

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: My house was painted five years ago with fatiguing paint. The paint is now all cracking and peeling down to the wood. Should I scrape off the old paint and apply a coat of aluminum paint, then a coat of good house paint?

ANSWER: That would be a good way to handle the problem but first estimate the walls for leakage. It is quite possible that since the house was painted five years ago, small cracks may have opened up around the window and door frames that admit water during driving rains. This rain water leaks down inside the walls and on warm, dry days is drawn through the walls, taking off paint from the surfaces.

QUESTION: Is it necessary to flush a hot water system every year or two?

ANSWER: At the beginning of the heating season it is advisable to draw off several gallons of water to flush out some of the accumulation in the boiler, but it is not necessary to drain off the entire heating system. Use a boiler cleaning compound every two or three years.

QUESTION: I would like to know if coal ash does any harm to a garden?

ANSWER: When correctly used, coal ash can be of benefit to a garden and lawn.

THE BIG CHANCE

By FREDERICK LAING

HE WASN'T the kind to pick a secretary by the color of her hair. Not Bill Hargrave. Both Paula and Nancy had been smart enough to know that. And for some time every one in the office had known that one of them, Paula or Nancy, was going to get the job. In fact, the decision probably would come through this afternoon. Hargrave was leaving town and wanted to get it settled.

The two girls could see him from their desks outside his office. Maybe it was only a set of proofs for the Zippo campaign that he was looking at with cool eyes. But for a moment his finger seemed to flick above those two efficient little push-buttons. If he pressed the left one, it would be Paula's pulse that would go into high speed.

Paula couldn't keep her eyes off that light on her desk. She kept making mistakes in her typing and nervously tipping the sheets out to start when he leaned across her typewriter and said to Nancy: "The boss is all dolled up today. Must be going on a special trip with the new president of Zippo."

She was just talking to relieve her nervousness. Nancy took her time about answering. She wasn't used to having Paula talk to her in such an intimate tone. Not since they'd learned a month ago that they were both in line for a promotion, for the important job at Bill Hargrave's secretary.

"He does look nice," she said, finally.

Hargrave was young and outside of office hours he was said to be human. But that wasn't why he'd gotten to be one of the key men at Advertising, Inc. He was quiet, and some of the boys in the office hadn't realized how fast he was traveling until they somehow happened to get in his way.

The two girls saw him get up from his desk and walk to the doorway of his office. He stood there with one hand in a pocket of his double-breasted blue flannel suit. There was a small white flower in his buttonhole and the usual keen, unrevealing smile on his face.

"Did you send for the tickets?" he asked Nancy.

"I got the tickets all right," she answered. "But..." and she tried to smile in the same hard way as the boss did. She looked as hardboiled as a white kitten. "But there just aren't any staircases to be had."

"Listen," she said. "I don't care whose reservations you have to cancel..."

Well, the job was worth going after. There was the salary, for one thing. And there was the prestige. The boss' secretary knew a lot of answers. And there were the interesting people she got to talk to. The big shots. And the boxes of perfume, flowers and candy they often left on her desk.

And there was Bill Hargrave for a boss. Young and clever and attractive. That was a factor, too. Because in the advertising business you called the boss "Bill," and he called his secretary "Nancy" or "Paula," and took her to dinner on the expense account, on nights when the work was late...

It was all strictly business, but it seemed intimate and informal. About those Paula and Nancy knew both those dinners. Bill had tried to be fair. He would talk Paula to stay one night, and then it would be Nancy's turn the next.

But Paula had been smart. She'd soon learned how important Bill Hargrave could be, even at those intimate dinners. About as personal

She handed him the envelope. It contained the two sets of tickets. "That's your statement number on the outside," she said crisply.

She had on a double-breasted blue flannel suit such as Bill's, and it was clear he thought she looked pretty smart in it. "Don't forget the time," she added, "eight fifteen."

Hargrave grinned. "So there were no staircases for love or money, eh?"

He looked again at the number of his statement and he put the envelope carefully in his inside pocket.

Then she told her. She had a new job. He mentioned the salary, too. He didn't neglect to mention the salary.

She took it just right. Just enough of gratitude. And then, the old sportmanship. How sorry she felt about Nancy. She didn't look sorry.

And neither did she. He told her it was okay, that Nancy wasn't made for the job anyway, and that they were leaving on their honeymoon tonight. Tonight, at eight fifteen.

