BEST-LOOKING GIRL IN TOWN

By THYRA SAMTER WINSLOW

FROM the time she was thirteen Rilla Mabry had been ashamed of her appearance. It was then that she started shooting up higher than the other girls. She was awkward as well as tall and she was too thin. By the time she was twenty she was fully convinced that her appearance was really something terrible. All of the other girls seemed little and cute and attractive. No matter what Rilla wore she seemed wrong. There was too much of her to wear tailored clothes. And thin dresses hung around her in folds. All of the boys and girls in the crowd liked Rilla. She was a fine girl—if you could forgive the way she looked. Even her hair was wrong—in spite of her looks Rilla had a boyfriend. He was Patrick Redding and his father kept a grocery store. Patrick was a great catch—but then you really couldn't expect Rilla, with her looks, to go any better. Folks felt that Rilla ought to be with Patrick. Pat was a nice looking boy, and he certainly wasn't to be sneezed at. Rilla didn't sneeze at Pat. She was grateful for his being nice to her. She was as jolly and as friendly as she could be. As a matter of fact she liked Pat a lot. He was fun to be with. She'd have been perfectly happy except for the fact that she was in love with Shane Tennant. Which did her a lot of good—for Shane was the catch of the town. Shane's father was a banker—and rich. His mother was the social leader of the town. Shane was tall—much taller than Rilla—and handsome, besides.

This Week's Best Fiction

Pat went into the grocery with his father. Shane went into the bank. That's the way sons go in small towns unless they have definite ideas about law or one of the other professions. Rilla didn't do anything. Her folks had just enough money so she didn't have to work. She went to parties with Patrick and admired Shane from a distance. The town folks felt that she would marry Pat, that he'd take over his father's grocery store and that they'd settle down.

That might have happened if it hadn't been for Leslie Durant. Leslie Durant was—well, a well known illustrator. And he came to Morrieville to visit an aunt. And got acquainted with Rilla. He was a young man. He stayed in town three days—but that was long enough for a lot to happen. He saw Rilla Mabry—Rilla was standing near the door—and she was looking at Shane Tennant. She knew how much her face showed what she was thinking about. No one else noticed—but Durant, being new, took in the situation.

He saw Rilla, standing, not quite straight because she didn't feel quite as tall that way. In a badly fitted dress and her hair not quite smooth—and he saw Shane, perfectly groomed—for Morrieville—self-confident, good looking. And then Pat came to ask Rilla to dance.

On the second day of his visit Durant made his remarkable statement. He declared, to anyone who would listen to him; that Rilla Mabry was by far and away the best looking girl he'd ever seen. Rilla had never had a compliment about her looks before. She had always been shy, self-conscious and often miserable about her appearance. And here, the first authority on beauty who had ever been in town, exclaimed her at the prize.

When Durant, himself, told her what he thought of her she was filled with confusion. She managed to stammer her thanks. And later, very shy, she went up to him. "If I do wish you'd tell me how I can look better," she said. "I'm not suited for the task of 'fixing-up,' he told her, "but maybe if we go together—" "Why, yes," said Rilla. "But how did you remember the name, how did you know I was in love with him?" "I'm good at games. And I saw you looking at him. Simplicity itself. And to think that it was the cause!" He pressed a little. "Yes, you were," said Rilla. "It was very funny, now, when you look back on it. There I was, going with Pat Redding and in love with Shane. And terribly ill at ease and awkward. And you came down and said I was a beauty—so amazingly beautiful I became a beauty, and the boys all rushed me. And I married Shane."

first time in her life, the belle of the ball. Toward the end of the evening Durant had the satisfaction of seeing Shane Tennant dancing at attention. Shane Tennant, whom Rilla had looked at with longing eyes—and who had paid no attention to her.

Durant went back to his home in New York. And forgot all about the whole thing. And years passed. And the secret happened just the other day.

Durant was lunching alone at a restaurant when an attractive, well-known man, past her first youth, came up to him.

"You don't remember me," she said.

That night, for the first time in her uneventful life, Rilla Mabry was belle of the ball.

Durant didn't remember her. "I'm Rilla Tennant—I was Rilla Mabry when you know me. You came to my home town and—great and made my life over. Remember now?"

