WEEKLY PICTURE STORY

Rice and the People of Japan...

In Japan rice equals life, and during the months following the atomic end of World War II both factors of that equation had been dangerously reduced. Realizing that the vanquished must feed the U. S. army of occupation stepped into the fields to improve Japan's badly depleted rice production. As a result, even with the sub-technical methods used in the islands, rice crops have soared beyond the pre-war peak reached in 1941 and the Japanese are calling again.

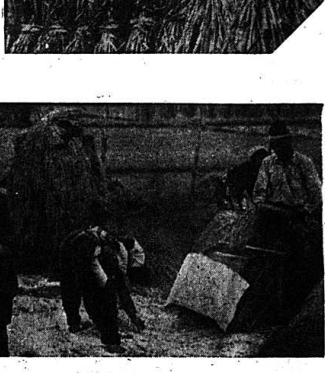

An elemental food, rice is grown and harvested in Japan in an elemental manner. The harvester (above) carries on his back the heavy bundles of rice tied with rice straw from the paddy to the drying racks. Occupation personnel inspect the grain (left) for dryness and maturity. The soldier here is Sgt. Charles Callahan of the Yamagata government team.

Drying of the rice is all-important. The grain-heavy bundles are hung from straw ropes on hedgerow trees, on bamboo racks or even on the eaves of houses. Rice must be dry when stored.

In Niigata, where the photo at right was taken, the drying racks must be high enough to protect the grain from rapidly rising flood waters.

Counterfeiters Fake Money Floods U.S.

WASHINGTON—Two huge counterfeit rings, one in New York and one in Chicago are flooding the nation with bogus $10 and $20 bills representing millions of dollars.

Disclosure of the existence of two rings was made by the Secret Service after the Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced that a "substantial number" of nearly perfect copies of bank notes were circulated throughout the Greater New York area in the biggest counterfeiting operation in the United States in 14 years.

Bank officials warned shoppers, merchants and commercial banks to watch sharply for bogus bills.

Rings Are Separate
The New York bank officials said fake money also had been found in Chicago, but a secret service spokesman here said there was no connection between the two operations. He said the $10 and $20 bills passed out by the Chicago gang are not like those discovered in New York. If the two rings were working together, there would be no point in their using different plates with which to print their "money."

The Secret Service said the spurious New York bills had not been circulated beyond the New York area as far as it knew, but the Chicago ring had outlets in nearly all parts of the country.

The Chicago gang was said to have been active for several months. At first its product was found only in the Midwest. However, evidence of its operations has been found in Pacific Coast States, along the entire Eastern Seaboard and in the South.

Relatively little of the bogus money had turned up in Chicago, officials said. Two passers were under arrest, but the ring can not be broken until the printing machinery is discovered. While the New York bill had the symbol of the Chicago Federal Reserve stamp, printed in Chicago, a Secret Service spokesman said.

The federal reserve bank in New York said commercial banks were taking daily losses from receipts of the fake bills. The counterfeit currency first was detected in New York when employees of the reserve bank there were sorting notes issued originally in Chicago for return to Chicago.

The commercial banks which sent the fake money to the Federal Reserve bank, not realizing that it was no good, were "out" the amount represented, a spokesman for the New York Federal Reserve said. He said that the member commercial banks were losing money every day because they could not trace the counterfeit currency.

He said the "money" has been turning up in substantial quantities in New York. He declined to reveal how much had been found, but said fake money had been coming in every day.

Officials estimated the amount of bogus money in the hands of the public might run in "millions of dollars." They said the last big counterfeiting ring, operated by "Count" Victor Lustig in 1944, flooded the Midwest with $2,500,000.

Is Ruling of Britisher Stealing Milk No Prank

LONDON.—The judge in the Marlborough street magistrates' court in London here said that he was sure there was no indication that they were any less than serious. The judge said London had before him Jerry Frank, came Clark, an 18-year-old typhoid who came into prominence last summer when she defied the police by swimming across the Serpentine in Hyde Park in violation of the regulations. At that time her picture in a bathing suit was in many of the London papers.

