Contest Winner "Brands" His Prize

A pioneer of the auto industry, hunted throughout America in a contest to discover the oldest Chevrolet truck in a Montana homestead. The venerable vehicle, vintage of 1918, was still serving Leslie A. Storey, Spear (right) look on. Nearly 7,000 old-time Chevrolet trucks were entered in the contest won by this vehicle, "last frontier" town, the award for owning the oldest licensed and operating truck was a new Chevrolet "advance-design" model, which Storey "brands" here with his distinctive Circle-Heart brand. It was presented to him by J. W. Burke, manager of Chevrolet's truck department, as Mrs. Storey and Montana cowgirl Merle Spears (right) look on. Nearly 7,000 old-time Chevrolet trucks were entered in the contest won by this vehicle, which was one of 384 built by the division in 1918, its first year of truck production.

SOIL CONSERVATION NOTES

Farmers supervisors of the Broadhead Soil Conservation District this week joined the supervisors of 1,900 other districts throughout the Nation in observing two major events in soil and water conservation history.

First is the 10th anniversary of soil conservation districts, second is the reaching of the billion-acre mark in soil conservation district organization.

The Nation's first soil conservation district was created by landowners in North Carolina August 4, 1937, said Chairman F. F. Robbins of the local district. That district is the Brown Creek Soil Conservation District which includes the farm where Dr. Hugh H. Bennett, now chief of the Soil Conservation Service, was born and reared.

The chairman Robbins said that the soil conservation district movement has made faster progress than the pioneers in soil and water conservation first thought possible.

"We had no idea when the first districts were being organized by farmers that in ten years we would have districts covering a billion acres," he said. "I believe that here is proof that landowners, when given an opportunity, will take the leadership in solving their own soil and water conservation problems. Each district is organized by farmers and controlled by them under authority of a state law."

Farmers in Rockcastle voted to organize the Broadhead Soil Conservation District. Since that time, Soil Conservation Service technicians assigned to the district have assisted 14 farmers to plan and begin applying complete farm soil and water conservation programs on 14,259 acres.

Serving with Mr. Robbins on the board of supervisors are: A. M. Hiatt, Sec. Robert Snodgrass, Walter Hysinger and John Houston. "Farmers in the Southeast took the lead in the district movement from the beginning," said District Chairman Robbins.

Today, according to reports by Dr. T. S. Bane, Southeastern regional conservator of the Soil Conservation Service, 317 soil conservation districts cover more than 200 million Southeastern acres. These districts contain more than 83 percent of the farms in the nine southern states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia. In the 10 years since the Brown Creek Soil Conservation District was formed, technicians of the Soil Conservation Service have assisted 194,054 Southeastern farmers to start complete soil and water con-

Production Cost Study Rates Plant Food As 'One of Best Buys' Farmer Can Make

CHICAGO—Fertilizer was called "one of the best buys a farmer can make" in a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee based on a study of farm production costs issued by Purdue University's Department of Agricultural Extension.

"Although prices of numerous other purchased supplies used in farm production have increased from 25 to 200 per cent compared with 1935-39 period, the price of fertilizer has risen only 15 per cent."

The extent to which other farm costs have jumped since the 1935-39 period is indicated by the following Purdue compilations: Farmwage rates are now 226 per cent above prewar averages. They have increased more than any other farm production cost. Prices of seeds are up 92 per cent. The annual operating cost of a tractor is 44 per cent more than before Pearl Harbor. Farm machinery prices have increased 25 per cent. The annual operating cost of an auto or truck is 72 per cent higher. Building materials, excluding house-keeping programs on almost $3 million acres.

"The district program is making greater progress now than ever before," Chairman Robbins said. "During the past year, 45,888 farmers in the nine Southern states were assisted in starting soil conservation work on seven and a half million acres. That's one-fourth of all the farmers assisted during the 10 years since the first district was organized."

