Clay County Man Announces For Railroad Commissioner

Clay M. Bishop, well-known and active Republican leader of Manchester, Clay county, Kentucky, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Railroad Commissioner from the Third District.

He was born and reared in Clay County, Kentucky, and was educated in the public schools of that county, Oneida Baptist Institute and Berea College.

He has been Clerk of the Clay Circuit Court for the past nine years and has made a splendid record in that office, having been commended by many jurists and lawyers of Eastern Kentucky as an outstanding official in the way of teaching in the public schools of his county for four years before being elected clerk.

He is still a young man, only thirty years of age, but from his experience, ability and knowledge in general affairs he is extremely well qualified for the office he seeks. He is well known and liked by the Republicans throughout Eastern Kentucky, and there is no doubt that his nomination would be a valuable asset to the Republican ticket in November.

He has been very active in politics for the past ten years and has also been active in social and civic affairs. He is a member of the Christian church, a charter member and past President of the Manchester Kiwanis Club, a member and past Master of the Manchester Masonic Lodge, a member of Oneida Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, a God Degree Mason, being a member of the Scottish Rite. He is also a member of the Order of Eastern Stars and Junior Order of American Mechanics.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, U. S. A., head of the Allied forces in Africa, takes the salute of a sentry as he inspects front lines in Tunisia. Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., commander of American ground forces driving through Tunisia, follows him. The colonel commanding the unit being inspected returns the sentry's salute.

TUNISIA: Nazis Run Gauntlet

Axis efforts to reinforce their embattled armies in Tunisia met strong Allied resistance. Gen. Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army opened a successful assault on the Enfidaville passes on the southern front. Enfidaville, Rommel's critical anchor, fell after furious fighting.

numerically when the war is over. To meet this, the other man is talking about turning the tables and beginning organized mass murder of Germans everywhere this month.

"Only the other day, I talked with a man who said frankly that he believed this was the proper course. How powerful this spirit of blood revenge really is and whether it will be carried out, one can only guess.

Another mystery of which there are only tiny hints is the power and the lines it carries through movements in the occupied countries and so on. I know in which Allied agents are active, making hand-in-hand with the saboteurs in France and Belgium and particularly Holland. Hints leak out.

Saboteurs A secret German report which reached Allied hands stated the following: "Sometime ago, English parachutists landed near Prague. When they were held in daytime, they obeyed the order, 'hands up.' But they carried a special device on their belts with a pistol from which they could fire at night. The latter fired the pistol. Thus they succeeded by a quick and appropriate means in accounting for the policemen."

Here is a part of another enemy report, revealing the activities behind the lines. It came through Italian military channels: "During the attack on the Fuks Aerodrome (Africa) the enemy Allied troops put up desperate resistance. They succeeded in enticing the sentries away from their posts for a time and successfully carried out their sabotage."

Reports have come of British saboteurs gaining entrance to factories during the daytime, planting bombs and leaving. A device has been perfected which can be carried concealed in the hand—have been carrying hand-in-hand with the saboteurs in France and Italy are using to obtain arms and supplies for the subversion when the moment comes.

Some day, "an important statement from the White House" will come which will have to do with which we have not even dreamed.

While the airplane factories turn out bombers and fighters, the air-minded leaders continue to make their air plans for peace. The latest scheme which has come to my attention is an announcement from the Northeast Airlines company which says this company has made application for a helicopter service to carry air mail and air express in New England.

These little schemes that can rise or fall in a moment, can land on a parlor rug. They would, in this proposed service, land on the roofs of houses. Cities, I have predicted, I take it, that the buildings are of the rococo vintage with peaked and pointed and turreted roofs, the act is passed it can be put into effect at once.

Now that the farm labor problem has been brought to the attention of the public, it is a step, and a big one, toward the "farm" trend, congress may ease up on McNutt and give him the money he needs to carry his pre-natal service machinery.

Another report has seeped out of the Japanese diet adjustment that simply because of the inconvenience of caring for prisoners, both the Germans and Russians have agreed to accept the terms of surrender. On the other hand, the Russians are said to be carefully preserving some of the most important documents of instruction to surrender and bring with them the leaflet which acts as a passport.

