Whole cloves will answer the same purpose as moth balls when sprinkled through stored clothing.

When spreading a pile of dark woolen material use a sponging cloth made of dark wool.

Keep sweet potatoes spread out so they will not touch if you don't want them to become soft and rotted.

Because the bran particles in whole-wheat flour make complete sifting difficult, whole wheat flour should be thoroughly mixed by stirring it lightly with a fork before measuring.

To remove apple stains from hands wash in clear water, then rub a little tartaric acid (a powder) on them and every stain will vanish, leaving the hands white and clean.

Indian meal will remove grease from an iron sink.

Cook celery slowly if it toughens when cooked too quickly.

Statement to Voters in School District No. 3

I wish to call attention to the following statements: 1. The salary of my present superintendent is $150.00 per month, which is not as much as our juries receive...

2. Many of our common laborers are thinking more. 3. I think superintendents should receive no more money than school teachers because:

a. They must be better qualified. b. They work at least ten hours a day six days a week. c. The responsibility of an entire school system is considerably greater than that of one school.

DEALERS MAY (NOT) POSSESS MORE THAN 10 RABBITS. Dealers are specifically forbidden to have more than 10 rabbits in their possession at any time. S. A. Wakefield, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, announced today after reviewing a decision handed down by Guy B. Herdman, Assistant attorney General.

WANTED-GREASE TO COOK

In a letter to Brock Brothers, Maysville dealers, Herdman cited that the game laws limit hunters to not more than thirty days bag at any one time and that a day's bag limit is eight. Then he quoted a 1942 amendment to the Game and Fish laws saying: "No person buying and selling animals shall have in his possession at any one time a greater number thereof than the legal limit allowed in the possession of the hunter."

There are two million farm families in the busy working land which won't produce enough to keep them decently, much less help the food for freedom program. Wickard says that a number of things to consider...

Another factor is women—more women are coming into the field. The old men that women shouldn't work in the fields by breaking down. One farmer said to me: "A lot of women can run tractors."

Secretary Wickard has drafted labor and any farmer knows why. As one farmer put it: "I don't want a man on my farm who doesn't want to work on a farm."

Potential Farm Labor

But the secretary says that there is another reservoir of potential farm labor—up to 20 million boys with farm experience who are doing non-essential work now.

Now why, the farmer asks, do we have so many people in the government foreseen all this and prepared for it? Why did they ask us to raise all the tomatoes when you ought to have known that we couldn't get the help to pick them?

Well, nobody in America has had any idea of the total war needs we have as big an army now as we had at the time of the Armistice. The army is way ahead of the schedule we thought they could make. And it takes a lot more men in industry and on the farm to run an army, a police force than it did an army that size in 1918.

We never believed that this country could house and equip an army of that size. It has been done. The calls of the draft were heavier and more rapid than any expert expected. But don't blame the Selective Service system for robbing the labor market. They did what the doctor ordered. Some of the others did it better.

War Man Power

I talked with a member of General Hershey's staff. I can't quote him officially but this is what he said to me privately and what he said to me in public. He gave me figures: In one of the middle western states for every one man drafted in 1941 there is one man who is in the navy or marines. The figures over the country as a whole show that out of one hundred men who have left the farm only 15 were taken by the local draft boards. In the dairy industry in California, it was shown 37 per cent of their jobs to be held by higher paid ones in the same industry and 39 per cent went into other industries or enlisted."

That is a cross-section of the manpower problem. America has volunteered nobly. But, alas, voluntary service is not the wisest, in war time, unless one goes to the front. It hasn't been worked out yet and because there is no man in Washington from the highest to the lowest who can see where there are a lot of study, and then unified action. That is coming. And it will come slowly, as they told me when I was in Italy, like sucking sugar through a rag.

Reviewed by CARTER FIELD ... Young Officers Prefer Small Aircraft Carriers ... Nazi Battleship Von Tirpitz Still Cause Of Much Concern

WASHINGTON. — Small aircraft carriers instead of those as big as battleships are the thing, according to most of the younger naval officers, in the British and United States navies.

"Only in war can we really test these things," said one young officer. "I have been an enthusiastic aviation bug for many years. But the admirals always said, before the war, that airplanes attacking battleships would be shot down."

The big convoys to Malta and other points in the Mediterranean, according to the younger officers, that it is too dangerous to have the airplanes which protect the convoys, and that they are too slow.

Ideal for Convoys Airplane carriers which would carry only a dozen or 15 planes, some of the younger officers think, would be ideal for convoys.

Indications, however, are that the aircraft carrier will remain in the navy, machinery for aiming them, and officers who have recent experience in convoy defense say the Stukas are very easy to hit, and it is only a question of time before the effectiveness of the dive bomber is eliminated.

