PALMER soared through the sky with a light heart. He was leaving a hard life behind, years of hand-to-mouth existence, years of dependence on occasional charity tips and the students able to pay the high rates on his big machine. The future opened before him. He had got a new ship, one of those long-range, all metal boys, go in for long-distance competitive races. And he would have a swell-looking girl with a pile of dough to pay the bills.

He glanced at the instrument board, saw that everything was all right. The cabin ship roared steadily over Connecticut at four thousand feet. There were scattered wisps of white steam, but not enough to hide the ground. His luck was breaking right for the first time, just right. Reaching up, he patted the machine swinging from the roof on a length of ribbon.

It was a small doll, black of face, with two pearl buttons set in his eyes. Palmer had bought it at a store in New York. He had made up his mind already to pull out sometime soon. And it was a private airport, no inspector here hovering sharp a gay time. But he could not tell her, there was no need to say goodbye tearfully and have her hand and carry on in front of him.

On their way home she had insisted that they go to the field where his ship was staked down in the open, and sit in the cabin for a few minutes. She had been big and light blonde and sentimental. Just before they had left the cabin, she had pinned the thing to the upholstery on the ceiling. "That's our luck, Eleanor," she said. "As long as she's there, we'll always be safe."

Palmer had smiled, kissed her and taken her home. At dawn of the same morning, he had taken off and come East. He had never returned. One day, a letter from her had caught up with him, but he had not answered. What was the use? He had intended to send her back the letter when he could. He was grateful for the help, and everything. But how could he explain without hurting her, that they were just not suited to each other?

When the letters had stopped coming, he had understood that she had known them both, had handed him a clipping, without a word. She had been lying in a crossing-airfield. It seemed that her car had stalled on the tracks, and that she had been trying to get out. The fellow evidently thought she had done it on purpose. Palmer knew better. That girl had had character, she would not have done away with herself over a few hundred bucks and a returned engagement.

He had been tempted to take that doll down. Then he had reasoned that it would be, in a way, an admission of remorse. And he had nothing to blame himself for. The doll had brought him luck at last! Eleanor. She had looked and background and money. Furthermore, she had the kind of a spirit he liked, which he needed close to him. To her, a ship wasn't something to work for a small house, for an ordinary living. She enjoyed him, she loved him, her name in the papers. She loved him, all right, but she would always understand that he must take long chances.

DOLL FOR LUCK
 By GENE GILBERT

He jerked the doll loose and tossed it out through the open side window.

AHEAD, he saw the small field where she was waiting. The doll was waiting for him, he realized. He reached out, jerked it loose and tossed it out through the open side window and pulled the wheel back to neutral.

Eleanor was standing still by the side of the car, he noticed and he decided to level off. No need to frighten her. He hauled back further on the wheel. It yielded an inch—and stuck. He pulled again, hard—and the wheel stuck—the wheel stuck.

He must get her nose up, level off—he was doing better than two hundred feet. The ground was close. Too close.

Caught between the horizontal stabilizer and the counterweight for the elevators, the small black doll in the loud green and red plaid dress seemed to wince the grin of her scarlet satin mouth.

Mock Turtle.
 The latest fashion to turn into a faded in the long-sleeved, turtle neck cotton knit T-shirt. You're wearing it in white only and you tie one of your shaded silk scarves under the roll collar with the long ends hanging down in back. On the front of your turtle neck shirt you wear your trickiest pair or set of matching pins. At CALLING ALL GIRLS fashion show held up in Stamford, Conn., we counted no less than eight of these shirts, similarly scarred, in the first row of the audience! Your favorite ten department has the T shirts, you have the scarfs—so what are you waiting for—date with Lon McAllister.

 And happy the days when dates were for learning;
 Dates are for making, breaking and yearning.
 You Said It—Yea's Explosion!
 "Well, Mock My Shoeless!"—Expression of surprise which you could transmute to mean, "Well, Shock My Modesty." Only it wouldn't be so much fun that way.
 "Glad to Hear It!"—Your comment on a good song or sentence.
 "Sad to Hear It!"—Ditto on any bad news.

