Woman's World Analyze Face, Figure Problems Then Dress According to Rules

By Erta Haley

WOMEN just wouldn't be women, would they, if they were content just to put on any kind of dress without heed to its cut and color and fit?

As has mentioned before, statistics show that very few of us are without some failing of face and figure, but these deviations generally are easily overcome with proper dress, good make-up and some down-right common sense.

The question of how to dress in uppermost in most women's minds right at the moment, now that fashions have taken such a radical turn...

Just how far can we go in following the new fashions? I would say, continue to use common sense about the problem, and do not wear anything in which you don't feel at ease.

Choose These Types If You're Tall If you are a tall girl with a short waist, don't ever wear the dierection type of dress with the high waistline and the long skirt. You will be much better fitted if you try to pull attention downward with the long torso line. A wide draped skirt to match the blouse also will give the

Be Smart! The young woman usually has neither of these problems. Her abdomen may be a slightly rounded concern and a roll of flesh at the waistline. The just usually requires suspensory support as well as a degree of separation best suited to the individual.

The mature woman will want to select a garment that is somewhat heavier than the other two mentioned above. Light boning usually is necessary as it helps to flatten hips and abdomen.

The large-figured matron needs still another type of garment. Heavy boning, both heavier material and elastic and perhaps even lacing are essential to proper foundation for her dress.

Did you ever think of giving prize-winning jellies or home preserved things for presents? They are one of the most pleasant gifts to receive as well as to give, and with their variety of colors you can make a sparkling array of them very appropriate for holiday giving.

It's true that the jelly season is past, and few fresh berries are available, but then many homemakers have put up their own jelly. For those who do not have these resources, try a canned or bottled juice like grape, and make use of the citrus fruits.

If you want to do something particularly nice, make a few batches of cottage cheese purée up your own jars. They'll be a welcome addition to anyone's menu, now that supplies of that food are low and you're trying to use it as an economical cut for budget purposes.

Grape Jelly. (From bottled juice) 8 cups sugar 2 cups bottled grape juice 1/2-cup bottled liquid pectin

Combine sugar and juice into a measure sugar and mix. If you use an unweakened juice, add 1/2 cup of sugar. Bring to a boil over high heat.

Combine water and pectin at once, stirring constantly. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil for 30 seconds.

Remove from heat and skim. Pour into hot sterile jelly glasses and cover with paraffin at once. Makes about five 8-ounce glasses.

Grape and Mint Jelly. 1/2 cup cold water 1/2 cup bottled grape juice 1/2 cup lemon juice 1-ounce package of powdered fruit pectin 4 cups granulated sugar 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoons peppermint extract

Combine water, grape and lemon juice in kettle. Stir in pectin. Heat to a full rolling boil, stirring constantly. Stir in lemon juice. Heat to a full rolling boil and boil for 5 minutes. Remove from heat and discard.

Add extract. Then pour into freshly sterilized glasses and pour hot paraffin at once. This makes about seven 6-ounce glasses.

Thriftily Marmalade. (Makes eight 6-ounce glasses) 3 cups prepared fruit 8 cups sugar 1/4 bottle fruit pectin

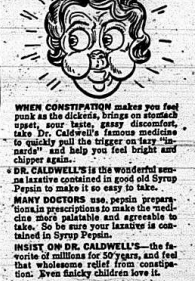

To prepare fruit, use skins from 6 medium oranges and 2 medium lemons, sliced in quarters. Lay quarters flat; shave off and discard about half of the white part. Put yellow rinds through food chopper twice. Add 2 1/2 cups water, 2 lemons, 1/2 teaspoon soda and 1 cup sugar. (This 1 cup of sugar is in addition to the 5 cups mentioned above.) Bring to a boil and simmer, covered, for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, pour in the hot syrup and add a cup of water, if necessary. Mix well and bring to a

IS AMERICA BLIND?

It is an ironical fact that America's communists and fellow travelers always scream to high heaven about their Constitutional rights when called to the witness stand. They fervidly embrace the protections which the communist ideology, by its very essence, is determined to destroy.

They have, of course, a perfect right to do this. The Constitution was drawn to defend the liberties of people of all political faiths, all races, and all creeds. But there is a humor in seeing it used as a defense by men and women who would destroy it.

From the point of view of the individual, there is little difference between a communist, a nazi, a fascist, or a fanatical government. Every kind of totalitarian state is built on the same set of principles. Every one of them says, in effect, that the state is supreme, and that the individual is nothing. There can be no such thing as personal liberty—the right to do, think and speak what one pleases. They are concerned with men and women only in the mass—as millions of slaves who may be used ruthlessly to advance the purpose of the state.

In this country, the totalitarian forces are small in number. But they are extremely well organized, and they are adept at deception and deceit. They are skilled at waving the flag, and at demanding in the name of democracy measures which would destroy democracy. They are solidly behind every project which would weaken free enterprise, which would increase industrial strife, and which would pit class against class. The boring, from within technique has been detailed and perfected by the advocates of the superstate from Marx on down. It is an essential prelude to revolution and internal chaos which permits a "strong man" to seize power.

A nation can save itself from ultimate dictatorship in only one way—by aggressively fighting every movement which would in any way circumscribe economic and social freedom. There can be no such thing as a limited freedom. We will have all or none. The forces of totalitarianism count heavily upon American blindness and tolerance as an aid to their work. The American people must prove them mistaken.

WHERE THE CURE LIES

The United States is a big country, rich in natural resources. It is also one of the most wasteful countries on earth. American carelessness permits the destruction of enough wealth to feed and supply a lesser nation.

Fire waste is a conspicuous example. Not long ago we suffered a series of terrible hotel fires, with a ghastly loss of life. A short time later the cataclysm at Texas City occurred. Most recently, we have witnessed the enormously destructive forest fires in New England, which completely wiped whole towns from the face of the earth, and turned millions of feet of fine timber into ashes.

These great fires made the headlines. But the bulk of our fire loss is made up of thousands of "little" fires which few people ever heard about. A home or a factory or a barn burns. The loss in each case may be relatively small. But when it is all added up, the total comes to some $800,000,000 a year—and more than ten thousand lives. The indirect money loss is estimated to be two or three times as great as the direct loss. It is measured in diminished industrial and agricultural production, in unemployment, in reduced opportunities, and in the loss of taxable resources.

Every expert knows that we can prevent around 90 per cent of all fires. The President's conference on fire safety, held in Washington last May, laid down a splendid, all-inclusive program for battling the menace on national, state and local levels, and for educating the public. But it cannot succeed unless it is given a full measure of support by all the people. The great majority of fires are the result of individual carelessness and ignorance. And the cure lies with the individual.