Then, according to a report which says that the German prisoners are carefully examined and a small percentage weeded out for Soviet indoctrination. They go through the course of instruction so careful that it is said finally only 10 per cent are accepted as satisfactory. These elite are then trained to be used as the spearhead of a political invasion of Germany.

Hated, like that in Russia, has been the part of man on the part of man of the conquered countries that the Germans, having given up hope of victory, are turning forward with systematic extermination of other races within their reach, as they have in Poland and with the Jews, and the great part of it is man-time, it is easy to guess at the outcome, it is easy to guess at the outcome.

LOSS OF TIME 1939 is a lot of days. It represents the working time of 138,383 men for one year. It also represents the time lost in war production in the United States.

TO YOUR Good Health by DR. JAMES W. BARTON

LIGHT EXERCISE

It is unfortunate that a couple of outstanding physicians should advise that exercise should not be taken by those past 40 years of age.

They were so one-sided in their thinking that they suggested that lifting the little finger unnecessarily might cause harm.

Now these physicians had but the one idea in mind and that was to discourage those middle-aged individuals from taking exercise who thought that Dr. Barton strenuous exercise was needed just as much if not more, at middle age than for those under 40.

I have in mind particularly those who are overweight and among the methods of getting rid of excess fat, the best is to exercise.

Exercise improves the circulation, sweeps away the stagnant waste materials which collect in the body, creates a healthy skin which lasts for a long time after ward and burns fat.

The overweight individual because he is overweight, does not exercise as every movement of his body means that he must do much more work than one of normal weight.

Dried Foods Aid To Victory Effort

Our soldiers learned during the war, which will mean health and happiness to many more thousands than before, is that water can be removed from food on one side of the ocean, the food shipped to a space many times smaller than the other side of the ocean, where by adding water to the amount produced removes the food as nourishing as when it was fresh.

The London correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association states that research work carried on at the temperature-research station, Cambridge, in co-operation with other scientists in Great Britain and the United States and dominions, has made possible the following beneficial results:

It is estimated that removing the water from food will save shipping to the extent of 3,000,000 tons of water annually. A quart of milk has a volume of 69 cubic inches and weighs 41 ounces. Condensed, it has a volume of 27 cubic inches and weighs 16 1/2 ounces.

Peppin is produced from the linings of the stomach of hogs. Glands produce the drug insulin, and liver goes into fattening, medicines, and the large packers can market glands for pharmaceutical uses since they must be marketed quickly in large quantities before deterioration begins.

Blood of slaughtered hogs is used in refining sugar, printing calico, in making buttons, rayon, leather, and animal feed. Bones are cut into ornaments, buttons and used in making plastics, cellulose and oil, animal feeds and glue.

Bristles from the hog are used as brushes. Hair from the body goes into felt, mattresses, upholstery, air filters and insulation for refrigerators. The skin is marketed for leather goods, razor straps, belts and gloves.

Large cows of any breed, when given an extra ration of feed, give out better in milk production than small ones.

Nowadays stress is placed on growing green and yellow vegetables and tomatoes, high in Vitamins A and C, and on doing more canning, drying, freezing, and other home-grown fruits and vegetables.

Guarding Fertility Farms' Best Resource

Replacement of Mineral Food Very Important

Regardless of how good a cropping system may be, it cannot of itself completely maintain the fertility of the soil. Moreover, the more efficient a farmer is in maintaining high production, the more rapidly will fertility leave his land, according to Dr. C. O. Rost of the Minnesota agricultural experiment station.

Most good farmers are like a merchant who opens a store with well-filled shelves and by vigorous selling methods rapidly disposes of his goods, but neglects to order new stock. His stock of staple goods is soon depleted.

The staple goods first drained from the farmer's store in the soil will be nitrogen, phosphorus, potash, lime and organic matter. The crop, livestock and livestock products remove fertility from the farm, in Minnesota alone, it would be no exaggeration to say that the equivalent of at least 500,000 tons of commercial fertilizer is removed each year from the soil in the form of cash crops and livestock products.

In the majority of cases, losses from erosion can be largely eliminated by the use of proper crop rotation, special cropping systems and good soil management practices which include the use of fertilizer.