Higher Yields Outgrowth Cattle Spraying Costs

An increase of $3.75 per head more than covers the cost of spraying for ticks and lice during the pasture season than a group that had not been sprayed. At 25 cents the price of the insecticide, the head amount to $3.75 a head, a return that far outweighs the cost of spraying.

Best cattle should be sprayed often enough to control flies, whether it requires two or three sprayings during the season or once a month.

Herds and Flocks

Use of 2, 4-D sprays for weed control in pastures is not dangerous to grazing animals.

A home-made spray of crude benzene hexachloride and water is more likely to taint eggs than any other spray. Commercial rosin paint containing the effective portion of the same chemical.

Poultry houses with light colored roofs are cooler in summer than those with roofs painted black.

To get water to hogs in distant pasture where there is no water supply, pipes can be laid on top of the ground. To prevent freezing in winter, disconnect and drain the pipes.

Benzene Hexachloride Will Check Hog Mange

It hogs stand around and rub instead of eating, they may have a touch of mange. Benzene hexachloride has been found to be more effective than lime sulfur. Benzene hexachloride should be applied when temperatures are up around 70 degrees, under a cover of 50 percent cover to four gallons of water. It is important to see that the animal is completely covered, including the inside of the ears.

WOMEN OF THE FAMILY

Timothy's father was a Greek, probably not a Christian. He and Timothy may never have understood each other. It was the woman of the family who spoiled the boy's mind and heart, his mother, Eunice, and his grandmother, Lois.

Personality. It was the woman of a family who has most influence for faith or against it. The boy knows his mother before he knows his father. The highest inspiration and insight of world has known.

In our own day, parents may feel that they come too far short of being saintly, so they bestialize about urging their perhaps dimly-felt religion on their children. Yet in our Bible there is a perfect example of a mother who, through the Scriptures, the boy's mother taught her son not to know her faith but that of a man's generation before her time.

New Unit Improves Ventilation of Barn
Dairymen Find Device Particularly Effective

Many of a cow's troubles can be traced to heat and humidity. A cow, unlike a human being, can perspire only through the mouth. So when the temperature and humidity inside a barn get high, the animal becomes uncomfortable and stubborn, particularly at milking time.

According to the department of agriculture, an average cow gives off almost a pint of water every hour through breathing. In addition to the high humidity caused by this breathing, a cow has an extremely high body temperature. During the winter months, when the cows are in the barn most of the time, this combination results in generation of an enormous amount of water vapor and heat. When the warm, moisture-laden air comes in contact with the cold walls, condensation occurs and frost is formed.

The net result to farmers is a rolling beam, joint and siding, a loss of hay because of mold created by moisture and frost; milk contamination, disease, particularly among the young stock and reduction of milk production because of discomfort to cows.

A simple solution to all of these costly problems is an automatic cooling unit, which is proving popular with dairy farmers.

These automatic ventilation units, easily installed, reduce condensation to a negligible degree—less than one percent. This action, in turn, decreases barn deterioration, hay mold, milk contamination and disease. It also provides much more comfort for the cows and increases milk production. In addition, working conditions for the operator are much more pleasant.

Several cases of housebreaking have been reported lately in Mt. Vernon and vicinity. Most of those apprehended have been youths starting out on an early criminal career. It is not the purpose of this newspaper to publicize the deeds of these youths, but of a very tender age, but think instead that a stricter enforcement of the school attendance laws would be a better solution.

Soil Conservation News
Farmers will have an opportunity to see how a complete soil conservation program can be established on their own farms when the Conservation Caravan stops at the farm near Stanford, Oct. 1. Mr. L. M. Lackey, of the Soil Conservation Service, will be in charge of the day's complete soil and water conservation program, based on sound land use, will be applied to the farm. Most of the soil conservation practices recommended for farms in the Lincoln County area will be discussed.

