Absolute Auction

At 1:30 P. M. — Rain Or Shine

LOCATION—This choice commercial and residential property is nicely located on Sand Springs Road at intersection of Highway No. 150 in the good town of Mt. Vernon, Ky. Location is good for town trade and fine for rural business, a "last chance," so to speak, when leaving Mt. Vernon on the South. This is a well established location and a money maker.

The lot on which the storebuilding is located has a frontage of the newly paved Sand Springs Road of 165 feet and a depth of 130 feet. Front portion of this large building consists of a storeroom 24 x 30 feet with veranda, side porch enters into North apartment of four ample sized rooms and building has a dandy five room apartment on the South rear of building; separate entrances to both with electricity throughout.

This building is in splendid repair and has been recently painted. A truly ideal location to enter into business for yourself with more than ample living quarters in conjunction. Both apartments would rent readily as would the storeroom and at good figures. Considering either reason for buying would give you a splendid opportunity for your own business or an investment with steady income.

Properties like this are not often available and when priced are very high, but this sale presents to you an opportunity to own and operate your own business with living quarters and at YOUR OWN PRICE.

We urge the closest inspection and cordially invite you to attend this Absolute Auction on SATURDAY, APRIL 10th, AT 1:30 P.M. and respectfully ask you to pay clever Bob Hamm and his good wife a reasonable price for their valuable property.

TAX ALL BUSINESS!

Angered over the tax-free advantage of numerous Federal Agencies and corporations, wrote John P. Gallahan in the New York Times of January 18, "The American Municipal Association last week girded itself for a drive on Congress to enact legislation that would add more than a billion dollars to municipal treasuries all over the country."

Federal business activities, which have little or no connection with the basic constitutional duties of the government, have reached plague dimensions in the last fifteen years or so. More and more land has been acquired by the Federal agencies, which now own almost half of the eleven western states. The military forces own various industrial properties which have been leased to private business but which, because of their ownership, escape all or part of the taxes they would otherwise pay. And, most important of all, the Federal government has gone into the electric power business on an enormous scale, depriving the municipalities and all other units of government of the heavy tax revenues the private utilities would pay.

This would be a grave matter at any time. It is especially grave now that the burden of taxation and the task of servicing and retiring the national debt are among our toughest national problems. The Municipal Association, whose membership represents close to 10,000 communities, will perform a service to all the country if it can make publicly operated business which competes with private business, comply with the tax laws that apply to all private citizens. It is high time to weed out the tax dodgers.

SHOOTING THE WORKS

Just what is the oil industry doing to meet the extraordinary rise in demand which has caused shortages in some sections of the country? That important question is given a comprehensive answer by the American Petroleum Institute.

First of all, the industry is in the midst of a $4,000,000 expansion program, covering the 1947-48 period. This year alone it will drill about 35,000 new wells, for a new high record.

It has plans underway for construction of refinery facilities with a capacity of 450,000 barrels of crude a day, and this figure may be augmented.

It is building new pipe lines, increasing the capacity of old ones, and otherwise expanding its transportation equipment. Marketing and distribution facilities are also being substantially enlarged.

In short, the oil industry is shooting the works in an effort to bring demand and supply into perfect balance. At the present, our proved crude oil reserve is at a record high. Five thousand of the 35,000 wells which will be drilled in 1948 are for exploratory purposes in the hope of finding additional reserves. The industry's problem is not only that of meeting current consumption. It must follow sound conservation practices which will assure an adequate oil output in the years to come.

No one has really suffered for lack of oil. The shortages have been spotty and relatively short-lived. The future is expected to bring steady improvement.

NAVAL AIR POWER

In some quarters, there seems to have been a feeling that Naval air power is a matter of relatively small importance and that, should war come again, the Air Force, with its land-based planes, can handle the jobs of both defense and attack.

That point of view was expressed in an address before an American Legion conference by John Nicholas Brown, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air.

