

GHOST PLANE

By ARTHUR STRINGER

W. H. U. SERVICE

THEY WOULD GO FAR TO LIVE FOR HIM. Slade's men, however, have agreed to have his partner, Alan Barrett, in a recalled action. From the Anawato to search of the bridge ground of the trampster man, Slade's application for next service with the army air corps has been rejected, but he is less disappointed when he learns that the first stay in business, thanks to their client, who has paid enough to enable Slade to buy a new plane, a Lockheed, and he is pleased when Cruger tells him that Lynn, his daughter of the type, the party is not going above with her. But Cruger said, Slade meets Lynn in town and goes with her to help a man who has been wounded in a fight. The wounded man turns out to be Slim Tumstead, a fave who has lost his license for drinking, and who is little better than an outlaw.

CHAPTER III

Slade pressed closer as the yellow-faced man, wiping his hands on his apron, hurried off.

The pack-maker man righted the table and chairs as Lynn busied herself loading a hypodermic.

"How is he?"

"He's all right," was the cool-noted response. "But there's a three-inch skull-cut we'll have to close up. How did you get it?"

Slime's lips twitched. But he remained silent.

"How about a drink first?" he suggested, as Lynn turned back to him.

"You've had enough already," she said, quietly impersonal.

"Who gave you that job?" persisted Slade, and he was clearly proclaimed that the fight had been a real one.

Slime still declined to speak. It was the pack-maker man in the doorway who broke the silence.

"The pack-maker man," Lynn said, "crouched the address at evading the outstretched arm of the doctor."

"And it's another tree-to-all chalked up against this place of mine."

"Quiet, please," was Lynn's cool-noted admonition.

Wolf Winston, Slade remembered, was a whisky-runner who repeatedly proved his address at evading the outstretched arm of the doctor. He also recalled that Slime, once the crack flyer for Colonial, had been twice grounded for drinking on duty. Still later he had been linked up with Edmondson Scott's activities as a high diver. And there'd been a rumor or two that Slime had been running contraband liquor in from the coast ports.

Slade felt sorry for Tumstead, just as he would feel sorry for any man of promise who threw away his chances. Among flyers, he knew, was a free-masonry that made you forget a man's other faults. But for a year now Slime had seemed stubbornly headed for tubercle.

"This is going to hurt a little," Lynn was saying as she sterilized a bullet-probe, "but we've got to make sure there are no glues in that cut before we close it up."

"A drink would help a little," Slime once more suggested.

"You can have a little," she conceded, "when I put the stitches in."

Slade produced the cigarette and held out his lighter.

Slime looked up at him with an eye that was still indifferently derisive.

"So the big boys took it away from you," he observed.

"Took what away?" asked Slade, regarding the man's eyes.

"That little tin-horn outfit of yours. I hear you're folding up."

"Not a word of your life," countered Slade. "We've been flying and we're going stronger than ever."

The indifferency went out of Tumstead's eyes.

"So you've got a new ship. That's certainly worth remembering."

"Wif?" challenged Slade.

"Oh, I kind of thought the big fight had brought a famine in ships over here. Does that mean you're going to keep on flying the same routes?"

"I am," proclaimed Slade.

"Foot?" change your tune?" Slime said, when you get the same dirty deal I got from Colonial."

Slade backed away a little. He had the natural pride of the flyer in flying. And the thought that he was the best in the service could swing so far off-center gave him a sinking feeling.

"I thought it was the other way round," he observed.

Slime's eye-flash of hostility did not escape the younger pilot.

"Oh, I go my own way," the man on the couch announced with a laugh that was not without bitterness. But a note of desolation in the tone brought a surge of pity through Slade.

It was Lynn who spoke next.

"You ought to have a week of rest," she observed as she checked her patient's head with a white gauze bandage that gave the air of wearing a crown, slightly tilted.

"Rest?" echoed Tumstead. His line was thin yet scornful. "I can't afford to rest, lady. I've got things to do."

Lynn glanced about at the blood-stained furniture.

"You've lost a good deal of blood, remember. And you'll need a new dressing in a day or two. What you'd better do it see Sister Nadeau over at St. Gabriel's."

"You've had enough already," she said, quietly impersonal.

"When?" asked the man with the bandaged head.

"Tomorrow or next day," said Lynn as she closed her bag and stood up.

"I won't be—"

But Tumstead, for some reason, left that sentence unfinished, the shadow of a glance at Slade. Then his half-smoking gaze went back to Lynn.

"Your father gave you out my dressing tomorrow," he said as he reached for her hand. Slade was nettled at the open insolence in that gesture.

"Hesitant?" he demanded.

Tumstead lifted a languid eye for his fellow-flyer.

"Is she letting you make her decisions?" he inquired. The derisive note in that inquiry brought Slade's gaze about to the girl's face. But in that face he found nothing to help him frame an answer.

"Let's go," Lynn said with her firm grip of impatience.

Tumstead, stretched out full-length on his couch, looked after them as they moved toward the door.

"Since you're going," he said, still casually insolent, "which way are you heading? I mean you, Slade."

"The younger," he swung about and studied the blanched face under his swathing bandages.

"I'm flying into the Anawato country tomorrow," he announced.

Tumstead's lips made a whistling sound.

"So they hooked you up with this?"

Slade, looking down, could see the older pilot smiling up at the ceiling.

"What do you know about it?" he demanded.

Tumstead continued to blink up at the ceiling, one pupil fixed on Slade.

"Not a thing, son, not a thing," he answered with a listless sort of indifference. His movement as he turned to the wall was plainly one of dismissal.

Slade felt happier when he found himself in the open sunlight, the balmy-scented, one sunlight of spring, with Lynn walking along at his side. She was close beside him, yet he nursed an impression of her remoteness. And that impression took on an edging of pain as some inner voice told him she was the one who in all the wide world he wanted.