And for the next 10 minutes, half the office force could hear Paula snappily telling the ticket agent where to get off.

envelope carefully in his inside pocket. Then she told her. She had a new job. He mentioned the salary, too. He didn't neglect to mention the salary.

When Hargrave finally pressed one of those buttons it was at Paula's desk that the light flickered. She started to make a grab for her note book, but she whipped out her mirror first. Then she grabbed up her note book and an envelope that was on the desk.

As for Nancy, what else could she do but sit there with her pretty blonde head bent over her typewriter? Nancy was a natural blonde, and that seemed the best way to describe her. She just didn't seem to know any tricks.

The moment Paula got inside Hargrave's office, he asked about that statement.

"Any luck, Paula?"

Not much. Paula had been dumb. It was the little things that would add with Mr. Bill. Orchestra seats when the client was in town and the show was sold out. Or a staircase when there were "no staircases to be had for love or money."

Tricks for Jeers

Wise Guys
Clip this paragraph out for your own favorite Joe and, if you can take a hint, he'll come around next time like something out of the Smart set.

Somebody's kidding you about a smart magazine. It's a smart magazine. It's a smart magazine. You boys how you look about their clothes, anyway?

COULD-YOU COME-ON - By actual survey, we find that your high school Jinks think every boy looks his best in a corduroy jacket. You're partial to the light tan jobs, worn with sharp slacks. You also like to date something in a three-quarter length corduroy coat. And, with his letter sweater, you think yellow corduroy slacks make him look as suave as Rory Calhoun.

BEAUX WITHOUT BOWS - The man who shows us that you're against bow ties—but go all out for wild four-hand ties that light up the dark without benefit of electricity.

On his ties you like one of those new clasp ties that looks as if it had been pierced right through the fabric. In fact, you like them so much that you're begging, borrowing, or stealing them from him.

Well, if at first you don't succeed, try another one—just one, just cry again!

LET'S FACE IT
Parties will be disappointing. Until with this you're coped: This can never be as good as in advance you're hoped.

BRING 'EM BACK ALIVE!
The revival of "Gone With the Wind" has made lots of you wonder where there's that music yeller, and why doesn't someone bring them back. When you enjoy a book you read it over over. How many times have you read "Seventeenth Summer"?

But when you enjoy a movie—it's usually only the memory that lingers on; the movie itself disappears like yesterday's snow. According to a recent soda fountain survey, here are the topics you'd like to see popcorn through the window.

"STATE FAIR"—Jeanette was so lovely—and there must be a word for Dana, but we can't think of it. When you meet her, she says "JOLSON STORY"—It's practically everyone's choice for a revival at least once a month.

"MEX MINTYER"—a girl'll even forgive Greer for "Desire Me" if she'll bring the Minivers back to town with her.

When you come to movies—one good showing deserved another.

THE HOPE FOR THE MESSIAH

Lesson for June 29, 1948

The hope for the Messiah first revealed to Adam—In Genesis 1:15, and repeated to Abraham, Moses, David and Isaiah, was now proclaimed through Ezekiel, Daniel and used for the exhortation of the Jews.

There are the hope of preservation, the hope of peace, the hope of security, the hope of usefulness, the hope of deliverance, the hope of freedom, the hope of service, the hope of hope, the hope of hope, the hope of hope, the hope of hope.

A PROMISE FROM GOD

There is no fabled scheme of man. It is God's sacred promise. Therefore will I save my flock, and I will set up on Shepherd over them, and he shall feed them.

God goes on to promise them peace by ridding them of danger and security through his blessing upon the land. "There shall be showers of blessing."

LOOKING FOR A BETTER WAY

LONG had the people looked for a better way. Now God would provide that better way. It would be worked safe unto them through the God Shepherd. He knows the way, he holds the key.

The wretched hearts of the people were weighed safe unto them through the God Shepherd. He knows the way, he holds the key.

The wretched hearts of the people were weighed safe unto them through the God Shepherd. He knows the way, he holds the key.

DANIEL'S DREAM OF THE DELIVERER

The passage in Daniel is recorded. "I saw in the night a vision, and behold one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven."

This vision of the coming Messiah is every bell ringing in the heart of humanity.

SAVIOUR KING FOREVER

ALL the promises are embodied in these passages—Jesus the Saviour, Jesus the King.