The problem of replacing mineral plants drained away by erosion, production is serious and should receive serious attention. A part of what nitrogen removed may be replaced by using inoculated legumes, but minerals cannot be replenished unless they are supplied by synthetic fertilizers.

Surface soil contains the major part of the organic matter and a large part of the readily available nutrients.

HOGS

So valuable are all the hog fats that even the water used in the packing is stored in floating cans. From these come lard, lard oil, tallow, grease and hard tallow which is sold as lard, manufactured into soaps, cosmetics, candle stock, metal polish, soap, lubricating oils for engines, explosives, burning oils and animal feeds.

Peppin is produced from the linings of the stomach of hogs. Glands produce the drug insulin, and liver goes into fattening, medicines, and the large packers can market glands for pharmaceutical uses since they must be marketed quickly in large quantities before deterioration begins.

Great Britain will import 100,000 tons of dried eggs in 1943. If this amount of eggs were shipped in the usual way with water, it would weigh 500,000 tons and take six times the amount of shipping space.

Large cows of any breed, when given an extra ration of feed, give out better in milk production than small ones.

Neat Trick for Stretching Meat-Scrapple (See Recipe Below)

Make Red Points Work!

Making red points fit your menus and still give you plenty of valuable proteins and fats on which to do a man-sized day's work is like working out a jig-saw puzzle. But you remember how they all can come out if you try hard enough?

First of all, let's realize that meat is a high quality protein, and that the body needs it for repairing and building tissue—which is a full-time job. We designate proteins as complete and incomplete, the ones which are complete do a complete job of body building and repairing.

Incomplete proteins are those which can do just part of a job, and in this class we have breads, cereals, beans, peas and nuts. Of course we can use these foods alternately or in combination with meat, when we cannot get enough meat to fill our requirements. But, always, please bear the difference in mind.

Pork is our foremost source of thiamin or vitamin B1—sometimes called the pig and energy vitamin because of its importance in controlling mental health. Here pork sausage is combined with a cereal for a really delicious "stretched" dish:

All-Brain Scrapple. (Serves 8) 1 pound fresh pork sausage, 2 cups water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1/4 teaspoon powdered sage, 1/4 cup cornmeal, 1/2 cup brown cereal.

Brown sausage in heavy skillet, in serving occasionally, pour off and save fat. Bring water to a boil, add salt, pepper, sage and cornmeal gradually; cook until thickened, stir in cereal.

Stuffed Veal Hearts. (Serves 5) 2 veal hearts, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 1/4 cup chopped celery, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1/2 cup stale bread crumbs, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 2 cups water.

Clean hearts by cutting through side to center, open and wash well. Cut out all veins and arteries. Wash well. Make a dressing by cooking onion and celery in shortening. Add crumbs, salt, pepper and water. Stuff the hearts with dressing and tie together with string.

BEDTIME STORY

PETER RABBIT LISTENS TO THE WRONG VOICE

PETER RABBIT didn't play fair. No, sir. Peter didn't play fair. People who have too much curiosity about other people's affairs seldom do play fair. He didn't mean to be unfair. Oh, no, no! Peter didn't mean to be unfair. When he left Chatterer the Red Squirrel sitting on the old stone wall, the edge of Farmer Brown's Old Orchard he intended to go straight home to the dear Old Briar Patch.

Peter sat down and began to pull his whiskers in a way he has when he is trying to decide something. It seemed as if two little voices were quarreling inside him. "Go along home to the good fellow you are, and eat-z-z-z your own lunch," one said. "Steal back to the old wall and watch Chatterer and so find out just where his new house is. With every jump away from the old stone wall that desire to know just where Chatterer's new house was seemed to grow."

"I believe I will," said he, and without waiting to hear what the first little voice and Peter liked the sound of it.

It was louder than the first voice and Peter liked the sound of it. first little voice would say to that he turned about and very carefully and softly tiptoed back to the old stone wall. Right near it was a thick little bush. It seemed to Peter that it must have grown there just to give him a hiding place. He crawled under it and lay very flat. He could see along the old stone wall in both directions. Chatterer was sitting just where he had left him. He was looking in the direction that Peter had gone when he had said good-bye to him. Peter chuckled to himself. "He's waiting to make sure I have gone before he goes to that new house of his," thought Peter. "This is the time I'll fool him."

