Democracy Out of Chaos

BRUCE BARTON has been a friend of mine for many years. He was a congressman representing a New York City district. Accompanied by Mrs. Patterson, I called at his Washington office in the house office building and advised he would assist one of his young lady assistants to the job of escorting my wife to the senate and house galleries so she might see the legislative branch of her government in action.

I saw Mrs. Patterson again about 4 o'clock that afternoon. She was almost in tears and I could not talk without a tremble in her voice. I asked the cause.

"I'm badly disappointed and greatly discouraged by what I have seen. I cannot conceive of the nature of the legislative branch of her government in action."

On the senate one senator was making a speech. There were not more than a dozen senators in the chamber, and none of them was paying any attention to the speaker. Some were reading newspapers. Others in small groups were talking among themselves. There was no decorum, no dignity, no interest.

"In the house of representatives it was different, but more discouraging. There it was a rabble. Every man was talking to himself and every other one. It was senseless. I had expected to see two great deliberative bodies, the membership of which represented the brains of our nation; to be thrilled and enthused by their deliberations. I was not. I was only discouraged by a rabble."

The lady had built up a wrong conception. She had envisioned a gathering of supermen who would deliberate with great and austere dignity, whose every word would represent wisdom and statesmanship ability.

But if we did have such a membership of both the senate and house, they would not represent government "of, for and by the people." What she had seen has in the past, represented America and that for which America stands—and always will. In the membership of the two houses of congress are to be found the types we have in every community. They are typical of the people they represent. As it has been in the past, it now, and will be in the future, there are to be found a limited few of outstanding ability in each congress, but the vast majority are the types that are our real Americans.

Congress is, as it should be, but a national town meeting. It has been that since the beginning of the federal government. It is that now, and let us hope it continues to be a national town meeting. As long as it is that, ours will be a government "of, for and by the people."

As she looked at the indifference displayed in the senate and the pandemonium in the house, Mrs. Patterson did not realize that the real work of both bodies is done behind committee room doors. That in those committees careful consideration is given each piece of proposed legislation. All too frequently that consideration is based, not always on the best interests of a majority of the people, but often on partisan advantage, on the number of votes it will attract for party candidates at the next election.

That is a flaw created by selfish political interests inherent in our two-party system. It does not spring from any defect in the federal constitution. With all of that, government "of, for and by the people," as represented by congress, is far superior to the rule of an army of bureaucrats, directed by a dictator.

They may not be able statesmen; they may not be men of exceptional ability; but as long as we have the Joe Doaks, the Bill Smiths, the Jack Browns and the Mary Lees representing us at Washington, we will continue to have government "of, for and by the people." They are the average Americans.

Bruce Barton conducted an advertising agency before his election to congress and is again back on his old job after four years in the limelight. He was, and is, a representative American. He is typical.

It began as the Marshall plan, then became ERP, to which has been added ECA, OEE, OUISSP, PAB, ACFMP and MACIMFP. What they all mean I do not know except that they are parts of the Marshall plan operations, resulting in complications in America and confusion in Europe. They also add many hundreds to our government payrolls plus travel and living expenses in Europe.

Stalin makes a bid for time; not for peace.

Documents pertaining to work of the Nationalist government (below) were carefully burned to keep them out of the hands of the onrushing Communist invaders. Meanwhile, thousands of civilians jammed the roads leaving Nanking, and the vanguard of the Nationalist armies poured into the city for a last-ditch defense.

Trapped between the Nationalist troops, entering the city for a last defensive fight, and the rapidly advancing Communist forces, the citizens of Nanking created scenes of indescribable confusion as they attempted to leave the city and carry their household belongings out of the reach of possible shell damage. China, sacked, burned and despoiled countless times throughout its history, again was falling before a new invader.

God's Signature

Lesson for March 13, 1949

IN A STRANGE city you may suddenly need to be identified. Some suspicious clerk wants to know if your signature is genuine. It is a fair challenge, for too many liars are in circulation. Jesus himself had to furnish identification. No less a person than his old friend John the Baptist had grown uneasy. "Are you the One we are looking for," he inquired, "or shall we look for some one else?" Jesus' answer to John was not to discuss the theology of the incarnation, or anything of that sort. He just went about his usual day's work.

In the course of that day he cured a good many sick people, and preached to some very poor people. "Now go back," he said, "go back and tell John what you have seen and heard." What those men saw that day was what Jesus at another time called the "finger of God," the genuine divine signature.