"Of course I do," said Durant. "I remember very well." "You did a wonderful job!" said Rilla. There was a curious note in her voice he didn't understand. "You married the boy you were in love with, I see. His name was Tennant, wasn't it?" "Why, yes," said Rilla. "But how did you remember the name, how did you know I was in love with him?" "I'm good at games. And I saw you looking at him. Simplicity itself. And to think that it was the cause!" He pressed a little. "Yes, you were," said Rilla. "It was very funny, now, when you look back on it. There I was, going with Pat Redding and in love with Shane. And terribly ill at ease and awkward. And you came down and said I was a beauty—so amazingly beautiful I became a beauty, and the boys all rushed me. And I married Shane."

Plain Facts About Honesty

LESSON TEXT FOR AUGUST 24: Proverbs 11:3; 11:11, 13; 12:17-22; 14:3.

MEMORY SELECTION—Prove all things; hold fast that which is good. Abstain from all appearance of evil.—Thessalonians 5:1, 22.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lesson subject and Scripture text adapted and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education, used by permission.

BY WILLIAM GULBERSON, D. D., of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

The Bible's presentation of the subject of uprightness of living or plain, downright honesty in everyday contacts, is recognized by all who have given any attention to what it has to say.

The high ethical standard demanded by the Word of God is another evidence of its divine origin. Were men to evolve a moral standard of their own, it is quite evident that that standard would not be very much higher than their own attainments; in fact, the probability is that the standard would be lower than the attainment of some. However, the Bible allows for no deviation from the standard.

We who by nature are the children of wrath have undoubtedly failed when we hypocrite our lives against God's pattern. How needful is God's work of providing and effecting salvation! Those who have been born of God are then confronted with living a life that meets the divine standard.

I. A Pica for Honesty (Prov. 3:33)

HOW good it is when the Christian has a reputation for integrity in all his dealings. However, that outward manifestation is possible only if there is inward reality. Therefore, we move in order of attainment; in fact, the probability is that the standard would be lower than the attainment of some. However, the Bible allows for no deviation from the standard.

II. A Factual Presentation of Honesty (Prov. 11:1, 3; 12:17-22; 14:3)

THESE passages of Scripture bring to our attention the consequences of dishonesty as well as the rewards of honesty.

For example, we know that dishonesty is an abomination to God (Prov. 11:1; 12:22); that perversity of heart has its outwardness, in that the perpetrator of evil is sooner or later ensnared in his own sin (Prov. 11:3); that a lying tongue may be victorious, but that victory is short lived (Prov. 12:19).

On the other hand, the rewards of honesty are also made apparent, for we are told that probity of character is God's delight (Prov. 11:1; 12:22); that the very integrity of the upright shall be a guide to them (Prov. 11:3); that blessings to others flow from the tongue of the just (Prov. 12:18); and that the lip of truth shall be established forever (Prov. 12:19).

III. God and the Life of Honesty (Prov. 22:1, 11)

THE reference here to the ancient landmark has to do with the removal of such evidences as would give the claim of individuals to certain property.

We are to respect the rights of others. Honesty involves, more than correctness of speech; it implies rightness of life. The subtlety of reasoning can lead us to the conclusion that we may have God's approval if by unfair means we take that which belongs to another.

Alchemists Knew Zinc

"Nix Alka" was the name by which zinc oxide, now widely used as a paint pigment, was known to alchemists, who also called it "philosopher's wool." It was first suggested for use in paint by the French chemist, Guistave-Morveau, in 1809.

Early in the 19th century, the pigment became commercially available, and it is about that time a French naval vessel was painted with zinc oxide paint. Today, zinc oxide is produced by two processes, the American and the French. The American process produces the oxide direct from zinc ore, while in the French process it is produced by oxidation of an open metal zinc in the presence of a collection of the oxide in a series of chambers. The bulk of the zinc oxide pigment now produced by the American process.

We're doing the job—but material shortages still delay us! Expanding our service to meet today's unprecedented demands requires vast quantities of poles, wire, transformers, meters, insulators and other equipment. Many of these essential materials are still very difficult to obtain. National statistics show that the demand for line materials is by far the greatest ever experienced in the industry, so it is understandable that our biggest task is simply getting the necessary equipment with which to do the work. We're making good progress in our expansion program, but in some localities service improvements and extensions to new customers are still being held up by delayed delivery of materials ordered many months ago. Please rest assured, however, that we are doing everything we can to overcome the bottlenecks as rapidly as possible. In the meantime, your continued patience and understanding will be appreciated. WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS: Solo Global Flight Sets Record; Reduced '47 Corn Crop Forecast; Hughes Probe Stopped Abruptly

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

73 HOURS: Fast Circle

CANBY, 27-Aug. (AP) Odom, flying a converted army airplane, didn't achieve quite the fantastic speed of Shakespeare's Puck who "got a girland round the world in 80 days" but he did manage to get around the globe in exactly 73 hours, 5 minutes and 11 seconds.

