jeff, the dim shapes of horses under the giant trees, movement of the men beside them. Two men came at the front from some distance toward the building. Con stiffened automatically.

"Over!" one of the men panted. "We couldn't find them fellows downtown—"

"Half-over," Jeff grunted. "We seen enough."

The pair broke into a run and Jeff indicated a door standing open giving upon a dark room. He led the way inside and Con heard him saying, then the click of a door beginning to be familiar, of a lock yielding.

"Come on!" Jeff commanded. "Put your hands up when you get in."

They moved fast and surely to loop their horses, and saddle.

Very quietly, they walked the horse away and then the man who was beginning to be familiar, of a lock yielding.

"House ahead a little ways. Across that hogback. The man's all right. Friend of Dud Paramore's. We can rest easy. Rest too if you're a Texan of Tivan. Then at the mile-covering hard trot. Jeff led the way into the rough room, the door closed behind him. Jeff looked familiarly around and called it more than twenty miles to Tivan—about twenty.