A carrier-task force, he pointed out, is an enormous, mobile air base, well protected against any form of attack, with its own fuel storage, repair shops, quarters for personnel—and, most important, its own flying fields, which are the carrier decks. Seventy-tenths of the world is covered by water, and these floating bases can go anywhere they may be needed. In the last war, carrier-based and amphibious naval planes carried much of the burden of air war in the Pacific before we were able to seize and develop land bases. And, even as the war moved toward its end, Naval air power remained a decisive factor.

In Mr. Brown's words, "The defense of the country against enemy attack is the first duty of the Air Force, and that is a duty that couldn't be performed by any other service. For there is no competition between the Air Force and the air power of the Navy. They are complementary, and the functions of each do not duplicate those of the other. Together, under unified command, they provide an assortment of tools which is essential."

Each of our military forces must have the weapons necessary to the accomplishment of its natural missions. Any other policy would lead to disaster.

The Garden

Among the first garden vegetables started are greens and lettuce, and the time is just as soon as land may be got ready.

As with all leaf crops, the soil must be made rich with poultry manure or with high grade fertilizer. The best to be found is 6-8-8, unless fortunately ammonium nitrate or nitrate of soda may be discovered for poultry manure. The rate is one bushel to 250 square feet, spaded under or chopped in deep. For compact grade fertilizer the amount is one pound to 30 square feet chopped in; for either of the nitrates, one pound to 100 square feet or in lightly. If these crops are sown in rows, side-dressing with the above materials helps tremendously. The best are Dwarf Essex Rape (sometimes called spring smooth kale), Blue Scotch Kale, Southern Curled Mustard, and Bloomsdale Spinach. The row-spacing rate for all except spinach is one ounce to 250 feet of spinach, one ounce to 50 feet.

As for lettuce, there are two kinds, leaf and heading. Sometimes these are Dwarf Essex rows, one ounce to 250 feet; sometimes in solid beds, one ounce to 400 square feet. Sow in rows and do not use narcotic plants or heads. Thinnings should be done to 6 inches, the thinnings used as leaf lettuce. Lettuce makes heads of itself if a heading sort is used. Another way for the heads to attain satisfactory size and hardness is to take up seedlings with about 4 "rough" leaves and reset them 6 to 8 inches apart in rows. But the earlier all this is done, the more likely head lettuce succeeds, as after warm weather comes any loose heads result, if in fact the plants do not immediately bolt to seed.

Varieties of leaf lettuce are Simpson and Grand Rapids, and of the new sort Slobol, which as its name implies stays edible even after the season has made other sorts shaggy weeds. Of heading sorts, there are three well suited to Kentucky's climate: New York, Great Lakes and Bibb. Of these, Bibb is the finest, but it is the most sensitive to warm weather.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS
Masaryk's Death Crystallizes Red Menace as U.S. Prepares to Act; Spring Rash of Strikes Breaks Out

(EDITOR'S NOTE: These columns appear in this column, they are based on Western Newsweek; unless otherwise noted, they are not necessarily the viewpoint.)

MASARYK'S Death in Prague

Whether Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovakia's foreign minister, took his own life or was liquidated by the Communists really doesn't make any difference.

The Communist government had announced that he had leaped to his death from a third, second or third-floor window (it is now impossible to choose their own version of the foreign office in Prague).

Later reports by highly authoritative persons—Masaryk had been murdered by Communists. An alleged "eyewitness" testified that he had seen Masaryk's body after its exposure to a "concrete pavement" and that it bore no evidence that the foreign minister had died in such a hasty fashion.

Supporting the murder theory was the fact that Masaryk was reported to have met President Edvard Benes, who chose his death, and the two were said to have planned something the Communists wished to prevent.

Unidentified Czechoslovakians who have escaped from Prague reported also that President Benes was a prisoner of the Communist secret police.

But whether Jan Masaryk, son of the founder of the Czechoslovakian republic, had been murdered or he died by suicide, his intolerable position, one thing was certain—Communists had killed him just as surely as if they had put a pistol to his head and pulled the trigger.

Masaryk took his own life it was not just because he was seeking an escape, but because it was the last service he could do for his country—throwing light, by his own destruction, on the terrible, destructive force that is communism.