Jesus wrote no book, no letters; even he wrote in action, and his acts were the handwriting of God. It is important to see where Jesus underscored that writing. It is true, his healings were what we call miracles. But Jesus did not even mention that feature.

What he asked John to notice was simply this: the blind see, the lame walk; lepers are cured, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, and (as a climax) the poor get good news. The signature of God, in short, is not sheer power; it is using what power one has, to help people in trouble. That was the sort of person Jesus was.

Not by Bread Alone
THE EXPRESSION, "needy people," nowadays suggests people who haven't enough to eat or wear. Jesus helped such persons; but he knew well that men's needs go beyond well-cared-for bodies. There was the poor man from the graveyard, for example, who was lame enough. He didn't want clothes, and he was strong enough to steal all the food he could eat. All he wanted, in fact, was to be let alone. But Jesus knew that what he needed above all was a sane mind, a mind no longer run over and trampled by a regiment of devils.

When Jesus got through with him he was clothed, but that was not the best part of it. He was in his right mind. So God's signature is not only written in a sound body, it is in the sound mind. Again, at Jericho when Jesus invited himself to dinner with that pint-sized tycoon, Zacchaeus, Jesus did not go just for the meal. He went because he knew that Zacchaeus needed something.

We do know that after dinner Zacchaeus was a changed man. He was going to give back every dishonest penny, with interest, and since he could not locate every one he had cheated, he was going to give away half of his holdings for the benefit of the poor.

What Jericho needed was a new administration, an honest one; they needed slum clearance; and Zacchaeus was going to give it to them. But first of all Zacchaeus had needed a new heart—and Jesus gave him that. Again it was the genuine signature of God.

We Too
ALL AROUND us is a troubled world. Some men, seeing it, infer there is no God. Others conclude that if there is one, he must be bad or weak. The truth is that the signature of God is not to be found in the evil and the confusion of the world. It is to be seen wherever freedom is standing against slavery, wherever truth is pushing back ignorance, where diseased bodies are being healed, where sanity replaces madness.

More people would believe in God if they could see more of the handwriting of God. Do you want to help?

We cannot always do things as simply as Jesus did. Curing the diseased is not for us a simple matter of saying, "Be well." A Christian woman, distressed by what she had learned of the plight of the insane in her backward state, was asking the head of the state hospital (himself a church officer), "What can we Christians do?" "Get behind the legislature," he said. (Copyright by the International Council of Christian Education on behalf of 40 Protestant denominations. Released by WNU Features.)

White Coal

White coal is the figurative name for falling water that is capable of being used for power purposes. The term originated in France; it is the literal translation of houille blanche and was probably suggested because much of the falling water in France originated in snow-covered mountains, or because falling water when filled with air bubbles appears white when compared with the blackness of coal. Tide water, usable for power, is sometimes called "blue coal."

Household Hints

Food chopper won't slip off the table when grinding meat if you place small pieces of sandpaper between the clamps and the table.

If your mouses persist in "riding up," sew top-half of snaps under skirt band and lower part of snap to blouse—reinforce the blouse where snaps are sewn. Blouse will stay down, skirt will stay up!

Use long, sweeping strokes when ironing cottons and linens—for easier and more satisfactory results.

When airing clothes outdoors on hangers, fold fruit jar rings over line and slip hangers through loop ends to help prevent clothing from swinging down the line.

Treat linoleum around the sink with an application of automobile wax to prevent spotting and water-soaking.

When storing boxes on top shelves, attach tags to long cords so you can read what is in them without climbing up a chair or ladder—saves time and energy in locating just the box you want.

Bikini Test Probe

SECRETARY OF Defense Forrestal and the navy are moving frantically to hush up the full-fledged congressional investigation of the effects of the Bikini bomb tests in the Pacific.

One interesting fact now in the hands of the senate committee is part of the inside story of Bikini. It shows that 73 ships involved in the Bikini tests, more than 61 were sunk or destroyed.

This is an enormous loss from the two bombs. Yet it was never released in understandable form to the American public.

What Bombs Did

The real fact, however, is that two bombs at Bikini sank the battleship Arkansas, the carrier Saratoga, the Japanese battleship Nagato, two cruisers, 10 destroyers, 12 transporters, 12 minesweepers and numerous other vessels.

Members of the senate atomic energy committee point out that the loss of so many ships on one day would be catastrophic.

Information brought to the senate committee's attention by Dr. David Bradley, an official observer at Bikini, reveals that, after the tests, the navy frantically to remove radioactive activity from Bikini.

