PADDY THE BEAVER HAS MANY VISITORS

PADDY THE BEAVER knew perfectly well that he would have visitors just as soon as he began to build his dam. He expected a lot of them. You see, he knew that none of them ever had seen a beaver at work unless, perhaps, he was Prickly Porky, the Porcupine, who also had come down from the north. So he worked hard with his ears open and he smiled to himself as he heard a little rustle here and then a little rustle there. "Ha, know just what those little rustles mean! Each one meant another visitor."

Paddy chuckled. "Seems to me that you are dreadfully afraid to show yourselves," said he in a loud voice, just as if he was talking to nobody in particular. Everything was still. There wasn't so much as a rustle. Paddy spoke. He chuckled again. "He could just feel eyes so many eyes watching him, though he didn't see a single pair. And he knew that the reason his visitors were hiding so carefully was because they were afraid of him. You see Paddy was much bigger than most of the little meadow and forest people and they didn't know what kind of a temper he might have. It's always better to be very distrustful of strangers."

Of course Paddy knew all about this. He had been brought up that way. "Be sure and then you'll see...

Easy to Make Attractive Screens

Multiple purpose screens can be made from partial curtain panels by an amateur. Only materials needed are a frame of inexpensive crating lumber and hinges. Screens are highly decorative. They are used to balance a room, to obtain privacy or to block out unwanted view or objects. Screens made of man-made materials are available in a great variety of different pastel colors, and give clever artists an opportunity for creativeness. Those not so creative can stencil designs on the screens.

Facts and Stories

By Ralph Griffin

In December, 1896, the Mt. Vernon Signal was purchased outright by a young man named Edgar S. Albright...

There was no immediate improvement in economic or industrial conditions, but editor Albright, shy backed by a few progressive business men...

Others of his associates were just as progressive, just as willing and just as ambitious for their county, but without the means or opportunity to give expression to their ideas, plans and proposals...

Even with his peculiar opportunity for getting his progressive ideas before the citizens, however, Mr. Albright could have accomplished little without the whole-hearted support...

This affair is a matter of controversial history with which we are concerned only in its effect upon the particular county...

For months any motion of news connected with subsequent trials and scandals were given a prominent place...

In a region which was pretty closely divided in its political beliefs as well as in its version of the Goebel assassination, this policy did not serve to promote unity of thought and action...

A movement in the right direction had been started, however, and the results were not all lost. The seed had been sown and some had fallen in fertile soil...

A bond issue for the building of turnpikes had been urged as early as June, 1900, and this question was to be discussed and argued over for several years before it actually came to an election issue...

Even this sum of money was considered outrageous, however, by the majority of the county's articulate citizenry. It was unheeded, of ridiculous and positively scandalous to think of spending such a sum for the construction of roads!

There has been no shortage of doctors. There has been a necessary alarm about shortage of doctors in the State, Dr. Arthur T. McCormack, Health Commissioner, told the house of delegates of the Kentucky State Medical Association meeting.

Curb on U. S. Civilian Meat Consumption Eases Supply Problem for Armed Forces; Hitler's Russian Time-Table Slowed Up; Work or Fight Is Edict of Draft Head

When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the writer and not necessarily those of this newspaper. Received by Western Newspaper Union.

Two Australian seamen, W. D. McBurnie (left) and F. E. Miller, are brought ashore in a lighter at an Australian seaport after being wounded in action in the Solomon Islands. They are survivors of the Australian ship Canberra which was lost in action when American marines and naval units supported by Australian forces made their historic attack on the Japanese in the Solomon Islands.

RUSSIA: If Winter Comes

Chill autumnal winds that sweep the Russian steppes had reminded the Nazi invaders that Adolf Hitler's timetable of conquest was behind schedule. Every day the Russian lines held was that much time lost for the Germans. Every day they held was that much closer to victory.

Up the Volga river from the Caspian sea to beleaguered Stalingrad had come a Soviet naval flotilla. There, southeast of the city proper, the ships poured shellfire on the attacking Germans, answering the sibilant of the big guns the Nazis were using to reduce the city. Mean-while tank battles, air assaults and hand-to-hand encounters had raged in and around the city.