NERVES: Warlike
The dramatic, ostentatious flailing of muscles by the United States and Russia was, it appeared, shifting in status from a cold war to a war of nerves.

There were the unmistakable signs of the military preparing to reassert itself. Many reserve officers had received letters, warning them to get out of the country, although they were not being called to active duty immediately, they would do well to get out themselves—for such a possible eventuality.

In the Pentagon building in Washington, army planners were working late at their desks. Procurement officers were reported to be showing great interest in cement factories, since cement is vital in building underground shelters and fortifications.

Russian troops were said to be massing in eastern Germany, but one of the reasons for this was that whether this was a bluff or a threat of retaliation to the Marshall plan and union of western Europe, or a show of force intended to influence the coming elections in Italy.

But President Truman himself prophesied the worst outcome of war (itters when he publicly proclaimed that his faith in real peace had been shaken).

The European recovery plan should be carried out promptly.

The U. S. encourages formation of what Marshall called a political association in western Europe as the first step toward restoring stability.

Spread of Communist governments anywhere in the world, including China, is opposed by the American government which will do everything in its power to block communism.

The U. S. will continue to offer world peace wherever possible.

Science Talent Quest Shows Aid To Progress

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON—I don't often go into such intimate matters as private murders in these columns, but I have been impressed lately by the real tragedy of the untrammeled spirit of modern youth, whose repressions and inhibitions have been removed by thoughtful parents who use reason instead of the cruel discipline such as I have suffered—having to go to bed without supper, for instance, when I was impudent to my elders, or being kept in the house for throwing my arithmetic at the cat instead of doing my homework, or having my mouth washed out with scum soap when I used language unbecoming a future commentator.

Recently a pretty little brunette was laid back by having to leave the city to dwell with her parents in some dull rural area of Missouri before. After shooting Mama and Papa, she stuffed them behind the sofa and tried to dispose of their property. Then there was the poor little seventh-grader who smarted under thoughtless flogging by a farmer who thought the youth displayed poor form in sawing wood. The boy shot the old man and dumped him in a creek.

There was the 16-year-old girl from Portsmouth, Va., who playfully snared five G.I.'s with greaser shells by throwing my arithmetic at the cat instead of doing my homework, or having my mouth washed out with scum soap when I used language unbecoming a future commentator.

There was the 16-year-old girl from Portsmouth, Va., who playfully snared five G.I.'s with greaser shells by throwing my arithmetic at the cat instead of doing my homework, or having my mouth washed out with scum soap when I used language unbecoming a future commentator.

Perhaps it wouldn't have helped, though, when the salting of the world was such bad examples.

Barbara Claire Wolff, who plans to become a geneticist, is shown with the equipment she uses to research phenetics.

In editing her school paper, practicing the modern dance and enjoying her clubs, which include math, cancer and microscopy organizations.

Young Kende's project has to do with removing or reducing explosion hazards in the chemical process by which such modern synthetics as the silicones, sex hormones and some synthetic rubbers are produced commercially.

These 40 finalists were nominated by Watson Davis, Science Service director; Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard college observatory, and W. W. Waymouth, atomic energy commissioner, that it is not, enough these days, however, for scientists to stick their heads in the sand, letting the rest of the world go by.

As Dr. Shapley put it: "Don't be so laborious in your laboratories that you ignore your responsibilities as citizens." And as Waymouth warned: "Nowadays the scientist must not only aid in the creation of knowledge, but in the dissemination and use of that knowledge for the general welfare."

Unfortunately, there are all too few trained scientists in this atomistic age. As the report of the President's scientific research board pointed out, the technological and scientific progress of this country depends upon one-tenth of 1 per cent of the population—some 750,000 persons.

This small group comprises the trained manpower—the scientists, technicians and engineers upon which the operation and the expansion of our economy depends. And those actually in scientific research, technical development or teaching comprise a much smaller group within this pool—only 137,000 persons.

