

NO TWO ALIKE

By LOUIS MALLON

WHAT puzzled Paul most was what made girl's vulnerable and moon-eyed whenever his twin brother, Peter, was about. There was no denying it, girls usually fell for Peter's line. He was smooth. Paul had seen it happen too many times. Fear gripped his heart as he thought it was about to happen again—tonight—this time to "too nice a girl."

Pensively, Paul tugged at the chair under him and moved closer to the table in the El Zebra club. He passed his hand fondly and caressingly over the beaver jacket on the chair beside him. This was Ann—a part of Ann—the delicately

Ann had said: "You don't mind, do you, Paul?" Of course he didn't. But he couldn't let Ann know, just then. "This is some brother you have," she smiled into Peter's face as they glided away.

Some brother, is right! Paul thought. Probably laying it on again. Ann seemed to enjoy it. Paul fitted into Paul's plans for that part of life he desired. A house! A charming wife. His heart melted every time he dared to think of it. He hadn't yet found the courage to tell her. Gracious, kind, beautiful Ann. But he had told her all about himself, his early boy-

How did you get in the apartment?" "Oh, a young girl," Peter had said. He placed his hand over the mouthpiece of the phone. "Can't you see I'm busy?"

"Sorry."

"Say, who's Ann?" Peter whispered.

"ANN!" Paul had almost shouted. "Give me that phone, quick. Before you wreck my life!"

Yes, Ann knew it was his brother minutes of conversation. But their voices sounded so much alike . . . quite a kisser . . . she'd like to meet him. Why not bring him along tonight, on their date? It would be nice . . . he'd probably be lonesome . . . she had said.

Lonesome? What a thought to associate with Peter. New York would be just an interlude for him. You're looking great, Paul. The phone rang so I answered it. All right! Good. Transferred to Massachusetts. You'll see! more of me now. Great town, Boston. Sheep in the station. Girls congenial, too. Wouldn't exactly compare with the girls in Texas. But all right. Great."

In the apartment Paul wasn't so sure he was doing the right thing taking Peter out on this date, he felt uneasy—remembering Peter's technique. He had executed a feint. "How about making it stag tonight?"

"Nothing doing," Peter had said. "Besides, you've already made the date."

True, the date was made and Ann did want to meet Peter. Would she be less susceptible to Peter's soft impeachment?

Thank goodness this was the last dance. Paul feared the worst. He tried to put the fear from his mind. The two remained by the table now, both of them laughing, hand-in-hand. Paul tried to tell himself he was being foolish and torturing the girls of his heart with a date that never really should be there.

The obsession stayed with him as they reached the street and there took on more agitation. Peter said: "Well, I'll leave you two alone now. The night is still young for me. See you later in the apartment, Paul. Good night, Ann."

"Good night, Peter," Ann said. "Call me before you go away."

Thank goodness this was the last dance. Paul feared the worst. He tried to put the fear from his mind.

perfumed fragrance of the jacket pierced his troubled mind. Buffeted and driven, he came to a decision. He resolved, after tonight, to ape and copy his twin brother's every mood and locution; banter. He'd do it and see how far that would get him—for a change.

Paul's eyes searched the dance floor for Peter and Ann. They had danced together for the fourth consecutive time. Thank goodness, they had agreed to leave upon its completion.

FOOLISH NOTIONS

With everything you have to worry about, including what you're going to do this Saturday night—how do you ever have time to dream up these amazing ideas?

TOOTH SAVER

Remember that article in a national magazine about the bad effects of opening your bobby pins with your teeth? Well, one of our Hi-Style scouts reports that she is now opening her bobby pins on a wire which she nailed tautly from one side of a wooden box to the other. She keeps the bobby pins in the box and opens them on the wire as she lifts them out. She says it's much easier to get a new piece of teeth. She has something there!

ALL OVER THE MAP—Because so many of you collect pen pals just as you collect photos of Robert Mitchell and telephone calls—you'll be interested in an entirely new system of keeping your correspondence in order. Pin up a large map of the United States and stick pins in each city where you have a pen pal. Red topped pins means that your pen pal owes you a letter; blue means vice-versa. It's a good reminder and it looks so official!