"So you're not going overseas?" he ventured as he noticed how the bright gleams of sunlight in her mahogany-brown hair.

"No, I'm going to meet Father at St. Gabriel's," she answered casually, having discerned a light in his eyes which she found a little disturbing.

"Father isn't young any more. He can't keep on forever. I was hoping he'd give up a sort of work that's too hard for him to do."

"And too hard for you," proclaimed Slade. He was remembering, at the moment, how she and the flying doctor had been together at a blizzard, the winter before, he had kept life in their bodies by dining on their own muktiks of unalutian maktinik meat-bolled.

That, Slade told himself, was no life for a girl. She was of too fine a fiber for such frontier roughness. It impressed him too much like trying to grow a flower in a stamping mill.

"Did your father ask you to stay?" Slade questioned.

"He'd never do that. He was very prompt reply. He's too big and first," she let his own interests come first.

"Of course," said Slade, wondering if there was a hidden reproach in her reply.

"But I was hoping," Lynn continued, "that Father would give up flying and settle down."

Slade's smile was brief and slightly bitter.

"That," he affirmed, "is something not easy to get out of your system."

"You'll have to, some day," she reminded him.

He seemed to catch a faint glimpse of hope from that.

"There's only one thing," he said, "could ever turn me into a chair-warmer."

"What?" she asked.

"You," he answered with unexpected grimness.

She did not look up at him. But she quickened her stride a little.

"I thought we weren't going into that again."

He knew it was useless to argue the point. But that look of firmness in her face brought an answering firmness to his own slightly rebellious lips. For at the back of his mind lurked a suspicion that more and more refused to stay down.

"Were you going to the front before Barrett Walden was there?" he asked. "It was his effort to keep all trace of bitterness out of his voice, apparently, that brought a small and womanly smile to Lynn's lips."

Barrett Walden's not at the front," she said, "in the construction camp at Aldershot."

"But he wanted you to go overseas?" pursued her none too happy companion.

"Barrett's been a very good friend to Dad. He's never forgotten that Dad saved his life, and—"

"And you were his nurse at Fort St. John for four weeks," cut in the unhappy Slade.

"Father," Lynn was saying, "is a very fond Barrett. And Barrett feels the same way about the Padre." She walked on in silence for a moment. "He's been trying to get him a berth in the Department of Mines at Ottawa."

"Where he'd mope like a caged eagle," was Slade's slightly embittered comment.

"He's not the moping kind," protested the girl.

Slade made no comment on that. He remembered the flash of fire from those same eyes when he had once spoken of the Flying Padre's occupation as quixotic.

"A flyer never wants to give up," he observed.

Lynn came to a stop. The face she turned to her companion was a clouded one.

"That's what frightens me, Alan," she quietly acknowledged. "They don't always stay in line."

"The Padre knows the ropes all right," Slade protested.

"But something happened last night," the girl was saying, "when we were flying in to Corvallis. It was good weather and everything was going nicely, with Father at the controls. Then I saw that something was wrong. I had to jump in and straighten out the ship. Father was all of a sudden, didn't know where he was. Everything went black for a moment or two. He said, later, it was like a switch turned off, and then he was gone. But things like that mustn't happen to a flyer."

Slade shrugged and smiled, mercifully intent on easing the concern out of her eyes.

"There's many a bush flyer gets over-ired," he casually affirmed.

"That's what Father said. He claimed he'd been careless about his eating and had been going too hard. But when I saw him with those empty eyes and that cold sweat on his face, I knew it went deeper than he pretended."

Slade groaned a laugh.

"He'd clipped many a cloud since then. And he'll keep going, until they ground him for old age."

The clouded hazel eyes searched his face.

"But can't you see, Alan, what I'm fighting for? Can't you understand how we all want security? How, when we're someone, we have to think of his future?"

Slade looked down into the hazel eyes. Their loveliness sent a wave of reassurance through him.

"It's your future I'd rather think of," he asserted.

But the girl with the clouded eyes didn't seem to hear him.

"I'm all Father has now,"

THYROID GLANDS

When an individual has a rapid heart beat, is very nervous, is a poor sleeper, suffers with stomach and intestinal distress, and has also bulging of the eyeballs, he is suffering with the severe type of goiter. A metabolism test is made which shows that his thyroid gland is manufacturing too much juice. Thyroid juice speeds up all the body processes—heart rate, muscular movements of the stomach and intestine, nervous system.

By more rest at night and during the day, some of these patients are able to live a normal life.

When there is so much thyroid juice being manufactured, part or all of the thyroid gland is removed by operation, radium or X-rays.

In other words many individuals whom we find to be too nervous and alert are suffering with an early form of goiter.

Now, just as there is overactivity of the thyroid gland causing a speeding up of all the body processes with rapid heart beat, loss of weight, sleeplessness and other symptoms, so can there be a condition where the thyroid gland is not active enough—manufacturing not enough thyroid-juice. And just as the very-overactive thyroid gland caused the body to go into a normal rate, very underactive thyroid gland causes the opposite symptoms—dullness of the face, coarse dry hair, dry skin, overweight and sleepiness. In women the monthly periods are absent or irregular.

It is found that the thyroid gland is underactive and thyroid extract is given to speed up the body processes to a normal rate.

Further, just as a slight or early case of overactive thyroid may not be recognized, so also may an early case of underactivity go unnoticed by the family, or even the physician, and the individual is thought to be lazy and to be below normal mentally.

Parents and the below the patients themselves with these symptoms of sluggishness, mental and physical inertia, should consult a physician (even if not waxy), should consult their physician regarding a metabolism test.

Treatment of Kidney Stones

For many years, where a patient had a heavy feeling in the upper right hand part of the abdomen and the X-rays showed stones in the gall bladder, it was considered advisable to remove the gall bladder and remove the gall bladder.