With Charles Wesley we sing: Hail, thou long-expected Jesus, Born to set thy people free; From sin and death release us, Let us find our rest in thee.

Born to reign, and yet to King, Born to reign in us forever, Now thy gracious kingdom bring.

Christian Generosity

On occasions a collection is taken in a church to help to relieve poor men's distress. For any such generosity let us be thankful. But let us also remember that that sort of thing is done only occasionally in a liquor joint and it is the regular habit in a church—Roy L. Smith.

No Grim Struggle

To become a musician you don't get your teeth for a grim struggle. The basic fact for successful living is that life is easier to serve you. Approach that basic fact as a challenge, not a lick. It is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom!—Virgil Kraft.

Hairs are not hairs

The care universally taken of straggling hair and nail pointing to the old superstition that power may be gained over another by the possession of anything that has belonged to him or has in any way formed part of his personality.

Today, from 40 to 45 million people will die as a result of accidents. This is the daily average.

Reused Bernard Forests
Cones of some species of pine trees require the best of a forest fire to open them, releasing their seeds. Therefore vast amounts of good seed are accumulated through the years which automatically are burned over areas after the forest fire has taken the cones to open.

Law passed by congress provides that "the flag should never be placed upon it, nor any part of it, nor attached to it any mark, insignia, letter, word, figure, design, picture or drawing of any nature."

Disinfectant and Antiseptic
A "disinfectant" is a product that destroys disease germs or makes them harmless. An "antiseptic" is a substance that prevents development and growth of disease germs.

Early English Wage Law
England had a minimum wage law under Queen Elizabeth, in which justices of the peace determined laborers' pay, and it remained in force for 150 years.

Fly Immunity to DDT Is Debatable Question
Some Insects Develop Strain of Resistance

Do flies become immune or resistant to DDT after it has been used for a few years?

This question arises from the fact that a few fly-control failures on farms where DDT was effective in other years have been hard to account for. The explanation was that the flies probably had become resistant to the chemical.

Uncle Sam's entomologists admit that insects can develop resistance to the insecticide used against them, as in the case of the apple codling moth against which lead arsenate lost its effectiveness. Moreover, Uncle Sam's bug men say they have, in the laboratory, been able to develop a DDT-resistant strain of flyer. It is not likely that DDT-resistant strains would develop naturally in the short-time since DDT was first used.

It is more reasonable to believe that the occasional failure of DDT where DDT already has been used with good results is due to carelessness or inferior product.

One thing in particular that should accompany the use of DDT is the destruction or removal of fly breeding places, such as manure piles, water tubs, old stables, broken wet spots in barnyards. One or more such spots may be able to turn out flies faster than DDT can kill them, for DDT is not used for fast action. A fly may survive for hours after alighting on a surface treated with DDT.

Herds and Flocks

New insecticide, pyrethrum, has proved its effectiveness in control of flies on livestock. Better than some of the old-time fly killing insecticides, the new material is being used now in some livestock fly sprays.

Use of protein supplements in rations for sheep always has been recommended. Some farmers have failed to use these supplements, though, because of their cost. Now that grain is so high, the cost of protein supplements is relatively low. So, if the use of supplements is more important one time than another, now is that time.

It looks now like the farmer who has a flock of good pullets in the laying house next fall will get good prices for eggs. The better care you take of pullets now, the better they will be able to stand up under the strain of heavy laying next fall.

Benzene hexachloride, recommended by avian specialists at agricultural colleges for control of hog lice and mange, now is being incorporated in hog oills that can be used in dipping, vats, hog wallows, hog rollers or on rubbing posts.

Reviving Grindstone

This farm grindstone, although heavily battered, about the entire diameter and worn quite flat in one place, was easily true-up by dressing it with the sharp-pointed tool shown attached to the small beard. The dark "cutting lip" of the tool is made of carbonyl cemented carbide, the hardest metal used by man.

Household Hints

To save time, cook frozen vegetables (except corn on the cob) without thawing. Slip them into boiling water, adding a little boiling water from the kettle to offset the icy cold of the vegetables and time cooking from time water starts to bubble again after vegetables have been added.

A paper funnel inserted in the center of a berry or fruit pie will cause the overflow of juice to bubble into the funnel instead of all over the oven and in under the crust.

Keep the thermos bottle cork fresh and odorless by wrapping it in waxed paper; this does not come in contact with liquids.