LIVELY DECORATIONS—Do you want a really different centerpiece for your next party? Well, fill a bowl with a quart of water, drop in one teaspoon full of citric acid and one teaspoon full of baking soda. Now—drop in 18 moth balls and, within a few moments, the balls will start jumping up and down and will continue to perform for about an hour. When they show signs of tiring, just revive them with another dose of the acid. Let us know how it works.

ANKLE TURNS—A trick for your old ballet slippers is to sew ribbon loops at the backs to hold any ribbons or bracelets you might wear as anklets. For evening, try rhinestone or gold ribbons. We've already warned you that the ankle strap shows the smartest thing on two feet for summer, haven't we?

BEAUTY AND THE BID—You wind the chains "round and round your necks to fall in a big effect" over your sweater and blouse and you're wearing a dickey, just wear the Peter Pan collar over the chain.

FALLOW FIELDS

Grace Nell Crowell

THE field is worn from yielding the good grain.

Fallow it lies, its furrows dark and fall.

Beneath the blinding sun and bitter rain it patiently awaits its master's will.

It draws new power as the year goes by.

From winds that sweep across its furrowed way it pulls the sunlight from the bending sky.

And holds it there to use again some day.

Now I, like any barren field, must lie fallow awhile. God make me wise to wait.

As old fields do through drought, nor question Strength comes so slowly, peace so very late.

Let me draw power from this time, and then, strengthened now, rise up to serve again.

Thank goodness this was the last dance. Paul feared the worst. He tried to put the fear from his mind.

mind, he, the younger of twins, he had even told her about Peter. He wasn't afraid of Peter then, with two thousand miles between them. They'd probably be married before Peter would meet her.

Paul was afraid of Peter now. Breezy, garrulous Peter. Back home, Paul had always been referred to as the quiet one, when the twins were the subject of conversation.

The trouble with himself, Paul thought, was that he had always given up too easily to Peter. From childhood up, Peter always did get the best toys, the best bike, the best clothes, the best of everything. Ann was something Paul wanted more than anything else in his life. She represented the best of everything to him. Determination filled his lean, square-jawed face. He WAS the quiet one, up until tonight. Long live the new Paul!

It would not be easy, Paul reminded himself. Peter had years of experience along these lines. He regarded life about him with hardened indifference, and when Paul sought to reason with him, Peter's face would turn quite blank, his eyes evasive. He never argued, never changed. He had fond love, cultivate it to crop, taste of it, and leave it.

Now, with the thought of losing Ann racing through his nervous system, Paul vowed his scruples were to undergo a change.

Earlier in the evening Peter was in Paul's apartment talking on the phone. "Peter?" Paul said. "What are you doing in New York?"

FREEDOM THROUGH A SLAVE

THE story of Ebed-Melech was a lesson in Jesus to Jerusalem lifts to exemplify the act of a slave on behalf of freedom. The world's benefactors are those who stand firm, and cast themselves in utter self-forgetfulness into the struggle with one against one.

What had Jerusalem done to deserve such harsh treatment? He had delivered God's message to the people and was being taken them that the city would be taken by the Chaldeans, and how they might escape destruction. Jerusalem was proclaiming freedom — not at all a very popular course. For this effort to help the people, he was thrown into the muddy dungeon. This servant of the king was the only man in Jerusalem who understood the purpose of Jerusalem.

A FRIENDLY PERMISSION

GRANTED permission from the king to rescue Jerusalem, Ebed-Melech devised prompt methods of letting down the ropes and raps, telling Jerusalem he would fasten them under his arms, and with the aid of thirty men drew him up from the mire and brought him into the court of the prison.

And then God spoke words of great reward to Jerusalem on behalf of Ebed-Melech. "Will I deliver thee in the hand of the Lord; and thou shalt not be given into the hand of men of whom thou art afraid. For I will surely deliver thee, and thou shalt not fall by the sword, but thy life shall I for a prey unto thee, because thou hast put thy trust in me, saith the Lord."