While the heroic Red forces had held their ground and even forced the Germans back in places, the situation remained grave. Defeat on the Volga would mean incalculable injury to the Russian war effort, with vital communications disrupted and the contact of Red armies of South and Central Russia split.

DRAFT EDICT: Work or Fight

"A work or fight" edict to end the occupational deferment of men who stay away from their jobs or go on strike in war plants loomed as Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service made public an amendment to selective service regulations which stated:

"Whenever the director of selective service advises a local board that a deferred registrant or group of deferred registrants is not supporting or is adversely affecting the war effort or the national health, safety or interest, the local board shall immediately terminate the deferment and consider anew the classification of such registrant or registrants."

Local boards hitherto had authority to release such persons and a number of instances had done so.

ALUTIANS: Japs' Wings Clipped

Heartening news from Alaska was brought to Washington by Congressman Warren G. Magnuson on his return from an official visit to American fighting forces in the Aleutian Islands. Mr. Magnuson had definitely turned Japanese occupation of the Aleutian Islands to our advantage.

"The situation is good in Alaska," he said. "The joint army and navy command is clearly now offensive-minded. The occupation of the Aleutian Islands by Japan has been turned to our advantage by the navy, giving us the opportunity to attack the Aleutians as a stepping stone for an attack against Alaska."

MEXICO CITY: Reporting that higher prices for silver bullion in the United States were draining off Mexican silver money, the treasury ministry announced that it had banned the export of silver coins. The ruling would have the effect of making Mexican citizens and tourists leave their exchange holdings when they crossed into the United States, thus curtailing the supply.

MEAT RATION: Aids Armed Forces

A voluntary meat ration of 2 1/2 pounds per week for every American was urged by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard when he announced the nation's meat consumption during the last three months of 1942 would be restricted to approximately 79 per cent of the amount delivered by packers for civilian use during the last quarter of 1941.

After January 1, it was indicated, rationing coupons will be issued. In his role of chairman of the War Production Board's food requirements committee, Mr. Wickard disclosed the nation's meat supply for army, navy and lend-lease needs, deliveries of beef and veal to civilians would be 40 per cent of the amount sold during the last quarter of 1941; lamb and mutton deliveries would be 95 per cent; and pork deliveries 75 per cent.

"Whenever the director of selective service advises a local board that a deferred registrant or group of deferred registrants is not supporting or is adversely affecting the war effort or the national health, safety or interest, the local board shall immediately terminate the deferment and consider anew the classification of such registrant or registrants."

10-DAY MIRACLE: Performed by Kaiser

Shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser had broken many a naval construction record and he justly prided himself on it. He had just set a new record for the construction of a ship in 10 days from the keel to the water in Kaiser's Portland, Ore., shipyard exactly 10 days from the keel to the water. This amazing feat clipped 14 days from the previous speed record for shipbuilding.

Addressing shipyard workers, maritime commission representatives and shipyard officials, Kaiser said: "Our original contract called for the delivery of ships in about 150 days. Many experts shook their heads and said we could not do it. It is here today, and it was great craft—only 10 days from the keel to launching. It is a miracle, no less—a miracle of God and of the genius of the American workmen."

Kaiser was in the new record a promise of future prosperity for America. "If American brains and ingenuity are not being used," he said, "I will have no fear for the world we will have to rebuild what we have destroyed. Prosperity can be ours."

Meanwhile Kaiser was recruiting an additional 50,000 workers to assist him in the construction of three mammoth aluminum plants as the nucleus of a huge air fleet.

MADAGASCAR: Safe for Allies

Active Vichy French resistance on the island of Madagascar came to an end when British occupation forces supported by South African armored units and East African troops took over the island, capital of the strategic island.

The communique that told of the British capture of the island disclosed that Antsaha, 200 miles from the northern tip of Madagascar on the island's northeast coast was also occupied.

Allied control of Madagascar, lying athwart Africa's southeast coast and commanding sea lanes from Capetown to Cairo and from India and Java meant that a strategic setback had been handed the Axis. It had been known that the Vichy authorities on the island had been friendly to Axis agents and it had even been reported that Japanese submarines had put out-of-the-way harbors on the island for fuel and supplies for their forays against United Nations shipping in the Indian ocean.