Tests Show Tung Meal Poisonous to Chickens

Tung meal proved unsatisfactory as a source of protein in chick rations in tests conducted at the Florida agricultural experiment station. The tung meal proved poisonous, whether raw, heated or heated and stilled. It caused heavy mortality at 10 and 15 per cent levels. At 5 per cent and higher levels the tung meal interfered with feed utilization and growth.

Washington Digest Throttling of Small Business Can Kill Democratic System

By DAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON—Over in England, where the majority voted to accept socialism because they felt the 400-year-old "capitalist experiment" had been a failure, they are finding that you can't vote yourself into a prosperity any more than you can vote yourself out of it.

They are engaged in a great venture, and they are trying to build up a great, free, socialist democracy. He warned that a society changed by the methods is apt to lose the merit of democracy.

Shopping Trip Reveals News About Clothing for Babies

By Eretta Haley

IF YOU'RE dressing the small fry these days, you'll be delighted with all the new tricks designers have put into their clothing to make them easier to get on, to take off and, best of all, to wear.

Many new fabrics are on the marketplace and we have come a long way from the pale pink and blues that used to be standard stock in colors of the younger set. Four little can now look better in a dusty pink, yellow or aqua than in robin's egg blue. As long as the clothing is maintained in style, as it is now for the wee young man, let him wear the color most suitable.

Little girls may look very well, but you'll soon be asked out in a bright red, royal blue or navy, and aqua as well as yellow, but the clothes are feminine.

Choose Clothes That Wear Well Longer

Look for well knit, nicely stitched garments. Members of the younger set do not wear their clothing for a long time since they grow out so quickly, but you may have other children or your own to exchange with another mother. Even if you do none of these things, at least the clothing won't look shabby after a few washings.

Cuffless and sleeveless are two good fashions—because they don't really need pressing. If there are buttons there are button covers in the shape of little girls' dresses, rompers for boys or T shirts for both. If you smooth them out after washing, they need no pressing.

Many items of the clothing now being made have hidden let-fec-f that can be mixed, just as with men's clothing. If there are just two or three trousers and pants you can get more variety into the wardrobe.

As well as Dress Occasions

Do Smart!

For the boys, there are three-piece corduroy sets which are practical, consisting of overalls, cap and coat. They may be worn together or separate.

For the small girls, coats and matching bonnets of velvet or dotted swiss are excellent. Look for bonnets that are a decorative flange elastic at the back so they will fit properly for a longer period.

Overalls are another must because most of the youngsters will wear these most of the day while they are out playing. Select a nice sturdy material like denim, chambray, corduroy or a good quality broadcloth. You'll find those with gay panned animals placed at the knees to prevent scuffs as well as to give longer wear.

Choose clothing with large, easy to fix buttons and holes so the youngster can learn how to manage dressing himself.

Summer suits among the more essential pieces. For the youngster who is not yet trained, there are very clever ones that have a plastic lining which takes the shoulder line or plastic points, of girl-as keeping the suit from pulling.

It's best if sunnits, too, are chosen of sturdy material. Those cent, and what she calls East New Orleans—says it's her "motive tongue." With the musical and solo "Lulu Belle" finished, she has been in New York, combining a vacation with business and a bit of carrousel.

It's hard to get guest stars from Hollywood to commit themselves to long engagements, so when "Mystery Theatre" executive asked Dorothy Lamour to appear on his show, she was in New York for their show which they were started when she told "I'm sure I'll be here six weeks from now, even six months from now." Was she giving up her career? "No, I've a few careers, that of mother," she explained.

Franchot Tone will provide romantic competition for "Life's Grand In "Every Girl Should Be Married," playing a wealthy but with frivolous intentions—right, says his actor, Grant's proxy, Mervyn Drake, is the girl in the case.

"The Time of Your Life" is a magnificent picture. In transferring the Pulitzer prize winning play to the screen, the Cagney brothers have reached a standard rarely achieved in Hollywood. Their ing should win a flock of Oscars. The cast is superb; it includes James Cagney, Jeanne Cagney, William Benday, Wayne Morris, Broderick Crawford, Ward Bond, James Baran, Gale Page, and Reginald Denny, over one hundred Artists can be proud of passing this one along to the public.

Between scenes of Paramount's "The Great Gatsby," Alan Ladd judged his 15th beauty contest. It was the Miss "Dream Girl" for the University of Washington chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. Five photographs were submitted, and Estelle Bentley and Macdonald Carver helped select the winner. With his experience, Ladd could have done it alone.