Social People

It seems clear to me that God designs us to live in society—just as He has given me the bees; and as our social system could not subsist without the sense of mutual dependence. He has given us the power to acquire that sense.

Our Creator would never have made such lowly creatures as we are given us the deep hearts to enjoy them, above and beyond all thought, unless we were meant to be immortal.

Christianity is not a theory or speculation, but a life and a living process.—Coleridge.

Ebed-Melech, The Ethiopian

Lesson for August 8, 1948

ARE you ready for a real story? Then turn to Jeremiah 38. It reads on to verse 18 in the 39th chapter. This interesting story reveals a hero, Ebed-Melech, by a name which means "the king's slave." This may have been his official title rather than his personal name. Anyway, he is a prince and a noble, and a very admirable hero, indeed.

He was a Negro, and Ethiopian.

Dr. Newton much, in charge of the king's chambers Zebekiah, as the story reveals, held Ebed-Melech in high esteem. He was, obviously, a most honorable man. How he had come to know Jeremiah, and to esteem him so highly, is a subject for profitable contemplation. The devotional reading, Matthew 25:31-46, offers final opinion on the value of Ebed-Melech's ministry to Jerusalem. "As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men," Galatians 6:10.

Profitable to place some of the birds, as well as game fowl, in storage for their own consumption as well as for sale to local markets when prices become higher.

Considerable demand has been found for ducks, geese and turkeys as well as for chickens.

During the past few years some poultry raisers have found an excellent market for smoked fowl and a most satisfactory market price.

Only quality fowls should be so stored and handled, and then only when proper wrapping material is utilized under proper storage facilities are available.

Modern Agronomists Debunk Copybook Line

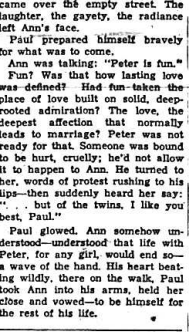

"Hay is dried grass." That line invariably appeared in copybooks handed out to pupils in old-time writing classes, but agronomists at Ohio State university claim the copybook publishers apparently knew considerably more about teaching pupils to write than they did about haymaking.

Some dried grass is excellent livestock feed but other cured grass is just fair quality bedding, agronomists insist.

The best time for cutting hay is when plants have made almost their greatest growth in weight but still contain a high percentage of protein. For red clover, the recommended cutting time is when the plants are in the half bloom stage. The alfalfa field if cutting is started before the half bloom period.

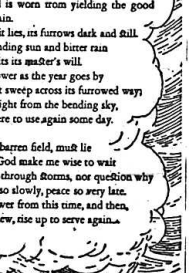

Renovated Tractor

This steel shod tractor was in good operating condition, so the farmer decided to adapt it for rubber tires. The tires, tubes and rims cost $119. In addition to the new agricultural implements being purchased this year, many are being re-modernized.

Thinning of Vegetables Assures Best Growth

Most gardeners make the mistake of not thinning their vegetable rows sufficiently. They take to pull up part of their plantings and thus allow all of the seedlings to be crowded. Thinning should be done when the soil is moist and the seedlings are one to two inches tall. If taller than two inches, don't pull them up; cut them off at ground level for best results.

Storage of Surplus Fowl is Profitable

Poultry Held in Locker For Sale at Price Peak

To assure that poultry of various classifications is properly held in locker plants or freezers, it is advisable that the fowl be wrapped in water-proof, moisture-proof paper. Latest scientific methods call for enclosing the fowl in a strong mesh fabric known as stocknet, which keeps the prepared locker poultry tightly pressed around the chicken, thus eliminating all air pockets inside the wrapping and preventing the paper from becoming loose at any time.

Freeze in Garden Flavor In Moistureproof Cartons

To keep the most "garden goodness" in fruits and vegetables that are to be frozen, package them carefully. This point is stressed by Miss Frances O. Van Dyne, assistant professor of foods, University of Illinois college of agriculture.