SCRAP METAL: Need 17 Million Tons

America had stopped losing on its metal "fat" and now must dip back 17 years for steel, according to a leading steel producer declared in assaying the nation's critical scrap metal situation.

"Many millions of tons of iron and steel scrap must be collected if the tremendous tonnage of steel needed in the nation's war effort is to be produced," said Eugene R. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

At least 17 million tons of scrap would be needed before January 1, when war production was scheduled to reach its peak. Monthly consumption of scrap was running about four million tons, the greatest in history, but still not enough.

"Every farmer and every householder has a heavy responsibility for the country's production of tanks, ships and shells," said Ralph H. Watson, vice president of the U. S. Steel corporation. "The recovery of scrap is one of the most important war jobs facing America today."

NAVY: Gains on Subs

Evidence that the United Nations were forging ahead of the Axis in the race for control of the oceans was disclosed by Chairman Carl Vinson of the house navy committee in a report compiled in co-operation with the navy department. Allied shipping losses along the Atlantic coast had virtually ceased, the report said, while a five-fold increase was being achieved in the number of ships sunk.

"At sea we have begun to turn the corner," said Congressman Vinson. "Directly or indirectly the first fruits of America's naval expansion are already influencing the course of the war."

"Directly or indirectly the first fruits of America's naval expansion are already influencing the course of the war."

Claiming the American victories in the Solomon Islands as an indication of the offensive spirit among the United Nations, Mr. Vinson revealed that at the beginning of July the United States was building 3,230 combat, auxiliary, patrol and mine vessels for its own navy. This compared with only 607 ships of the same category under construction a year earlier.

VATICAN: Post-War Plans?

No official announcements from the Vatican followed the conferences of Myron C. Taylor with Pope Pius XII. French diplomats and observers viewed the visit of President Roosevelt's personal representative to Vatican City as a step in paving the way for negotiations on post-war plans. This was given credence in the light of Mr. Taylor's subsequent conferences with the British and French envoys at the Vatican and the representatives of conquered Poland and Yugoslavia.

Immediately in the foreground as reasons for Mr. Taylor's journey to Rome were: the need to discuss American interests in protecting American Catholics in Japanese-occupied territories; the need to discuss the United States and South American countries; and the American government's protest to Vichy against persecution of the Jews. In the hope that the Vatican formally would support the protests.

But over-and above these, immediate objectives appeared the possibility that the groundwork was being laid for post-war collaboration.

Washington Digest Wheat Price Minor Factor In Present Cost of Bread

By BAUKHAUGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

The recent debate in congress over the stabilization of prices and wages has been the most heated and the farm and the factory as any national issue ever has.

I received a typical letter on the subject—a query about the relative cost of wheat and bread. The farmer gets and what the baker charges. In trying to answer it, I found a mass of statistics and a wide variance of opinion; but it was a childhood memory which gave me the most convincing part of the answer.

First, the letter from my listener in Bismarck, N. D.: "Before you put too much blame on farm products for the rise in the cost of living, please explain soon in one of your radio talks, why during World War I, when wheat was selling for $2.25 to $2.50 per bushel, that bread was sold for ten cents a loaf while now, posted local prices at this time are 99 cents (for wheat) and bread retails at 13 to 15 cents a loaf."

Now the memory: "It was a clear, summer morning. School was just out and there was a crowd over for the ten-cent loaf before the family was awake, slipped into the summer kitchen and poured over a glass of milk and bread. As I went quietly out the front door, I tipped across the store where the empty pan with a red milk-ticket lay in the dust."

I walked down Locust street to Arthur Barnes' house just in time to climb into the bread wagon beside the driver. We crunched down the driveway and through the empty streets to the New York Central station. Before we got into the freight station platform the bread car was waiting.