This time she was charged with having picked up three bottles of milk outside a dairy on her way back from a dance early one morning. She told the judge she did it as a prank.

"Did you enjoy the joke?" asked the judge. "Did you get a good laugh out of it?"
"No, I didn't," replied Miss Clark. "At the time I thought it was funny, but before I could have a laugh the policeman arrested me."

The prohibition officer testified that he found Miss Clark "to be a bit wild—a little out of hand." The judge, who said he would like to find out more about the young woman who had the faculty of getting into minor difficulties, remanded her in custody for a week.

Live! Ammunition Found in Army Post Scrap Pile

HOUSTON, TEX.—When army officials at the San Jacinto depot learned that a large percentage of "live" ammunition was among the steel scrap shipments being received there, a busy hustle resulted as depot employees set to work to render the ammunition harmless.

Col. James W. Frazer said the shipments contained about 6 per cent "live" rounds. The ammunition ranged from 37 mm to 8-inch shells. It was believed the "live" rounds came from an army camp near Waco.

Eleven Immortals

Lesson for February 20, 1949

JESUS believed in prayer, but he did not usually spend all night at it. When he did, we may be sure he had something of the greatest importance on his mind. One of these occasions was the night before he left the twelve men he called Apostles. He had thousands of disciples, but a crowd of a few followed him wherever he went. But it was important to have a few with whom he could live as an intimate friend. So from the immense number of followers, Jesus selected twelve close friends. Before that fateful morning no one outside their village had ever heard of them. But now their names are known—and eleven of them are honored—around the world.

Jesus Multiplies Himself.
A GOOD executive, Jesus multiplied his own personality. A recent book has shown how Harry Hopkins during World War II lived in the White House as Roosevelt's personal companion, having given up his own ambitions and privileges to carry out the ideas of his chief. Without Roosevelt, Hopkins would have been little more than an "imperial politician; and without Hopkins, many of Roosevelt's plans could not have been carried out. He enabled the president to bear the burden of his own ambitions and to see things through once. So it was with Jesus, as Mark tells us. Jesus wanted those twelve to be with him, and then to send them out.

He wanted these friends to know him as his coworkers, and his enemies, never could know him. He wanted these men to absorb his ideas and ideals.

The word Jesus used for them was not his own invention; "apostle" was the word used all over the civilized world in those days for an ambassador, a personal representative of royalty. All Christians are in the "apostolic" line, for Jesus, a Christian can truly say, "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me," then he is, as these men were, Christ's personal representative.

Raw Material
THE ASTONISHING thing about Jesus' choice of these twelve is his faith in them. Of course they had faith in him—who would not? There was not a single "outstanding" man in the lot. Not one had what we would call a college education, not a man of them had held public office or was rich or famous for anything at all.

There was Peter, an ordinary fisherman, much given to profanity; there was Matthew, a crooked business man if ever there was one, for no publican could be honest and keep from starving; there was Philip, as stupid a man as ever asked a foolish question; there were James and John, loud-mouthed crew who called themselves the Thunder Boys—"Sons of Thunder"; greedy fellows who could not be satisfied till they had shown their way ahead of everybody else; there was Thomas the born pessimist, the defeatist... What could have gone into Jesus' mind to select such men?

—and Judas Iscariot
THE SECRET of Jesus' choice was this: He selected his men not for what they were or had been, but for what they could become, filled with his spirit, transformed by his friendship. It is so today, as always. The Kingdom of God needs men and women, but the raw human material found in or out of the churches is too shabby and weak to build anything like the kingdom of God.

Yet after all, it was never human weakness that has built the Kingdom. It is men re-born, re-made by contact and companionship with Jesus the Lord of men. Now as then, Judas is among the Twelve. Jesus must have been good in Judas otherwise it would have been mockery to choose him. But though that man was with Christ for just as long as the others, heard what they heard and saw what they saw, he ended by being a traitor. "Twelve immortals"—? Nay, but one is the immortal betrayer and suicide. Why? The reason was in Judas, not in Jesus.