Today, as it is known that stones are present in a large percentage of individuals over 40 years of age, no attempt is made to remove the stones or have the patient undergo any form of operation unless he or she is having an attack of gallstone colic. The majority of individuals with gallstones do not know they have them.

Wings of Victory

Electricity helps make America's war planes some of the world's most deadly weapons. Here are a few of the ways in which G-E equipment serves in the air.

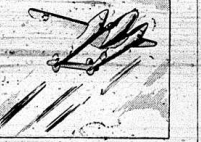

1. Lamps are the eyes of the plane at night, ranging in size from cockpit lamps no larger than a pea to landing lamps of more than half-a-million candlepower.

2. Radio combines the voice and the ears of the plane, allowing communication between the pilot and his squadron, and the ground and sea forces.

3. Instruments are the sensitive brain that relays messages to the pilot from all parts of the ship and helps him to control the plane in the altitude so necessary to modern air flight.

4. Superchargers are the lungs of the plane, pumping extra oxygen to the carburetors, giving our planes the altitude so necessary to modern warfare.

Rockcastle Facts and Stories

By Ralph Griffin

It is only within a few years that the school system of Rockcastle county has begun to approach the standards which were attained by some counties of the state many years ago. As late as 1907 we find this appeal for education issued by the School Improvement League of Richmond, "The portion of the article deals directly with Rockcastle county schools of the day."

"In many cases the houses are not habitable and yet the children spend a greater number of waking hours there during the season than in their homes. It is a crying need in buildings insufficiently heated and either unventilated or full of drafts blowing in from unshaded windows and windows and both the seats so unadapted to them that the little children are suspended in their seats. The larger ones are cramped for space."

"In many cases the sanitary conditions need attention. There are no washrooms or toilets in places so near the main building, so they are so constructed as to make cleaning impossible. They frequently offer no protection from the elements, and sexes, and children who are kept from demoralizing influences at home are subjected to obscure influences at school."

"In many schools the simplest educational appliances are lacking, such as blackboards that are really maps and charts. The stoves need polishing, the windows need mending and cleaning. They are needed from the schoolhouse down to the outhouses. Water buckets are needed and basins and towels, and hooks for hanging of hats and coats."

"In the year 1911 principal applicants took the county examination and only two were granted first class teacher's certificates. The school facilities within the town were much better than those just described and at a much earlier date. Broodhead and the other comfortable schoolhouses and a sufficient corps of teachers as early as 1900."

"In 1880 there was a private school conducted in Mt. Vernon at the Whitehead Academy. Classes were held in the old Williams home, just west of Elmwood cemetery, and the school was largely attended by local people. In the spring and summer of that year special classes in penmanship were taught by Prof. R. L. Gardner, who later attained worldwide fame by his African explorations. This gentleman attempted to prove to the opinionians here that he was a true explorer, and spent several years attempting to substantiate his claims, occupying an iron cage at night in the very heart of the African continent."

"A good-size school building was constructed in Mt. Vernon about the year 1880, known as the Collegiate Institute, with Prof. W. W. Anderson as the first principal. This project was conducted as a private enterprise, with an ambitious curriculum which included commercial studies, Latin, Greek, school branches and Education, Callisthenics (whatever that is). The properties of this organization were bought out by the Presbyterian Missionary Society in the year 1887 and converted into what was to be known for several years as the Brown Memorial School."

"Expansion became necessary and in 1912 funds for a dormitory were obtained by an enterprising lady, Mrs. Langdon. From that time on, Brown Memorial became Langdon School. By virtue of a bond issue voted in the year 1910 a building which was established in the Mt. Vernon district, the high school being combined with that already established by Langdon."

"Langdon School was maintained until after the completion of additional school facilities in Rockcastle made it possible for the county to care for its own educational needs, for which the support of this missionary organization was withdrawn and the facility removed to more needy localities. This occurred in the year 1935, by which date it was thought that adequate provisions had been made for the housing and instruction of all common school and high school pupils and subjects in the town of Broodhead, Livingston and Mt. Vernon."

GASOLINE REGISTRY TO BEGIN NOVEMBER 9

All Drivers to Get 'A' Books Good for 3 Gallons a Week.
Kentucky motorists will register for gasoline rationing books at their rationing boards beginning November 9, it was announced Tuesday in Washington. At the same time motorists in thirty states, where gasoline is not now rationed, also will register for the Nation-wide program effective November 22. The Office of Price Administration said motorists would be limited to five tires a car beginning next month. Every automobile owner will be entitled to an "A" book, providing 3 gallons a week enough to drive 2,880 miles a year. Supplemental gasoline will be provided for necessary purposes upon approval of application.

To qualify for an "A" book, two provisions must be fulfilled, according to Leonard Henderson, price administrator. They are: (1) the car owner must wear his no more than five tires and (2) he must agree to periodic inspections of his tires. Mr. Henderson also requires compliance with a 35-mile-an-hour speed limit.

Mr. Henderson said applications for "A" books will be made available at filling stations and other public places. Persons needing more gasoline may apply immediately for a "B" book, which provides gasoline for a maximum of 400 miles of occupational driving monthly approximately thirty-three gallons a month based on an estimated mileage of 15 miles a day. The "A" book provides for enough gasoline to drive 240 miles a month, theoretically including 150 miles of necessary family driving.

An extra "C" book may be obtained by the preferred mileage class, which includes a few groups of drivers performing duties essential to the community.

TO THE VOTERS OF EDUCATIONAL DISTRICT NO. 3, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY
I feel that it would not be fair to the voters and taxpayers of Rockcastle County to make the race for Board Member of the Board of Education and not let them know what I stand for and against.

First: I stand for reducing the taxes if possible.