In going down, he logged more than 115 hours from the earth-circling record for solo flying set by the late Wiley Post in 1931.

He also worked up some prices in his publicity tour. He visited Reynolds, wealthy pen manufacturer, who sponsored the flight.

Odom, who started and finished his joint at Chicago, O. V. or E. 18,645 miles and touched at Gander, Newfoundland; Paris; Calcutta; Karachi, India; Calcutta; Tokyo; Anchorage, Alaska; Fargo, N. D. It was a rough trip all the way, in weather that was "A" lousy.

His record-breaking flight came only after one false start a week earlier when he had headed west from Chicago to Orchard airport and then turned back in a 3,000-mile nonstop round trip after electrical and mechanical difficulties developed.

Next on Pilot Odom's aerial agenda are the Bendix air races at Cleveland and then another global hop, this time via both poles, to 10 scientists and newspapermen for company.

CORN OUTLOOK: Too Much Heat

AS September corn soared momentarily to a new top of $2.42 1/2, highest at which any corn future has ever sold, the outlook for this year's crop, threatened by recurring onslaughts of heat, continued gloomy.

Corn reporting board of the department of agriculture, in an official forecast based on conditions as of August 1, predicted a national average of 2,049,000 bushels, or about 110 million bushels below the July 15 indication.

While the report's figures did not take into consideration the impact of abnormal heat waves subsequent to August 1, the crop reporting board footnoted its forecast with the statement that since August 1, "continued hot weather has become a serious threat to corn and other crops in the corn-belt."

Excessive heat is said to be dissipating rapidly and corn stored in the soil since the rains of spring and early summer.

The latest forecast placed the crop 10 per cent below the record production of 3.2 billion bushels and tagged it as the smallest since 1941, although still slightly above average.

Principal reflection of the reduced corn crop, experts say, probably will be in shorter supplies and increased prices of meat next year.

THAT'S ALL: Probe Halted

"Let me be as unambiguous as I can be. That's the master melody - and stop."

So it was with the Hughes aircraft contract investigation which, after producing not a master melody but a violent series of raucous notes, snapped to a short in the middle of a phrase.

During the course of Howard Hughes' testimony, the investigation was mysteriously sidetracked and with no prior notice, called off. It was scheduled to be resumed November 17, but there was little doubt on the part of the great aviator that the public would never see the second act.

There was no satisfactory official explanation for the abrupt cessation.

Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

Summary on Marshall

WASHINGTON - With General Marshall now on office six months it is fair to summarize his abilities in the all-important, highly complicated job of secretary of state.

One clear expression of the time of Marshall's appointment was that he might run the state department as a military garrison. He forgot that he was a diplomat, not a soldier.

This fear has proved entirely unjustified. Marshall has leaned over backward for a civilian to run his department on a civilian basis.

Chief criticism of Marshall is that he has lacked confidence in himself, therefore has moved so cautiously. Unfortunately, he had to take over a field in which he was not a specialist.

Therefore, Marshall has not moved with the same surefootedness as a former "Byrnes man" was a past master of negotiation. He did not have to learn on his own.

But the results have not been good in Argentina and Latin America, where the new secretary of state has leaned on other advisers.

Greatest setback the state department has suffered is the exclusion of the United States from the Marshall plan.

"SHOOTING INCIDENT" It wasn't reported in the papers, but it certainly happened.

It was a military map, Marshall knows the difficulty of locating troops and their positions.

Veterans Overlooked After the smoke of congressional battle cleared, thousands of stunned veterans searched the headlines for their names.

Inside story is that GOP bosses, who are quietly turning thumbs down on the veterans legislation, Strategy was plotted at a secret meeting.

Construction of the first peaceful atomic pile, to be devoted solely to beneficial uses of atomic energy in industry, medicine and agriculture, has been begun at Camp Upton, N. Y.

"Made in Japan" Again by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's office in Tokyo, includes such items as 20 million yards of silk fabric, 85,000 gross of Christmas decorations and 80,000 pounds of frozen frog legs.

Paper and stationery, wood and wood products, toys, clocks, watches and, in short, most of the goods and gadgets which Japan sent out before the war again will be made in the islands in a growing stream.