County Agents Notes

Winter Pastures

1. Sow Early. Seeding of crimson clover, vetch and fescue may begin soon after August 1. Winter oats should be seeded in late August and rye and barley in September. To avoid Hessian fly, wheat seedings should be delayed until after the fly-free date. Later seedings than these generally result in much less growth in the fall, and subject the crops to greater hazards of Plant Food Pays Dividends in Higher Yields. Winter pastures are more luxuriant and more nutritious when seeded on fertile soils. Many failures are the result of lack of plant food in the soil. Fertilizer and lime materials for winter pastures usually pay large dividends. Better check your needs before sowing.

2. Good soils produce the best pasture. Build your upland pastures are more luxuriant and more nutritious when seeded on fertile soils. Many failures are the result of lack of plant food in the soil. Fertilizer and lime materials for winter pastures usually pay large dividends. Better check your needs before sowing.

3. Inoculate legume seed. Vetch and crimson clover are legumes. Some soils are naturally inoculated for crimson clover, but it is essential to inoculate vetch before planting, unless vetch has been grown successfully on that land before.

4. Sow plenty of seed. Small grain and winter legumes

Washington MERRY GO ROUND
DRAW PEARSON

Scorecard on Congress.
WASHINGTON—As the first session of the 80th congress comes to an end, there will be the usual hoopla, back-stapping, cloakroom squabbling and stinging criticism. Spangled Banner. But as far as the general public is concerned, there is little to get up and wave the flag about.

This newsmen, who has faced Washington for a long time, regrets to say that he has never seen a congressman dominated by lobbyists, and with its ear so eagerly to the ground to catch the faintest whisper of praise from the big contributors who ponied up the campaign funds. Out of a dozen congressmen I have seen come and go—some good, some bad, some indifferent—never since the Harding days has there been a congressman who so flagrantly flouted its promises and its principles.

Here is the scorecard of what the 80th congress did and what it did not do.

HOUSING—Congress did a lot of talking but no acting on the housing shortage. Veterans who once lived on Government land are still waiting for their insulas. Congress renewed priorities for veterans housing and gave the green light to the construction of new houses, skating rinks, race tracks and all commercial construction.

RENTS—Under the guise of continuing rent control, congress gave landlords the benefit of a "run-point" 15 cent "voluntary" rent ceiling which materially boosted the cost of living.

REAL-ESTATE LOBBY—Every Washington newsmen knew how flagrantly the real-estate lobby swarmed over Capitol Hill. Yet when President Truman urged the industry to give several senators denounced him, and claimed the lobby didn't exist.

EDUCATION—While a school teachers were quitting by the thousands in almost every state in the union, congress stalling for six long months on a bill to help states increase teachers' pay. In the end it passed nothing.

GOOD CONTROL—While the worst floods in recent history ripped down the Mississippi-Missouri valleys, destroying crops and carrying tons of tons of topsoil into the sea, congress refused to appropriate funds for flood control. Furthermore, the house appropriations committee even cut the state department's soil-erosion program.

MONOPOLY AND SMALL BUSINESS—When the White House urged the repeal of the anti-trust laws and to aid small business, congress proceeded instead to introduce and pass through one hour.

RECLAMATION—Despite the need of more irrigated farmland and more western water power, western reclamation projects were not to the home. A worthy bill, however, restored a good part of the reclamation funds slashed in the house of representatives.

FARM PROGRAM—While the private power lobby was introducing reorganization bills in the house of representatives, Republican leaders in the senate slashed appropriations for rural electrification, also for soil conservation, crop insurance and other vital parts of the farm program. This caused a split inside Republican ranks with many Midwestern Republicans dissenting from their leaders. Finally the senate restored a large part of the farm cuts.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARE—Although the President asked permission to establish a new department of public welfare, no legislation was passed.

MILITARY JUSTICE—Despite shocking abuses of military courts under which soldiers and sailors have languished in prison for petty offenses, neither branch of congress undertook any probe of military justice.

MINE SAFETY—When the Centuria, Ill., mine disaster cost 38 lives, congress started an immediate investigation and there were many sympathetic speeches. However, congress adjourned without taking any permanent step toward mine safety.