Mr. Lackey pointed out that the demonstration will provide visitors with a dramatic lesson in soil conservation.

Farmers in the Lincoln County district and in adjoining districts will have a wonderful opportunity to see the type of program the districts are helping farmers over the state to establish, he said.

The Caravan is sponsored by the State Association of District Supervisors, in cooperation with the State Division of Soil Conservation Service, and other federal and state agencies working with the districts. The caravan will start with a number of truck loads of farm equipment provided by farm machinery manufacturers and equipment dealers.

Mr. Lackey emphasized that while this heavy equipment will be used to remodel the farm, most of the practices that will be demonstrated can be done with the equipment found on the average farm. Heavy equipment is being used to speed up the work so visitors can see the whole program applied at one time.

There is a need for every-one to start thinking about soil conservation, Mr. Lackey said. There's still too much land in Kentucky being destroyed by erosion. We feel that one of the most effective ways of interesting people is through the Caravan where farmers can come and learn the latest methods of treating worn-out farm land.

The Broodhead Soil Conservation District Supervisors are cooperating with the Lincoln County Supervisors to speed up the demonstration and to feel that all farmers will be benefited by attending. Mr. Smith's office is located on the Danbury road, highway 150, at the city limits of Stanford.

A declaration that State police do not desire to engage in antagonistic fights in cities which have ample police forces was made by Mr. J. H. Hayes and Mr. Charles Whitaker was laid down by Mayor William Rolfe, Covington by State Police Commissioner Guthrie F. Crowe in a letter.

It was reported that 'brakes on the Smith car failed, causing her to lose control and slide into the Chicago man's auto.

County Agents Notes
National Fire Prevention Week
This week beginning October 3 has been designated by President Truman as Fire Prevention Week. He has pointed out that fire is not only a cause of thousands of lives every day, but that fire-caused destruction has amounted in recent years to a total of three-quarters of a billion dollars in 1948 alone.

Of all the catastrophes which afflict mankind, fire is perhaps least deserving of the term 'accident'. We cannot prevent earthquakes, torrential rains, or hurricanes.

But most fires are preventable. They are caused by carelessness, by a cigarette, a man, not Nature, thoughtlessly piles up inflammable materials in basements or attics and permits the development of other fire hazards.

Since the best defense against fire is alertness, the President has asked the Fire Prevention Week in which he urges everyone to make a special effort to remove fire hazards and to adopt habits of fire prevention.

Most fires are man-made. Therefore, modern fire prevention is by being alert, active, cooperative.

Eliminate Fire Traps
Detective, fire flues, and stovepipes rank second as the cause of farm fires. Repair cracks and other defects with safe insulating of a match or chimneys each fall, install double metal vented chimneys where stovepipes pass through combustible walls or partitions.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

1948 Election Campaign Hits Stride As Democrats, GOP Vie for Labor; Soviets Aggravate Berlin Situation

By Bill Schaeffer, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When spaces are shown in these columns, they are those of Western Newswriters. Editor's name and date are not necessarily of this newspaper.)

THE GOLDEN KEY... Tryve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, beams as he speaks from former French Premier Robert U. S. to register and vote in the November 2 election.

CAMPAIGN:

Trumpets Sound

Politicians cleared their throats as with the sound of trumpets, and the 1948 presidential election campaign swept into motion.

The first skirmish between Democrats and Republicans featured President Truman and Harold E. Stassen, who carried the word of their respective parties into the great industrial area around Detroit.

THAT INDICATED that for the time being at least, the pivotal factor directing the policies of both GOP and Democratic campaigns would be the labor vote.

To win the election this November Mr. Truman probably will need the same proportionate amount of the labor vote that turned out in favor of Roosevelt in the 1932, 1936 and 1940 campaigns.

Truman

Launching his battle for reelection in the Detroit area over the Labor Day week-end, President Truman fired at his opponent.