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Peter Rabbit; this is none of your business," said that little small voice down inside.

"You're not doing a bit of harm. Chatterer has no business to try to see how my new house is getting on," said the other little voice inside. And because of his dreadful curiosity Peter liked the sound of that voice. He bent and listened to it, and after a while the first little voice discouraged and stopped.

Chatterer sat right where he was for what seemed to Peter a very long time. But by and by he gave a little hop and a little wiggle of his tail and ran swiftly along the old wall a little way. Then with a hasty look around he disappeared in a hole. A minute later he popped his head out for a hasty look around and then disappeared again. He did this two or three times as if he was anxious. Peter chuckled to himself. "That's his new house right there," said he to himself, "and now that I know how to find it, I think I'll hurry along home to the dear Old Briar Patch."

He was just getting ready to start when Chatterer popped out of the hole and sat upon a big stone. He was talking out loud and Peter listened. Then his long ears began to tingle for this while he heard: "I'm glad that Peter's here. For spies are hateful as hell. I've got to know some oop-z-z-z. Affairs of other folks to see."

Chatterer whisked out of sight and Peter got away. His ears were still burned, and somehow he didn't feel so tickled over the thought that he had discovered Chatterer's secret as he had thought he would be. And over in the hole in the old stone wall, Chatterer the Red Squirrel was laughing to himself. "There was some great job. There was, and the job was on Peter Rabbit. You see, he hadn't discovered Chatterer's new house at all."

Sweet Corn and Beans
Sweet Corn.—Although corn borders on the "warm" crops, there is an almost every possibility that it will succeed, stated an expert.

Corn is not an "economic" crop for too many gardeners. However, when space can be had, a corn program can be taken to furnish this delectable vegetable at its best, all summer long.

Every 10 days or better, when the preceding planting is 2 inches high, plant again, enough for 10-days' consumption (whatever that may be for the family in question) based on each stalk's production. The best practicable planting date is July 20.

Some where along the line, extra planting may be done to accumulate the needed canned supply, allowing 15 ears per variety.

The best varieties are the yellow ones, and of these, the hybrids or "cross" kinds, as Golden Cross Bantam, King of the Garden and Iowa Sweet corn may be put in hills of 3 stalks, 30 inches square, or in continuous rows, 10 inches. Victory Garden fertilizer, 1 pound to 50 square feet, broadcast and chopped in, does nicely.

Beans.—Beans, too, are "warm", but it does no harm to risk a small planting as early as April 25. For this should be used Red Valentine or Black Valentine or Tennessee Greenpod, as these are cold-hardy varieties of excellent quality, if taken before they start getting shucky.

Of the pole varieties, Kentucky Wonder is by all odds the favorite but Lazy Wife, and Creaseback and Golden Cluster are excellent, too; also Tall Horticultural, or "Crabbers"; Lima beans are definitely "warm" to be discussed in a later article.

You don't have to add your electric refrigerator. Just give it the ordinary good care that common sense dictates and it will serve you faithfully for years. But don't neglect it. Keep it clean... defrost often... oil periodically as directed.

ECONOMY TIPS FOR LONGER LIFE AND THRIFTER SERVICE

- Defrost whenever frost reaches thickness of 1/4 inch.
- Wash interior with weak baking soda solution each time you defrost.
- Keep defrosting tray dry. Cover all liquids.
- Be sure door gasket makes a tight seal.
- Don't open door often than necessary—close it quickly.
- Do not store hot foods. Let them cool first.
- Clean dust from condenser coils periodically.
- Use fast freezing springing. Keep control at lowest setting to maintain safe temperature.
- Don't store canned goods, ketchup, and other items that will keep as well on the pantry shelf.
- Don't overcrowd shelves. Leave room for circulation.
- If an open unit model, keep oiled per manufacturer's directions. Sealed units need no oiling.
- Have your refrigerator checked by a competent serviceman once a year. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

MURDER OF PIRATES HEAD

By ISABEL WAITT

W-A-U-RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Judy Askin, who is better known as the author of a anonymous letter enclosing $800 and asking her to bid for an abandoned church to be auctioned the next day. She did it for the church got bids only to find, in an odd twist, the body of a slain fireman on the porch. The body was that of a man named Brown, who is supposed to have lived there. When the anonymous letter disappeared, Judy, like Victor, immediately was exploring the "Pirates' Mouth" for clues. Lily Kendall sees something which frightens her. With Victor, Judy is looking for her bag.

