"LOVE-FROM FRANCIS X. BUSHMILLER," HMM, AND MOM GETS MAD 'CAUSE I COLLECT PICTURES OF TYRONE POWER!"

BASEBALL'S YOUTHFUL SEASON is not very old, but enough has happened to prove this will be another tough year on the pitchers.

"Pitching still will decide both pennants," he said, "as erratic as the pitching has been so far. The Cardinals will get the best pitching in the National League after things have settled down, and warm weather has come along.

"The Dodgers have little quality on their pitching staff, but they have a world of quantity. They have about 10 pitchers who are just about the same, and few of these can go five innings. They are the wildest bunch of throwers, not pitchers, I've ever seen. They can be, and will be, dangerous.

"I feel sure the Dodgers have too much youth and speed--too many good arms and legs for the Giants and Braves. The Cardinals are the only team that might have them--and the Cardinals will have to keep on getting the best pitching in the league.

"Red Knapfer will have to improve, for I'm afraid Howie Pollet can't go the distance any longer. The Giants, with any sort of pitching should win the pennant. I'm afraid they are not going to get the pitching they need!"

"They have done pretty well so far," I suggested.

"I'm only telling you what I think on ahead," he said.

"They have too many pitchers who can get out--good ones start and punk the next. You can't bank on any of them to give you a sound game.

"They, how I'd like to see those Giants get good pitching. Outside of this, they have a better ball club than the Dodgers, Cardinals or Braves. The Pirates are the most improved team in either league."

"What's your slant in the American League?" I asked the older.

"No change," he said. "Still the Red Sox and Yankees. Detroit's new pitcher has been better than far. Anshov, 16 won't be good enough to lift a bad ball club. Cleveland got a great start, but Cleveland is much better, but its pitching is only fair."

"Television and Sports Sport, any game you might mention, has come face to face with its major problem--television.

"One of the major promoters in this field, one with a tremendous interest involved had this to say:

"Television is the biggest game I've ever run across in sport. We've ever run across in sport. We've ever run across in sport. We've ever run across in sport.

"NO. 1. It will help attendance and get receipts just as radio did. It will bring about increased interest in various games, especially baseball. It will give us double revenues.

"NO. 2. It will cut down attendance figures heavily. People can leave about something and want to see it. But the stadium as it is, once, they won't be so eager about seeing it again.

"NO. 3. If attendance and the gate receipts are 25 per cent, we can get our money back by lifting revenues from television. Television will have to pay for it. But how will it look to see a ball game played before 500 or 1,000 fans? That won't be so good. How will it look to see football crowds cut in two? That wouldn't look so good either.

"NO. 4. Television will have little effect on attendance, one way or another. In that case, we'll get our revenues from two sources, as we do right now.

"This is the situation," he said. "I don't know if I believe we can build up additional interest, as radio did, and increase attendance. This would be wonderful."

The Best Golf Grip Most professional golfers and most leading amateurs stand strongly by the overgripping grip. Al MacGregor always has claimed that the interlocking loosens up the two wrists--and is far more useful for those who have weak wrists.

It might surprise you to know how many golfers have passed over it. It might surprise you to know how many golfers no longer have the whiplash of youth to their hands and wrists, as the grizzled gray begins to appear at the edge of their scalps.

It is much easier to break the wrists with the interlocking than it is with the overgripping, where the little finger of the right hand is placed over the forefinger of the left--not of wedged in between the first two fingers of the left.

Two Are Held On Charge Of Rape

Two men of this county have appeared before County Judge Charles C. Carter, within the past week charged with rape.

The first to appear was Bob Lutes, 72 year old man of the Seaford Care area who was charged with the rape of a 16 year old girl from the Seaford Care Section.

The second of these men is L. A. Jesse Jackson, 31 year old resident of Livingston, charged with the rape of a 10 year old Livingston girl.

At the examining trial this morning, Jackson waived the trial and is held over until the August 16 term of the Grand Jury. Due to the age of the Livingston girl, bond was denied Jackson.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Soviets Express Desire for Peace, Agree to Discussion of Differences; U. S. Seizes Railroads—Strike Off

By Bill Schoeniger, WASH Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the writer and not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

It began with a U. S. statement of position, voiced by Bethell Smith, ambassador to the Soviet Union, in a speech before the House of Representatives.

