FIRST FARM SLUMP IN DECADE MAY COME SOON

This year, net farm income will take a slump—the first in a decade—according to Department of Agriculture economists.

Falling prices for agricultural products, together with stable or rising prices paid by farmers, will put a tighter pinch on farmers' pocketbooks. Due to record production, cash receipts in November remains slightly below those of the same month last year. Total receipts for the year are likely to be a little larger than 1948 receipts; however, higher production costs will leave the farmer a lower net acre than he enjoyed last year.

During the first eleven months of this year farmers received $28 billion—two percent above receipts in the same period in 1948. Livestock receipts rose seven percent. Crop receipts dropped four percent.

USAA OFFERS VERSION OF BEST FARM PLANS

Department of Agriculture's version of a desirable farm program for the nation was developed last week at an annual meeting of Production and Marketing Administration of ficals in St. Louis.

Five national working committees of PMA met December 6-9 to develop groundwork for a farm plan to be incorporated in the President's State of the Union message in January.

Their major recommendations follow:

1. Consolidation of administration of certain action programs and functions under USDA state farmer committees and USDA farmer-elected county committees.
2. Price support on basic commodities at not less than 90 percent of parity, with various levels to apply to non-basic commodities.
3. An enlarged storage program and elimination of handicap in CCC charter that handicap CCC storage in handling of commodities.
4. An expanded and strengthened soil conservation program.
5. Greater progress in the encouragement of desirable production shifts.
6. Removal of the ban which prevents field information activities on the agricultural conservation program.
7. Improvement in marketing techniques and services.

These recommendations have yet to be approved by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan. They also have yet to undergo the policy scrutiny of AFBF and other major farm groups.

JOHNNY WAS WRONG

By DONALD HUNTER

He had placed his teacher up on a pedestal because she was "different" than all her predecessors. All his dreams for the future were crushed however, when she proved that she was just run-of-the-mill.

JOHNNY was as quiet as an empty cloakroom in Mrs. Morner's class, but he wasn't listening to the talk about Vasco da Gama and Hernando De Soto. They were only a launching point for his dreams out the classroom window. If he could discover a country, or explore—or capture kidnapers like he read about in the paper—or bandits!

Suppose a bandit should lump into the school room, he dreamed, just suppose! With his mask and gun and rough voice and sharp orders, and he, Johnny, should rise—and—maybe get shot, but save her? He ended the scene each time with Mrs. Morner's grateful tears as she bent over his hospital bed. That would be it, wouldn't it? It would be something, wouldn't it? That something no one else could do!

If he could risk his life for her—and not die—then she'd know love ties to his mother had been broken off one by one by her absent-minded attention to her flower garden, and by his own speech impediment. They'd hung dangling and loose about him, waiting for some other object to come along and attract them. And Mrs. Morner had drawn Johnny's loose ends, like steel cables to an electro-magnet! He had to know how she felt. But he couldn't ask. He could feel that lump in his throat, and the steady pressure in his stomach. He heard the rumble of departing children die lower in the outer hall, and he thought that pressure had bunched in him when three laughing girls ran into the room.

She laid her papers aside to smile at their giggling, excited chatter. Maybe he had been wrong, he thought. Maybe she didn't think he was bad. But he felt the depression of the distance separating him from them. He was not one of them—until he heard their talk. About flowers!

He knew about flowers, too! His mother's flower beds—her constant talk about them. Sure he did. And that was the price of admission up are. You're here for punishment—not reward! "Punishment, not reward!—Punishment, not reward!" The words settled on dull rumbling like thunder rolling about his ears. He knew even better their meaning came clear to him through the shock. He had failed!

Even the girls felt it, and excused themselves quietly, leaving the room so he didn't hear. He could feel himself preparing to burst his ears in stoney silence. But he was bad. And he was wrong. He didn't need any defense now. Those love ties were broken all at once now, but they weren't hanging loose and dangling, waiting for some other object to come along and attract them. A bitter acid rain really knew—how he felt at the roots. The only thing tight in him now was a new fear-some thing.

There was a faint stir of his old, dying feelings. How could he tell her how he felt about it? He wondered how she'd feel if he could tell her how he really knew—how he really felt about her now? He almost smiled, but he caught himself. He was wrong!

"That's all, Johnny," she said at three-thirty. "You may go now. And don't let it happen again!"

"Don't worry!" he said. He did smile at her soft tones. He wondered if the pleasant smile was part of her punishment and reward—sort of reward for punishment, maybe?

"But you're wrong, Johnny!" he told himself as he closed the school room door behind him and gazed down the empty hall. "You're wrong, Johnny!" His heels punched—his sharp, ominous sounds in the empty vastness as he walked down the hall.

