County To Get $887 For Roads, Schools

Rockcastle County will get a check for $887.84 as its share of money taken in by the Cumberland National Bank for the year ending June 30, 1950. H. L. Borden, supervisor of the forest, announced this week.

The total revenue for the state was $30,801.08, with the money to be divided among 16 different counties. The money is to be used for roads and schools.

Jackson County will receive $4,172.14. Laurel will get $3,797.15 and Pulaski County will get a check for $1,959.63. The total acreage of national forest land in Rockcastle County is 11,011, compared to 24,309 in Pulaski County, 47,160 acres in Laurel County and 51,780 acres in Jackson County.

Other counties to share in the distribution of forest funds include Bath, Estill, Lee, McCreary, Menifee, Morgan, Owsley, Powell, Rowan, Wayne, Whitley and Wolfe.

The money sent each county amounts to 8.6 cents for every acre of national forest land in the county.

The chief source of national forest income is from sales of timber. Dues for 1951, 1952, 1953 and 1954 were cut with a value of $132,599.25. All timber to be sold is marked by trained forest rangers in such a way as to allow the forest to increase in volume and quality.

Cheer Up Friends It's Almost Fair Time

Col. Jim Messer has started thinking about the annual Broadhead Fair, which is being held at the home of Mrs. Col. Jim Messer.

Colonel Messer is general manager of the Broadhead Fair, or "Little World's Fair," according to the colonel it's never too early to start thinking about the fair.

The Broadhead Fair is the biggest event of the year for more than one citizen of Rockcastle County, and the colonel says "Tell 'em about it now - so they can start making plans."

So for all those looking forward to the big event, the dates for the fair this year are August 16, 17 and 18. The largest calendar year might be the best one to mark because those months do roll around in August.

There'll be more seats this year than ever. The new owner of the fair, has already authorized Colonel Messer to start revamping the grounds in order to enlarge the seating capacity.

In order to avoid confusion and congestion which has been just experienced in past years, more barriers to be built . . . so that it will be possible to house all of the livestock.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Chennault Has Plan

CLAIRE CHENNAULT, a big leathery man who speaks with a great intensity, has a plan for fighting first Stalinism in Asia.

The famous flying Tiger general who fought with the Chinese Nationalists has been pounding of doors in Washington and saying: "Let's arm the hatred against Russia which is heading for China. The greatest fear of the Communist is of the guerrillas—a million of whom hold great pockets on the mainland. We should drop weapons to them, and smuggle munitions across the borders."

"The best troops are engaged in the border areas in China today," says Chennault, "that Communist members don't dare go out alone for fear of being ambushed. The Communist controls only the cities, the rail centers, and the ports. The best troops are engaged in the border areas of the Indo-Chinese border. But the guerrillas have only the arms they can steal. If we give them help, they can take the pressure off Korea."

According to the intelligence slipped out of the State Department, Chennault, this is the picture on the Chinese mainland:

Ma Tse-tung, the titular boss of the Chinese Communist, is active in attacking the Communists war lords and pressure from Moscow.

The general in command of Chinese troops fighting in Korea, Lin Piao, is Russian-trained and violent pro-Soviet. When the Korean strategy switched this spring, away from the conquest of Hong Kong, Lin Piao moved his 350,000 troops north to Manchuria.

Silver Bullets

Protecting the Chinese coastal areas in the south, he left playboy Gen. Chen Yi, who has 500,000 troops stretched from Shanghai to Canton. General Chen, noted for his concubines and his drunken parties in Shanghai, has been bitterly accused by General Lin of being a bad Communist.

Once a Kuomintang leader, General Chen has been suspected, in the past, might be to China.

In contrast, General Li Po-cheng, the one-eyed Communist war lord directing the invasion of Tibet, is loyal to Moscow.

However, a number of anti-Communist leaders, not tied up with Chiang Kai-shek, are active in the Soviet front, according to Chennault.

Ma Pu-fang, a Moslem, is now in China, and is active in the "a vast area bordering Tibet and could be a rallying figure for the 4,000,000 Chinese Moslems."