But he wants volunteers, never forced labor. The Christ of Glory can be served by the humble; but the free Christ can be served only by free men with open hearts. Judas may keep his heart shut if he will; Christ never forces his way in.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE
by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: "When we moved into our apartment, we purchased from the previous tenant the inlaid linoleum on the kitchen floor. The quality is excellent, but the color is a dirty gray-green in a marbled pattern. Is there any product which will stain or dye the linoleum (not paint) so that we can get a deep blue tone and still retain the marbled effect?"

ANSWER: I do not know of any stain or dye for that purpose. But you may be able to get the effect that you want by stippling in two colors, or else by applying a "spatter-dash" finish. For the stippling, first cut a large sponge in half. Apply an oil floor paint of the background color that you wish on the floor. When this has dried, paint a section of clean board with a second color that you will use for stippling, press the flat, cut side of the sponge on this fresh paint, and then press this on the linoleum. The pattern of the cut sponge thus will be transferred to the floor.

For a spatter-dash effect, use a stick and a brush with a rather long bristle. Dip the brush into the paint and wipe off the excess. Strike the brush ferrule against the stick so that the paint will come off in drops on the floor. (The floor should already be painted with the background color.) Try these methods first on pieces of boards to get the knack. See that the linoleum is absolutely clean and dry before you start to paint, no grease or wax.

Drawings Made For 46th District Tournament

Pairings for the annual 46th District Tournament, to be held at Stanford from February 23 through March 5, were completed at Stanford High School Saturday, February 12.

Prior to the drawing, the dozen representatives from the 12 schools in the meet discussed plans for the tournament which promises to be filled full of action and hard fought scraps.

It was decided that because of the State Fire Marshal, that there would be no more than 1340 persons allowed inside of the Stanford gym. All of these fans must be seated.

Also in the pre-tournament provisions, the participating delegates from the 12 schools were to be reserved seats. This would give each fan an equal chance and prevent scalping of tickets.

Stanford's Wildcats ring up the return of the 46th District meet by engaging McKinney's quintet Monday afternoon at 8:30 P. M. Tuesday night. Highland and Middleburg, both of whom drew byes, will play in the bottom bracket.

Car Theft Victim Holds Man At Bay Till Sheriff Arrives

If you catch a man stealing your car simply grab your gun, jump on another car, catch up with him and hold your gun on him until the sheriff comes to arrest the thief.

It was as simple as that when Earl Young, 22, of Lexington, drove his '42 Oldsmobile off about 12 o'clock Monday morning. The car which was in his garage just west of Mt. Vernon had previously been a subject of purchase by Young. Hopkins and next thing he knew the would-be purchaser was making off with it. And then the chase started.

Young ran into a ditch as he turned left onto Highway 70 toward Somerset. This was his undoing. The car started and he held him at bay with a companion hurried to a phone to call Sheriff's Jesse Taylor and Sheriff's S. P. Moberly. Sammy is now cooling his heels in the Mt. Vernon jail.

"As Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth."
This blind man—illustrates every one's natural condition. For a while he is never able to see. So men are born in a state of sin. Then this man's blindness shut off from him the light of heaven. There were so many lovely things all around him—green fields, sweet flowers, blue sky, bright sunshine, shining stars, and even his dad and mothers faces. This represents your condition if you have not the eyes of your soul opened. You cannot see into the beauties of the SPIRIT FILLED SOUL, unless you have the experience. This is our regular monthly meeting time, Saturday night and Sunday, please come and be with us at the Church, and seek to be filled with His Spirit.

1. AGAIN, PUBLIC NOTICES
It is the purpose of this series of "Chats" to help the layman to understand the importance of Public Notices, their application and importance in many matters, both personal and public, and of the role of the newspaper of general circulation as the chief medium for their publication.

In each state there are hundreds of Public Notices required or permitted by law. In all forty-eight states there are some 23,000 such laws. These Notices concern both private and public affairs. Their main purpose is to put others "on notice" regarding a particular matter and to publicize the information which the public is entitled.