"You're wrong, Johnny!" he told himself again. And all the rest of his life he kept telling himself he was wrong, as he kept walking in emptiness and all his life was wrong. As wrong as two left shoes—As everybody knew, when they called him Public Enemy Number One!

But when she finally spoke his name, it was so softly that he turned around to see who else was named Johnny.

what he thought of her. She was the kind of lady the knights of King Arthur used to risk their lives for—she was the greatest lady of them all! She made him feel good and warm inside. Of course, he couldn't tell her in words—not with his halting speech. But that way she'd know!

Mrs. Morner was big, strong, and firm, and Johnny had been afraid of her at first—dreading the time when she would come on him, and he'd reveal his stuttering. Then in turn she'd appear surprised, patient, urgent, and finally—harsh!

Then of course, she would decide, as she always had, that she was bad. She probably had some very solid ideas about discipline, about punishment and reward, and about boys she thought were bad.

But when she finally spoke his name, it was so softly that he turned around to see who else was named Johnny. He couldn't believe that Johnny, gentle, kind, was meant for him, until he looked up and saw her eyes, smiling directly at him. It was just like he knew him; like he was a real person.

She didn't try to hurry his speech, didn't excite him—and he could answer her almost without a halt. He just thinking of her sometimes was enough to bring that choking lump to his throat which broke up all his words into jumbled, meaningless sounds. When she caught him like that, she didn't raise a fuss. She simply nodded—and passed on to the next boy.

Of all his teachers, she was the one who didn't decide he was bad—the one he would do anything at all for—the one he loved.

He came out of his dream, with a sharp voice in his ear. "Johnny!" It was her voice. He felt his stomach jerk up in a tight knot beneath his chest—pressing—so he could hardly breathe. Somewhere, there was a question with it—vaguely—he heard!

"You'll stay after school tonight, young man!" she said.

She hadn't even called him Johnny!

The empty room that night gave his mind space to wonder. He tried to force his eyes and attention to his history book, but only his eyes were there. He sneaked a peek at her desk where she was busy with her own papers. Was it such a bad thing he'd done? Were Vasco da Gama and Hernando De Soto so important?

Did she really think he was bad? Not that, please, his mind almost cried in his book. Not—her—the only Johnny's father was dead, and the

There. They were all talking about there. They were all talking about there. He plumped desperately toward his answer, without thinking. He knew thought brought fear. He didn't do it right away, he'd be lightened up beyond any possible sound from his throat. He was on his feet.

"Da-Dah-Dah-lies," he began, "and—zinn—sinias—"

His voice was cracked, sharp. It scared him in the sudden silence of the room. Four pairs of eyes were on him, questioning, waiting—then glancing at each other. One girl's smile faded to sympathy. "My—my mother says they—"

He stopped. His throat was closed. There was not a pin-point of welcome. Not even a hopeful face up there. There was only surprise in several degrees, and not a hint of help. And there was her blank stare!

"That will do for you, young man!" Her voice was hard, but no longer strange. He'd heard it that way before. "You're not in this. These girls are not here as in this.

TEEN QUEENS

by NANCY PEPPER

How many queens have you crowned in your high school this season? In Oklahoma high schools every society and organization and every important social event has its individual queen, elected by an elaborate system of nominations and voting. This year's Oklahoma high school queens competed for the Queen of Queens title in an all-territory statewide contest conducted by an Oklahoma city dice jockey.

Contest Announced—A popular Oklahoma city dice jockey conceived the idea of choosing the state Queen of Queens by high school student vote. Any girl who had been queen of something or other in her high school this season was eligible. He announced the contest over his radio program and the race was on!

The Peaceable Fruit

Grace Noll Crowell

AFTER the storm there will remain The brightest fruit on the bough: The peaceable fruit for your hands to pluck.

Whatever your sorrow now, Whatever your suffering, O my friend, Whatever the load you bear, After the storm the golden fruit, Of the land will be waiting there.

Lift up your hands, make straight the paths, Though dark the way may seem, Ahead are the orchards bright in the sun Where the golden apples gleam. Let no bitterness trouble your heart, For after the night is past, The gold and the scarlet, rain-washed fruit Of peace will be yours at last.

The Best News

Lesson for December 15, 1948

WHAT kind of news is good? Christians always have called the heart of their religion "Good News," for that is what "Gospel" means. We do not call it "Good Resolutions" or "Good Ideas" or even "Good Ideals." Just Good News. What is good about it? It is a fair question to ask at Christmas time. For the story that Christmas brings is the beginning of the Gospel.