Smith, apparently speaking offhensively, criticized the Soviet attitude toward the United States.

The present state of U. S. Soviet relations is a source of grievous disappointment to the American people.

It is not a matter of "discussion and settlement of existing differences."

Although these developments received a big push in the form of a bill passed by both nations, indications were strong that the aura of mutual hostility separating the two nations might not be dispelled by the willingness to "compose our differences."

Neither side had modified its foreign policy. Rather, each had emphasized it in the exchange of notes.

The U. S. statement said, in part: "The concern and the determination of the people of the United States have been intensified by the inexcusable hostility of the Soviet government to the European recovery program."

They reply the Soviet contrasted what they termed military threats against the Soviet-Union with the Russian government's participation in a coalition of nations.

At least there was a definition of terms and a preliminary agreement to talk things over. Whether or not any good would come of it was, at this stage, problematical.

There was a suspicion abroad that Russia, balked in its ambitions to expand into western Europe by the European recovery program, might be ready now to try to make some kind of deal.

ALL ABOARD: Trains Rind

U. S. economy escaped being a victim of railroad paralysis at the end of last week when the railroads yielded to a government order brought against them by the government and called off their rampaging strike.

Events leading up to that climax had run a course which has become familiar to strike-weary Americans.

By that time President Truman had built up a full load of steam and he opened the throttle wide. The "go-slow-no-stop" and "nation-wide trackless" such as the rail strike would be said.

Acting under the sanction of a 1916 law which authorizes the government to take over the railroads during the time of war, U. S. is still, officially, in a state of wartime emergency.

Possibly proving that there is no wind to it that it doesn't blow up some good for somebody, one of the major influences leading to cancellation of the rail strike was John D.

SMOKE, SMOKE, SMOKE Americans Burning More Cigarettes

Cigarette consumption in the U. S. in 1947 averaged an all-time high for the 14th consecutive year, despite spectacularly increased taxes which would have a subsequent postwar decline no great surprise to the industry.

UNCERTAINTY: Who Won?

Just about all that anyone was sure of from the smoke from the Ohio primary elections had cleared was that Sen. Robert Taft had won 41 delegates to the Republican national convention, and that Harold Stassen was the victor at Taft's door, had captured time.

How those results should be interpreted promised to be a thoroughly argued question by the time the Republican convened in Philadelphia to nominate a presidential candidate.

Who held the opinion that the Ohio primary resulted in an outright defeat for Stassen, at least a brusque check on the Altimessians heretofore answallowing campaign.

Stassen had competed with Taft for 23 of the state's 53 delegates. He won nine and Taft took 14.

Thus, by his own estimate, Stassen lost in Ohio. He lost, however, the favorite candidate strongly supported in his own spite by Ohio's powerful political organization.

It was hardly a victory for Taft to shout about.

In the final analysis the G.O.P. election race had not changed much. It was Taft and Dewey teaming up to force Stassen into the rail, with Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan coming up fast on the outside.

FARM ISSUE: Truman's

Rather hard put for a good, early issue to play upon in his coming campaign, President Truman has been busy with the farm program.

He began by planning a message to Congress on the subject of long-range agricultural legislation.

The message which Mr. Truman is expected to deliver will be a plea for a new farm program, particularly on soil conservation.

Many U. S. farmers would be inclined to agree.

X for Taft

Sen. Robert Taft's presidential star once again was in ascendancy following the important Ohio primary.

WHEAT: Big Crop

Word from the department of agriculture was that the U. S. would produce the third largest wheat crop in history this year.

Sullivan's Resignation

RESIGNATION OF GAEL SULLIVAN from the Democratic national committee was inevitable.

PLANT LIFE: Appetites

Atomic scientists have learned that the plant life of the human being, are finicky eaters.

Series of Contradictions Marks Political Campaign

WASHINGTON—Political currents and cross currents are running high, wide and deep along the Potomac these days.

The wave of popularity stirred up by Stassen supporters is not pleasant for regular Republicans to contemplate.

I talked to one of the Taft men recently. "What makes the Taft men," he said, "is the way the people who have done their best to break down Taft are full of praise for him now that they think he has lost."

