County Agent's Notes

By Robert F. Spence

To Poultry Raisers

I want to remind you of a few things which should be done now in order that you may make a greater profit from your poultry flock.

1. Any old hens you have should be sold, feed is always too expensive to waste on molting hens and loaders.
2. Your pullets will produce more eggs if kept close to the feeders and water, so keep the flock confined at least until mid-afternoon.
3. Keep grain, (whole yellow corn) or corn and oats, in addition to laying mash and oyster shell, in the hopper at all times.
4. Remember, good feeding will not produce eggs unless there is plenty of water available and this means all of the time.
5. Examine the layers frequently and if lice are present treat the flock and get rid of these pests.
6. Add more litter from time to time rather than clean out the old. Be sure the waterers are arranged so the hens are not wasting water and keep the litter wet. Too, if you are to keep the litter dry, the house must be ventilated. Close openings on three sides of the house and leave those on the fourth side open. This will give ventilation without drafts.

If electricity is available, leave the lights on all night. Small bulbs 15 to 25 watt are satisfactory.

Now let's look ahead to next year. We must stay six months ahead in our planning, if we are to do our best.

1. Clean and repair the brooder house; you may want to enlarge it.
2. While dry sawdust, shavings or other litter can be placed in the brooder house at any time, now is the time to do it, then you will be ready when brooding time arrives.
3. Place your order for chicks as soon as possible for future delivery. This will insure you getting your chicks when you want them and it will help your hatchery man to serve you better.
4. Eggs are in great demand in July, August and September so get ready to produce them by putting chicks in the brooder house in early January; December isn't too early.

Corn Derby

Fourteen farmers entered the Corn Derby last spring with the idea of producing more corn per acre than ever before, but the weather was against them—too much rain and high water reduced yields from expectations. In spite of poor weather conditions we have some good yields. The yields have not all been reported to date, however, the following ones will give an idea of how the yields run this year.

R. Wolfe, Wildlife, produced 84.4 bushels per acre. His crop was damaged by overflow water which stood too long on his field. He had hoped to get 120 to 130 bushels per acre.

W. A. Richmond, Boone, produced 95.4 bushels per acre. He wasn't bothered with overflow water like Mr. Wolfe, yet his crop was damaged.

Johnny Houston, 4-H Club member Brodhead, produced 103.9 bushels. Johnny's corn was the driest when harvested. The moisture test showed only 19% moisture.

Billy Bullen, 4-H Club member Wildlife Club, produced 90.4 bushels per acre. He was well pleased with his yield or at least he said so before the corn was checked, weighed, and moisture tested. He said he expected to get around 80 to 90 bushels per acre. He didn't miss it far.

Now let's see what will be reported when moisture tests are made. Some farmers had such a big damage that they didn't have their crops checked this year.

The corn derby has proved to us that we can raise 100 bushels per acre when the land is properly handled with good management and hybrid seed.

Summarizing the 1950 grazing season as a whole, the entire country enjoyed good to unusually good pastures with the exception of Northern New England, Minnesota, Florida, the Pacific Northwest, and most central and southern Rocky Mountain and Intermountain States. In Kentucky dairy pasture condition set a new all-time high mark for the season in 24 years of record and in Arkansas the seasonal average was the highest—since 1923.

Feedstuff markets advanced about 3 points during the week ended November 21, reflecting, principally gains in corn by product feeds and cottonseed meal, reports to the Department of Agriculture indicate. Demand was not urgent since distributors were mostly purchasing supplies only as needed on a month to month basis.

ROCKCASTLE FACTS and STORIES

By RALPH GRIFFIN

Johnathan Davidson probably feared that he might not survive an examining trial for the murder of Henry Langford. Whatever the reason, he waived it and was held without bond for the next term of Circuit Court. His case appeared upon the docket for the second day of the session.

Upon the morning of the appointed day, record court began to assemble, long before the nine o'clock hour set for the opening of court. Men rode into town from all sections of the county. They came on horseback in twos and threes and in groups of a dozen. There were no wagons. Wagons came occasionally, filled with women and children, coming to town for some gala occasion, but this was no day for such occurrences to be underfoot.

The Circuit Judge and Commonwealth Attorney had arrived a couple of days earlier by stagecoach and were staying at the Langford Tavern. Mine host being a relative of the deceased Henry, this may not have been ethical, but there was no other place to stay. No doubt the officials considered it better to be unethical than to sleep out of doors and go hungry.

As the crowd continued to assemble in the public square, the Judge and prosecutor walked down from their lodgings and pushed their way into the little courtroom. It was already crowded to capacity by roughly dressed mountaineers and a

Know Your County

By GEORGIA CLARK

The Rockcastle County Farm Bureau Federation was organized in 1945, and since its organization here has served more than 500 members.