Choose containers that can be sealed tightly and won't leak. Frozen foods are better when packed in containers that are moisture-proof and vapor-proof. Miss Van Dyne explains. Otherwise the foods dry out and lose palatability.

Cartons come in a variety of types and shapes. Rectangular or square cartons may have inner linings or have a waxed plastic lining; some are made for use with collapible bags. Most of these are available with heat-pressing-together edges of covering material with an electric iron or a hand iron. The cartons are generally easy to handle and store. Waxed cups are convenient, but the seal on the side is not moisture- or vapor-proof.

Before sealing a filled carton or bag, wipe inside edges with a clean cloth to remove moisture that you may like the pressure when sealing; they have an adhesive substance on one side so that they can be stuck on edges of bags and cartons.

Kentucky On The March

If you have never enjoyed the sensation of being close to heaven both physically and spiritually have the family car turned up and make for the mountains of Eastern Kentucky.

Our own wooded peaks and narrow green valleys may not equal the Rocky or the Coast Range in grandeur, but they excel them in intimate beauty and charm. And you won't need to travel thousands of miles to reach them.

On our second tour in a five-year plan to see practically all the state and visit most of the towns an cities, we drove via Frankfort and Paris to Maysville, thence along the river to Paducah, then to Ashland and on to Charleston, Virginia, and got back into Kentucky at the border town of Williamsport, U. S. 119 into a scenic paradise of our own.

Much of the time we were driving in clouds that enveloped the crests of the mountains, but on the whole, traveling safe, free from fatiguing nervous tension. Even night driving had no terrors for us.

Route 119 took us through Pikeville, Kentucky's easternmost town of considerable size, to the rolling hills of Cumberland Gap. And no less a wonderland was Pine Mountain State Park.

At Corbin we found a motel with lovely rooms and meals to suit any pocket or fault with. In the more remote towns hotel accommodations could be a good deal better, but this need not deter anybody from touring the region. Reservations can be made in advance by telephone.

Like the rest of Kentucky, Pine Mountain State Park is a beautiful spot. The mountains are sung in a whisper. We have seen the Great Smokies. Pine Mountain possesses the beauty of the Great Smokies. The Smokies have the advantage of being partly in the public domain and partly in the Great Smoky National Park, which carries weight.

With Henry Ward, an experienced newspaperman and Conservation Commissioner, Kentucky's tourist attractions should be publicized better than ever before. It is recommended that Commissioner Ward take a four-day trip over main roads through a dozen or more eastern counties. He should be accompanied by Mr. Vernon, if already. He would do well to take along State Highway Com. and to reach his destination, author, Governor Clements.

Does Mt. Vernon Have A Ghost?

By: Raymond McClure

Mt. Vernon along with California, Indianapolis, Alabama and Lexington has its strange phenomenon—or even stranger since our kind phenomenon possesses two legs—no, four legs—no, it has wings.

One could say Mt. Vernon's mystery cover is a California "flying saucer," only it isn't, since this is Kentucky. It could be the ball of fire over Indianapolis, the rocket ship over Alabama, but it isn't.

Now we come to Lexington, nestled so peacefully in the blue grass, to illustrate how things happen.

It all began several months ago. It was a woman, and she was driving the old Frankfort Pike right in front of an automobile causing the hair of said auto's occupants to turn many shades of gray. The woman's complexions equally as unhealthy.

Two nights later most of Lexington journeyed out, at the time it was raining. The visitor from another world. It was a different old Frankfort pike and the occupants of the nearby cemetery were not alone. Things had happened. A few liberal minded citizens had set up stands and were selling "ghost" candy and "ghost" wiches. Many signs had appeared, and one read "Ghost Colas for Sale," and another, "This Graveyard Unfair To Spooks," and all the while the visitors speculated on just what to do when it came.

They waited and midnight passed—so did one and two o'clock, and nothing moved but sculpis and goose pimples. Then it was decided by the citizens which by that time was on the verge of hysterics, that John L. Spirit Strikes, so they all went to the cemetery. The spook was left to the quiet of the hills and to rest in peace.