According to these officers the improvements now in sight for planes used in convoys are of minor importance. But sooner or later the reverse will again be true.

Marmarako Convoys Require Great Striking Power

The Nazi battleship von Tirpitz, sister ship of the Bismarck, is in the heart of every controversy these days among strategists of the British and United States navies as to whether the battleship has outlived its usefulness.

There is no denying that the Tirpitz being "here she is, and what she is, affects every convoy in North Russia. The United Nations do not dare send a large convoy to Marmarako without allowing for her striking power should she get loose.

The enormously increased difficulty of this, including the fact that it is vitally necessary to have an escorting battleships as well as the supply ships, results in the von Tirpitz's contributing heavily to German power even when living at anchor in a Norwegian harbor.

The reply of the aircraft enthusiasts is that of course as long as the enemy has battleships we must have them too, but great stress is laid on the fact that it requires so many small craft and planes in order to protect one battleship. The risk of losing one is so great.

Incidentally the admirals, still defending the battleship, point to this as a convincing argument for their side. They inquire, and it would seem with some reason, why air power is so devastating as its enthusiasts insist, why do not big bombers destroy the von Tirpitz since the admirals know precisely where she is, seven days out of every week?

Especially, they point out to the admirals of the fleet fans, since for some months there has been a season of almost 24-hour daylight at the von Tirpitz's anchorage.

There has been much wrangling about this in high circles, both in London and Washington, for there is no discounting the effect on the admirals all over the world which news of the destruction of the von Tirpitz would have.

Let's Have a Party . . . While Witches Play (See Recipes Below.)

October is the month which flouts her gay, burnished colors as a prelude to winter. It's the month of apples and cider, pumpkins and jack-o'-lanterns, and squash against dry sheaves of corn stalks, of fragrant gingerbread or doughnuts fried crispy tender in hot sizzling deep fat.

October's the month of Halloween when witches, spoons and black cats make merry. Big ones or wee ones, you can enjoy that mischievous witch's Best in October with the spookiest of what's Halloween.

Prep up with a party and give your spirits a lift with traditional food that's easy on purse strings, a hit with the party-goers. Decorations can be nature's own, a pumpkin or two whole or cut into a jolly face with candy and glow, squash and apples banked with deep yellow, brown or red leaves, bowls of apples, grapes, popcorn and spicy drinks.

Let the children paste black cats, owls and witches onto mugs and invitations inviting guests to come, as their favorite spook to be an owl, witch, stridor a broomstick, or a slinking cat.

Have a good hot dish if you are having the Halloween party indoors at the outdoor fire place, that you can put in the oven to get warm, slip in a hurry to get to the table like tuna fish souffle, cheese fondue, macaroni and cheese with broiled bacon slices, or a hamburger roast.

Outdoor plans may include a wienie roast, with the children participating at the outdoor fire place. If you prefer hamburgers, fix the patties indoors with their seasonings, wrap in wax ready for broiling, and broil them over the wienie roaster through washing.

Construct a simple grill outdoors for roasting wienies if you aren't lucky enough to have a grill. This will take a lot of the rough-house outdoors and save wear and tear on your house. Games which most likely be outdoors if it isn't too cold as the revelers will want to roam with spirits and ghosts.

Few foods equal the deliciousness of wienies roasted over the flames on forks or sticks fashioned from branches, depending on your degree of going in for naturalness. Plenty of long buns, already split indoors before the party and heaped high in a basket, are indicated. They're best when toasted with lots of butter, mustard, relish, catsup or homemade chili sauce as accompaniments for wienies roasted to doneness with a taste of smoke and ashes.

If you go in for toasting marshmallows along with wienies, try their rolled in coconut just before they're cooking different. They're really good.

You can't have enough hot foods as the weather is bound to be on the crisp and chilly side. There will

LYNN SAYS: The Score Card: Corner your share of these food bargains during the next few weeks: Cabbage, apples, plums, pears, green peppers, lima beans and cauliflower. The well-dressed table will also have excellent dishes from lesser-known sources, such as chicken and cheddar cheese not only for variety but also economy. Style your table with carrots, potatoes, turnip greens, beets and beet tops, mustard, spinach. Good for you, and perfect with most other foods in the vegetable line. Standardized bottles have been ordered for wines, jellies and preserves. Home-janning jars have not been ordered in this order-of-war Production board. TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH by DR. JAMES W. BARTON DEVELOPING MORALE

A successful furniture manufacturer, after having lost, through an unfortunate investment, his factory and plant, gave up in despair. Later on he was able to employ a little factory employing a half dozen men.

A brilliant surgeon lost his eyes or morale due to various infections. Despite the removal of these infections he still felt unequal to resuming his work.