2. TO BE PUT ON NOTICE
What does "mean to be put on notice" mean? It means to be used in law to describe the process by which a person or persons is notified of some proposed action in which he is interested or by which he will be affected. The action is usually of such a nature that he will be addressed to a group of individuals, to an entire community, or even to persons unknown to him by any name.

Such a notice usually appears as a Public Notice in a local newspaper of general circulation. This is because this is the most effective and most economical means of publishing the notice. The requirements for such notices are generally fixed by law.

What the Public Notice laws seek to accomplish is to protect individual and community rights by notifying a man of what is contemplated. To be completely effective, the notice must be given in ample time and in a form which will be taken by those who are affected. (Look for more on this subject each week).

Head of Baptist World Alliance Invited to Danville

Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, St. Louis, Mo., will be the guest speaker for five nights during the period of March 14-18 at Lexington Ave., Baptist Church at Danville; it was announced this morning by Dr. Ralph H. Couey, pastor of the church.

Dr. Johnson has received practically every honor offered by his own and other denominations, and at this time is president of the Baptist World Alliance composed of Baptists of 60 nations.

The next congress of the organization will be held in Cleveland, with Dr. Johnson presiding.

Past president of the Northern Baptist Convention and current vice president of the Southern Baptist convention, Dr. Johnson is the only life member of Kiwanis International, and before he was given this outstanding honor after delivering an address at the International convention over a year ago in Los Angeles, Calif. Recognized as a humorist, Dr. Johnson is able, through his great wit, to win over his audiences before he starts to drive home the great truths of his messages. Dr. Couey explained. He said many consider Dr. Johnson to be the greatest preacher alive today.

Dr. Johnson is constantly called upon to speak in churches most all across the United States. He refuses, however, to be away from his own church on Sunday unless he is in a formal capacity.

An invitation was issued by Dr. Couey today to members of the congregation and to those unaffiliated with any church, to hear Dr. Johnson on his five-day visit to Danville.

U. S. 27 OFFICIALS RETURN FROM TRIP

Two men who are officially connected with U. S. Highway 72 Association have recently returned from a contact trip through Ohio and Michigan in the company of the Honorable Cecil C. Sanders, Executive Director, and Paul Morrow, Lancaster, director, spent four days in the Northern states contacting Auto Clubs and Tour Guide officials. They pointed out the advantages that can be had by the tourist going to Florida over other available routes.

Both men were impressed with the fact that roads in Ohio are directly routed through the middle of very town, large and small and that the roads there are straighter as a rule than our own U. S. 27.

They felt that with direct road built, was made with the people who tell the tourist where to go, that U. S. 27 will show increased traffic as a result—Stanford I. J.

Home Agent's Notes

Second Training Meeting On Lampsades

The second lesson on Making of Lampsades will be given to project leaders from each Homemakers Club Tuesday, February 23, at Berea. Home Agent Miss DeWitt will teach how to make fabric lampsades at this lesson.

The first lesson was on making of new lamp shades and others with a paper foundation. The lesson next week will deal with shades covered and lined with fabric. Each leader will construct her shade so that it may be washed one or more times as it soils.

The leaders attending the meeting in Berea will take the lesson to their respective clubs at their regular meetings in March.

4-H Clubs

There are yet a few 4-H clubs in the County which have as yet had their organization meetings for 1949.

The Extension Agents are trying to contact these but due to road difficulties in some places may not be able to come to each one before the school year ends.

Any club not having had its organization this year may go ahead and organize. If needed contact either the County Home Demonstration Agent or County Agent and they will gladly furnish the materials and information needed by the leaders.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS U. S. Rejects Stalin Peace Talks; Norway Prefers Western Alliance, Spurns Russian Council Suggestion

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.

Tax Plan Snyder's

Administration spokesmen on a Capitol Hill are beginning to wonder whether President Truman's tax program may be another victim of "government-by-crony." In this case the crony is good old John Snyder, secretary of the treasury.

The re-enactment of a modified excess-profits tax on corporations was recommended by Truman in both his 1948 message on the state of the union and in his address to the special session of congress last July. It was recommended, however, despite the violent objection of John Snyder, who had strenuously opposed that the President had to turn to his council of economic advisers for tax advice.