News of Peace

ONE of the best kinds of news there is to learn that someone we thought was an enemy, is actually a friend. The end of misunderstanding, of estrangement—that rush of warmth to the heart it brings!

That is the news of the first Christmas—that God is our friend. Christ did not come to assure men that there is a God, that He was known, indeed few doubted it. He did not even come to announce that there is but one God, for that was already known to the wisest sort of men. Neither did his coming unveil the God of the Greeks and Romans, as well as the Jews, knew such a God only too well.

No wonder a Roman poet, looking about on the religion of his day, concluded that he is the great God-maker. His notion was a mistake; but it was a natural one. For all the religions of the ancient world, even the religion of the Jew, were attempts to ward off the anger of offended gods.

The coming of Christ was to put an end to all that. This was more than a friendly gesture, it was an act of love. Those who have discovered God in Christ have found that God is our Maker but our heavenly Father and Friend. There is no better news.

News of a Gift

IT is good news also when we hear of a legacy or gift of some sort, especially when it is something we could not have expected. And the story of Christmas is the news about God personally entering the life of man. It is God giving himself to us. True, the world is full of the gifts of God.

In the Child of Bethlehem, in the Babe who is to become, in the work he was to do, there was a new thing—the self-giving of God. That is one reason why Christmas means infinitely more to a Christian than to any one else.

For the non-Christian, the story of Christmas, for all its charm, is only a story that tells of a child born to poverty, doomed to pain—another chapter in the long agony of the human condition. For the Christian, the story of Christmas is the Good News of how God gives himself, for our news.

News of Rescue

MANY Americans, caught in the long, starving behind electric fences for years on end, caught their first news of victory from the long American planes roaring high overhead. No words were needed. It was news, good news, the news of rescue, of freedom.

So it is with man. Caught in the long war between good and evil, a prisoner in the enemy's country, behind the high fences of frustration, plodding heavily through the freezing mire of barren sins, man despairs of strength or freedom.

To all mankind, through one who will listen, the Christmas story is good news of rescue. A Child is born, but more— "a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord."

From a Far Country

IT is good news when from a far country, until now distant and unknown, we learn that it is a land of friends who send us welcome across the miles. So the meaning of Christmas is good news from a far land—the land beyond what we call death. Our Saviour Jesus Christ hath abolished death and brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel! (II Tim. 1:10).

So ever on the first Christmas, so ever since, the Gospel of God is not alone the good news of a God who loves and forgives and who brings us the victory, it is the news of God who stands at the end of our dark journey to welcome his children home.

Good news! The world has none so equal the news of Christmas. (Copyright by the International Council of Pentecostal Churches. Released by permission.)

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: Is there any remedy for crumbling brick?
ANSWER: A partial remedy is to give the bricks two coats of a cement base paint, to be bought from a dealer in mason supplies. This is a powder to mix with water. This will protect the surface of the brick only; it will not harden them throughout. Very poor bricks should be replaced with a harder burned variety.

QUESTION: I intend to put in a new cement walk in the gangway, and need to know the amount of sand, gravel and cement that I will need.
ANSWER: There is much more to be said about laying a sidewalk than the proper mixture of cement, etc. For complete information on laying concrete walks as well as proportions and amount of necessary material, ask the Portland Cement Association, 33 West Grand avenue, Chicago, to send you a copy of their booklet on this subject.

QUESTION: We had planned to use a creosote stain on a white cedar rustic fence, but understand that this would be injurious to the adjacent shrubbery. What type of paint would you recommend?
ANSWER: As the cedar is resistant to deterioration, it will hardly be necessary to apply any kind of finish unless you have a special reason for doing so. A liquid wood preservative that can be brushed on could be used instead of the creosote, or else a good spar varnish.

This splendid recipe is used by millions every year. Because it makes such a dependable, effective medicine for coughs due to cold. It is so easy to mix—a child could do it.

FACTS ON FARM PRICES

Farmers are being improperly blamed for what consumers think are high food prices. Consumers should be careful thought to use rationing ration: (a) farmers generally do not set the price on the products they sell, nor do they have any control over mark-up by consumers, (b) prices paid for unprocessed farm products represent prices which farmers must pay. Therefore, every farm price increase is preceded by non-farm commodity prices which farmers must pay.

Therefore, every farm price increase is preceded by non-farm commodity prices, (c) farmers are now receiving a smaller share of the consumer's dollar than before the war. If hours worked is considered, his increase is even more inadequate since they work nearly twice as much as other workers.