Washington Digest President Hayes Had First Phone in Executive Mansion

By BAUKHAGE

WASHINGTON - Recently the President turned down a very fancy television set because it was installed in the White House last January in time for Mr. Truman to "see" the installation of the new Republican congress.

However, I imagine this innovation caused nowhere near the furry around the White House staff that ensued on that day in 1876, when the first telephone instrument was put in.

However, the opposition, when it became the majority, made blunder after blunder. Mr. Hayes had no doubt his administration with a quiet if perhaps somewhat monotonous dignity, until he was succeeded by another Republican, President Garfield.

I doubt if the even tenor of Mr. Hayes' administration was frequently disturbed by the ringing of the telephone bell - or much of anything else for that matter.

Very few residents of business offices or prescribes or other busy people, more, the telephone was by no means accepted as a means of communication for presidents or their entourages.

There was another stunt in presidential calls after the election of President Wilson. He objected to such an informal means of communication, it is said he was never called on the telephone direct.

Harding was quite the reverse of Wilson in regard to formality as

LOUISE HACHMEISTER... doesn't need a number...

When along came Franklin Roosevelt and the New Deal, a part of which was a five-position branch exchange with more than 200 official extensions and 20 outside trunk lines.

President Hoover was enough of a business man to use the phone when he needed it, but he wasn't given to airy perflage.

Then along came the first woman telephone operator and probably the most efficient of either sex that the White House ever had or will have.

Before she came the first woman telephone operator and probably the most efficient of either sex that the White House ever had or will have.

On the eve of the last session, the lady from Massachusetts made a last ditch effort.

"I do not know how the members can go back and do it now. I do not know how I can go back," she cried.

Thrifty Yarn Rugs Easily

Made at Home, Even by Novices

By Ertla Halcy

"I'D LOVE to do something to my house," one often hears women say, "but what can I do that won't run into too much money?"

Another thing that's nice about the rugs is that they can be easily laundered at home, if you wish to save expensive professional cleaning costs, because cotton yarns are featured in many of the new rugs.

Bedrooms, bathrooms, play rooms and the like are easy to brighten and freshen with these new rugs. Consider the color scheme of the room carefully, select your yarns and go to work.

Whether you have an old machine or a new one, it's possible to secure a handcraft guide attachment that winds cotton yarns in varying thicknesses.

Whether you are making a hooked rug, or a tufted rug, you will need backing for that, too. It's best to lay the backing on a table or other smooth surface where you can stretch it in your design.

For hooked rugs, too, you will need a frame. This may be purchased or made at home from any good grade of well-seasoned wood, using wood one inch thick and two inches wide.

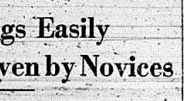

A rug that's good to use in the sitting room or hallway is an unfringed yarn rug in the traditional pattern of the traditional hooked rug. Use a deep color such as maroon for the border, with perhaps pink yarn for the oval center.

Use These Tips
For Hooked Rugs
Strips should be cut about one-half inch in width, although woollens are cut to work if they are about one-fourth to three-eighths inches wide.

Hold the strips of fabric under the rug foundation between thumb and forefinger of the hand. Hold rug hook lightly in the palm of the right hand, slip the hook down through the meshes of the fabric, catch the fiber strip, bring it to the surface and disengage the hook.

Some of the most beautiful foot-warmers you've ever seen have been made with "New" fabric treatments of the finest leathers, often further dramatized by color combinations, plus an equally wide variety of interesting designs in intricate strip arrangements. For pretty feet, are being shown.

Stitched Rugs

Here you see a thrifty home seamstress stitching a half-finished rug. You can easily master the art of stitching yarns to backing for a rug with the aid of the handcraft guide attachment for your sewing machine.

Whether you are making a hooked rug, or a tufted rug, you will need backing for that, too. It's best to lay the backing on a table or other smooth surface where you can stretch it in your design.

For hooked rugs, too, you will need a frame. This may be purchased or made at home from any good grade of well-seasoned wood, using wood one inch thick and two inches wide.

A rug that's good to use in the sitting room or hallway is an unfringed yarn rug in the traditional pattern of the traditional hooked rug. Use a deep color such as maroon for the border, with perhaps pink yarn for the oval center.

Use These Tips
For Hooked Rugs
Strips should be cut about one-half inch in width, although woollens are cut to work if they are about one-fourth to three-eighths inches wide.

Hold the strips of fabric under the rug foundation between thumb and forefinger of the hand. Hold rug hook lightly in the palm of the right hand, slip the hook down through the meshes of the fabric, catch the fiber strip, bring it to the surface and disengage the hook.