Second: I stand for reducing the expenses of the Superintendent's office, which is costing the taxpayers of Rockcastle County over $1000 per year.

When this administration came into power we heard all over Rockcastle County that the Superintendent was drawing too much money and I agree with them. He should have run the office for $1200 per year. That would have been $2400 less than he has been 40 per cent higher per year than any teacher in the rural schools of this county at that time.

The Superintendent at that time was doing the work of Superintendent, Trustee, Officer and Clerk which occupy the Superintendent's office at this time.

If I am elected I will have no clerk. The Superintendent and trustee officer will serve for $1200 each as the law requires.

The difference between $2400 and $4000 is in favor of taking this money and adding it to the teacher's salaries thus making it a little evenly distributed among the taxpayers.

Third: I am in favor of the members of the Board of Education having and exercising their own right of understanding from members of the present Board of Education that certain teachers are being sent to various schools to teach without the knowledge of the board members.

If the board of Education can't have any power why should the taxpayers have to pay them.

If I am elected I will exercise the powers given me by the laws.

Last: but not least I am straight out against Myrtle Bryant and Willie Dillingham.

I don't like the methods they use since they did away with the trustee system and took the schools out of the hands of the people.

They have been known to say to teachers or teacher's friends "If you don't vote for a certain board member, candidate, you will not get any school." These teachers or their friends would not be driven. They were free Americans and voted as they pleased they didn't get any schools.

Therefore as my father, M. C. Sayler, stood before me as a member of the Board of Education of Rockcastle County, I shall always work hard for the trustee system to come back and for the voters of our county to have the schools in their hands.

TONS OF SCRAP BEING DONATED IN DRIVE

In the big, nation-wide drive for scrap which is being sponsored by the County's newspapers at the request of Donald M. Nelson, OPM chief, Rockcastle county is doing her share again. Several large donations have been made outright, including 6,000 lbs. of scrap iron, donated by the Rural Highway Dept. and 4,000 lbs. by Mr. Charles Childress. Others have made smaller donations. We are told that money received from the donated scrap will go into the State War Fund.

Working in co-operation with the War Office, the WPA, Highway Dept. and other agencies. County officials have given permission to use space back of the county houses where those who wish may conveniently place their donations of scrap when they come to town. The main scrap pile, however, is on the school lot. The quota for each person in the county is 100 lbs. Bring some item of scrap with you each time you go to town and all of these donations, however small, will help win the war.

DOUBLE LEAF TOBACCO

Edgar Treadway, of Burr, brought to this office Saturday a perfectly formed double leaf of excellent quality. The stems, which are one inch long, are about 4 inches from the stalk. The stems form "V", which may or may not be significant, but is an interesting feature.

The "C" book ration varies with the individual need. Commercial vehicles, including buses and trucks, would receive a "C" book, the quota to be determined after a certificate of war necessity is issued by the Office of Defense Transportation.

STATE BRIEFS

Ray Cornett, 35, was shot to death as he sat in his automobile in front of his roadside near Harlan. Sgt. Carl Preston of the State Highway patrol said he arrested Morris Gross, 22, son of County Jailor John Gross. Gross is the brother of Simpson Gross, connection with whose death Cornett and Mrs. W. F. Bradson were indicted in February, 1941. Cornett and Mrs. Bradson were acquitted by a Circuit Court jury.

Mack McDonald, 52, guard for a Johnson County oil and gas company, shot and killed himself after having killed a man last Saturday. Police Chief W. B. Bailey reported.

A roll of honor bearing the names of 860 Mayville and Mason County men now serving in the armed forces was dedicated by Governor Johnson Tuesday.

Robley K. McKinley, 25, Burnsville, W. Va., soldier who was shot Friday in a battle with military police at the Fort Thomas, Kentucky post, was killed last night at the post hospital.

Widow of Admiral Hugh Rodman and, like her husband, a Frankfort native, Mrs. Elizabeth Ruffin Sayre Rodman, died Tuesday at her apartment in Washington, D. C., after several days' illness.

USO Campaign Ended

It is with great pride that I can now inform my friends in the county that our USO campaign is finished. Last week Mrs. M. Smoock Treasurer wrote a check for $700 and we mailed it to the National Headquarters, New York, City.

This was one job that gave me a lot of worry and headaches, simply from the fact that a great many of our community chairmen did not seem to realize the importance of the trust and responsibility placed upon them, as well as the need for funds to carry on the USO program. Right here I want to give credit to every one who assisted in making this drive a success and especially to W. L. Hitt of Wildie, Mrs. W. L. Kinser, Mrs. M. M. Bryant of Mt. Vernon, Linnville and Bingham, of Livingston, and to all of the Rural schools in the county that have had box and pie suppers. The speakers and auctioneers in the county who have so liberally given their time expenses and money to make this war chest possible. Hitt and Bryant of Mt. Vernon, splendid leadership of Dr. M. Pennington and these men we would not have put Rockcastle County over the top.

To each and every one who contributed or helped in any way to make our campaign a success I thank you from the bottom of my heart, and to those who did nothing there is no ill will I just made a mistake.

Dr. R. G. Webb, USO Campaign Chairman

PJT SUPPER AT THE MT. VERNON SCHOOL

Things are being arranged to have the biggest gathering of its kind ever in Mt. Vernon. There will be a pie supper at the graded school building, Friday, Oct. 16, beginning at 7 p. m. Bazaar committees have been sent to 500 rural school teachers and all teachers are invited to attend. There have been 30 tickets issued to persons who will occupy the stage as those who have taken part in the speaking. All schools in the county have had pie suppers. The speaking, excepting 17 attendees, has been good. The people of this county are unaccustomed to this. They are determined to win this war at the earliest possible time as can be seen. You will make a great mistake if you fail to attend this meeting and you should get there by 7 o'clock if you expect to get a table.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

1943 Farm Goals to Be Biggest Ever; U. S. Increases Strength in Pacific As Air-Naval Force Blast Japanese; Nazis: 'No Need to Take Stalingrad'

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC: Yank Power Grows

The Japs learned a lesson about American air and naval strength in the Pacific when five of their ships including a heavy cruiser were damaged by a U. S. aircraft carrier task force which swept Kijaluma and the Shortland Islands in the north Solomon. In addition, an air field was blasted at Bougainville, main Jap air base, and numerous aircraft destroyed.