The Farm Bureau is the largest farm organization in the United States today and has a national membership of over a million. The membership in the Kentucky Federation alone is 92,000.

In Rockcastle County the Farm Bureau is headed by William I. Norton of Mt. Vernon. The first president was Henry Brown, who now serves as secretary-treasurer of the organization. Vice-president is Bradley Saylor.

The Rockcastle Farm Bureau also is served by 16 directors, who meet with the officers once a month to outline and carry out the Farm Bureau program in this county. The meetings are held the third Saturday of each month in the Farm Bureau office in Mt. Vernon.

In November an annual meeting is held and in January officers and members of the Farm Bureau family get together for a banquet at the Mt. Vernon School. The date of the banquet this year is January 18.

An annual picnic is held in July, but the social functions are only a small part of the Farm Bureau program.

The bureau co-operates with the County Agricultural Agent, the 4-H clubs, Future Farmers and Young Farmers and Homemakers. It provides for its members health, accident and hospitalization service, and farm property, automobile and life insurance. The Farm Bureau's Blue Cross Hospitalization service is the largest hospitalization organization in the world. These services are offered members at cost.

The Farm Bureau is set up as a non-political organization, but carries on a national and state program to promote and protect the interest of the farmer. Through its county organizations, the bureau keeps up with the problems of the individual farmer and is set up to help the farmer by standing guard on Frankfort and Washington to do bill it can in seeking laws to benefit rural people while trying to defeat legislation that will be harmful to the farmer.

The purpose of the organization is to do things for the farmers that they cannot do for themselves as individuals. One accomplishment of the organization which is especially important to Rockcastle farmers is the progress in the tobacco field. In the state, the Farm Bureau helped Burley growers get an association and through the association loans to put floor prices under tobacco. It also helped the dark-fired and one-sticker tobacco growers tie their program and price supports onto that for Burley and get better price protection.

Directors of the Rockcastle Farm Bureau are Robert Smedgrass and J. M. Wallace of Ottavard; John Baker of Crab Orchard; Route 3; James E. Reynolds and Kenneth Stewart of Wildie; Robert Gentry, Level Green; Ernest E. Bullock, Jr., Mt. Vernon; Rudolph Burdette, Renfro Valley; Peasley Mink, Burr; William I. Coffey, Mt. Vernon; Route 1; George Thacker, Conway; Ray Pope, Spiros, Ernest Lakes, Jepp Hill; Robert F. Spence, Berea; G. H. Berry, Brodhead, and U. G. Ramsey, Mt. Vernon.

Membership in the Farm Bureau is a family affair. When the head of the house joins, the whole family is taken

SERMONETTE

(By Bro. Arnold M. Williams)

The more I hear of the Rubik Doctrine of all must "Share and Share Alike," the more I see that their practice betrays their speech! I am reminded of my many months experience with the Ruskiies of the USSR. I saw a Proletariat of the vilest form; while the masses faced starvation and the cold of the sub Siberian climate, while the Masses had rags wrapped around their feet, and ate from the common "Soup Kettle," watery soup and black bread, the Military Politicos enjoyed even the rarest of caviar. I also observed that this Proletariat or controlling factory had the warmest and most lavish of clothing. Fur lined boots appeared out of place when we observed the apparel of the average Russian, which in America would have found a place on the trash heap.

We as Americans should thank God for the Leavening, JESUS CHRIST, whose policies if tried, prove priceless in the words spoken of Him, our Master: "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

We as Americans should behold the outward manifestation of that inward change. We as Americans should thank God, that under the New Deal, the Fair Deal, and any other Policy that is for the People and by the People has been Tested and Tried and has surpassed and other Governmental into the organization. Wives of the federation are known as Associated Women of the Farm Bureau.

DOCTRINE past or present.

It is my honest opinion that the Russian Ideology, which is Anti-Christian, promotes the worst and vilest form of rank Capitalism. Each and every Citizen of this great and illustrious land, should guard against the Doctrine of Selfishness, we need to live by the Motto of the United States Marines; "Semper Paratus." "One for all and all for one!" We cannot afford to forget our kind and generous Providence, for no nation can rise and remain with their faces to the sun who forget the Lord our God. Our Fathers who formed and framed our Constitution were most mindful that they had an obligation to their Creator. "In the words of our beloved Benjamin Franklin, "And if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without His aid?" Sincerely in His Service and for the benefit of those who desire the best of Life. Bro. Arnold M. Williams, Baptist Church, Brodhead, Ky.

large crowd of grim-faced men. He sensed that they were there to see that he got justice one way or another. Pistols were conspicuously worn upon hips, or exposed rather than concealed by bulges beneath jumper jackets.

