The Winning Soil Conservation Essay

By Beth Stephens. The PLACE OF WATER CONTROL IN THE SOIL CONSERVATION PROGRAM. We, the farmers of the United States, are deeply concerned with a huge and vital job that our nation mobilizes her strength and joins her free people of the world to resist aggression, and we fervently hope to build solid foundations for true and lasting peace. Our primary task in these troubled times of neither peace nor war is, of course, to produce food and fiber of all kinds and in the quantities needed for our nation's effort. This is no novel assignment for farmers, but at this time it may well require the almost unending persistence and unity - but we're all going to have to pull together to reach it. God has wonderfully blessed us with soil, grasses, legumes, and water. Water is the priceless resource on which all growing things depend. When properly used and controlled, vigorous nations can flourish, prosper, thrive and cities prosper. When the supply of water fails, farms are abandoned, communities are imperiled, and cities and cultures die, leaving ruins to mark their past glory. Many farmers in my Soil Conservation District are doing a good job. The method used to drain an area may be determined by the condition to be remedied, by the availability of water, and the cost. Surface ditches, tile drains, and diversion ditches are commonly used on Kentucky farms. There is need for more forests, because the good water that runs our soil erosion. There is a rapid run-off water in areas covered by trees. The rain is checked in its fall by the trees and the branches. The ground beneath the trees is covered with all kinds of humus. The layer of humus absorbs the water and allows it to sink slowly into the ground and become soil water. Soil erosion is a dual menace to public health because it depletes the minor elements in the soil essential to plant and human nutrition and pollutes streams with sediment.

The Washington MERRY GO ROUND

Man of Letters
LOOKS like the "man of letters" in the White House is going to make a lot of money for the recipients of those letters.

Out in Denver, Dr. Neal Bishop, who suggested to Mr. Truman that John L. Lewis be appointed ambassador to Russia, is going to auction off his Trumanesque reply for the benefit of the Denver Community Chest.

Truman, which stated that he would not even appoint John L. as ambassador, should bring a large amount of money—though Bishop has generously given the letter to the Community Chest and they will make the profit.

Mr. Truman's letter is something which happens only once in a lifetime, that it was an unsolicited gift from the President of the United States. A gift is not taxable until it is sold, and as long as Mr. Truman keeps the letter more than six months his tax will be only 20 per cent.

Other people who got indignant letters from the President can also cash in on this nice new tax break. In brief, the President has been awfully kind to Mr. Hume, to Jimmie Byrnes and others. The only one who has slighted is he, because when he hurried the "series of brotherhood" change in my direction, he did it orally. He did not write me a letter. Someday, if I can get a nerve, I am going to write Mr. Truman to put it in writing, so I can have something either to hand out to my children or else sell under a capital gains tax.

New Order of Draft
Selective Service Director Lewis Hersey is recommending the following changes in the draft law to the new session of Congress:

1. That the draft be extended from 18 to 18 years, with the maximum age limit kept at 25.

2. That draft exemptions be limited to 18 months, with the national guard be stopped.

3. That draft eligibles between 18 and 25 be taken in the following order: First, all unenlisted in their classes; second, married nonvets; third, unenlisted third world war veterans; last, nonvets with children.

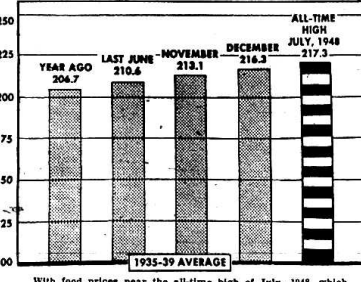

Increased Living Cost
One thing that has stumped price czar Alan Valentine and Mike Di Sora is that they cannot improve price controls on many consumer products until the cost of living goes up even more.

Because of the farm bloc in Congress inserted a provision in the price control bill whereby certain farm prices would be controlled only in part under party or under the price of last May and June.

Silver Bullets
A plan to use "silver bullets," the ancient and still popular weapon in China, is being carefully studied by U.S. strategists.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS President Truman Asks for Unity As Nation Builds Up Armed Might: U. N. Forces Continue to Pull Back

EDITOR'S NOTE: Where opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the writer. Where they are not, they are those of the staff.

With food prices near the all-time high of July, 1948, which was nearly 21% per cent of the 1935-39 average, the government drafted a 34-day moratorium on all price increases. The chart above traces the food price picture. The moratorium was delayed, by disagreement within the government's economic-control organization.

TRUMAN: Drops For Deal

President Truman opened his "State of the Union" message to Congress with the words "our country is in a healthy condition. From that state we stress strength and unity in the face of Communist aggression throughout the world."