This year, with corporate profits at an all-time high, such administration stalwarts as Rep. John D. Dingell (Mich.) and Rep. Hamilton Eberhardt (Pa.) and Sen. Jos. O'Mahoney (Wyo.) came to the conclusion that another excess-profits tax recommendation was certain to come from the White House. So they prepared bills for an excess-profits tax to be introduced early in the 81st congress.

Much to their amazement, however, they were left out on the limb when the Truman administration message significantly omitted any reference to an excess-profits tax.

Inside story is that economic councillor John Clark, head of an interdepartmental group of fiscal policy, finally gave up the fight for an excess-profits tax because of the obdurate sabotage and opposition of Secretary Snyder — long considered the President's closest personal friend.

Snyder has even gone to the extent of placing his treasury tax technicians "under guard," so they are not available for conferences with the President's staff or with administration leaders at the capitol. Snyder even threatened to refuse a request from budget director Webb for the major outlines of a treasury tax program to be included in the President's budget message.

Secretary Snyder now is conferring in secret sessions with congressional leaders, but for the first time in recent history a secretary of the treasury will have no affirmative recommendations to make. Instead he will submit several "alternatives," thereby advocating presidential leadership in tax policy.

Bricker vs. Dewey

Governor Dewey was tongue-tied in the track by his former running mate, Sen. John Bricker of Ohio, one day before President Truman's inauguration. At a memorial dinner in honor of Sen. Margaret Chase of Maine, Bricker introduced Dewey's running mate in 1944.

"It is true," snapped Bricker, "I campaigned with Dewey in '44, for Dewey in '48—and I have campaigned for himself, we would be inaugurating a different man tomorrow."

Housing Revolt

Another revolt has broken out against the President's public housing program. This time, however, the shouting doesn't come from the real-estate lobby, but from some of Truman's strongest housing allies in the congress.

Sen. Burnet Maybank of South Carolina and John Sparkman of Alabama, Rep. Frank Buchanan of Pennsylvania and Rep. Charles McNair in arms about the administration's bill, introduced by Senator Ellender of Louisiana, which does nothing about the plight of war veterans and others in the $2,000 to $3,000-a-year income group.

Inside fact is that the Ellender bill was written chiefly by Roy Foley, director of the housing and home finance agency, reportedly gummy with some of the big real estate lobby groups.

Foley and his aides made no provisions for helping to finance the $2,000-$3,000 income group, though President Truman has repeatedly told housing leaders that this group—which Truman calls "the middle class" of the nation—should be helped to buy homes by direct government loans if necessary.

SOVIET "BARKS" . . . Like the Dickens character, Russia's Premier Josef Stalin was "willing" to meet with President Truman to talk peace. But the question was: how willing? He is shown above with President Truman when the two met at Potsdam.

WANTS OPEN DISCUSSION

Truman Won't Talk Behind Iron Curtain

It was beginning to look like "Uncle Joe" Stalin and Harry S. Truman never would get together for a talk looking toward settlement of U. S. and other western powers' differences with the Soviets.

At the White House, Secretary of State Dean Acheson sported in disdain, declared in effect that the idea was preposterous. Acheson went further. He asserted indirectly that the Russian leader was playing politics with peace hopes of millions of people.

Any way, Acheson went on, what might be gained? Hadn't the Russians consistently blocked all efforts in the United Nations looking toward disarmament, control of the atom bomb and creation of a U. N. police force?

BUT THE U. S. couldn't be put in the position of appearing to give up peace, so Acheson left the door open for a parley, but there were some American conditions this time. The White House, it appeared, was willing to see Stalin—in Washington, Stalin had said he'd be willing to see Truman—behind the iron curtain.

And there the matter stood. Acheson made a further point. The U. S., in any event, would not discuss with Russia along any points which would be a direct invitation to other nations.

As for a "peace" declaration, Acheson decided by far the most puzzling inasmuch as Russia, the U. S., and all other U. N. members are already pledged "by most solemn commitments" to engage "in peace with one another."