Ma Hung-wei, the ex-governor of Ninghsia, is in San Francisco, and is active in the "a vast area bordering Tibet and could be a rallying figure for the 4,000,000 Chinese Moslems."

General Chennault proposes that the United States arm and equip the guerrillas to carry out a military mission headed by Gen. Albert G. Wedemeyer, former leader of American forces in China during World War II. He also recommends giving the Nationalist forces on Formosa the same plans for raiding the mainland.

"If this is done," says the Flying Tiger, "China will become a flaming beacon for the Communist. They will be able to conquer Korea for putting out fires at home."

Russian Targets

After all the brickbats congressional Republicans have been tossing at Secretary of State Dean Acheson, it was like a surprise to President Truman when retiring congressman Andy Biemiller, Wisconsin Democrat, told him:

"Mr. President, you showed a lot of spunk by sticking up for Acheson. What many of his critics don't seem to realize is that Acheson is one of the first Americans the Russians would like to shoot. He's the chief engineer of our anti-Soviet policies."

Truman appeared slightly startled, but agreed with Biemiller that the middle-of-the-road program was what the Russians feared most.

Anglo-American Relations

Kenneth Lindsay, a British member of parliament, said to a group in America:

"I have crossed the ocean many times between England and America, but this is the first time I felt that the middle-of-the-road program was what the Russians feared most."

One American countered that British coolness toward Chiang Kai-shek was part of a play to keep the Communists from taking Hong Kong.

"We know we cannot lose Hsing Keng," replied Lindsay, "but we do have great fear for Malaya. If we lose Malaya, we lose the sterling bloc. And there is no better way to lose Malaya than to let it go to the Russians. Our greatest need today," Lindsay emphasized, "is to bring the American and British peoples together."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Reds Launch Offensive in Korea; U.S. Works on Japanese Treaty; Army Calls for 80,000 Draftees

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the writer. Newsweek's news analysis is not necessarily that of this newspaper.)

North Korean and Chinese Communist troops concentrated for another blow on U. N. forces below the 38th parallel. Chief concentration points were at Yoncheon (1) and northwest of Seoul (2). Red attack (3) northeast of the Yoncheon, pushed back the South Koreans more than a mile. Red patrols were near Kaesong (4). South Koreans fought a preliminary battle near Hyon (5). Reds were also massed north of Chumchon (6).

KOREA:

The Story Repeated

The story of the Korean battle seemed to repeat itself. Forced to retreat from North Korea after pushing the Communists out of South Korea and almost to the Manchurian border, U. N. forces received the full force of Chinese and North Korean troops as they plunged south of the 38th parallel.

U. N. troops gave ground and American retreats are being reported. The main feature of the attack was the overwhelming number of Chinese and North Koreans rushing U. N. defense positions. At least 200,000 men were thrown into the line.

The Communist plan for the conquest of South Korea was to separate the eastern and western sectors. The eastern sector was to be taken first and then destroy them at will.

Meanwhile, observers who reported the Korean report the morale of the soldiers at the battle front much better than that on the home front.

Communist attacks were pictured as frightened, frustrated, and a sweep with recurrent waves of defeatism and despair. The men in battle were pictured as either frightened or discouraged.

There was no criticism of American troops in the reports. The criticism of the fighting ability of any army's troops.

ARMY:

The army called for 80,000 draftees in March, raising total draft quotas to 450,000 since the Korean outbreak. Eighty thousand had already been scheduled for January and February.

With the armed forces building toward a manpower total of some 5 1/2 million, the army and navy are anticipating a combat strength equivalent to 24 divisions when the current expansion goal is reached next July 1.

An infantry division numbers 18,700 men and is a self-contained fighting unit. It includes tanks and artillery. At the beginning of the Korean war, the army had 48 divisions, only one at full war strength. It had 11 regular divisions, with four national guard divisions and the rest in reserve.

The number of active-duty men as of January 1, 1951, was 3,500,000. The army's service officials reported that 217,000 men had been delivered to the army up to January.