AT GRAND STAIRS, Lansing, Detroit, Pontiac and Flint he exhorted all the "little people" in the November 2 election.

If a heavy vote turns out, he insisted, not only will he be re-elected, but the Republican majority in congress will be replaced by a Democratic one.

"IF YOU STAY home next November and keep these reactionaries in power, you will desert every blow you get and you can expect a barrage of body blows," said Mr. Truman.

"Too many red herrings have been in Washington for too long a time," he blasted.

There was, it appeared, no end to the Republican-sponsored trouble in Berlin, and it was being regarded as a deliberate effort to bring about the fall of the Berlin government.

THE INCIDENT piled atop many other instances of petty Soviet encroachments, needed little more than a small flame to turn into a hard, tough fight against shrewd, rich opponents.

IT WAS A FLAGRANT invasion of American offices in the Berlin city hall by armed Russian-controlled police who kidnapped 19 western sector policemen who had sought refuge in the building.

What the purpose of the surface it looked like pure terrorism carried out as part of the overall Soviet plan eventually to get control of the entire German capital.

AN AMERICAN protest by Col. Frank Howley, American commandant in Berlin, was rejected bluntly by the Soviet commander, Maj. Gen. Alexander Orlov, who warned the U. S. officials "not to interfere in matters which don't concern us."

Kotikov's letter followed rejection of French protests that demanded the release of another 19 anti-Communist western sector policemen who were kidnapped by Soviet police while traveling in a French convoy which was carrying a Russian guarantee of safe conduct.

In the face of these intolerable developments, how could East-West negotiations for Berlin ever continue? Apparently they couldn't, except under almost impossible circumstances.

SECRETARY OF STATE George Marshall charged that the Berlin city hall kidnappings were aimed, in part, at disrupting the talks by the four major powers who were, ostensibly, seeking the road to a settlement of the Berlin crisis and the issue of uniform currency.

Thus, it was easy to understand how U. S. diplomatic authorities were concerned with the possibility of an early collapse of the formal negotiations. It was likely that the Kremlin would be the first to dash the red light.

Employment Record

Approximately 61.3 million workers are employed, while the unemployed number only 2,271,000, compared to more than 12 million during the gloomy depression years of the early 1930's.

Personal property now depends, however, on the impact of inflation.

CABINET:

Sil Vous Plait

France. As a political situation that appeared slightly better from across the Atlantic, but Frenchmen were becoming sorely worried for fear that they had lost the ability or power to govern themselves.

THE PREMIER Andre Marie's cabinet left President Vincent Auriol of appointed Robert Schuman as premier and gave him the usual instructions to form a cabinet.

Schuman gathered together an administrative body and then, 64 hours later, watched it fall apart when he was defeated on a technical proposal to postpone question of the new cabinet by the national assembly.

Desperate by this time, President Auriol then named Henri Queuille, veteran Radical Socialist, to succeed Schuman.

WHAT QUEUILLE could do to produce some kind of order out of political confusion and economic chaos on one-man street in Paris, a little known political figure in France and was a wartime assistant of Gen. Charles DeGaulle.

Although Queuille stepped up the alarmed belief, becoming more dominant in France, that no individual or group can command the working majority that enable him to govern the nation.

It is a paradox that the parties in the moderate center of the political scale in France can speak for less than 25 per cent of the people.

General DeGaulle on the right, commands 45 per cent of the vote, and Communist groups hold another 30 per cent.

Although the past few weeks have not been conducive to a further examination of the political situation in France, the principal trend seems to be toward a return of General DeGaulle and his right-wing beliefs to power.

ANYTHING NEW

Bloomin' Sage

That sagebrush is mighty pretty when it blooms purple, and the songwriters can't be blamed for making something out of it.

But out there he hate that sage. It swaths nearly 90 million western acres in a tough, resistant blanket, and ranchers and federal range managers alike consider it an almost complete nuisance.