Now continue with July 4, 1943.

CHAPTER XII

I'd thought it a wild cry coming from the sea.
Victor heard it, too. "Just a gull, probably," they sound-like that. He was halfway up the stairs.
"Come on, Judy."

I saw him hesitate, run a little way back and inspect the waters around the bluff, then, just when I was wondering if he were going to step down into the water, he stopped after whatever was there, he came back and made for the inn, two steps at a time. I could hardly keep up with him.

"Only a gull," he reiterated. "Nobody's been down there, evidently."
Our guests had scattered. I could see Bessie Norcross, who was disappearing into the house, with some man holding the door for her. Hugh no doubt. The others were out of sight, save the minister, who had stopped by the fire ruins and was waving something at us.

Lily Kendall thinks you know know s-sounding about—"Victor was away ahead of me. By the time I caught up with him, the fragments of my mind, the minister was waving a much-worn brown handbag."

"Where's your bag, Judy?" Victor called. "Where did you find it, Mr. DeWitt?"
"Why, right there." He pointed out a young jumper. Puck had the path which ran back of where the fishhouse had stood. We'd all been on that path innumerable times and had seen my bag.

"I thought your very much."
I hunted for Bessie's key. Yes, here it was. Now she could lock her bedroom door and I could give the artist back his key. My coin purse was O. K., too, with a little change in it. Also, I saw at a glance, the lovely, comely girl friend had sent me from Florida.

I was torn between going to assist poor aunt and the desire to see if the money was still in my room. Victor had had plenty of time to get into the storeroom, so I didn't mind. Bessie, however, had been in the storeroom, so I didn't mind.

"I needed a couple of minutes before a mirror. Not mine. I'd only scout moment and then go into Auntie's room."
Hugh stopped me in the hall. "Just a minute, Judy, was just going back to the church for you. Do you think it's safe for you to hang around that Quade fellow alone?" He tried to give me the patting his hand over mine or the newest post.

"I yanked away. I was so mad I forgot he was patting me. I'd give you attend to your own affairs, And your sister's."
"The thrust about home. He stepped back. "I was only considering your safety, Judy. You—your know I—Bessie and I, like you."

"Well, thank, Hugh. Don't mind me. Here, give your sister to shake. Where is she? I'll do it myself."
"She's powdering her nose. We're going down to the bridge with the gang. Will you better, my dear?" He was being decent after I'd been pretty rude.

"You bet I'm coming. Wait for me, too."
"Well, don't be long. Some of 'em have already started. Poor Mr. Quincey is wheeling himself for you. Go help him then. Bessie can come with me." I tore up to my room, and after a trembling moment went boldly in. The money was still there.

"Ssssh, beat it," came from a crack in the storeroom door. "How can I ever trust anybody with a key?"
I ran out and closed my door again.
"You won't. They're all going to the bridge. I—I only wanted to powder my nose." I opened my bag and took out the money, pressing the lid. Then I nervously pulled down the stairs.
Ruddy Lane's square-cut diamond glared pinkly through the doorway. "Oh! oh! oh! oh!" I slammed my head quickly down the top step, groaning aloud. Victor came out of his hiding place and the artist handed him the pouch, just as Bessie Norcross pecked around the banister.

"What's the matter, Judy? You sick?"
"She's a little faint, and no wonder. Victor answered me. I never saw anybody recover himself so quickly as Victor Quade. "Don't try to show me the plain of the town till you feel better. My nephew, son," he said, solicitously, knowing full well Bessie had caught him up in the net. "Shall I call your aunt's?" I had presence of mind enough to press my hand against my side.