TAXES:

Higher in 1951. With the new congress in session, President Truman was expected to ask for more taxes at any moment to meet the mounting cost of the nation's defense.

Although the size of the new tax program was not disclosed, one administration official reported the President would like to get more government as nearly as possible on a pay-as-you-go basis. The program, however, would include higher personal and corporate taxes.

It seems unlikely that a new tax program can bring expenditures into balance because the amount of spending for the fiscal year 1951 may reach $75,000,000,000. The present tax program, including the excise tax, will yield revenues of only about $45,000,000,000.

MARCH OF DIMES

March of Dimes Fund Campaign

In 1950 March of Dimes funds had raised in some measure more than 54,000 polio victims at a cost of $20,000,000. The national fund has raised $10,000,000 at its lowest point in its history. It has been since that was founded in 1938; officials reported that the foundation reported four out of every five of the stricken need for—and received—financial assistance.

BIG FOUR:

Conference Plan. Some weeks ago the United States, Britain, and France proposed that another big four conference be held in an effort to solve the many pressing world problems. After long weeks of waiting, the Russians have responded that a big-four meeting was not closer than when it was first proposed.

It was believed that Russia was not prepared for any unqualified discussion of the many galling points of friction between the western democracies and the totalitarian Soviet system.

It was also rumored that Russia wanted the western powers to accept the Prague declaration which served notice that the Communist nations of eastern Europe would not tolerate rearmament of western Germany.

Russia was also reported to have taken the stand that Communist China would be represented before any conference. The present situation in the far east could be undertaken.

Korea was his right hand could believe that the United States would accept any of the conditions. Thus the conclusion that a big four conference is not likely in the near future.

ACHESON:

Production and Faith. Secretary of State Dean Acheson gave the United States description for 1951—"production and faith."

In a radio interview, said we have the power to retaliate against any aggressor who attacks us and our friends and that power cannot be overlooked.

"We expect to make ourselves respected and to deter aggression," he said.

"The prescription which we need today is the prescription which Mr. Churchill gave to England in 1940—blood and guts."

Acheson's statement was remarkable in that it echoes a growing belief throughout the country. Americans who had been described as frightened and frustrated in 1950 seemed to be settling down quickly to a new year of sacrifice and determination.

The last few months have been called America's darkest hour, but they may be even darker before the United States is fully rearmed and ready to face its enemies.

TRAFFIC:

A War of Home. While American troops were being killed in Korea, Americans at home slaughtered themselves on the highways during the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Complete tabulations were not complete for the New Year's holiday, but during Christmas there were 724 violent deaths in the United States—547 of them in traffic mishaps.

The accident rate was more than 100 above the number of persons killed in traffic accidents during the 1949 Christmas holiday. The 1950 holiday almost equalled the record of 553 set in 1939.

In the city of Los Angeles alone there were 31 traffic deaths, 900 injuries—a total of 1,034 accidents. It was significant to note that police in that city charged 323 persons with driving while intoxicated in 1950.

Only one state—South Dakota—reported a "total zero" fatality that could be attributed to the Christmas observance.

Witness

Mrs. Ann Moses Remington, ex-wife of the former senatorial official, William Remington, testified in federal court that seven years ago Remington turned over to her a large quantity of polio-vaccine formulas to confessor spy Elizabeth Bentley for transport to Russia. Bentley is being tried for perjury.

MARSHALL:

Let's Go Easy. Secretary of Defense Marshall warned the nation in the closing days of 1950 to go easy, that "a too rapid attempt at mobilization was apt to delay the ultimate speed of rearmament."

There is a "tendency to feel that the more rapidly we appropriate billions and the more rapidly men are called into service, the better we will be."

WOMAN'S WORLD

Almost Every Room Can Be Made Charming With Gay Slip Covers

By Erta Haley

REMEMBER WHEN the slip cover was a dust protector? It's not so long ago when we slipped them over the furniture and then prayed we would be able to remove them before anyone would see them!

Sometimes ago slipcovers came out of their hiding and how very fortunate they did! Now, they are stars in their own right and can make almost any room in the home, one of fresh beauty and charm.