We stood beside the crate. Mr. Barnes was in the delivery wagon. I wasn't nearly as adept as Arthur. Barnes had a knack for it. He practiced in extracting and tossing the loaves and he often had to wait a second or two, while he toyed with the loaf and his father. I once managed to lose mine to Mr. Barnes who deftly caught it and put it in the layers that rose from the wagon and covered the number of accidents, reports of which had been published, all of which involved fatalities to military personnel.

There were 71 deaths within a comparatively short period. The writer was shocked and asked if the cause might not be an organized campaign to sabotage.

Because I felt that there should be some official comment on the matter, I asked at length with an officer in the air force. "The rate of accidents is flying in this country today, he told me, is less than it was in 1930. I think that the decrease in 'airable' is justified when you think of the number of planes that are in the air now as compared with the number 12 years ago. We are not allowed to reveal the number of planes now flying but General Hap Arnold recently stated that the goal of the air force was to have 10,000 men and one hundred eighty-five thousand planes by the end of this year. That was a big order. Our way toward that goal was in these facts in mind the number of accidents seems incredibly low. One hundred deaths in the air force is an important record to prevent the loss of planes and men from accidents as it is to prevent their loss at the hands of the enemy."

Aviation Accidents Show Marked Decrease

The number of crashes of military planes in this country reported recently in the newspapers has served to disturb some people. Officials in Washington have received many letters on this subject.

One which I received recently from an obviously intelligent woman, may be typical. In it, she mentioned the number of accidents, reports of which had been published, all of which involved fatalities to military personnel.

There were 71 deaths within a comparatively short period. The writer was shocked and asked if the cause might not be an organized campaign to sabotage.

Because I felt that there should be some official comment on the matter, I asked at length with an officer in the air force. One hundred deaths in the air force is an important record to prevent the loss of planes and men from accidents as it is to prevent their loss at the hands of the enemy."

Take the most obvious: packaging. Can you imagine bread being shipped in crates and massaged by train hands today? Yet even today as late as the time of my correspondent's visits, 1914—wrapping accidents was unknown in many communities.

This one sanitary measure is only one of many which made the cost of bread higher—the conditions of the bakery have changed even more radically. Of course, labor is the most important factor. In 1914 men worked much longer hours for much less money.

And when we come to the content of the bread, of which wheat, the commodity which most concerns my listener, is the most important, we find that most negligible in raising the cost of the finished product. Experts studying the question, state that wheat and flour commodities in which the chief raw material portion was so small, a fraction of the final cost as an bread.

According to current statistics it would take the increase of 10 cents a bushel in wheat to cause an increase of one cent in a loaf of bread.

Compare this with potatoes for instance. When a housewife buys potatoes, she pays only for the spuds themselves plus the cost of handling. Now all of these factors are mentioned merely to justify an increase in the price of bread since 1914. Today you'll see the baker's wages were careful to warn me that they do not all justify the amount of the increase. There is not complete agreement on all subjects by any means. Some members in the department of agriculture say that bread could be sold much cheaper than it is now.

Probably one of the most important factors in the price of bread is the fact that the public just prefers to buy bread. It is to be made it themselves. As one official said to me: "In the last war when I lived on a Kansas farm the women in the small towns in the vicinity as well as the farmers' wives baked their own bread. Today you'll see the bakery wagon here making deliveries right out in the country. Perhaps if the women who still bake their own bread charged the same as the baker's wagon it is cheaper to go to the bakery. Meanwhile, it is another case of charging what the traffic will bear—and in this case most of the traffic is willing to bear it."

Effectiveness of Bombing Nazi Supply Lines . . . Yank Fighter Planes Can Take It

WASHINGTON—If the air enthusiasts are right—and there is a very strong probability that they are—hundreds of thousands of lives could be saved by prosecuting a campaign along the line of their plans instead of "fighting the Boer war over again."

The point is that everyone now gives top service to Gen. William Mitchell, but actually most of the admirals and generals are still thinking in terms of World War No. 1, if it civil war strategy.

It would be illogical to print what the generals and admirals say privately about Alexander de Seversky. But De Seversky MAY be right. Any such idea as crushing Germany by air power is resisted by those who have three points to which the admirals and generals cling. One is that the airplane cannot drop anything—especially incendiary bombs—without moving up to occupy. The second is that the bombing of London did not reduce the city. It only made her fight harder. The third is that Madrid did not fall despite the terrific air raids, which is generally true.