Some of the most beautiful foot-warmers you've ever seen have been made with "New" fabric treatments of the finest leathers, often further dramatized by color combinations, plus an equally wide variety of interesting designs in intricate strip arrangements. For pretty feet, are being shown.

Soils Need Air for Total Crop Growth

Increasing Depth of Aeration Boosts Yield

"Stuffy" soils that have little or no oxygen available to the plant roots that grow in them just are not able to support high crop yields. Hard working plant roots need oxygen if they are to do a good job of supporting the plant and collecting plant food for the above ground part.

Working with muck soil, N. K. Ellis, Purdue university, and Richard Morris, U. S. soil conservation service, found that when liberal quantities of oxygen penetrated the soil only four inches the yield of red beets, sweet corn, onions and Caisiepea potatoes was small.

The yield of carrots went from 3 to 33 tons per acre when the depth of aeration was increased from 4 to 18 inches. Sweet corn yield went from 3 to 4.75 tons; onions from 45 to 275 50-pound bags; red beets from 3.75 to 13.5 tons and potatoes from about 12 to 258 bushels per acre.

Oxygen in the soil for the use of the plant roots is the logical reason for the difference in crop yields. Adequate plant food was available on all the plots. Rainfall during the season was sufficient to eliminate water as a limiting crop production factor on the muck soils.

YOU CAN EXCUSE THE CHINAMEN

A reporter for the Christian Science Monitor tells of three Chinese who worked for six years in Cuba under the protection of the United States, earning a comparatively fabulous American salary. When asked if they had ever heard of democracy, they looked blank. He then asked them whether they had ever heard of Communism. They answered enthusiastically in the affirmative. Furthermore, the reporter said they all thought they would prefer living under the Communists in northern China on their return home. They have read about Communism, but never have heard or read the democratic way of life under which they are living so happily. Like the rest of us, they take for granted American democracy.

The government of the United States has functioned through the years for one purpose—to protect the dignity and freedom of its citizens. Individual initiative and endeavor built the economy which makes this type of government possible and keeps it operating effectively. Yet, in the last decade and a half there has been a clear trend in the direction of government ownership of industry. Dollars have been spent to establish government in the business of generating and distributing electric power alone, in tax-exempt competition with the investor-owned tax-paying electric industry. A great hydroelectric system proposed for the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, with no tion of the effect on existing private utilities in the two valleys. Each proposal by men high in government echo the hollow-ness of the three Chinese who lived under democracy in Cuba but didn't know what it was. If this nation is to survive as a land of liberty, the government cannot go on expanding in fields that are the province of the private citizen.

BETWEEN THE DEADLINES

The Fair is over, the fun is gone and so is the money. Everyone is broke but "it wuz fun while it lasted" and nearly everyone is setting back with a deep sigh and already telling their plans for the next Fair. The Renfro Valley Stables owned by Mr. Lair, done right well at the fair. Virginia Lee Lair took the championship trophy and first prize in the three-gaited stakes. A Fair took the Courier-Journal Trophy for the best boy or girl rider from 12 to 15. Also won was the third premium in five-gaited pony riding. Add to that the fact that they brought home eleven blue ribbons, four second premiums, five third premiums and you have a nice selection. The Renfro Stables have also taken prizes and ribbons at the Morehead horse show, Blue Grass Fair and horse show, Winchester-Kiwanis horse show and the American Legion Fair at Lawrenceburg this year.

Had a letter from Mr. Steve Guthrie. It read in part as follows: "I was visiting in Rockcastle recently... my wife, daughter, and I started to Saltpetre Cave and were caught in a storm on Gonyea mountain, along with about fifteen or twenty more. We took shelter in a small one-room school house. The storm was so bad that it took me and five others to hold the door shut. It moved the building about six inches on its foundation. Would like to hear from some of them. Saw in your paper where someone up on Gonyea mountain had a farm he wanted to trade for a farm. Well if that storm we went through is a sample, I wouldn't trade my Studebaker for the Guthrie Mountain. Steve Guthrie, 714 N. Union St., Union City, Ind. P.S. am sending my subscription to the Signal."

WHERE IS OUR CONSTITUTION?

One thing that the controversy of whether or not to revise the state constitution has brought to light is the fact that no one knows where it is, neither the handwritten original nor the board-bound type-written and signed official copy of the state's fourth charter, adopted Sept. 28, 1891, are available. No one has any ideas as to where it or any of the other three originals are.