"It's nothing. Just a stitch in my side. Getting old," I tried to laugh. I saw Victor putting my pouch in his pocket. Would he think I'd stolen the ring from that awful hand?
"Your key. Here it is, Miss Norcross." I tossed it to her as she came part way upstairs. "Hugh is waiting for you. You two go along. You, too, Mr. Quade. I'll be all right now. The pain's gone."
Let her think what she wanted to; it couldn't be helped. By the time we reached the piazza our guests were ambulating toward the bridge. Uncle Wylie had already gone down my aunt said, scolding because I put off setting the luncheon dishes.

"He's beaten the whole of us, taking the minister's key. He explained later when he'd seen a truck skimming along the Neck.
Hugh Norcross was helping Mr. Quincey into his car. Potter's presumably, over near the garage. De Wilt already had a front seat. Wait for us, Victor called, but he couldn't be helped. By the time I heard him. Anyway, they were starting to go. We were going back to the inn. "No, no. You don't think I've got to know. You couldn't believe I'd touch."
"I know, my dear girl. Some friend has not only made a

"Nobody's been down there—evidently," she said.

"Looks like it. Not sure of course."
Victor's stride increased. "Good grief! Look—that first car is coming back now. It's the artist. Keep your eyes on the car with my uncle in it! And the truck was rapidly disappearing down the long curving Neck.
"Wylie, he looked like a little mad bantam rooster."
Hugh went up and sat beside his sister. "Glad we came by train. Six Ours was a beastly journey. Neither of us had occasion to enter it."
I saw the clergyman turn so purple I thought he'd burst his brains. "Open all the time, isn't it?" Victor saved the situation.

"Sartin." "Cept when I look up at night. Keep my own old Fordie in there when she ain't in the back yard. You can see her now, with a busted axle, et cetera."
"Anybody seen Miss Kendall?" I set in. "She's not with us and she's not in her room."
That was odd in itself. Lily Kendall never missed anything. She was as "thick as a brick." "Well, she wasn't ubiquitous. Well, she wasn't ubiquitous now. She wasn't in sight."

"Make sure, Judy, Victor said. "Look at all around with you!" His face was clouded with anxiety. He started down the path as if he were quite sure I wouldn't find Lily in the house.
"Will you wait?"
Hugh nodded. "I'll walk slowly. You call 'yes' or 'no' from the door. I'm going to look at the ruins of the fire."
Aunt Nella called me to come and help her. Was Miss Kendall with her? I asked. No, nor in the parlor. Nor her room. Nor the bathroom. Nor the lavatories. I tore out to tell Victor.
"Oh, Mr. Quade—that cry! You put in." "She's not with us and she's not in her room."
"Nonsense. Well, she wasn't ubiquitous, but she was. 'Norcross Potter De Wilt! You, too, Wylie! Please run down now.' Victor was positively running now. I cut me at his heels and the rest after us.
As I hurried along I was conscious that the rocks were jagged, and with it the wind, for a refreshing salt breeze changed the air into the fresh New England's perfume of the best of the month. I was more; I didn't feel so tired despite all the racing around I'd done that (TO BE CONTINUED)

CHRIST'S CHARGE TO PETER.

LESSON TEXT—John 21:15-17. "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven."—John 18:17.
Breakfast for a hungry fisherman that is what our loving and merciful Father intended for Peter when he was on the shore of Galilee. He wanted to talk to Peter. But he knew this was needful first. "There are some folk who think that following Christ is a delightful matter, devoid of every pleasure. Jesus never taught any such thing. He attended weddings and dinners even in the homes of those deemed by men. But remember that He always did it for their spiritual good. The Answers

1. Seven times.
2. A sailor is sent to the brig.
3. Captain.
4. Boston, in 1837.
5. Assop's Fables.
6. Seventeen years.
7. Approximately ten.
8. It contains all the letters of the alphabet.

When the soldier talks about "the skipper," he means his captain, the head of his company. And that's just what the title "captain" means. It comes from the Latin word "captivus" meaning "head." Another leader high in the Army man's favor is Camel cigarettes—they're first choice with men in the Army. (Based on actual sales records from service men's own stores.) When you're sending gifts from home, keep in mind that a carton of cigarettes is always most welcome. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages as to sending Army men, you can still send Camels to men in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.