HE ADDED that the hopes of the world's peoples for peace are considered by the Soviet Union to be fundamental, and that the United States would "not play politics with these hopes."

While it might appear an oversimplification of the problem, many might raise the question that if chosen by the Soviet Union, but it is fundamental, and that the United States would "not play politics with these hopes."

The position stated by Norway was in answer to a Soviet note asking the nation's clarification of its view on the proposed north Atlantic setup.

Norway said the United Nations had failed to provide the world with peace and security, and her own people's "serious concern" for their liberty had convinced the government that it was necessary to seek increased security through regional cooperation in the defense field.

BUT THE NORWEGIAN government assured the Russians that it would never agree to foreign bases on its soil "as long as Norway is free of attack or the subject of threats of attack." And the government pledged itself to support a policy of non-aggression.

The decision could be interpreted in no other way than as a definite setback for Soviet expansion-by-intimidation policy. Norway is a small country and vulnerable to Soviet attack. Nevertheless, it has

PENSION BILL:

Vets Must Wait
Little possibility was seen by congressional leaders for enactment of the veterans' pension bill during the current session.

The administration is openly opposed to the bill, meaning being quoted as saying a program already offered "could not be considered" according with the program of the President.

THE PROPOSAL to which the reference was made is a veterans' pension bill to give servicemen of the last two wars a $60 monthly pension when they reach age 60, plus disability payments. It is estimated that this cost would cost almost two billion dollars the first year, with later outlays reaching multi-billion dollar levels.

Under this measure, sponsored by Mississippi's Rankin, a veteran need only to have served 90 days in either world war to qualify for a pension. The disability pay would range from $20 to $120 a month, with no proviso that the disability must have been incurred in service.

Veterans administrator Carl R. Gray, Jr., said that while he was not yet opposing nor favoring the legislation in his capacity as veterans' administrator, its magnitude must be weighed closely now to prevent unwarranted financial outlays in the future.

HE POINTED out that the cost burden might be so great as to endanger the entire veteran-compensation program.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN was on record with this statement: "The necessity for new or extended benefits for veterans without service disabilities should be determined from the standpoint of service in our armed forces, but in the light of existing social welfare programs available to all veterans and non-veterans alike."

Mr. Truman also said in his budget message that "The program of veterans' services and benefits should reflect the fundamental fact that the primary long-run obligation is to the dependents of veterans discharged from service causes, and to veterans disabled in the service. At the same time, we must preserve and stress our basic objective of making the recipients of these benefits to be as nearly as possible self-reliant and self-supporting members of our society."

All of which indicates that veterans of both world wars expecting disability allowances should have had best be prepared to wait.

SATURATION:

Claimed for Taxes
Millions of Americans worried about the war's impact on the economy.

Former President Herbert Hoover made the assertion to congress. A remedy, he suggested unarmingly, is that the government reduce tax rates to a level of 10 percent.

FOR ALL HIS earnestness and the force of his figures, Herbert Hoover, great engineer of the depression, was a voice crying in the wilderness.

While President Truman outlines the need for vast federal expenditures for world social and economic improvement, as well as for defense measures, he had said nothing about reduction of government expenditures. There was nothing in his announced program relating to any such action.

True, there have always been one or two individuals in every congress who have sought to stick a finger into the government's tax collection outlay, but to date the stopper has never approximated the circumference of the office. Indications were that it would be thus in the 81st congress.

HOOPER RECOMMENDED COMPARATIVE reduction of tax rates against the background, ready to raise his awesome head at any moment, was the Hoover's recommendation of respect more for their tenacity than for any hope of their adoption.

Southern Methodist is a South-western champion in football and probably will be again this year with Doak

What about Army's schedule? It has a number of spots, but it is not so strong as some rough-and-ready bridges to cross.