The air enthusiasts contend that none of these points is valid in the present situation of Germany. The Nazis are now fighting Russia, they point out, with a supply line extending up to 1,500 miles. Tremendous air power, exerted against that supply line, in addition to bombing the factories in western Europe, would soon be of far more help to Russia than any imaginable second front.

Nazis Admit Helplessness

The Germans are admitting to their own people that they cannot properly resist or properly retaliate against Britain for the present raids against Germany.

It is contended by the British that the Flying Fortresses do have demonstrated what they can do with precision bombing. The air enthusiasts say that rapidly increasing air strength in the West would soon make the command centers of Germany production centers, and that there is no better target for precision bombing than a railroad bridge.

Aviation Experts Give Opinions on Various Nations' Plans

Here is the careful conclusion of aviation experts on the merits of airplanes of the warring nations: The British have the best fighters in the world—the Spitfire. It is considerably superior to the latest improved Nazi fighters, which, however, are better than the United States fighters. The Jap Zero fighter is also superior in maneuverability and altitude, possibly in United States fighter planes. BUT—these "inferior" United States fighters invariably, up to now, have defeated enemy planes that they have lost. More of that later.

The United States medium bomber, the type used in the attack on Tokyo—a two-engine type—is superior to anything comparable made by any nation in the world.

The very large bombers, including the Flying Fortress, have the critics of the British as their chief enemy. The British critics not only say that they are not as useful as the big British bombers. They are compared with big bombers which can carry much larger load of explosive, and can fly much farther with that load.

Let's Have a Real Football Supper

(See Recipes Below.)

Football Supper

Thoughts for fall naturally bring to mind fall's favorite game, football, and foods that go well after the game. It makes no difference whether you have been to one of the big games or whether you are going to feed the hungry crowd of youngsters who come in from playing in the nearest available field, the uppermost thought in your mind is good, hot, appetizing food.

Smart management creates a delicious hot dish that you whip out of the oven, and a crisp salad for contrast to the meal, and a smooth, light dessert. Your crowd coffee for the grown-ups and a hot, chocolaty drink for the children.

Do something special for the table—even a little touch-up will bring the appreciative oh's and ah's from your family and guests. Perhaps there are a few chrysanthemums still in the garden or you might try to get together a few, small novelty footballs to make up into a centerpiece.

Bring on the food! And much food it will be if you serve spaghetti layers, then serve a casserole with plenty of sauce and cheese for extra goodness.

Contrast note to the Spaghetti Creole is a green vegetable chilled to a crispness. It's also a good idea to balance a starchy food with something as full of vitamins as an armload of greens clinging together with a light, tart french dressing.

Wash lettuce and separate into leaves. Use several large spinach leaves carefully washed and shredded with the lettuce leaves, or small spinach leaves used whole among the lettuce. Add three carrots, minced one small onion, and loss among the greens. Marinate 1 cup

Divide pastry into two portions and roll thin. Line shallow baking dish with pastry. Mix apples with spices and sugar and put in pan. Combine molasses with water and pour over fruit. Dot with butter. Let stand with remaining pastry, press edges together and trim. Bake in a moderately-hot (425-degree) oven 15 minutes. Lower temperature to slow (325 degrees) and bake 30 minutes. Remove from oven, chop top crust into fruit, return to oven and continue baking 1 hour. Serve with butter or with plain or whipped cream.

Use 1 heaping teaspoon decaffeinated coffee, regular grind for each cup or percolator. Set percolator basket with coffee in it. Cover. Let percolate 15 to 20 minutes slowly and gently.

TO YOUR OWN HEALTH

SINUS DISEASE

In my student days the treatment of old or chronic sinus disease was surgery. The house behind surgery was to open up the sinus so that it would drain more readily; also any obstruction in the nose such as a bent septum was straightened as far as possible so as to get more air, more ventilation, into the sinuses. What was not realized at the time was that surgery destroys to a considerable extent the lining of the nose, which is the air conditioner of the body. This lining is warm and moist and helps to destroy harmful organisms in the air entering the lungs. It is covered with tiny hairs which help to prevent other substances entering the lungs.