Though some may think of slipcovers as something with which to hide the furniture and thereby protect the upholstery, they're something more. People starting a home frequently buy musty covered pieces, and this may happen twice a year, and certainly two or three times during the winter.

People like slip covers so well they have both a summer and winter set, and thus make possible two different looks for their rooms.

Slip covers enable you to simplify your cleaning. In dry localities where dust and soot abound, you can whisk them off, launder them and lay them back on much more readily than cleaning the upholstered pieces.

Change the wall colors, and you can change slip covers, much more easily and less expensively than buying new upholstery. If the room needs cheering and brightening, you can add a new slipcover or perhaps dye an old set. How much easier than trying to change the furniture!

Lines of furniture can be changed with the slip covers. They are made in many pleasing, chunky furniture legs, as well as dignifying other unattractive lines.

Amateur Hands, If Dert Can Make Slip Covers. No one need be a professional to put together a set of slip covers. Not only the proper types of fabrics are available for the job, but you can buy patterns to help you. If you can make your own.

The project involves much material for an upholstered chair will take ten yards, more or less, of material. The sewing, however, is simple and can be done by a beginner, especially if you have fitted the cover on chair or sofa and billed before you attempt to make your own.

Those who have experience with slip covers will tell you the best kind of material to get is that which will hide the best, and make it look like of laundering the covers at home, but you may find it necessary, because it's speedy and economical.

Many of the heavier fabrics are now pre-shrunk when you buy them, and also in luscious colors is available, as are the cotton chintz and crash types.

Those which are not so finished should be shrunk before you attempt any cutting or sewing. In this way you'll do the shrinking, and the material will be the same as that about not having slip covers to fit perfectly.

Get the material thoroughly and stretch out to dry, or even start the cutting.

Professional shrinking service is available in some communities, and can also be used. The price is usually based on the number of yards of material used.

Enlist all the sewing aids available for your slip cover project. These include zippers for the covers in place of snaps, they'll save time and trouble. The price is usually based to attach them. It's also easier to remove and replace the slip covers with zippers.

Fitting sheers can now be purchased at reasonable prices and should be used for finishing the edges, particularly if you're sewing the covers by hand.

Use durable thread and adjust stitching to material so that sewing will be secure. Then the covers will last longer. The sewing which seems have sprung loose.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Patterns have a way of slipping off the shiny fabric, making a quilt—but not if you make the patterns out of sandpaper.

If the man of the house has to carry a lot of keys or other heavy objects in his pockets, make a key ring by lining the lower part of the pocket with a piece of good strong cloth.

The youngster's leggings can be made warmer if you take the bottom half of discarded pajamas, dye it the correct color, and sew it inside the leggings as an extra lining.

If you want to stretch a newly washed curtain, and you have no extra stretcher, pin a large clean bedsheet to the curtain, rug before retiring at night; and pin the curtain, stretched as you want it, to the sheet.

Two chairs which you want to use together in a grouping may have same lines, but their covers are at odds.

Because of the ease with which they slip on and off, you can maintain greater cleanliness with slip covers. Small spots should be wiped off immediately. Place cardboard or waxed paper underneath the covers while doing spot removal, so you do not stain the muslin or original fabric.

Put slip covers through the wringer carefully folded to avoid any wrinkles that may show. They'll only require that much more ironing. It's a good idea to zip them, too, before washing, to help them keep their shape.

Press out wrinkles before hanging. Choose a wrinkle-free, but not too stiff, one for year-round use. Keep from bleaching out colors.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

ROCKCASTLE FACTS and STORIES
By RALPH GRIFFIN

Tom Pearl, now a freed man, had chosen to remain with his old master, Judge Pearl, after the Civil War. He worked about the place, but mostly inside being what was known in the parlance of the day as a "house-boy," rather than a "field-nigger." He was known as a good lad, who had never committed any misdeeds other than those attributable to the usual run of animal spirits among boys of his age.