There is plenty of old-line resentment against Stassen, not only because he began an campaign so early, but also because of the efficient, powerful, highly organized and aggressive machine he has built up.

But some observers feel as Newsweek magazine expressed it some time ago: "Stassen's forthright quest for votes may end much of the traditional conservatism of the future."

WHAT DOES A COAL STRIKE COST?

Just what did the last coal strike cost this country, its people and the world? Here is a partial answer.

Nearly 50,000,000 tons of badly needed coal were not mined. Exports needed to carry out our foreign policy had to be drastically curtailed. Thousands of automobiles were not built for the lack of steel. And thousands of coal cars, needed for next winter's peak movement, could not be manufactured.

The miners lost more than $100,000,000.00 in wages. Their welfare and pension fund lost about $5,000,000.00. And there is no way to estimate the millions lost to workers in the industries which had to cut down operations because of lack of coal supply.

The country's stockpiles of coal are easily inadequate. They cannot be rapidly replenished — supply and current demand are in close balance, and our exports must be resumed if the European Aid Program is to have a chance of success in the fight to keep Communism from dictating to the world.

All that happened because one man obviously considers his organization superior to the welfare of the United States and its domestic and international policies during a period of grave crisis. He has it in his power to bring to an almost immediate stop the basic industries of the country, and to throw armies of workers into unemployment. He can decide whether or not the American people shall or shall not have coal to heat their homes. Can any country long allow any man such great and menacing authority?

COMMUNISM IN COLLEGES

The Saturday Evening Post recently featured an impressive editorial, signed by Frederick Nelson, on the extent to which this country is being softened up by communist influences. One paragraph dealt with the dangers in current American education, and said, "Another point against the survival of our democratic system is the state of mind of an important section of America's intelligentsia — young people are taught that the achievements of successful men are due solely to 'social conditions,' that there is no law of supply and demand, only the greed of rapacious businessmen; and that the function of taxation is not to raise money for public purposes but to hamper the successful for the delight of the unsuccessful. College textbooks which reflect this defeatism were not written by Communists, but by depression-bred New Dealers. Nevertheless, their effect in weakening the influence of a capitalist economy has been tremendous."

That is a moderate statement. Some of the textbooks to which young minds are exposed in our leading colleges would shock millions of American citizens if they could read them. By direction and indirection, communism, socialism and the other isms are praised to the skies. The Soviet Union always gets an admiring hand — and the cruelties, injustices, and plain viciousness which are the hall-marks of any police state are glossed over. Nationalization of industry is urged for this country, despite the obvious fact that the destruction of free enterprise always results in the destruction of personal and all other liberties. Enormous care is taken in picking out defects in the capitalist system, and in making the inexperienced student believe they are typical.

Not all educators have become dupes of the communists and socialists. Not all textbooks reflect a totalitarian attitude. But enough do so seriously distort the outlook of the young on the world they live in. The seed is planted — and it is from such small starts that the tree of dictatorship is created.

It is one thing to describe and explain communism, fascism, socialism and all other types of government. It is a very different thing to so warp the truth as to make these systems seem superior to the American system that has given our nation unparalleled economic benefits and social freedom at the same time. That issue must be faced by those who are responsible for American education.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

Good stands when sown in standing corn on a lightly cultivated soil, and perhaps being sown at the fast cultivation with a second chance of success. The seed germinate quickly if the soil is moist and grow rapidly, making a good cover crop in a few weeks; consequently, it may prove to be the very useful for sowing in corn either to provide winter cover or to establish a permanent pasture. For either purpose suitable legumes should be sown with it in the fall or spring.

Poor stands of Kentucky 31 Fescue appear to improve rapidly because of self-seeding. Therefore one should not plow up a seemingly poor stand until it is clear that it will not become a good stand within a reasonable length of time.
Certified seed of Kentucky 31 Fescue is recommended for sowing because it is true to name, high in germination and purity, and contains no seed of the more objectionable noxious weeds.
Farmers who are planning on seeding Ky. 31 Fescue should begin now to locate the seed and get ready. We need thousands of acres of pasture improvement in the county. Ladino clover or some legume should be seeded with Ky. 31 Fescue. Orchard grass and Ladino clover makes a good pasture. All grasses should have a legume seeded with it for best results.