Dr. Barton's his former brother-in-law chance gave him the opportunity to "build" a complete wagon for the brother, and a sun parlor for his own city home, and enabled him to visit the hospital to "watch" an operation.

A timely editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association speaks of an excellent project launched by the American Society of Medicine. Its object is the development of morale among the people of the United States by means of radio talks.

That these talks, arranged by experts in public health and psychiatry (mental ailments) will prove helpful in building morale can be seen as we read the program:

- 1. Mental casualties result not so much from threat of bodily harm as from disruption (disturbance) of the normal living.
2. The best antidote to panic is to engage the energies of people in some useful community work.
3. Those with anxieties can find relief from these anxieties in social activities.

Sulfathiazole For Flu Cases

During the flu epidemic of 1918-19, there were many cases of sinus infection and also tonsillitis, followed by infection of the middle ear—otitis media. In many of these cases an infection extended right into the spongy mastoid bone behind the ear.

That flu itself and its complications—tonsillitis and otitis media—can be controlled more readily now, thus avoiding mastoid operation can be expected from the use of sulfathiazole.

Dr. K. Sigg, Basel, in the Swiss Medical Journal, reports his results from sulfathiazole in 28 cases of influenza, 8 cases of tonsillitis, and 12 cases of otitis media.

In the influenza cases the temperature was reduced to normal in 48 hours. This rapid reduction in temperature was very evident in those who had fever for some time before the sulfathiazole was given.

In tonsillitis and otitis media, not only did the temperature drop rapidly but the coating on the tonsils and the redness of the ear drum also disappeared. The temperature dropped in 30 to 48 hours, and the coating on tonsils disappeared in two to three days which meant that the patient felt better even before the coating on tonsils disappeared.

QUESTIONS: In a recent article you mention the fact that formaldehyde is used in the treatment of yaws... Will you kindly publish directions for the use of formaldehyde? A—Wash and dry feet thoroughly then paint with 10% solution of formalin with equal parts of a 35 per cent (commercial) formaldehyde solution. Repeat the treatment every four nights in succession. This usually lasts for four to six months when it can be done again.

Why Senator Chandler Should Be Returned To U. S. Senate

By Tom R. Underwood

Senator A. B. Chandler will make a better United States senator than he represents Kentucky in Washington for the coming six-year term than Richard J. Colbert would. This conclusion is not based wholly on the fact that Senator Chandler is a Democrat and Mr. Colbert is a Republican. I can say, however, without fear of successful contradiction by the inexorable fact of the habits of the electorate at the polls, that under present conditions in this country, a Democrat, if elected to the Senate, is a pretty good one and ought not to be overlooked.

Senator W. L. Elliot has served our commonwealth and the nation well for three years in Washington. He has stood, shoulder to shoulder, with Senator Allen W. Barkley, the Democratic floor leader in the Senate. Senator Barkley has seen, indeed, as a right arm to the President as he has endeavored to guide the nation into complete rehabilitation for total war. A senator not only serves in a vital role in acting as a tribune of his people in the Senate, but in interpreting back to them the policies of the national Congress in the respect, in my opinion, Senator Chandler has excelled. In the times he has come back to this state and in public address he has explained the policies of the Congress and the course of the administration in dealing with the problems of the war, he has given as clear as any frank an analysis as a citizen of any state could hope to receive.

There have been numerous instances of how Senator Chandler has been able to serve the state of Kentucky very competently in Washington, though a new senator, of a party now in the minority, and without any special experience and aptitude, would have been a minus quantity. On measures such as the proposal to increase the salary of the members of the Senate, the money collected from them under the Social Security Act, before passage of the Railroad Labor-Relations law, and the reorganization of the employment and unemployment services, Senator Chandler has known the details of these problems because he has dealt with both of them as governor of Kentucky.

If Mr. Colbert were as well known in Washington as he is on the third floor of the Lexington courthouse, and if he knew the ropes at Capitol Hill as well as he does in his own backwoods, he would still have a disadvantage at the present time in being "on the wrong side of the fence" politically. Senator Chandler's sentiment is one of antagonism to the President and to the policies for prosecution of the war since Pearl Harbor, or if the present attitude of the state is one of protest and opposition, the defeat of Senator Chandler as a repudiation of his public record of three years in the Senate would be justifiable.

As things stand, Mr. Colbert has said in a very laudable and patriotic utterance that if elected U. S. senator he will vote to uphold the war policies of President Roosevelt. No one who knows him will question his sincerity in such a pledge. But the reality will be that in committee and if they go to the floor, Senator Barkley will be a powerful young colleague, from his own state, of his own party, skilled and trained in many years of practice as a parliamentarian by serving while lieutenant governor as presiding officer of the Kentucky state Senate.