The science talent search and slant projects undertaken to discover and encourage youthful scientific talents are helping to ensure the future security and prosperity of the United States which depend as never before on the rapid extension of scientific knowledge—not only because the laboratory is the first line of defense in wartime and the scientist is the indispensable warrior in the present cold war, but because it is the basis for our progress against poverty and disease.

Exp. I. can upset the budget again this year. In its attempt to win Mr. Truman's spending, congress makes no allowance for nearly 500 million dollars still unclaimed in terminal leave pay due soldiers.

The President's bulging budget set aside only five million dollars for this item, just 1 per cent of the total possible cost.

In contrast to the usual Hollywood practice, the government's film production includes one of the most "thrillers." Latest 25-minute short subject made by Uncle Sam bears the prosaic title, "Toward a Unilateral Project and Miss Wolff and 'hookers' cover movies on United States control, Japanese agriculture, foot and mouth disease.

Some of the people who say they would rather be right than president don't get the chance they deserve.

CHARCOAL-TYPE BROILING

ANOTHER REASON WHY Cooking's going Electric

You've never tasted more luscious steaks than you get from the charcoal-type broiler of a modern electric range.

It supplies flameless "glowing ember" type heat and a speed needed to make steaks brown and crisp on the outside and tender and juicy on the inside.

You can broil a thick steak in ten minutes—and do it without stooping or squatting because the broiler is up off the floor at a handy working level.

For faster, easier broiling and for better results from all cooking operations, make your next range an electric. It's the modern way!

THE FICTION Corner THE SLOW AND CAREFUL By JOHN SCOTT DOUGLAS

YOU can't make fast moves when a hand is being held... He eyed a fanny hand as she puffed a drumstick into the puttering grease.

'Hello, Bill,' she said. 'I want you to meet...'

'Sierra foothills,' I answered. 'I'm taking my bees down to Redlands to pollinate the Earlard orchard.'

'Bill has a pollinating service,' Emmy explained. 'Arsenic sprays will soon destroy the bees and you'll have to bring his hives, so the bees will bring fruit.'

'I see,' Launson said, the wisp of black mustache over his thin lips. 'You're kidding.'

'I couldn't make up my mind whether he was one of those robber-bees that steal honey from another hive...'

'I asked about his horses while Emmy cooked supper...'

'Now Emmy has a heart as big as a six-piper...'

'After supper I had to have to get her out in the fields of the Redlands orchard before sun-up...'

'I wasn't planned to visit a while longer...'

'It was two weeks before I got back to Okemok...'

'Well, supper didn't go so well that night...'

'After supper, I was on my feet...'

'By faith I drink the water in my cup...'

'I take believing that the light is gone...'

'My faith is to meet my busy day...'

'Across the earth, by my impudencies...'

weak chin would hurt my swollen... 'Oh, Bill,' Emmy said affectionally... 'You have to work so hard? You haven't an ounce of flesh!'

'When I came inside later to wash up, Emmy was just putting the last steaming dishes on the table.'

'Where's Mr. Launson? She asked. 'Last I saw him,' I said, looking in my mapkin...'

'I know there how he's felt when you shake their hair on a cold day...'

'I was nearly a month before I could get back...'

'I guess something I said startled me to move on saying I'd never get anywhere with you, Emmy...'

'I don't know Emmy was expecting you,' I said. 'Just in time for supper...'

'I wondered whether Launson's point. Only rarely is there total peace...'

'Maybe you'd like to have me tell you very briefly about the various escape routes that the mind follows when things get too hot...'

'They are 13. First comes regression, which means to go backward...'

'If the watchman faithfully warns the people, and they refuse to listen...'

'And in this same 13th chapter, Ezekiel goes on to declare God's attitude toward all sinners...'

'A WATCHMAN UNTO EXILES' SON OF MAN, I have made thee a watchman unto the house of Israel...'

'The Jews were far from their beloved home...'

'With a sensitive soul, Ezekiel comes to them with the word of hope...'

'We, too, are watchmen among you...'

'The churches will fail if the lessons of Sunday are forgotten on Monday...'