One day while Tom was alone in the house with a young daughter of the family, something happened, just what it was is a matter upon which opinion was then divided. According to the testimony later given in court by both the frightened boy and his youthful mistress, she had ordered him to make some minor adjustment about the back of her clothing. His nose had just been bleeding, and in carrying out her orders he accidentally spattered a few drops of blood upon some of her garments. Other members of the family, and the jury before whom Tom was legally tried, did not accept this version of the incident and Tom was sentenced to be hanged.

The date of his execution was set within the minimum limits prescribed by law. The condemned boy was confined with in the walls of the same little jail in which the white man, Davidson, had spent his last days.

The old gallows having been burned many years before, the court ordered that a new one be built, its location was upon a high bank, across the road and some two hundred yards north of the original site. Being intended for a negro, the construction of this gallows was even more simple than that of the first one. There was no trap door for the condemned to stand upon; merely an extended cross-arm and a dangling rope.

Upon the appointed day a large crowd assembled in Mt. Vernon. This assemblage was in an ugly mood, and in many respects resembled a mob rather than a legal gathering. They hooted and howled about the town and created so much disturbance that the officers were much relieved when the hour of execution arrived.

Following a precedent which must have been handed down from the days of the French Revolution, Tom Pearl, when taken from his cell more dead than alive from fear, was seated upon his coffin in a cart. This vehicle was then paraded thru town before being driven to the gallows. The mob followed, hooting and jeering as they fired their pistols into the air.

Arrived at the place of execution there was no formality whatever preceding the actual hanging. The sheriff and his assistant merely drove Tom beneath the dangling rope, still seated upon his coffin. They quickly adjusted the rope about his neck and then drove the wagon from beneath him.

Then a thing happened which was not included upon the day's program, and which was to provide extra entertainment for the bloodthirsty throng of witnesses. The rope broke before any harm was done to the victim, and Tom fell to the ground; there he writhed while he prayed and pled for mercy. The hangmen hesitated, shocked and possibly touched by this turn of events. The mob roared and threatened to take matters into their own hands unless the job was speedily completed.

The condemned boy was picked up and placed back upon his perch until a new rope could be adjusted. The next time the wagon was driven from beneath Tom, the rope held and justice (?) was satisfied.

Value Your Health More Than Riches

Some folks think that fine clothes and fine, big houses are the most important things in life, but these things really don't mean too much if a person doesn't feel well enough to enjoy them. Most folks live this way, but Mrs. Lucy Brawell of Route 2, Stone Mountain, Ga., realizes that very well. Mrs. Brawell takes HADACOL and by taking HADACOL she found she is helping her system overcome deficiencies of Vitamins B, B₁₂, Nicotin and Iron which HADACOL contains.

Here is Mrs. Brawell's own statement: "I have been sick for some time with stomach disturbances. I began taking HADACOL and I have been taking it about six weeks. I am so much better and much stronger. I will continue to take HADACOL. It sure has helped me. I tell my friends about HADACOL. I can praise HADACOL too much."

AI Didn't Go for Soft-Soap, but He Was an Easy Touch

By BILLY ROSE

In Miami some winter hotel, Al Johnson stopped in for a quick one at the bar of the hotel where he was staying...

The woman looked over her face lit up. "Why—you're Mr. Johnson!" she said.

"Sure," said Al. "And you knew it the minute I came in. What's the idea of the come routine, sister?"

"I just had to talk to you," said the woman. "I've been sitting here all afternoon waiting for you to drop in."

"WHAT'S ON YOUR mind?" asked Al.

"My husband is in a jam," said the woman. "He's in a jam because he's in this hotel and he was on duty the other night when you checked in and left an envelope full of money to be put in the safe."

A FEW MINUTES later the couple were in a cab with Johnson; sure it was all over but the fingerprinting, just intended of heading for a police station to get the money out of the South Miami dog track.

There Al the husband to a par-mutual window and handed him five one hundred-dollar bills.

"I'd take my fifteen hundred," said Al, "and let this be a lesson to you. You never let the horse—no you gotta bet, bet the dog."

"Last Fall, after a guest broadcast on New York, Johnson was hospitalized by a young man as he was leaving the studio.