A navy communique reported that the Japs were caught by surprise and the American operation was carried out without loss of men or equipment.

Besides the heavy cruiser, the American battle score against the Jap forces included one transport damaged by heavy bombs, one seaplane tender and two cargo ships damaged by light bombs.

In New Guinea, the advance of the tough Australian bush troops continued over the Owen Stanley mountains which the Japs had penetrated weeks before.

Though gravity trails had prevented swift movement, the Australians had cleared the enemy, before them, and had removed the threat of a Jap surge that once had pierced to within 25 miles of strategic Port Moresby.

A communique issued by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia disclosed that the Allies' New Guinea advance had been made "with practically no loss."

Information from native carriers who described the Jap forces plus reports from our own patrols, indicates the retreating Japs were exhausted, living on short rations and badly needing supplies," the communique reported.

Much of the Australian success was said to be due to a constant air attack on Japanese supply lines.

FARM GOALS: Boosted for 1943

A nation-wide wartime plowup next spring, reminiscent of the days of 1918, loomed as the U. S. department of agriculture, under intensive production goals calling for even greater acreages and output of most farm products than was requested during the record 1942 production.

The goals for all farm crops but three—wheat, short staple cotton and commercial vegetables—were set higher than for 1942. Corn and other feed grains, beans, peas, peanuts, potatoes, sugar beets, hemp and vegetables for processing were given the green light. So were production goals for cattle, hogs, dairy products, poultry and eggs.

With less manpower, machinery and other facilities to operate with, farmers had their work cut out for them. Moreover, the needs of the armed forces and the Allies, particularly Russia, were said to be much greater than had been expected a few weeks before.

If 1943 farm goals are not reached, civilian consumers will have to tighten their belts. Consumer rationing would be inaugurated, January 1, but civilians had already been asked to limit meat consumption to 2 1/2 pounds weekly.

RUSSIA: Stalingrad Checkmate

Unnoticed at the start, Marshal Timoshenko's Reserve Army, the 2nd Army, in the northern arm of the Don river in the vicinity of Kizelskaya, had moved forward. Its object was to draw off German striking power from the Stalingrad area.

Observers noted that the 50-mile area between the Don and the Volga, west of Stalingrad, had extended his forces southwest to the German flank.

"That Timoshenko's strategy had worked was indicated by a significant statement on the Berlin radio which announced that the Germans would abandon frontal attacks on Stalingrad and destroy what was left of the city with heavy artillery.

It is no longer necessary to send German infantry and assault engineers into the battle," the announcer said.

"The finishing touches will not be entrusted to heavy artillery and dive bombers," he said.

Observers noted that the German propaganda covering the Nazi withdrawal a year ago from Rostov, where the Russians gained their first victory of the war.

Southward, in the Caucasus the German offensive against the Russians in the Moxdok area, while Rumanian reinforcements were reported pushing southward from the German-held Black sea base of Novorossisk.

WAR COSTS: 210 Million Daily

War costs will exceed 210 million dollars a day by January 1, 1943, according to figures based on revised calculations by Budget Director Harold Smith. Mr. Smith's estimates placed total war spending at 73 billion dollars in the current fiscal year which will end June 30, 1943.

The budget director's upward estimate was about 26 billions more than President Roosevelt's figures last January and eight billions more than his previous calculation by Smith.

Increased expenditures for all war purposes would make it necessary for the treasury to borrow approximately $20,000,000 from the public during the current fiscal year.

LABOR: Lewis Divorces CIO

Labor leaders and politicians long awaited the formal secession of the United Mine Workers of America from the CIO. Bushy-browed UMW Chief John L. Lewis kept his own counsel, but chose a dramatic moment for the divorce.

The occasion was the miners' annual convention at Cincinnati.

Brusquely warning the delegates that he would no longer remain the union's "autocrat," he renounced the CIO. Lewis obtained unanimous consent to withdraw. A committee report urging the separation charged the CIO with failing to pay $1,650,000 debt to the UMW and denounced alleged attacks by CIO officers on Lewis.

The convention action merely gave public recognition to a situation that had existed for months. Lewis and Philip Murray, CIO president, were feuding after a friendship of years standing. Murray, a former miner and vice president of UMW, had gotten "read out" of the union, last spring.

MELBOURNE: Australian chorus girls must be over 45 years of age according to a recent government order. The age limit is one of the "wartime" restrictions in force in the Australian Commonwealth.

Abled-bodied women under 45 years of age should be in jobs "that confer more direct help to the effort," the government feels. Hence the new theatrical restriction.

ALEUTIANS: Japs Fold Tents

As mysteriously as they first appeared, Japanese forces disappeared from the two westernmost Aleutian Islands, a navy communique revealed. The two islands abandoned were Attu and Agattu. They were together nearly 200 miles from Kiska.

Heavy bombing by American aircraft which destroyed most of the Japanese buildings on the two islands was cited as a reason for the withdrawal.

The Japs still held a foothold on Kiska Island, but Yankee flyers made their tenure precarious. Army heavy bombers operating from the newly acquired American bases in the Andean Islands in the Aleutians blasted Jap-held positions on Kiska in repeated raids.

The islands of Attu and Agattu were originally seized by the Japs shortly after the Aloukan campaign opened last August.