Earl Wilson, columnist from upstate New York, had this one last week: "Mr. Wagoner Sheen spoke at a dinner in Washington recently, he laughingly told of a letter addressed to the Lord God Almighty, asking for $50, which had been turned over to Mr. Sheen by the postmaster there."

"I sent the man $25 so he wouldn't lose faith," he said. "He addressed another letter to the Lord, also asking for $50. The next time, Lord, you'd better send the money through Cardinal Spellman, because last time Mr. Sheen cheated me out of $25!"

Mt. Vernon Bows To Kingston In Cage Bout, 40-35

Mt. Vernon's hard-fighting Red Devils played a good game of basketball Tuesday night against a Kingston five, but were defeated by their opponents last breaks. The final score was 40-35.

Leading throughout the first quarter, Mt. Vernon lost out in the second canto, to fall behind for the remainder of the contest.

At the end of the third period, the Red Devils trailed by 13 points, but good shooting on the part of Robert Cromerson narrowed this margin to five points at the end of the fourth.

Kingston, evenly-matched with Mt. Vernon's quintet, held the five-point margin until the Snooks was ill and unable to make the contest.

Tomorrow night, Friday, the quintet travels to Lancaster for the first attempt at a Kentucky public utility to put a fuel-cost clause in its electric rates to residential consumers.

In denying a fuel-cost clause to the Community Public Service Company, the State Public Service Commission said it might come back and submit evidence to the commission to show general need of higher rates.

K. U. recently asked the commission to let it vary charges on a cost of fuel basis for consumers, but the commission refused to do so.

The company serves approximately 8,800 consumers in more than 20 cities. Among them are Columbia, Dry Ridge, Independence, Landon, Mt. Vernon, Owenton, Owingville, Russell Springs, and Walton.

Collector of Internal Revenue, S. R. Glenn, announces that a deputy from his office will visit Mt. Vernon, January 10, 1949 for the purpose of assisting farmers in preparing their January 15 declaration of final income tax returns, also taxpayers who would be required to file amended declarations.

The Service is absolutely free. Collector Glenn urges the taxpayers of this county to see the deputy and let him help them with their income tax returns.

The Christian Endeavor plans a house-to-house carolling campaign on Christmas Eve.

The church also plans a white gift offering, which will be used toward the making of Christmas baskets for the city's needy families.

Fuel-Cost Raise Denied Utility

Mt. Vernon and Rockcastle county, represented by Fritz Krueger, the Kentucky State Public Service Commission, E. B. Thompson, Rockcastle county attorney, and other citizens were among those registering protests against the Community Public Service fuel-cost petition before the State Public Service Commission last week.

The first attempt at a Kentucky public utility to put a fuel-cost clause in its electric rates to residential consumers failed last week.

In denying a fuel-cost clause to the Community Public Service Company, the State Public Service Commission said it might come back and submit evidence to the commission to show general need of higher rates.

K. U. recently asked the commission to let it vary charges on a cost of fuel basis for consumers, but the commission refused to do so.

The company serves approximately 8,800 consumers in more than 20 cities. Among them are Columbia, Dry Ridge, Independence, Landon, Mt. Vernon, Owenton, Owingville, Russell Springs, and Walton.

Slight Decline In Burley Mart; Richmond Low

Early reports from yesterday's burley tobacco sales indicate another slight decline in the Kentucky average.

Eight of the first 17 markets to report had lower averages than on Tuesday, but declines appeared to be larger than markets on the nine other markets.

Market observers said markets reported heavy bidding for tobacco of nearly all grades that went in good condition. Wet tobacco continued to draw lower bids from buyers and some markets were said to be turning in before it is offered for sale.

The day's sharpest decline was $3.40 at Richmond, London was down $2.41, Covington $2.50, and several others more than $1.

Danville turned in the top average in the State, $49.05, up $1.13. Sales there were 456,700 pounds for $224,009.67.

Harrodsburg, a well mixed area, reported $42.82, up $1.02, a total of $1,511, on a total of 427,194 pounds for $237,378.68.

Continued rainy weather slowed sales. At one warehouse, buyers while the crop was unripenly until lighting conditions bettered. At most warehouses checked, the buyers were going much slower because of adverse conditions.

Some wet tobacco continued to show up on floors.

Warehousemen sometimes advise farmers to take the tobacco back for additional drying or curing, one handler said, but the grower is reluctant as hard on the grower as leaving it for sale.

That's because the redrying campaign at the "dope" always has been a loss, he pointed out. Occasionally the right degree of dryness is difficult to attain—and sometimes the burley darkens considerably.