FINANCIAL RECORDS—Labor unionists are clamoring for the Taft-Hartley act to reveal their financial records to the public. However, when Senators Morse of Oregon and Taylor of Idaho introduced a bill requiring members of congress to register their own "outside fees" in the public securities and exchange commission, the bill promptly was bottled up in the rules committee.

MINIMUM WAGE—After passing the Taft-Hartley act against labor, Republican leaders decided to even the score by raising the hourly minimum wage from 40 cents to 45 cents. However, their GOP colleagues refused to go along.

WEEKLY NEWS-ANALYSIS
U.N. Halts Indonesian Conflict; Major Ford Strike Prevented; Churchill Hits Labor Government

—Released by Western Newspaper Union.

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.

As co-chairmen of the armed services special weapons project, Rear-Adm. W. S. Parsons (left) and Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves have major responsibility in the historic job of seeing to it that the U. S. keeps out in front in development and production of atomic weapons and other advanced instruments of war.

SURPRISE: War Stopped
United Nations security council, stepping out gingerly on a slender limb, is rather doubtful authority, issued a call for an end to the Dutch-Indonesian war, and to the surprise of virtually everyone concerned the desired effect was achieved.

The war stopped. Acting Governor Gen. Hubertus J. Van Mook issued a cease-fire order to Dutch troops, and the Indonesian Republican government immediately went on record as being "agreed to a cessation of hostilities."

At first glance, the most pronounced reaction was a wave of optimism—the security council order, the success of U. N.'s first direct attempt to halt a conflict.

At second glance, the swift compliance of both Dutch and Indonesians with the U. N. request brought to mind a pair of spits and wispy fighters who were only waiting for the bell ending the contest.

Also, the Dutch cease-fire order, which came so readily did not square off with the Netherlands' previously revealed attitude toward U. N. intervention in the conflict. Four days before the United Nations appeared, Indonesia accepted the acceptance of the armistice by pointing out that "the cessation of hostilities can be carried out effectively only if the armed forces of both sides are withdrawn and other demarcation lines fixed by both sides on October 14, 1946." That looked like a loophole.

The shooting phase of the war was ended, perhaps, but the barometer of international relations indicated that there yet might be some stormy scenes ahead.

FORD ACCORD: Strike Averted
For a while it looked as though there wouldn't be very many Ford cars on the nation's highways. The strained and wheezed along in the waning hours before a strike dead-line which would have sent 107,000 members of the United Auto Workers walk out of 48 Ford motor company plants across the nation.

Then came the shift into high and union-and-company officials reached a final agreement, eight hours before the time scheduled for the strike.

The accord embraced a settlement of the union's demand for immunity from penalty provisions of the Taft-Hartley act and a plan for American families' "real income"—the relationship of revenues to costs of living—is virtually the same as it was a year ago, it has been related by a monthly purchasing power survey.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Straight Thinking About Drinking
LESSON TEXT FOR AUGUST 17. Proverbs 31:1, 9-13, 29-31; Ecclesiastes 10:17.
MEMORABLE SELECTION—Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit—Ephesians 5:18.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lesson subject and Scripture texts selected, and copy-right secured by the Western Newspaper Union Education, used by permission.

By WILLIAM CULBERTSON, D. D., of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.
THE increase in the drinking habits of our nation is a source of concern, not only to the forces of morality, but to the liquor interests themselves. How strange, it is to have the purveyors of a commodity urge moderation in its use.

It is hardly the time to answer to this whole problem is the only right one. The Word of God contains many strong things to say concerning alcoholic beverages. Wise is the man who heeds the intonations of Scripture.

WHAT a striking text this! Think of its implications. "Wine is a mocker." It grasps its victim in a vicelike grip, and then taunts him to the liquor interest to force himself. The drunkard is a victim of his own appetite, helpless to resist the temptation which ensnares him.

The young person who takes his first drink for sociability is indeed deceived. In that alcoholic liquor never reveals the possible cost which it exacts from the one who takes that first drink. The better part of valor is to leave the stuff alone.