SCANDINAVIA: Headache for Nazis

Germany's influence in the Scandinavian countries has been weakening. This was evident when a general election in Sweden had returned a record number of Communist, anti-Nazi delegates to the national assembly. It was evident, too, in frequent peace feelers from war-placed Finland. Thus when rioting and disorders broke out against the Axis overlords in Norway and Denmark, few observers were surprised.

Swift was the Nazi action in countering with force the Scandinavian threat. The Germans proclaimed a state of emergency in central Norway from the seaport of Trondheim to the Swedish border. Reprisal executions followed. Reports from Copenhagen said tension had mounted. So, fever, heat because of clashes resulting from the "overbearing and provocative" attitude of the volunteer pro-Nazi "Free Corps."

The Nazi Radio gave official confirmation of Scandinavian unrest by announcing that the Norwegian emergency was proclaimed because of recent sabotage attempts "which if they had succeeded would have endangered Norway's supply system."

Swedish neutrality was being tested. The German government called upon to beware of rumor mongers by Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war. Speaking before the American Federation of Labor conference in Toronto, Mr. Patterson cited rumors assailing the quality and effectiveness of weapons made by American labor.

"Criticism of the Grand rifle, U. S. tanks and P-40 planes as inferior did away in the face of actual performance," he said.

"In the days to come Hitler will redouble his efforts to divide the nations now united against him. In this task he will make use of the rumor mongers among us."

"His agents will spread stories in the United States and Canada that the U. S. government is a French agent who will spread the story that Americans are not doing their part in fighting, but are interested only in making money out of the war. And he will try to alienate us from Russia."

Mr. Patterson said that production of armaments for the Allies will cut deeper and deeper into production of civilian goods and require suspension of many peacetime standards of cost and working conditions.

SNUB VICHY: Urges E-Emvoy

Even as Pierre Laval imposed a labor draft to speed the delivery of 150,000 French workers for German factories, Walter Edge, former American ambassador to France, urged withdrawal of U. S. recognition of the Vichy government. Such action, he said, would solidify 95 per cent of the French people behind the United Nations.

Emphasizing that he was speaking as a private citizen, Edge said "the unfortunate situation of men seems to feel it necessary to continue recognition of the Vichy regime."

"There may be many things that warrant continued recognition that I know nothing about," he declared, "but only a small percentage of the French people are in sympathy with the Vichy government. It must be discouraging to the majority to see their overlords recognized by this country."

Washington Digest: Civilians Aid War Effort Conserving Meat, Heat

Being Frugal With Coal and Oil for Home Heating, and Also Not Buying More Than Your Weekly Meat Allotment Helps.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 B Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

You have heard before that the one question, repeated most often in the news, is into the Office of Civilian Defense in Washington is: "What can I do to help win the war?"

I receive a great proportion of such letters. Many of you have asked this question yourselves. Some of you haven't been able to get a satisfactory answer.

Beginning this month there are two things you can do if you really want to help win the war. They are these: conserve heat and meat.

We have plenty of meat in the country, we have plenty of coal and oil. But some of the meat—about a fourth of it—has to go to our own fighting men and those of our Allies. And much of the coal and oil and gas of the oil can't get to us because of a shortage of transportation.

Look at the heat situation first: The war has depleted our coastal tankers which furnished 95 per cent of our meat transportation to the eastern states. ## Censorship on E.D.R.'s Trips Arouses Criticism . . . Bond Buyers and Anti-Inflation Legislation . . .

WASHINGTON—Republican leaders are very bitter in their criticism in connection with President Roosevelt's personal movements—particularly when he visits a large production center, and makes speeches to the workers.

The President has been visiting plants and making speeches which would make good reading even if they did not have so important a message, and there is not a line about it even in the newspapers of the city visited. Not even after the President is safely back in the White House.

The fact that the news cannot be printed later, Republican leaders as well as much bitterness, proves beyond peradventure that the censorship is inspired neither by reason of making sure of the safety of the President's person nor of guarding any secret war information which the President might divulge in his speech.

"Careless Words Cost Lives"

Their theory on the latter is that if the President says anything which is of value to the enemy, then that becomes of the injunction being demanded here by the censor.

Obviously also, there is possibility of publication of the President's visit to any plant endangering his person. The President is not printed until after he is back safe in the White House. As a matter of fact the secret service is always on hand to guard him.

But obviously every railroad employee along the line would know in advance, since the train is planned and safeguarding has to be done in advance, so always there would be crowds at the station just in time to see the President.

The leave us Republican critics say, only the point that the President's visits might be taken by the enemy as indications of where our most important munitions or airplane or cannon-producing plants. Which, they say, the enemy knows anyhow.

Whereupon they add, with some anger, that actually the President's visits mean much more closely attached to communities where there are elections this fall in which the President is interested than in any other of importance of the war production plants.

Timid Congress Showing Fear of Pressure Groups

One of the striking political angles to the present term of congress is that the most timid group of men in the country, frightened of their own frightened of every tiny minority that organizes and shouts at it, has apparently come about the largest group of all—the holders of war bonds and stamps.

It does not require an investigation to show that the people who bought war bonds and stamps that the total of any one single group—more than all union members, for example, more than all farmers, etc. This is obviously so because nearly everybody has bought some.

The point here applies to the battle now on to control inflation. Senators and representatives are voting, many of them, against this or that feature of the anti-inflation bill.

It is easy to see that if ANY loopholes are left in the price control program—if ANY adjustments, so called, are to be permitted, inevitably the value of the dollar is reduced.

Any senator or representative who votes to cripple the anti-inflation bill is voting to let the price controls be doing—is voting to undermine the value of these government securities which a large majority of his constituents are buying and have bought.