OIL SOURCES

Men Drilling Below Water

CHICAGO, (U.P.)—For more than a year, about 500 men have been living on islands of steel in the Gulf of Mexico, drilling for oil below the surface of the water.

Two oil men attending the annual convention of the American Petroleum Institute said the operations, known as offshore drilling, is being carried on by 15 oil companies. Their operations, covering 2,500,000-acre area from six to 20 miles off the shores of Texas and Louisiana.

The oil man said their companies have achieved "fairly good" results so far, compared with operations which cost much less than offshore drilling. Before underwater drilling can begin, gangs must construct their 1,500-ton steel jackets. These are pillings 100 feet below the ocean bed, and extending then 50 feet in the water and 40 feet above the water's surface. Contract offshore pillings cost an oil firm about $1,000,000 before drilling can start.

Offshore drilling camps then are set up on the pillings over an approximate 100-by-80-foot area. Inside the steel jackets, there are each camp includes a bunkhouse and cookhouse and enough supplies to provision a 15-man crew for three weeks.

However, crews usually work for several days only and then are transferred to lairs for a few days off. Shifts of workers alternate around the clock all year.

The oil men said their principal headaches are the tropical storms which sweep the gulf area from May through November. However, the pillings are considered as safe as the ground on which they are seldom are called in from their camps and stop the pillings. The pillings are built to withstand 165-mile winds and 35-foot waves.

Underwater drilling was started after geologists reported what has termed a "shell" of oil beneath the surface of the water. The "shell" is composed of land which extends many miles into the water before dropping to ocean depths.

Use Gravity Meter—American oil men in Venezuela were the first to employ offshore drilling methods and succeeded in finding oil from most companies 500 to 1,000 feet below the surface of Lake Maracaibo.

Geologists use a gravity meter to outline areas which should be tested for drilling. The instrument reveals disturbed areas below where the oil is believed to be present, but the oil men said the only sure way to test the ground is to start digging operations.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Simplicity, Harmony Outstanding On Tables Set With Taste, Care

ARE YOU PROUD of the dishes and cloths and napkins which you use for setting the table? Or are they just a jumble of all sorts of dishes which you've had in the past?

If you really want to add beauty and gracefulness to your home, one of the best ways in which to do it is to set your table for mealtimes with attractive and beautiful dishes and their proper accompaniment.

It's important to have certain colors and patterns in mind before starting this project. Decide what you like and be certain what you have chosen is in harmony with the furnishings in the home.

Home done in simple modern, early American, and some colonial types call for simple table settings. For the more elaborate period types of homes, you'll want to choose Worn tablecloths can frequently be cut down to rectangular shapes to make dollies. Perhaps the old napkins will even serve as the "new dollies." Cotton bags, sheets, pillow cases and cotton remnants can frequently be converted into dollies.

For simple table settings, use a fine, hand-hemmed edge, a narrow edging of good lace, a bias trimming or a fringe.

American dinnerware is now more plentiful than at any time since pre-war days and you'll find many attractive new lines stressing a spirit of individuality.

Contemporary Design

By Etha Haley

This lovely design in contemporary American pottery has simplicity in every line. It is a fine example of the new trend in American dinnerware—light in weight, yet strong and durable. It comes in subtle, pastel shades that are a favorite for casual, informal living and for that pleasant, relaxing supper after the rush of the day.

BETTE DAVIS, according to latest reports, was the movies' highest paid woman star of 1948. Yet, when she first tackled Hollywood practice, no one could have predicted she would have thought the had the ghost of a chance to get anywhere near the top.

BETTE DAVIS with very beautiful girls, many of them with influence that counted in their favor. But she had what counted best in her own mind, determination to get ahead, willingness to take risks the pretty girls wouldn't touch with a ten-foot pole.

The word tournament does its meaning unless it is conducted in a fair and honest way and does more harm than good to all who participate. A dreadful disappointment to team and coach who look forward all season to their district tournament and most disgusting to the fans who follow all their games and know they are skilled and able to make a nice showing on any floor, to be let down by an unfair decision.

Brodhead is extremely proud of the boys on their team, not only on the floor but their every day life, they are honest, courteous and pleasant in all their dealings and show great ability in the games and have made a wonderful record throughout the season. Too much cannot be said of the pretty and efficient cheer-leaders, who were ever ready in their attractive and cheerful way to pep the boys on to victory.