Now, Mt. Vernon comes into the picture. Mr. Vernon has a ghost—well, they say it's a ghost. Some say it's a ghost escaped from a nudist colony, others that it's someone under the influence of too many "ghost" candy and "ghost" wiches. The situation, belonged originally to a bottle.

It first came into being when the ghost was reported to be stalking victims between Brodhead and Crab Orchard. It was standing on Crab Orchard at a place called "Lake Placid," but disappeared when investigation began.

Then the old boy moved up to Mt. Vernon, and went about his work of haunting. Later, he wanted to see the sights of Mt. Vernon so he decided by the clack of his heels to set up headquarters in the vicinity of the old state garage and the caves nearby. (For the sake of brevity, we will not mention those caves are not for rent.)

Everyone seems to have seen or heard of this report. I have looked, waited, staid, hunted and called shameful names to our friend but he keeps his distance probably from a cloud, and says exactly nothing.

Everyone describes him but they never are the same, which makes us think he's a very versatile spook, but we don't know just what we're looking for.

One man says, "He was standing there all in white and red, moving at all. Then suddenly he was gone, but I didn't see him leave. It looked like he might not have any clothes on but I didn't wait to see."

The night is very warm and I think our ghost is smart in wearing this abbreviated uniform. I wonder if he is just what he uses to keep the mosquitoes off.

Another says, "It was all white and red, and it was staggering. Sometime it would bend over as if it was walking on its hands."

This would lead one to believe he has worked himself to the point of exhaustion—or drunkenness—leading one to believe he was drunk, but a little alcohol has wandered into Rockcastle—leading to the impossible since "this is a dry county and alcohol is forbidden by law." It is impossible, that discredits the

BOY KILLED IN FALL ON DRINKING GLASS

Joe Earl Harris, age 23 months of Covington, Kentucky tumbled out of his back door while carrying a drinking glass and died when a splinter from the glass punctured his heart, Kenton County Coroner Trent Riffe reported Monday.

Joe Earl was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Harris of Covington near Visalia, Kentucky and was the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mullins of this city. The funeral service was held Tuesday in Ellis Funeral Home and burial was in the Covington Cemetery.

County Agents Notes

Priming Tobacco
Farmers grow tobacco for the leaves, not for the stems. They want to make more money on their tobacco crop they should save the leaves. The leaves are ripe when they should be pulled and tied up to cure. These leaves primed at the right time and properly cared for will cure in 400 pounds. At 50c a pound this would be $200. Since farmers are growing tobacco for the leaves, it seems advisable to save the ripened lower leaves to make more money. For further information on priming call at the County Agent's office.

Crimson Clover
Crimson Clover is a good winter cover crop. It is one of the best winter cover crops for the garden. The garden should be planted in Crimson Clover this month as the vegetables and are harvested or if weeds are cleaned out before cold weather. The Crimson Clover stays green as a winter cover crop and can be turned under in the spring to improve the soil.

Crimson Clover can be seeded with small grain or rye grass or a field crop. Generally it is too late to seed Crimson Clover when we get ready to seed wheat, rye or barley. Crimson Clover may be seeded alone in corn any time this month with reasonable success if Annulated. In fact, Crimson Clover it can be sown where you used it if inoculated.

Any farmers planning on seeding Crimson Clover for the garden, tobacco patch, or other crop should do so this month. A 10-pound per acre will make a fair seeding.

Vetch
Vetch can be seeded later for winter cover crop than Crimson Clover. It is a good winter cover crop and can be seeded with rye, wheat or barley, instead of Crimson Clover. The vetch should be seeded in late fall. For best results it should be seeded in August or September and not later than October. A 10-pound per acre in small grain will be sufficient for a good crop.

Kentucky 31 Fescue
Farmers planning on seeding always used seed should

25-Year-Crop To Be Drafted First

Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershby said today that men would be drafted by age groups, with men 25 through 22 taken first in the initial six months of the program.