Everett Sloane helped make movie history when he stole a picture from George Kelly. The end with his great performance in Columbia's "The Lady from Shanghai," James Barton does the same thing in "The Time of Your Life" to James Cagney. Barton is so good as Kit Carson, the old trapper, that you see the picture ever will forget him.

At RKO they believe that in "Battle of Britain" they have a worthy successor to those film "Gladiators" of World War I. "All Quiet on the Western Front," "The Big Parade" and "What Price Glory." It is based on factual incidents of the battle of Batogne, written by Robert Pirosh, a combat veteran who won the Bronze Star, for valor at Batogne.

When "Club 19" closes for the summer the Andrews Sisters will be back for England and a month's engagement at the Palladium. MacGregor Whiting has five radio spots, and several benefits lined up for the summer months.

James Melton, star of "Harvest of Stars," is the favorite classical music singer of the country's leading music critics, according to the fifth annual radio poll taken by "Musical America."

It's Time to Turn Lucid Berries Into Tenders

WHEN ORCHARDS are covered with 'snow' and vineyards no longer are bearing with their luscious berries, the best way to bring them back to the table is to serve, flavor-fresh, delicately tinted jellies made from the berries at their peak of the season.

A good idea is to make a sort of canning plan. Decide what your family likes best, figure out about how much they ate last year, and make up a program for the next year.

Sort out your canning supplies, buying any necessary equipment before you start the work.

When you make jellies and jams, try to work with small batches only. It seems to take less time, but far more important than that, the results are better. The jellies are tender and more colorful, and there is less chance of error.

If you have fruits and berries with small pectin content of their own, from the side of the spoon in two drops. Then almost done, immerse in the boiling jelly two or three rose geranium leaves. These will quickly and give off their flavor. Tint with rose vegetable coloring. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and paraffin at once.

HERE ARE TWO PERFECT berries for jelly making. You'll be delighted with their fresh fruit flavors and beautiful colors:

"Currant Jelly"
Select currants that are not overripe. Remove leaves but do not stems. Wash with justice masher. Add one-half cup of water to each two quarts of berries. Cook 10 minutes stirring frequently. Strain through jelly bag. Use three-fourths cup sugar for each cup of juice. Heat juice, add sugar and the salt. It dissolves. Cook until the syrup sheets off the spoon. Seal in hot, sterilized glasses.

Red Raspberry Jelly
(Makes 12 four-ounce glasses)
3 quarts red raspberries
1/2 cups sugar

1 bottle fruit pectin
Thoroughly crush raspberries; place in jelly bag and squeeze out juice. There should be four cups. Heat juice, add sugar, bring to boiling, stirring constantly. Add fruit pectin. Bring to a full rolling boil; boil one-half minute. Remove from heat; skim; seal in hot sterilized glasses.

Delicious Strawberry Preserves
2 pounds capped berries
4 tablespoons lemon juice
5 cups sugar

Fill berries with sugar. Let stand three to four hours. Place over low heat until simmering point is reached. Add lemon juice. Boil rapidly for 10 to 12 minutes until berries are clear and the syrup thick. Cover and let stand over

IF YOU'RE STARTING to make jellies now, the following fruit and berry combinations are excellent for appetite appeal. They are also in season in most parts of the country so that you can make them readily:

- 1. Blackberry and rhubarb
- 2. Boysenberry and rhubarb
- 3. Boysenberry and rhubarb
- 4. Raspberry and rhubarb
- 5. Raspberry and rhubarb
- 6. Youngberry and rhubarb

Here is the recipe for jelly made from any of the above combinations:

3 cups juice
4 cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly or grind about one quart of fully ripe berries. Cut into one-inch lengths (do not peel) about one pound of rhubarb, and put through food chopper. Place fruits in jelly bag or cloth and squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and set aside until needed. Measure juice into a three- or four-quart stovetop and place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. Pour in sugar at once, stirring constantly. Continue stirring, bring to a rolling boil, and boil hard one-half minute. Remove from fire, skim and pour quickly into 7 or 8 one-six-ounce glasses. Paraffin hot jelly at once.