He did advise strongly that farmers take care not to press burley while the crop was in "high case" (very moist) or actually wet. This bruises the curley considerably.

His health is much better, and his weight has come back nearly 14 pounds, he said.

Alfred, who has many friends in Mt. Vernon, was an employee of Somerset Undergraduate before his illness.

His address now is Nichols General Hospital, Louisville.

State Plans Movies Of Kentucky Scenes

The Kentucky Department of Highways, through the bureau of Public Information, plans to make a series of motion pictures of Kentucky's tourist attractions, including many spots that will popularize U. S. Highway 25 and secure tourists into Rockcastle County.

Ralph Griffin, secretary of the Rockcastle Chamber of Commerce said this week.

An appeal has been made to all photographers, using the 16mm kodachrome film, and with movies of the attractions of the State, to lend the sequences to the department for use in the final production.

If the film is usable, then reprints will be made of the portions, and the original returned to the owners.

Year Mann, Director of the division of public information, said.

Included in the proposed production are Pine Mountain State Park, Cumberland Falls, Wildernes Road State Park, famous horse farms of the blue grass, Cumberland Forest and many others on U. S. 25.

Legion Drive Makes Progress

A three month membership drive by the Brown Post of the American Legion will end this month, Robert Robinson, commander, said this week.

Offering a $2500 bond to the Legion member bringing in the most new members, the local chapter expects to more than double their present membership, Mr. Robinson said.

"Legion membership is invaluable to the war veteran," he said, "nearly all the benefits contained in the GI Bill of Rights and other veterans legislation is a result directly or indirectly of American Legion action."

Plans call for an active organization that will represent the war veterans of Rockcastle county, and a Legion home is on the agenda for a drive to be instituted in the near future, he said.

Several members are running neck and neck in the membership drive, for the savings bond prize, although no announcement is made at this time concerning possible winners.

CARRIER BOYS GUESTS OF COURIER-JOURNAL

Jimmie Chaney, Dempsey Rames and Edid Moore were in Louisville this week as winners in a Courier-Journal sponsored contest, as guests of the newspaper. They attended the hockey game between Louisville and Toledo, Ohio and made an extended tour of the city.

Places visited included the new Courier-Journal building and the Ford Motor Company plant.

School Teachers Get Right To $3 Million

Kentucky's schoolteachers got clear title to $3,000,000. The Court of Appeals, this week ruled, that the $3,000,000 back-pay appropriation granted by the 1948 Legislature must be spent only for teacher salaries.

The grant was made for distribution in the 1947-48 school year.

The decision settled a case first ruled over the other the Board of Education last year, gave 202 teachers a $22-a-month pay increase. This was accomplished by transferring $40,000 from the board's back-outlay fund to the teacher pay fund.

The board also adopted a resolution directing that the State's extra assistance be used to replenish its capital-outlay fund. This was the basis for the $40,000 salary boost.

Fayette County was the only one which continued to hold back its share of the back-pay grant. Several other school districts had expressed doubts before finally paying it over to teachers. This decision, written by Chief Justice C. C. Campbell Van Sant, was regarded as setting a guide for handling any future grants, as well as settling the Fayette controversy.

Little Time Left For 1948 ACP Practices

With the end of the 1948 Agricultural Conservation Program just a few weeks away, the county school districts have little time left to complete conservation practices under the program for this year.

Ernest Bullock, director of the county ACP committee, reports.

Mr. Bullock urges farmers who have not finished their 1948 practices to use the remaining time to complete their conservation jobs. Every bit of conservation work that is completed will mean that much more soil saved.

Farmers who have completed conservation work are urged to report the projects to the county ACP office. Sales slips, seed tags and other required evidence should be presented.

Bernie Brown Killed In Crash

Bernie Brown, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hope E. Cox, Brodhead, was killed early Tuesday morning when the car which he was driving crashed head-on into a tree owned by the Frank Dance and Co. a few miles north of Livingston.

Brown lived only a few minutes after the accident, but his injuries were so severe that he died in the ambulance. John W. Burke and Arthur Maupin, escaped with a few small cuts and bruises. The truck driver, Bruce Price, was uninjured.

Coming down the long hill about 300 yards north of the White Star Cafe, the car driven by Bernie Brown, struck a tree coming up the hill, headed south. They crashed head-on.

The accident resulted in a four-car pile-up. A truck owned by the Red Top Brewing Company of Cincinnati, also headed north, stopped on the south side of the accident. Within moments, a car driven by Charles Murphy, Mt. Vernon, crashed into the second car, which had been damaged to both vehicles. Neither Murphy nor the truck driver were injured in the second accident, however.