THEY WANT TO REPLACE the weeds of 90 million acres with nutritious grasses for cattle and sheep. Some of the sage would have to be retained to prevent erosion, but most of it could go.

They were talking about the problem last meeting at Fort Collins, Colo., of the American Society of Agronomists and the Soil Science Society.

Despite efforts to control or eradicate it, the sage continues to spread and probably covers a greater area now than before the pioneer settlers went West.

MORE HOPEFUL development is the new brushland plow, 10 of which are being built for further trial. Also, congress will be asked next year to provide more money for range reseedings and improvement.

About five million acres of western ranges already have been reseeded. These pastures almost invariably carry poor nutritious and abundant food for cattle than the original prairie, according to U. S. government officials. Animals make better gains on it.

IN THE LONG RUN that could mean more and cheaper meat.

Lip Service

This money comes from U. S. taxpayers, the same as the remainder of the $500,000,000 the U. S. is pouring into Greece for recovery and military purposes.

Also, the two toughest problems confronting aid officials are to get the Greek government to impose a just tax on its wealthy classes and to top off thousands of dollars on the government payroll.

Notwithstanding all this, the Greek national economy commission, at a recent meeting, sharply criticized the U. S. mission. The commission was particularly outraged by one salary for $10,000 a year and another for $18,000.

These rates of proportion were not only in relation to the salaries of local employees but also to those which the U. S. pays its highest officers.

Best-Selling Diary The U. S. government is profiting very handsomely from the diary of the late and lamented Charles Goebbels, Nazi propaganda minister.

To date, the publication has netted the state property custodian over $300,000.

Found by a German in Berlin's rubble, the manuscript was later retained for 18 cartons of cigarettes.

For a while, it looked like the lucky American publisher would be the one to profit from the diary. But it was not to be.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's Note: While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

Lewis May Retire

They say he is seriously considering retiring as president of the United Mine Workers at the union's October 2 convention in Cincinnati.

Poor health is given as Lewis' reason. The 68-year-old mine czar has had a number of sick spells in the last few years. He is suffering from a circulatory ailment that afflicts the late, the past few years, Lewis was in seclusion at a Montana health resort, on the advice of his doctors.

If Lewis steps down, he will do so at the peak of his power and with his union larger and more powerful than any man at any time in its stormy history. Members are drawing more pay than ever before, receive bigger pensions and are being paid into the United Mine Workers in government service.

In the event Lewis quits, his successor will be UMW Vice President Tom Kennedy. Short, quiet, manly, soft-spoken and friendly, he is the perfect foil to the turbulent and melodramatic Lewis. But the two men are very close.

At this season, the two men are very close. But the two men are very close. At this season, the two men are very close.

Campaign Bombshell

It is the announcement that a number of reclamation projects will have to be shut down because the G.O.P.-controlled congress will not provide sufficient funds. Top administration officials are saying these projects are Boyen in Wyoming, Heart River and Anderson in the Dakota.

More Fools Assured

Barring some unexpected upset, the winter of 1948-49 will be greater than last winter. Certain sections may encounter shortages but the rest of the country will enjoy winter frolics to meet normal needs.

Of the three major fuels, coal is in best supply. Reserve stocks are now so ample that restrictions on foreign export were removed September 1. Fuel oil is in good supply. Natural gas will be up 10 to 20 per cent above that of last year.

Although the expansion in use of this fuel, also, reserve stocks are considerably ahead of 1947.

If everyone uses restraint, there will be enough fuels for all this winter.

Bitting the Hand...

Washington Digest Autumn Offers Many Joys For the Faithful Beholder

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—You are reading these lines, I trust, not too long after the autumnal equinox, which I hope you celebrated with the proper ceremonies.

The word equinox is Latin for "equal night" which implies equal day. All over the earth there is that kind of equality at this time.

Thus the Creator established equality of such nice perfection that neither the strongest telescope nor the most accurate micrometer can question it. Equality was something that had no measure of weight.