"I don't suppose you remember," he said to Al, "but several years ago you took my job out to the Miami dog track and helped them win fifteen hundred dollars."

"Sure, I remember," said Al, "and when you write your mom tell her she still owes me some dough."

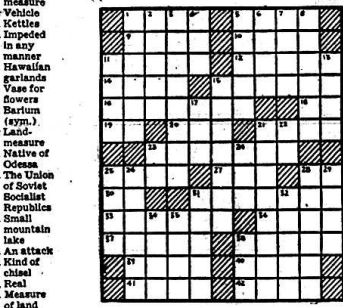

"I never heard about it," said the young man, "but I know you were back there when you were in the dog track."

"A quarter," said Johnson. "She was playing a juke box and ran out of change."

THE FICTION ROOMS FOR RENT

By Dorothy Boys Kilian

"I THINK YOU DON'T really want to rent these rooms for the summer, do you?"

"Margaret stood up slowly, put her arms around his neck and planted a kiss on his smuggy cheek."

"Why, Dick, you're exhausted when you come home from the garage, and lots of times you don't even get here until eight or nine."

"Well, this house your mother left us has more rooms than we need for ourselves."

"But just look at the furniture!" Dick waved an arm at the room in general.

"I think it's all kind of quaint," Margaret said placidly.

"Dick smiled. "People on vacation want to be comfortable, not quaint. And besides, think where we're located; practically in the center of the city."

"I'm nice and quiet, though," Margaret insisted.

"Dick shrugged. "I give up. But I hate to see you slaving away out here."

"Margaret stood up slowly, put her arms around his neck and planted a kiss on his smuggy cheek."

"Oh, well, the doctor says I need plenty of exercise," Margaret said soothingly.

"There's the doorbell. I'll get it!" Dick, still-looking troubled, started downstairs.

"A portly, pink-checked old gentleman stood on the porch. "This is the Shipley residence?"

"Yes, please come up and I'll show them to you," Margaret answered.

"There was a lengthy murmur of voices in the upstairs hall. Then down came Mr. Frost, a hand on Margaret's elbow, and she accepting the little attention as the most natural thing in the world."

"Well, it's all settled then," Mr. Frost was saying. "We'll take the two rooms for the summer."

"Yes, this advertisement hit us in the right spot." He fingered a little piece of newspaper.

"Advertisement!" Dick stared at the paper.

"Your wife used a good psychology when she said 'oh'!" Mr. Frost chuckled. "Playing down a thing so much that it excited your curiosity."

"Oh, yes," Dick laughed weakly. "Let's see that again," he said, trying not to look too astonished.

"For weeks he had been in the summer season, two rooms in ancient frame house, unfashionable past but recent village, very few modern conveniences, no recreational facilities nearby."

"Yes," Mr. Frost said. "My wife says that and did it made her thing of a Currier and Ives print."

He handed Margaret some bills, put on his grey homburg, and "Happened to be in the neighborhood."

"Your greatest triumph, however, is that you've managed not to look triumphant."

Licenses, Training Urged For Sitters

State legislators and city councils throughout the nation, have been petitioned to pass laws requiring the licensing of all baby sitters, private kindergartens, day care agencies, and nursery and play schools.

It is suggested that such licensing be regulatory in nature and not restrictive.

The present lack of standards for these persons and institutions is highly detrimental to the health, safety, and general welfare of infants and pre-school-age children, petitioners believe.

While some of the more progressive cities and states have already begun to inquire into the matter of licensing pre-school centers, entirely too many have been lax and indifferent to this need, many parents contend.

Little or nothing has been done, to date, by city and state governing bodies to require physical examinations of baby sitters.

Some parents think baby sitters should, in addition, be required to obtain the signatures of two persons in their community, testifying to their moral character and reliability.

They believe that regular courses of study should be required of all baby sitters and directors and their assistants in day care agencies and nursery and play schools and suggest that, as a temporary measure, these courses could be made available in the form of evening classes sponsored by local civic groups or governing bodies.