But outside of Michigan, there is no trouble ahead. This forces too much pressure on the Michigan game. A defeat here can play havoc with either team's final ranking—more with Army than

Dynamite Is Magic

Worker on Farmland Must Be Carefully Used to Prevent Harm

Dynamite is the Paul Bunyan of the modern farm. Like the mauling, giant lumberjack who could uproot trees, dynamite, properly used, explodes, properly used, can perform scores of labor-saving tasks about the farm, according to F. S. Eldred, manager of the explosives and powder divisions, Olin Industries, East Alton, Mo.

Farmers today are finding they can save much labor and time in digging ditches, blasting out stumps, opening post holes, cleaning out water holes and even planting trees by the use of explosives, Eldred says.

"But caution is the watchword," he warns. Like fire, dynamite is an excellent servant and a terrible master. When the farmer uses it with full knowledge of the great labor-saving work it can do, as well as the fearful damage, he can perform marvelous miracles."

Stumps are a bugbear to farmers. Each is a problem in itself. The farmer must study the type of stump, whether it has roots that run along just under the ground, or great tap roots. Then he must carefully plan how to blast out that stump with dynamite.

Caution is the watchword. If the farmer should consult an explosives expert. But the typical way to blast a stump is to place the dynamite as near as possible under the center mass, or under the largest roots. If there are two large roots, it may be necessary to plant the explosive under both.

Sometimes there are stumps with central downward roots, called tap roots. In such a case, as shown in Figure 2, the charge is placed down alongside the tap root on the side that will bring it as near as possible to the center of the stump.

can be performed with dynamite. That is the digging of ditches. Dynamite can be easily carried through the woods, swamps and other country impassable to horses or machines, and once there can quickly do more work than dozens of laborers or several machines.

But always the words "safety-first" must be kept in mind. The farmer should know his explosive, know the type of soil in which he is operating and should not trust his own judgment. If there is ever any doubt, he should consult an expert.

Ditches are dug by dynamite not by placing one charge, blowing out a hole then using another charge. Figure 3 shows the dynamite planted stick by stick at regular intervals so that whole sections are blown out at the same time. In this way the earth does not fall back into a part of the ditch already dug.

One of the advantages of digging ditches with dynamite is that there are no "spoil banks."

WOMAN'S WORLD

Many Different Trends, Styles Seen in Fabric Use for Spring

By Erta Haley

WHEN WOMEN choose their clothes this spring, they will have a wide variety of styles from which to select...

There are no really striking changes in fashion to report, but you'll be seeing more of what has already been in the process of coming out...

The emphasis on quality fabrics is especially important in the Bang collection of new clothing for men...

What is to be known as the "close look" will be popular in coats, the majority of which follow fitted princess lines...

New Spring dresses... scroll pattern about the neckline or in ribbon streamer shape about the pockets.

There's a needlepoint wool, the texture of which looks exactly like fine needlepoint...

The exception to the fitted coat in the collection is the travel coat which is boldly plaided and briskly belted...

No Single Silhouette Regarded Prominent Since designing is a useful art, Monte-Sano makes the clothes accommodate the figure...

Are youthful and graceful... or suit as something a woman puts on as a becoming shell and then forgets.

Though many other silhouettes are represented, coats can be divided into two different classifications: There is the one already mentioned, the moulded coat...

From the Eighteenth century artist comes inspiration, too, for the pannier-like shepherdess pleats and shepherdess apron fronts...

The airy light bolero, a version of the season's flapper jacket that tops a slim skirt in many another collection is teamed here with fairly full-skirted one-piece dresses...

Most of this collection looks slim, but there is the full, pinwheel skirt, stitch-pleated all around and sometimes horizontally tucked all over, too.

Some of the full skirt look is achieved by using layers of material like lace or tulle...

Fine Fabrics, Colors are Excellent There's a wealth of fine tailoring now appearing in clothes which not only add to the beauty, but also makes the most of the fine, lustrous materials used...

Brown, black and copper are favored materials in linen and alpaca suits, add all types of business plaids are featured in dresses, many of which have lace trimming...

Finer fabrics, some with soft weaves, others with interesting textured effects are seen in the cooler weather suits. Here again black and brown are popular, but you'll also find that grey, beige and navy are often seen.

make 4-H Club Plans and set-up goals for 1949. All of the members of 1948 are requested to be present. 4-H Club Work was very successful through the year 1948 under the direction of the Council.