It was the philosophers proclaimed it and until it was preached to the western world it was a lowly carpenter's son of Nazareth.

We worked nearly 4,000 years before we found a political goal embodying this philosophy was written into the Constitution of a nation—the United States.

It is an unachieved goal but one more nearly reached here than anywhere else in the world—fellow travelers of our equinox, notwithstanding.

Strangely enough, the one idea chiefly associated with equality of day and night—the equinox—has been the subject of a long time in the past. For a long time it was generally accepted (and is still believed) that violent storms which were given the name "recusital gales" are prevalent at this season.

Suppose you were to approach the 10 men—or twenty or thirty—who have spent the most time studying this particular subject, gathering all the facts, checking all the records available, as long as authentic records have existed. If you asked them if it is true that there are especially few storms at this time of year, they would answer (in carefully worded and virtually understandable sentences) "That is the bugaboo."

At the equinox the sun is in the process of crossing the celestial equator. This is the circle parallel to the equator which, if extended, would touch the sun. The sun does this in the spring (vernal equinox) and in the fall (autumnal equinox).

At this season, you are in my neighborhood (or within several hundred miles thereof) you will find this piece of advice in the Hagerston (Md.) Almanack which says:

"The ravages of the tent caterpillars go on—there may be a few more of them, but they are eaten from a tree. Naturally it makes extra work for the tree to produce another set of new leaves, which weakens the tree, and after a few years of this extra work, the tree is in danger of dying."

"The greatest natural enemy of the tent caterpillar is the common house wren. These are valuable birds to have in your garden during the growing season."

And now after that piece of advice, which is not seasonal for my friends, you are in my neighborhood (or within several hundred miles thereof) you will find this piece of advice in the Hagerston (Md.) Almanack which says:

"I will not become technical but I think it is just as well to get better acquainted with the phenomena, natural and otherwise, which surround us. There is no reason why, if one rises late in the night to get the cat, (or out) he need crack a shin on a chair, once he understands why and in what position his wife has moved it, since he has noticed its location—and the stars are just celestial furniture."

What Is This Thing 'Retrograde Motion'?

There is a certain "retrograde motion" from east to west of the equinoctial points, which I won't go into here for several reasons, one being that I haven't the slightest idea what the phrase means.

Nevertheless, I will mention that the word "retrograde" was used by a gentleman by the name of Hipparchus in the year (about) 120 before Christ. Experts say this motion accounts for the change in the position of the Pole Star, the North Star as it is usually called.

If you are to believe the Bible Star doesn't change. A number of important people since Hipparchus have thought so. Take one, William Shakespeare, for instance. In Act III of Julius Caesar when a petition for repeal of the disenfranchisement of Publius Clodius is presented to the senate, he says: "I beg for the repeal but Caesar says: 'I could be well moved, if I were as you!'"

If you are to believe the Bible Star doesn't change, the prayer-ers would move me. But I am constant as the northern star, Of course, the star-did and resting quality.

There is no fellow in the firmament.

FOUR-LEAF PHOSPHATE

PHOSPHATE FOUR-LEAF Powdered Rock Phosphate supplies low-cost phosphorus for bigger crops and richer pasture. Because this non-acid phosphate can't burn any seed or plant... because it doesn't leach out, but remains in the soil until dissolved by the growing plants' own root acids... you can apply enough to make your soil phosphorus rich for years ahead with one labor-saving application. This is the low-cost, high-pay way to farm. Investigate!

Light THE WAY TO BETTER GRADES

Better light means a better student!

HOMEWORK requires concentration, close attention to small type, more work for young eyes. LETTER LIGHT is needed to make seeing easier... prevent fatigue and crossness caused by eyestrain.

Help make your child's homework easier by seeing that he has plenty of good light at his study table. Equip his lamp with bulbs totaling at least 100 watts—and see that it is properly shaded to spread the light and prevent glare.