Although these men would be called into service first, he said that the bulk of the draftees would come from those in the 19-through-21 age groups.

Hershby indicated that approximately 5,000,000 men 22 through 25 would be processed in the opening round but that only about 70,000 would be subject to the peacetime service.

Registration of all men 18 through 25 would begin August 30 and continue through Sept. 30. This will be done by age groups with men 25 signing up first, men 24 next and so on.

Officials stressed the point that all men are not going to be subject to the draft including veterans, unless they are on active duty in the armed services.

No official information could be found as to how registering would be done in Rockcastle. It is expected that a permanent board would locate in Mt. Vernon since there is to be 99 new schools in the state.

It seemed more likely that a temporary board would locate in Mt. Vernon and leave as soon as registering is completed.

A Last Message From Pleaz Mobley

This being my last appeal to you good people of Rockcastle County, I want to thank you for the good work you gave me two years ago. My only goes out for you people of Rockcastle County and I know that you are not forgetting me down this time on Saturday, August the 7th.

I have asked an interest in me and will do everything in my power for the people of the 9th district, as I have told you before, by John L. Lewis.

This campaign has been made against two large political machines, but I am backed by the great and common people, and for that reason am going to carry 12 counties of the 17, I stand 100% for the people of the county, the soldiers and for our interest in America abroad.

No man can ever say that I have taken an interest in politics except the Log Cabin Republican party. Neither will I be influenced when I get to before you by John L. Lewis.

Remember, this is your fight against machine politics as well as mine and all I ask is that you are not forgetting me in helping to stamp out the kind of thing which degrades and ruins the people of our great state.

Your Friend,
PLEAZ MOBLEY

Chapman Brands Tax Charge As False

In a special message to the Signal today Virgil Chapman, candidate for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator declared that John Y. Brown's statement that he had not paid income taxes for 14 years was absolutely false and without foundation.

Mr. Chapman's message reads as follows:

"I stand as absolutely false my opponent John Young Brown's charge that I did not pay income tax for fourteen years. My only income during twenty two years in Congress has been my salary on which I paid income tax yearly without exception. Brown's charge is characteristic of his campaign methods whereby slander and innuendo are substituted for facts and constructive program. He has used this type attack against all opposing candidates in nearly every election in the last twenty years. I fully expect further unscrupulous charges from Brown before Saturday."

Attention Gardeners
Be on the alert for late tomato blight says John S. Gardner, Extension Agent in Horticulture, University of Kentucky. The late blight is as close to Jefferson and Leslie Counties. The blight is present in the garden on your tomatoes to spray with a copper spray until the plants are dripping wet. A dust from a can of copper may be used if a half pound is used on 25 plants—even then the sprays are preferred. The spraying should be done in a warm place, not in a cool place, as the temperature is more than the previously recommended 10 days intervals.

Safe Foods For Poultry
The mistaken belief that once a food is cooked, it will keep for many hours, even in a warm place, has been responsible for many cases of food poisoning each summer, often as an aftermath of picnics. Often the outbreak of illness without warning because the food responsible showed no signs of spoilage. Cream-filled pastries are particularly dangerous, such as mild-cured ham, have most frequently caused such illnesses.

Soft protein foods, especially those which are handled in preparations, are especially subject to rapid and dangerous spoilage in warm temperatures and may be harmful even when they have not spoiled odor, taste or change in appearance.

The Department of Agriculture emphasizes that such foods as soft fillings, cream puddings or cream fillings in pie or cake, cooked salad dressings, gelatin mixtures, stuffed eggs or omelets, and all cooked meats, poultry or fish must be kept cold until they are served, and cannot stand and wait in picnic baskets or even out on the kitchen table.

Fortunately, there are many excellent insulated containers of various sizes now on the market which will keep such foods cold. The container (Continued on page 4)

MT VERNON GHOST

Still another says, "I was walking along out Route 150 and suddenly I saw it. I stopped and looked a long time and sure enough there it was as white as a sheet in the street light—and then I saw it didn't have any clothes on—naked as the day it was born. Yep, it was a man all right so I started running."