Another lawyer engaged the Commonwealth attorney, David Mills in a low-voiced conversation. This was John A. Moore one-time member of the State Legislature and now a local lawyer. He had been arrested with conviction, the Langfords had engaged Moore to assist with the prosecution. It was an excellent opportunity for Moore especially since the outcome of the trial seemed to be a foregone conclusion. He needed all the legal practice he could get and he fully intended to push the rising tide of his fortune to the limit.

For some reason Mills held back and let Moore take the lead throughout the trial. Possibly he was lukewarm for some personal reason, or possibly he knew the trial was a mere formality, and unselfishly let Moore make the most of it. A jury was quickly assembled with but few challenges from either side. Evidence of the three eye-witnesses was heard with but little cross-examination from the appointed defense attorney. Davidson did not take the stand. The evidence being concluded, Moore made the principal speech for the prosecution. Inspired by the approval of his audience he soared to heights of oratory, denouncing the trembling Davidson in scathing terms as a cold-blooded murderer. In conclusion he made an impassioned plea to the jury for a verdict which would make the death sentence mandatory. The defense made a half-hearted plea for mercy, upon the grounds that Davidson was drunk when he killed the jury. Filed out, to return in ten minutes. Every man in the courtroom knew that a verdict had been reached, and was convinced that he knew what it was.

QUAIL

By Mrs. R. B. Albright

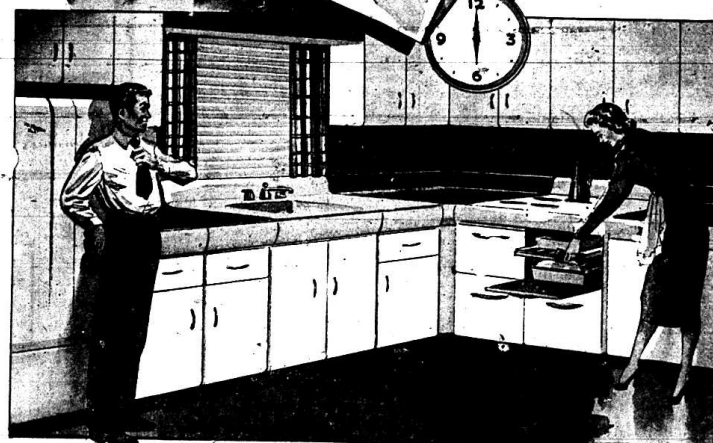

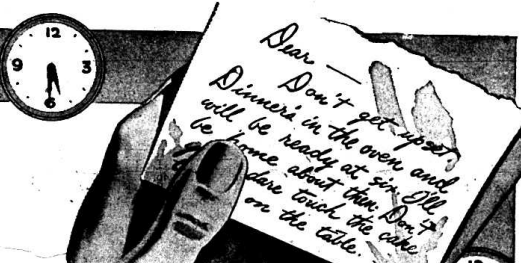

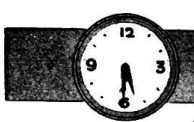

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Anderson and daughter spent Thanksgiving with their daughter, Mrs. Joe Helton and Mr. Helton, at Danville.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Whitaker and daughter of Ohio have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Adams and family.

Mr. Clyde Taylor is ill at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chasey and son of Louisville, and Mrs. Elmer Ponder and family spent Thanksgiving with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Albright.

Mr. Sherman Mink, who has been ill, is some better at this writing.

There are bound to be evenings like this. But George is one husband who isn't upset when he comes home to find his wife still AWOL. He knows dinner will be ready on the dot because Ann has an automatic electric range in the kitchen.

Cooking dinner while you take the afternoon off is simple when you've an automatic electric range. Just prepare your meal before you go, put it into the oven, and set a couple of dials. At the time you set, the oven comes on, and again at the time you set, the oven shuts off. Dinner is piping hot and ready to serve the minute you come in. No late meals, no irate husbands, no fuss, no bother. Just an automatic electric range.

And, after a difficult shopping tour, how would you like to go on into the living room after dinner with the rest of the family? Just ask your dealer to demonstrate the new automatic electric dishwasher for you. You'll find it's love at first sight!

Just remember, for a kitchen that's practical and pretty—be sure it's electric.

Let KU help you plan your new kitchen. Whether you're building or just remodeling, whether you're going all out, or just making a modest beginning, use KU's kitchen planning service.

When a trained KU kitchen designer plans the kitchen you want, to your specifications, you get:

- Help with your kitchen that costs you nothing, puts you under no obligation.
- The latest in kitchen designing with work centers laid out to make your kitchen chores easier, faster, more efficient.

- A scaled, down-to-the-inch drawing locating cabinets and all equipment, from which you can obtain exact costs, or make additions as you can afford them, or get estimates from various dealers, secure in the knowledge that each dealer is estimating costs from the same layout—the kitchen you want.