THE DAM OF PADDY THE BEAVER GROWS

DADDY THE BEAVER kept right on working just as he had his any visitors. You see it is a big undertaking to build a dam. And what Paddy was doing was to have a house to build and a supply of food for the winter to cut and store. Oh, Paddy the Beaver had no time for idle gossip or noisy parties. So he kept right on building his dam. It didn't look much like a dam at first and some of Paddy's visitors turned up their noses when they first saw it. You see they had heard stories of what a wonderful dam build Paddy was doing. They had expected to see something like a smooth, grass covered bank with which Farmer Brown kept the Big River from running back on his lowlands. Instead all they saw was a good pile of poles and sticks which looked like anything but a dam.

"Foolish!" exclaimed Billy Mink. "I guess we needn't worry about the Laughing Brook and Smiling Pool if that is the best Paddy can do. Why, the water of the Laughing Brook will work through that in no time."

Of course, Paddy heard him, but he said nothing—just kept right on working. "Just look at the way he has laid those sticks," continued Billy Mink. "Seems as if any one would know enough to lay them across the Laughing Brook, instead of just the other way. I could build a better dam than that."

Paddy said nothing—just kept right on working. "Yes, sir," Billy boasted, "I could build a better dam than that. Why, I could build a dam that would stop the water of the Laughing Brook from running back on the lowlands."

So the dam grew and grew, and so did the pond above the dam. At that pile of sticks will never stop the water.

"Is something the matter with your eyesight, Billy Mink?" inquired Jerry the crow. "Of course not," retorted Billy indignantly. "Why?"

"Oh, nothing much, only you don't seem to see that straightaway. Laughing Brook is over the top above Paddy's dam," replied Jerry, who had been studying the dam with a great deal of interest.

Billy looked a wee bit foolish, for sure enough there was a little pool just above the dam and it was growing. Paddy still kept at work, saying nothing.

So the dam grew and grew, and so did the pond above the dam. Of course, it took a good many more to build so big a dam; and such a lot of hard work! Every morning the Green Forest and the Green Meadow would hold a meeting and every morning they would find that it had grown a great deal in the night.

At last, one day, when the water for the minnows to feel safe and content. Billy Mink had stopped making fun of the dam, and all the little people who live in the Laughing Brook and the Smiling Pool were terribly worried.

To be sure Paddy had warned them of what he was going to do, and had promised that just as soon as his pond was big enough the water would once more run in the Laughing Brook. They tried to believe him, but they couldn't help having just a wee bit of fear that he might not be wholly honest.

At least one egg a day or at least four to five per week marks the third inch. Have it for breakfast or for lunch or for dinner, or custard for lunch.

Cereal's important, too. Serve it in the breakfast, or a pudding or even cookies. Bread and rolls come under this category, also. Fifth inch includes the vegetables—two best varieties, one should be a leafy vegetable—spinach, lettuce, broccoli, romaine, etc.—and the other raw. Cakes are perfect.

Now the fruits. Two a day isn't hard to manage. Of course you start off with breakfast, and then include one for lunch or dinner dessert.

The last and seventh inch includes butter or some fat rich in vitamin A. This is for fuel and energy.

How to Eat

Serve a Salad . . . Win Your Vitamins

(See Recipes Below.)

Vitamin Ways
Comes winter and fall when vegetables and fruits are more scarce than during summer and fall, and when a homemaker is apt to fall shy on serving her family these vital body regulating and protective foods.

Yet, this is the time when the body needs them most. These foods build up the body's resistance to disease and help you, in pick a common example, from having a cold as soon as warm weather and sun flee.

Minerals are busy building and repairing, replenishing body tissues that get torn down after using up daily with every movement you make. Vitamins help you use the foods you eat.

Good-toeats foods help the family take in all these vital minerals and vitamins. Drain, uninteresting dishes will send them off to looting other foods to take the edge off their hunger—wherever they can put their hands on something. I need not point out that in this way they may really be losing out on foods necessary to the body.

"Cooking vegetables well, and doing pretty things to their appearance will help their consumption. A bit of sauce or extra seasoning will put an ordinary vegetable right up there with the best. Be sure your family of what it needs most."

Scalloped Peas and Onions. (Serves 5 to 6)
1 pound small white onions
1 No. 2 can peas
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
3 tablespoons finely crushed bread crumbs

Parboil onions 25 minutes. Drain. Drain peas and reserve 1/2 cup pea liquor. Melt 2 tablespoons butter, add, in flour, salt and pepper. Add pea liquor and milk and cook until mixture thickens, stirring constantly. Pour into casserole. Melt remaining butter, stir in bread crumbs, sprinkle over mixture. Bake in a moderately hot (375-degree) oven for about 25 minutes.

Vital Statistics: There are about seven inches in the Nutrition Yardstick which bear checking every day in an every way to as to keep you and your family in the running.

The first inch includes milk: 1 pint per day for every adult and 1 quart for every child. Of course you don't have to drink this milk. Use part of it in cooking.

Second honors go to meat, fish or poultry, and this is not hard to eat. Eat it in any form, whichever fits best for your family, one serving per person should be counted.

GROWTH IN CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Luke 1:4-25; II Peter 1:14.

GOLDEN TEXT—But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.—II Peter 3:18.

Growth is a normal thing. We expect it of the child, and when it fails we know that something is wrong. Just so there is something wrong very decidedly wrong in the life of the Christian who fails to grow in grace. If the child fails to grow we are alarmed, but if a Christian does not grow we hardly notice it, or at most only express our regret. We are not alarmed.

I. Normal Children Will Grow (Luke 2:42-52).

While Christ was 12 years old, he was in the temple with the same true man, and as a boy He developed and grew in a normal way. Unless we meet the tragedy of arrested development we need have no concern about the fact that a child will grow physically, mentally and spiritually. The child who is placed in the baby in a mother arms the potential qualities of the man or woman to come. Our chief responsibility is to provide the opportunity for the development of those abilities and qualities which the child has, and of guiding that growth in the right direction.