Senator Chandler voted for the Loan Bill. He voted for continuation of Selective Service. He has voted for all the appropriations asked by the President for the prosecution of the war. If it is proper to exemplify independence in voting by casting votes of protest in opposition to those whose public records are opposed, is it not equally essential to give a vote of confidence for those whose public records that merit approval? We doubt if any state in the union is more sincerely interested, from patriotic sentiment, expressed in the highest of sacrifices through the services of her sons, than is Kentucky in winning the war. Kentucky either has more strained problems of her own that are affected by federal legislation. If the state wished to oppose the President it would be far nobler to do so on questions of policy, which are matters of principle and conviction, than on the matter of organization of the administration which could be partisanship.

JUDGE KING SWOPE HAS A STOOGEE

Since Judge King Swope, Lexington, unsuccessful candidate for the Republican Governorship of Kentucky in the last year, is making an election action part in the present election, and it is believed that he has an ulterior motive. He has been going around the State introducing Richard J. Colbert, Lexington, at all of the rallies. It seems that Judge Swope is playing the part of Edgar Bergen and giving loud utterance to them. There is a suspicion that the former Circuit Judge is doing this in order to get a strangle hold on the Republican machine in Kentucky. (Pol. Adv.)

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

By Gordon Wilson, Ph. D.

DEMOCRACY IN THE FIELDS

Only occasionally have writers pictured honestly the fine democracy of the fields in a very large portion of the South. So many times we have been told of plantation systems that we hardly believe our ears when a real scholar tells us, and backs up his statements with figures, that the plantations of the South were for most of the South largely a myth. Old Master in the great manor house, usually the overseer, in charge of the working crew—that sounds fine and true. It appears to the imagination of ancestor-loving people who have real history with their forefathers crossed. Occasionally such things were, but their frequency has been fearfully exaggerated. And after the Civil War this picture is even more exaggerated, as every thinking person knows.

In sections where the plantation system hardly got a hold, as in our own Fidelity, there was a democracy existing between Negro and white that ought to be remembered. The ordinary bondsmen between the trees were kept up in the house, but in the field we worked side by side. Frankly, all of the same water jug, snatched each other in a friendly manner that no way suggested superior and inferior. We extended there the same fine democracy that existed in all parts of the South. Decidedly there was nothing of the superficial on the part of the white boys who came from the Negro hired hands worked. Some of the finest loyalty to honesty and fair play I have ever seen was evidenced by boys of a superior kind who would let white bullies take unfair advantages of Negro boys merely because they were black. I am sure that I am right in saying that the parents of the boys would have justified in punishing any youngsters who exceeded their rights as members of a superior race. As it is to the credit of the darker brethren that some of the noblest things I ever witnessed were loyal to the "white folks" that involved ignoring the deeds of their own children, such as the severe punishment that a Negro farm hand inflicting on his boy for his being impudent to a white boy of the neighborhood.

The dream-world picture of the plantation just did not function in Fidelity, and similar places. We were poor. It was necessary for us to work, white and black alike, to keep soul and body functioning properly. There was no disgrace in work; it was not regarded as a Negro's duty alone. In the corn row, in the newground, in the tobacco field, in the hay field, and wherever hot, grimy work was to be done, and it is to the credit of the people, white and black alike, that each recognized the dignity of labor and envied the achievements of the men who had been able to turn off most with the least effort. . . . Literary men, eager to be read, too often have pictured the South as made up of aristocrats and aristocratic white trash. Certainly there have always been a few of the former and many of the latter, but the great majority of white people in the South as a degerate land of poor whites who are not up to the level of the aristocrats. The time has come to know the truth and dare to level it.

UNITY

THAT GETS THINGS DONE IN A BIG WAY

• You hear a lot about pooling these days - pooling materials - pooling machines - pooling man power.

This is an old story to the railroads. For nearly sixty years, the freight cars of any railroad in North America have been used by every other railroad, the greatest continental pool of carrying capacity ever conceived.

To accomplish this free use of any car by all railroads has meant ... that thick gauge must be the same ... that couple must work together ... that brake systems must be uniform ... that parts must be so standardized that any shop anywhere can service and repair any car ... and that there must be plans and arrangements among railroads for this continuous flow of cars from line to line.

This marvel of practical coordination is one big reason why, since we came, the railroads have been able to meet demand upon demand for more and more transportation service - hauling five freight more miles in 1941 than any transportation system anywhere in the world had ever before hauled in a year - and they are leaving that record far behind in 1942.

Yes, unity - unity among the railroads, unity between the shippers and the railroads, and between both of them and the government - gets things done in a big way. The nation's other wars need limit the amount of funds which can be used to equip the railroads to do still more, but with what they have - and what they may be able to get - the railroads will deliver the last measure of transportation.