Pointy Something To Think About

1. Had you thought about the poultry situation for this year? It looks like another good year for chicken people. The Turkey crops will be shorter than an average for the past three or four years. Other competitive meats will probably still be high in price during 1949. Feed is cheaper than last year. The general buying power of the public should continue good through 1949. Here is what I'd do—fill my brooder house or houses comfortably full. This one thing we can definitely count on — will be higher in price during the last six months of the year than they are now.

2. Have you placed your chick order? Buy three chicks for each pullet in the laying house and five good quality chicks from a reliable local hatchery — don't stand back on price. Cheap chicks are most expensive in the end.

3. Remember it takes February and March chicks to make pullets that will lay those high price eggs from the latter part of August through the remainder of the year.

4. Is your brooder house ready? If previously used for chicks—practice the 4-S-S-Sweep - Scrape - Scrub - Spray. Scrub with hot water to which one ounce of lye has been added to each gallon. After this is done - dry out well, put lime on the floor and litter.

5. Kind of litter to use. Alfalfa or Korean leaves, shavings, crushed corn cobs and shredded fodder make excellent litter. Peat moss and other commercial litters are also used with good success. Regardless of what is used - put two to three inches on the floor at first and then when it becomes soiled, stir it and add more. Keep doing this until the litter is ten to twelve inches deep. Never change during that brood. Lime may be added if the litter tends to get too wet. (Fifteen pounds of hydrated lime for each 100 square feet of floor space.)
6. Feed a good commercial starter. Be sure to give each chick one inch of feeder space during the first three or four weeks and two inches thereafter. Clean, fresh water is also essential.

Wake Up Kentucky

Our stay-in-Kentucky theme is still very much alive. And it is to be hoped that Kentuckians will never forget it because while newcomers from other states may do their share toward keeping the commonwealth up front with the best states, our progress is going to depend heavily on young men and women who make their careers here.

Today's subject is medicine as a career, with emphasis on opportunities for country doctors, and it is handled by a man who knows what he is talking about—Dr. C. C. Howard of Glasgow. In substance, this veteran physician's sound advice could be followed in a general way by young people entering other professions. After "it is glad," says Dr. Howard" to have this opportunity to answer many questions that have been asked me by boys and girls from all sections of Kentucky who wish to study medicine. To them I would say, make sure that it is your heart's desire to care for sick people. It seems to me that the inherent qualities most essential in a young doctor should be as follows: very little desire for personal gain, a great desire to serve those who are ill, kindness and humility, and investigating mind.

"It is very important to make your decision early in life if you are going to study medicine, as it is so much easier to change your mind when you are young. A good way to test your inclinations and desires is to contact your family doctor, talk it over with him, go on calls with him, especially in bad weather, and see if you are still interested in medicine as a career. "After you have made your decision and selected a physician who knows you to act as your preceptor, you should serve a part of your internship with him. It will be of great benefit to you in your practice and in your contact with people. We have spent too much time educating the boy away from the country when he should be educated to the country.

"Next, make sure that you take your pre-medical work in a school that is recognized by all grade A medical schools. Then it is wise to apply to at least three recognized medical colleges for admission. If you are accepted and need financial assistance and you agree to practice in a town in rural Kentucky where there is need for a doctor, you are eligible for a loan from the Rural Medical Scholarship Fund of Kentucky. This fund was made possible by public spirited citizens of this state.

"The need for sincere young doctors in practice in rural Kentucky is great. There are 3,000,000 people in Kentucky. 2,500,000 of these people live on farms and in small cities and towns. There are about 1,200 active active doctors who serve these 2,500,000 people. The necessary medical facilities for the proper practice of medicine, namely: hospitals, health centers, maternity centers, etc., are the next great step in rural medicine.

"Remember, there are great opportunities here at home for the boy or girl who wishes to serve his or her people."

All the farmers around this community are very busy sowing their tobacco beds and burning their broom sage fields, so they can have early pasture.