The Word of God says further that "strong drink is a brawler" (A.S.V.). All of us have probably known the drunkard who has become conflict, entirely without reason. Liquor seems to make a man senseless to danger and blind to expressions of sympathy.

THE admonition of this passage would not be without effect on those drunkards and gluttonous.

Solomon here tells us of one of the results of drunkenness and gluttony. The drunkenness which is the result of both of these sins does indeed choke a man with rage.

If, therefore, we have no higher motive than that of self-protection than that of having enough of this world's goods to make a presentable appearance, we should not involve ourselves in the company with those who will lead us into the same excess that characterizes them. How important is that we guide our hearts in God's way.

Let us understand, of course, that there are far nobler motives for drinking than those which we have here. However, "I've" can come to the conclusion to avoid drinking on the basis of a lower motive, how much more important it is to come to the same conclusion on the basis of a higher one. As Christians, that higher motive concerns our testimony before men, our living life that will cause others to want to know Christ; in short, our living for the glory of God.

III. LIQUOR—A History (Prov. 23:35; Eccles. 10:17).
[N. T. E.] First of these Scripture passages we have what may be called a high degree of drunkenness. This sin leads to woe, to sorrow, to contentions, to wounds without a cause.

But that is not the end. Look carefully at Proverbs 23:32 and stress the last three words, "At the last." At the last, it does indeed bite like a serpent and sting like an adder.

Such poison is injected into one's body and soul that it seems as though there is no remedy. Thank God, though, that a reason there is power in the blood of Christ to make the foulest clean.

In verses 33 to 35 we read some of the results of drunkenness. Be holding of strange things (v. 33), utterance of perverse things (v. 33), insensibility which is the result of intoxication (v. 33), and inability to avoid succumbing to the same temptation all over again (v. 33).

It is still true that righteousness exalteth a nation, but that sin is a reproach to any people. And when the prices of the land as the leaders will frequently personally the people of the land as the followers, it is that nation which has godly governors.

Crafty Hornbill Cements in His Mate at Hatching Time
The hornbill of South Africa is a master at dealing with the "deadlier of the species." This crafty bird chooses a hollow tree for his nest; when the female starts to lay her eggs the male quickly seals her in the cavity with mud, leaving an opening only large enough to insert his beak in order to bring food to her.

Thereafter he does not have to worry about the female brooding the eggs, or any pilfering on her part, until after the young are old enough to fly. Then he tears away the cement and liberates his captive.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

For variety in using corn, freshly gathered from the garden, food specialists from the College of Agriculture and Home Economics recommend this recipe for each casserole.

- Corn Casserole
- 2 tablespoons butter
 - 1 tablespoon flour
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon paprika
 - 1 teaspoon dry mustard
 - 2 tablespoons minced onion
 - 1 cup milk
 - 2 cups uncooked corn
 - 1 cup green pepper
 - 1 cup buttered crumbs

Make a white sauce of the six ingredients, add beaten eggs, corn, green pepper and onion. Pour into greased baking dish and bake in a medium oven, 300 degrees, for 45 minutes. The last 15 minutes, cover the top with crumbs buttered in 1 tablespoon of butter.

Menu: Swiss steak, corn casserole, buttered beets, fruit salad, rolls, butter and frozen custard.

COMMUNITY PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY

GROWING WITH THE TERRITORY WE SERVE

We're doing the best material shortages still delay us!

Finding our service to meet today's unprecedented demands requires vast quantities of poles, wire, transformers, meters, insulators and other equipment.

Many of these essential materials are still very difficult to obtain. National statistics show that the demand for line materials is by far the greatest ever experienced in the industry, so it is understandable that our biggest task is simply getting the necessary equipment with which to do the work.

We're making good progress in our expansion program, but in some localities service improvements and extensions to new customers are still being held up by delayed delivery of materials, ordered many months ago.

Please rest assured, however, that we are doing everything we can to overcome the bottlenecks as rapidly as possible. In the meantime, your continued patience and understanding will be appreciated.