Today surgery is used only in cases where pus or mucous and pus is unable to get out behind surgery—where congestion and often severe pain.

In "Notes From the International Assembly," reported in Clinical Medicine, Dr. George E. Shambaugh Jr., Chicago, associate clinical professor, ear, nose and throat, Rush Medical College, states that the sinus patient needs rest. Rest from rushing to "condition" air can be obtained by closing the window of the sick room; keeping the air warm, moist, and free from smoke (including that of tobacco) constantly; placing the patient in bed and opening up the sinus openings so as to permit free drainage. This opening up can be done by instilling into the two or three times a day, a 10 solution of Neosynephrin in physiologic salt solution. Surgery is not to be used where there is pressure of mucus in the sinuses, or where inflammation and pus formation of the skull.

It is gratifying to know that surgical treatment is not necessary in most cases of sinus disease.

Early Correction For Crossed Eyes

As a youngster I can remember only two children in a school of medium size who wore glasses. The glasses were worn, as I remember, because the children had crossed eyes. Today every school has many wearing glasses to enable the youngsters to see the blackboard, rather than for crossed eyes.

It is not because there are not many cases of crossed eyes but because parents now know that cross eyes should be corrected before the child goes to school. Formerly parents were told to do nothing about cross eyes as the eyes would right themselves by the time the child was 15 years old.

Why are some parents still opposed to early operation for cross eyes? In the Canadian Medical Association Journal, Dr. Lloyd Morgan, Toronto, states that the arguments against early operation are: 1. Fear of an anesthetic, but this would apply to any operation. 2. If operation is done early, the eye may turn out later. Formerly this was true in some cases but now with improved knowledge and skill this rarely happens.

The operation is not always necessary as so many parents think, is shown in the report of 800 cases at the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, of which operation was performed in about 25 per cent only.

Lost 35 Lbs; Regains 15 Lbs. On Retonga

She Looks So Much Better Now Her Friends Are Astonished, Says Wife Of State Highway Employee. Had Lost 35 Lbs.

MRS. WILL DRISKELL

Of the many hundreds of people throughout Kentucky, Retonga, few are more grateful than Mrs. Will Driskell, of 721 South 7th St., Shelbyville, and wife of a well known State Highway employee, who declares:

"I had to spend most of my time in bed for the past year. I had no appetite at all, and the little soft food I did eat just seemed to lie heavy in my stomach. I had such a bad case of indigestion so much gas filled my stomach that it seemed like it would cut off my breath. I lost thirty-five pounds. I had to take strong purgatives regularly, and my arms, back and shoulders were so painful that sometimes I could hardly move. I felt like a nervous wreck, and sometimes I scarcely had strength enough to get from one room to another.

relief, I now eat anything I want, and I have regained fifteen pounds. The pain and sluggish elimination and nervousness are also relieved, and I sleep better. I have a good color in my face, and I feel and look so much better that my friends are astonished."

Retonga is intended for the relief of such symptoms as described by Mrs. Driskell when they are due to insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, lack of appetite, constipation, and Vitamin B-1 deficiency. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at the Maggard Rexall Drug Store, Mt. Vernon, Ky.

GHOST PLANE

By ARTHUR STRINGER

CHAPTER I

Linda's in?"

Cruger, at his desk, heard that cry from a ground-walker passing the open window. He looked at his desk lamp from his time sheet. There was always a note of triumph in the call of the port boys when Linda came in.

Cruger got up from his chair and crossed the doorway, where the sunlight fell flat against the river slopes and proclaimed that spring had come again to the North Country. He stood there until he caught the long-legged bush pilot

Slade, when he stepped into the mapping office, again made Cruger think of a panther in a cage. It was a panther in a cage. He seemed too big for the room.

"I'm glad you swung back early," said Cruger. "Add I want to tell you, first crack out of the box, that we're going to take the crepe off the door."

"What does that mean?" questioned Slade.