That is all a parent has to do, but it is enough to call for all the wisdom, judgment, patience and skill of the best of us, and even the wisdom of God and His grace upon our lives and the grace of His work as we grow.

The qualities in a boy or girl which will count gloriously for God may be dreadfully effective for Satan if we permit him to get control of our children. May God help us to be alert and skillful in rearing our boys and girls.

more for the guidance of physical and mental growth than spiritual (because this is a matter of the grace of God). We can lead the way of the little child to the house of God; we can teach him to pray and to love, and we can set an example of good living before him. That is all we can do; but again we say, it is enough to demand our best.

II. Normal Christians Will Grow (II Pet. 1:1-8).

Christians there are "all things that are good and profitable." There is no need of some added experience, or some new and striking thing to do, for we can see the great possibilities of a boy or girl and growth are in Him. We need only to recognize that fact and yield to the work of the Holy Spirit in the development of Christian life and experience.

We have, in practice, so far departed from the normal Christian life that we can hardly believe that the above is true. In place of the normal Christian life according to Scripture, we have created for us a standard based on the average Christian life. If we equal it we surpass it. If we perchance we equal it, we are not ourselves the "more spiritual" ones. And all the time the average standard is far below the normal Christian life which God not only expects, but is ready to enable and empower us to live.

Faith supplies in itself rather than "add to," v. 5, if there is "diligence" (that is, "true Christian devotion" number of other splendid qualities). First comes "virtue"—really moral courage, or nobility of character. What a fine step forward. "Then comes 'knowledge'"; that is, a discernment which gives practical skill in effective daily living for Christ. Such spiritual discernment naturally leads to a "self-control"—something much needed by most Christians.

The self-controlled one will always have "power" that is, the endurance to stand every hardship and trial. We need to be more patient with ourselves, but also with ourselves, even in this matter of Christian growth of which we are speaking.

Life like that is a life of "godliness," which will blossom out into real "brotherly kindness." There isn't too much of that in the world today, even among Christians. Let's revive it! Then what? The one who loves his brother will love the whole world (charity, in v. 8, should rule). Why not? Why not love all brethren, who know Christ, regardless of race, position or sect?

Let such virtues "abound" (v. 8), and no Christian life will lack in rich fruitfulness for God in Christ. If you are a true Christian, let your life within them grow. It will surprise us and them that God would do through them for His own glory.

ON THE HOME FRONT

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

ANY dining room may be made fresh and smart with built-in cupboards, a little paint and inexpensive curtains. But what may be done to bring a set of outdated chairs up-to-date? The one sketched at the upper right is typical of many that are substantial and sturdy though scarred by long usage. All they need is an up-to-date look to make them perfectly at home in a modern dining room.

This cover is of medium blue cotton with a pattern for the bias binding and the cotton fringe around the bottom. Large button moulds are covered with the slip cover. The button-up-back opening. If you are not expert at making large button moulds, snaps may be used under the button. The row ties seem to the corners of the inside of the seat cover hold it neatly in place.

When you are buying information, or prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality of the goods, the advertising in this newspaper performs a "worth while service" which saves us many dollars a year.

It is a good habit, for the sake of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we are often and at what price, to go to the store and see what we are getting. It gives us the most practical feeling of being adequately prepared.

When we go to a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we are an expert buyer, firm, sure, and sure. It is a pleasant feeling to have the assurance of adequacy. Most of us, who are not, are often found to be a lack of this feeling. This advertising shows another of its usefulness in the world. It is a good habit, for the sake of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we are often and at what price, to go to the store and see what we are getting. THE HOSS
Here is James Whitcomb Riley's touching tribute to the horse. We reprint it because of the decline of the auto and the probable revivification of the "hoss" and because the true Kentuckian sees no sin in loving the animal for which it is famed:

I bless the hoss from hoof to head
From head to hoof and tail to mane
I bless the hoss, as I have said,
From head to hoof and back again!
I love my God the first of all,
Then Him that perished on the Cross;
And next, my wife - and then I fall
Down on my knees and love the hoss.

THE HOSS
Here is James Whitcomb Riley's touching tribute to the horse. We reprint it because of the decline of the auto and the probable revivification of the "hoss" and because the true Kentuckian sees no sin in loving the animal for which it is famed:

I bless the hoss from hoof to head
From head to hoof and tail to mane
I bless the hoss, as I have said,
From head to hoof and back again!
I love my God the first of all,
Then Him that perished on the Cross;
And next, my wife - and then I fall
Down on my knees and love the hoss.

America's automotive service men are playing an important part in the nation's war effort. It is their job to save the wheels that serve America.

The Automotive Mechanic of Yesterday Is the VICTORY SERVICE MAN of Today

Just how important the automotive mechanic's work is to the nation will be clear to all who consider the following facts:

- Automobiles and trucks form the sole practicable means of transportation for war workers and war materials in many communities throughout America.
- In some sections, 78% to 100% of the workers drive by automobile to vital war plants.
- 2,314 U. S. cities, with a population of 12,524,000, depend on private cars for transportation.

The automotive mechanic - the trained Chevrolet Victory Service Man - is the lifeguard of America's millions of cars and trucks. Help him to help you and America by getting a skilled service check-up at regular intervals.

54,000 communities depend entirely on motor vehicles.

- Six out of every ten farms use one car or more; 67% of farm car mileage is necessity driving.
- More than 65.2% of all war plants reporting in Michigan (typical war production state) depend on trucks to haul their incoming and outgoing freight.
- Trucks haul nearly 100% of the milk supply of most large cities - and 58% of all livestock marketed in the U. S.
- Trucks are the sole transportation system serving our 54,000 communities not reached by railroads.