ARE YOU FOND of unusual jellies? Here's an old-fashioned one that is lovely and unusual delicate flavor:

Rose Geranium Jelly
Select tart, sound apples. Wash and cut off blossom ends. Do not remove peeling or core. Cut into quarters and barely cover with water. Cook until fruit is tender. Strain juice through a jelly bag into a measuring cup. Add the following: 1/2 cup water and 1/2 cup sugar for each cup of juice. Boil rapidly for jelly stage (lip spoon until syrup). The boiling time nears the jelling point it will drop

Myrsi River Race to Start Mine Ready to Start New

DODGEVILLE, MICH.—The story of seven barrels of silver abandoned in an old mine near here is being re-told and re-looked again and is expected to cause a silver rush any day now.

Seems that a group of miners in the middle of the last century wanted more pay. The mine management refused to grant them an increase. Having just newly capped seven barrels of silver, the miners climbed out of their hole to continue the argument.

Negotiations continued for months while the seven barrels of silver lay in the mine shaft. Finally, when an agreement was reached the miners discovered that the shafting had weakened and they refused to enter the mine again. The silver treasure, however, was extricated.

Conservatively, the treasure is estimated to be worth about $14,500. Carlos Woberg, graduate of Michigan College of Mining and Technology, contends that the story is true.

FOR URGENT JOBS in Hard-to-Reach Places

The 4-Wheel-Drive UNIVERSAL Jeep

The Universal "Jeep" gets men through to these hard-to-reach places where on-the-spot, emergency repairs frequently are necessary. It gets there by the shortest possible route—following the highway or striking out cross-country to go places impossible to reach with less versatile vehicles. With a wheel tractor for tough going and 2-wheel drive for highway speed and economy, the "Jeep" is the ideal service car for repair crews and maintenance men. Its utility, maneuverability and range of operation are unapproached by any other machine. See it today.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Owens-Harmon

Mrs. Naomi Owens of Lexington, Ky., wishes to announce the marriage of her daughter, Lois Bernice to Joseph A. Harmon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harmon of Mt. Vernon. The marriage was performed at the Methodist church by Dr. Warner P. Davis, June 4th 1948 at Lexington, Ky.

Mrs. Trumbull and Rev. Kineman Wed

The following is taken from a recent edition of a Brookport, Ill. paper. The Rev. Kathryn Winton Trumbull, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. William Kathryn Winton Trumbull, united in marriage to Rev. James Eugene Kineman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Kineman of Brookport, Ill., at the First Christian Church, Lewis Street, Paterson, on Saturday evening June 5, at 8 o'clock. Rev. William Trumbull, father of the bride officiated; and she was given in marriage by her uncle, Samuel J. Sharpley. It was a double ring ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns, white gladioli and snapdragons.

A reception for 200 guests followed the ceremony and was held in the lecture room of the church. Seated with the wedding party was the bride's grandmother, Katherine Winton and aunt, Mrs. Samuel J. Shawley.

After a wedding trip to Ocean Grove, New Jersey, and Indianapolis, Ind., Rev. and Mrs. Kineman will visit the parents of the groom in Brookport, Ill. before taking up their future home in Mt. Vernon, Ky., where the groom is pastor of The Disciples of Christ, Christian Church.

The bride is a graduate of Valley High School, Little Falls, and attended Paterson State Teachers College for two years prior to her entrance at Johnson Bible College, Kimberlin Heights, Tenn., from which both the bride and groom graduated on May 31st. The bride was ordained into the Christian ministry by her father last Wednesday evening at the First Christian Church, Paterson.

WALTER RAY SMITH SPIKES FALSE STORY CIRCULATED BY SAMUEL KNUCKLES IN THE LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL THAT HE IS OFF THE TRACK FOR CONGRESS

Smith states emphatically that he did not come off, promised no one he would come off, and has no intention of coming off the track in favor of Knuckles or any other candidate for Congress. On the other hand he is very much on the track, and feels that the Republicans of this Congressional District will give him the nomination on Saturday, August 7th. Smith has been in attendance at the meeting held by some of the candidates for Congress at London on Monday, May 31st.

Regulate your own hot water with Fowler Economy Temperature Control

Hot water flows from your faucet at just the temperature you desire! Not only automatic, the Fowler Economy Temperature Control is adjustable.

Constant, Clean Hot Water

How handy just to turn the dial to any temperature, ranging from about 125° to 175°, depending upon your special demand, for hot water. Perhaps a heavy washday, coupled with a round of showering would call for a peak-hot supply. A less lower temperature would suit other needs. Water is sparkling clean.