"You'd better give this the once-over," he surrendered the envelope. "You know what it is?"

"I've an idea," said Slade, after inspecting the insignia.

"Slade's smile was wide yet non-committal."

"They yelp for flyers," he said, "and while they're yelping they turn me down." He got up from the safe and paced the narrow floor. "I must be bad."

Cruger's shrug was a condoning one.

"I say it's because you're good," he parried. "Good enough to be needed right here on this northern front. And those tin hats happen to be just your kind of position."

Slade turned on him.

"Did anyone in this outfit broadcast that, just to block my enlistment was his intention?"

Again Cruger shrugged.

"Who are you to interfere with the War Office? It ought to be big enough to make its own decisions."

But Slade didn't seem to hear him. "They hot-air about wanting men who're hard-train and tough."

Well, I ought to ring in on that. I've kept more than one lemon crate in when every law of aeronautics said it ought to be down."

"You're resourceful, all right," conceded Cruger, "but you'd be in a clink with a broken heart after two weeks of army rules."

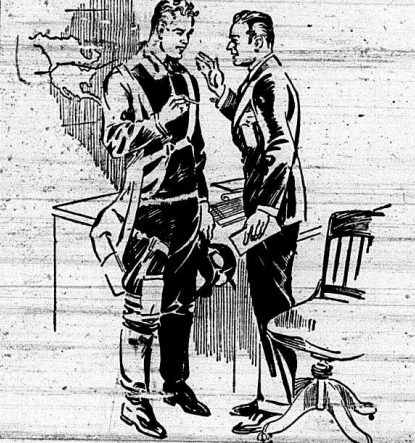

"I'd learn," said Slade, "along with the other leathernecks."

"But they'd get you slow for you," contended Cruger.

"That fight doesn't look slow to me. And I ought to be over there while the show is on."

"There was a time," he observed, "when bush flyers Doc Morlock took pretty high with you."

"I'm glad you swung back early," said Cruger. "We're going to take the crepe off the door."

But what held his eye the longest was the smaller blue monople that looked faded and weathered and sadly the worse for wear. That, he knew, was the plane of the Flying Padre, the mercy-fighter and man of medicine who was sometimes known as the Grenfell of the Outer Gulf. And in it the Padre's daughter had gone alone as pilot and helper. But never again, Slade remembered, would the clear-eyed Lynn Morlock take over the controls while her tired father held back the hand of Death two thousand feet above the humped-up Sahara. Why, the only human beings north of the Kaskaska are two frost-bitten old quartz-powers, two half-demented old derelicts who've been bused for three years and would bump off if I didn't tote 'em in their flour and sawdust."

"For what?" asked Slade.

"It means we've got a simple-minded material out there, an ornithologist answering to the name of Frayne, who wants to be flown north so he can find the breeding ground of the trumpeter swan. Didn't you say we've never seen before?"

Slade stood thoughtful a moment.

"I saw a trumpeter, only over Lac la Martre. He must have had a wing-stretch of nine or ten feet."

"I'd call that quite a stretch," said the man at the desk.

"Sure-telling me."

"They may be impressive," said Cruger, as he opened a desk drawer, "but from what I can gather they're dying off. And this man Frayne wants to sleuth out their nesting quarters before they follow the dodo and disappear for good."

"And he's going in to the Anaw-too-ah?"

Slade's brow-pucker seemed one of incredulity.

"No, he's taking an over-sized blond named Karnell along with him."

"In a blond?"

"Anything but. This blond is all male. He's square-headed and gorilla-jawed like something that's been worked on by a snarling iron."

Slade found the picture unpalatable.

"Where does he come from? And why may he pick on us?"

"That's neither your problem nor mine. But he's the Norton's friend, all right. He may be a simple-minded fellow, but he's got well heeled that money doesn't seem to mean much. And at this stage of the game we're going to handle a Christmas present like that with care."

FAITH IN CHRIST AS OUR PERSONAL SAVIOUR

LESSON TEXT—Acts 16:13-15; Romans 8:1-11

NEW TEXT—Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ—Romans 5:1

Salvation through Christ is the way, and the only way, into the Christian life; therefore, there could be no other subject more suitable than that of our lesson to begin our brief series of "Studies in the Christ Life."