This leads one to believe one should always make sure of these things before forming hasty opinions. I would have done the same to say the least.

Anyway, our ghost or whatever it is seems to have made a exodus into another dimension—or at least he hasn't been seen in the last few nights. The poor boy seems to have gotten disgusted with our world and went back to his own. Many of us wouldn't blame him for that.

We could say it was some of the boys trying to scare us, or we could say it was just a hitchhiker out on Route 150, or we could say someone just got too much alcohol and wandered around.

One thing is sure. If he leaves we will have to settle down to the same old routine again of nothing to do or talk about—which is why we have a ghost in the first place.

Mrs. R. O. Moberly Urges Women Democrats to Back Chapman

MRS. R. O. MOBERLY

Richmond, Ky.—Mrs. Richard O. Moberly, Richmond, State Women's Chairman for Virgil Chapman, today urged Kentucky Democratic women to support Chapman for United States Senator.

"If the people in the other Districts knew Virgil Chapman as well as the people who have served in the Sixth," Mrs. Moberly said, "the election would be only a formality. No man could have served his people more capably and honestly than have you."

"He has made such a good Congressional record that the people of this district would not let him quit if he were not a candidate for the Senate, where he can serve the entire state and the nation," she continued. "He is a fearless, honest public servant."

"Mr. Chapman's brilliant legislative record includes helping draft the Food, Drug, and Cosmetics Act, helping pass all legislation benefiting veterans, and leading the enactment of all tobacco measures and other beneficial farm legislation," she added.

Mrs. Moberly, who had six sons in active service during the war in the Sixth District representative on the Central Democratic Executive Committee. Named "Kentucky State Mother for 1945," she is active in religious, social, and club activities.

NO TIME FOR NOVICES!

Grave national and foreign problems are facing our government today. Kentucky and the country are in great need of tried-and-true lawmakers in the United States Senate in critical times like these.

VIRGIL CHAPMAN'S long experience in Congress (22 years) qualifies him to tackle our problems... and get things done that should be done.

CHAPMAN'S RECORD PROVES HE'S A FRIEND OF FARMERS, VETERANS, WORKERS, INDUSTRY

1. Chapman helped create the REA, TVA and AAA to benefit the farmers. He sponsored tobacco legislation which brought an additional $227,600,000 to tobacco farmers in four years.

2. Chapman helped pass the G. I. Bill, World War I Bonus, G. I. Terminal Leave Pay, the protective Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act; Reciprocal Trade Act; Social Security Act; Federal Housing Act; National Defense Program.

3. Chapman voted for every bill presented in Congress between 1942 and 1947 to keep down prices. He can be counted on to continue the fight against high prices.

HELP YOUR REFRIGERATOR SERVE YOU BETTER

DEFROST whenever frost reaches thickness one-quarter inch

Thick frost retards coldmaking, makes your refrigerator run longer, increases operating cost. It should be removed whenever it becomes one-quarter of an inch thick. It is necessary to defrost more often in summer than in winter because of more moisture in the air and greater use of your refrigerator.

A Quick Method of Defrosting

Empty defrosting tray and turn control to "off." Remove ice trays and frozen foods from freezer. If items are wrapped in several thicknesses of paper and placed on refrigerator shelf, they won't thaw out in short time it takes to defrost. Fill proper-sized pans with very hot water and place on shelves of freezer. Use fresh hot water as needed.

When frost has melted, wash freezer with weak solution of baking soda and lukewarm water. Clean food compartment, wash thoroughly with baking soda solution and wipe dry. Empty drip pan, replace ice trays and frozen foods and start freezing. The entire operation should take only 20 to 30 minutes.

The Best Time of Day to Defrost

During the hot summer months it's best to defrost in the late evening just before bedtime, when the refrigerator has less work to do. If you defrost during the middle of the day, the refrigerator may run excessively when started up, because of the heat, frequent door openings and warm foods being placed in food compartment.