Our lesson for today tells us first how one comes into a personal saving faith, and then gives Paul's explanation of the result of saving faith in the changed life of the believer.

The Opened Heart (Acts 16:13-15)

Paul and his companions on their important errand for the Master, hearing the news of the gospel, had first known His guidance, His guidance, by the closed door, and then by the direct—"of the Spirit into the open door, revealed in the vision of the man of Macedonia."

Here in Philippi they found not only an open door, but an open heart, one which the Holy Spirit had made ready for the preaching of the Word of God. "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word cometh" (Rom. 10:17)

Note that while Lydia was a woman of ability and culture, and a worshiper of God, yet she needed the message of the Gospel.

Lydia evidenced the truth of her profession of faith by open testimony and by a desire for fellowship in practicing the work of God (v. 15). Salvation is by faith apart from works, but a saving faith is always one which works.

The Transformed Life (Rom. 5:1-11)

This is one of the great passages of Scripture, rich in doctrinal instruction, presenting through Paul an illuminating discussion of justification by faith.

This lesson affords an opportunity for teachers to learn and present to their pupils the needed truth of the line of Bible doctrine. "There is not enough teaching of this type. People seem to prefer a little devotional material, or an discussion of current events, possibly in the light of prophecy. These are good, but it is the assurance that tobacco Christians be informed regarding doctrine."

We find in this Scripture the glorious transformation of life which comes to the one who takes Christ as Saviour, as we note the seven results of God's justifying grace.

1. Peace (v. 1). The human heart craves spiritual peace and that it can be found only when sin has been dealt with and put away. For sin cannot be pardoned or ignored. There must be justification and that can come only through Jesus Christ our Lord.

2. Grace (v. 2). A peace with God brings the peace of God into our hearts. We have that peace because we have by faith come into the place of God's favor. No longer strangers or outsiders, we have come in ("have access") to His place of grace and favor.

3. Hope (vv. 2b, 5a). Our faith not only brings present peace, but because it sees future glory. Such a hope puts us in a right attitude toward God, and the things of life, including tribulations (v. 3), are rightly valued and understood. Even our troubles become evidences of His love in which we glory.

4. Love (vv. 5b-8). God's love which gave His Son to die for us, sin becomes the "shed abroad" portion of every believer in Him. It is an immeasurable great love, and it all centers in Calvary.

5. Saved From Wrath (v. 9). The wrath of God is minimized or denied by modern theology, but it is nonetheless a very "real" and awful affection of the divine nature. But the Christ who died for us, has delivered us from the wrath of God against sin.

6. Reconciled (v. 10). The death of Christ, which justified man has accepted by faith, brought reconciliation. Atonement had been made for sin, and the One who died is alive again, a living Saviour.

7. Joy (v. 11). And why not? Such a restoration of what our redemption includes should make every believer in Christ rejoice in God. The One who is the sinner's Judge is the sinner's Joy! That is the glorious transformation which takes place when one believes.

Some unbeliever who has read the above, may have "peace" by now be eager to have these things true in his life. Well, why not? "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31)

Then read again those majestic and joyful words in Romans 5:1: "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Don't Tell All-It Seems

"Going far?" asked the chatty little man in the club car as the open fields began to whisk by the train windows.

"Only to Pittsburgh," replied the growly, who had been in Washington filling out questionnaires. "I'm in the steel brace business. My age is 53. I am married. My name is Henry Smith. I have a son 22 in the field artillery. And a niece with red hair. I shoot around 89 in golf. Is there anything else I can tell you?"

"Yes," replied the chatty little man amiably. "What oil do you use for your tongue?"

For the service man who smokes a pipe or rolls his own, no finer gift could be sent than a pound of his favorite tobacco. Surveys among men in camp and on shipboard show that tobacco is the gift most appreciated. Local dealers are now featuring pound cans of Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco—the world's largest sale of pipe tobacco—to send to men in our armed forces; a favorite with many pipe-smokers or roll-your-own-fan in the services.—Adv.