One of the remarkable points of the President's message was his apparent willingness to drop his much-debated Fair Deal program for the time being—in order to get on with the business of building up the free world's defense. He went on to call for a "full-scale war against Russia," if such conflict becomes necessary.

The Program

- 1. Appropriations for the armed forces and the national guard.
- 2. Extension and revision of the draft law, presumably to include 18-year-olds and extend the term from 21 to 27 months.
- 3. Military and economic aid to the rest of the world.
- 4. Revision and extension of his authority to expand production and control wages, prices, and rents.
- 5. Improvement of the agricultural laws to help "obtain the kinds of farm products the world needs for the defense effort." This might include a direct subsidy to farmers to keep from selling farm products at less than fair price.
- 6. Improvement of labor laws to "provide a steady stream of management relations" and assure "steady" production.
- 7. Training and training of defense workers and "the full use of all our man-power resources."
- 8. Legislation to increase the number of doctors, nurses, and other medical personnel.
- 9. Federal aid to the States for elementary and secondary education.
- 10. A "major increase" in taxes.

U. S. Seeks to Brand China Aggressor

Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb told the United Nations his country was not yet ready for a final decision on American demands for U.N. action against Communist China as an aggressor. He held the U.N. that to "look well before you leap" is the way to maximum foreign affairs. "If we leap, we should all leap together."

Taft: Constructive Criticism

In a speech which he called "constructive criticism" of the administration, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio said he had no objection to a Republican party pledged itself to securing a greater voice in policy making.

Mr. Taft expressed a tide of thought which has been growing throughout the United States since the reversal in Korea, namely, that the defense of Europe was primarily western Europe's responsibility, not ours.

Undoubtedly the most powerful Republican in the Senate, Taft seemed to be serving notice on the administration that congress intended to cut in on the President's power to formulate foreign policy. If the Republicans are willing to push the question it could lead to the conclusion in Congress never before seen in a time of crisis.

One of the most startling statements of the senator's speech was the one when he said the U.S. ought to go along, for the time being, in the U.N. for its value as a world forum for the conduct of international relations. He was mortally wick in having been founded, not upon "justice" but upon the power of its leading members. To the people in the home towns of the country who had placed their faith in the United States it was like a blow below the belt.

Was it possible that some of the nation's leading legislators believed that the United Nations was only as the League of Nations? Was it possible that some of our prominent leaders favored U.S. withdrawal from the United Nations? In a speech put those questions into the minds of many.

Two days after his policy speech Senator Taft announced he was in favor of pulling U.S. troops out of Korea and setting up a separate peace conference based on Formosa and Japan. For these he would fight, he said. He then warned that "if Russia attacks western Europe it means war."

WOLFE: A Matter of Time

Wage and price controls appeared certain for the nation as it moved toward full mobilization. The average housewife the need for price controls on food was becoming apparent.

A disagreement within the government's economic-control organization blocked action on a planned 10-day price control program. The move was a temporary measure to hold the line until enforcement March 1.

Price controller Michael V. Di Salle reportedly will need 30,000 workers for a nationwide staff of more than half would be charged with tracking down black marketeers, hoarders, price gougers and other control chiselers.

Some temporary plan to stop the price spiral was considered necessary by Di Salle. At the present rate of increase, food prices would be at an all-time high by March 1 and would bring hardship for the income tax payers.

Eisenhower

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower (above), is surrounded by men as he speaks for newsreel and television cameras in the White House. He is seen in a conference after being named commander-in-chief for European armies. He left for a four-day tour of Europe shortly afterwards, declaring that the defense of western Europe cannot be carried out successfully unless sacrifices of other Atlantic pact nations equal those of the U.S.

WOMAN'S WORLD Extra Storage Space Possible With Clever Decorative Tricks

By Ertta Haley

IF YOU'VE lived for any length of time in your present quarters, the chance is good that you'll be casting about for extra storage space. You may have had enough when you moved in, but every month brings something new into the house.

The closet you designated for out-of-season clothes, the cupboard for extra dishes, or the chest for new books may now be filled to a point where there's overcrowding. It's a situation guaranteed to give no decorative appeal, and it undoubtedly complicates your cleaning day problems.

Is there a way to find space for new and old things? Is there a way to keep it neat and immaculate with things stored in apple pie order? You'll be happy to learn that many of these problems can be solved pretty neatly with some reorganization, some modernization, plus some construction work.

Are you're-through you'll probably find the place is more of a decorative asset than a storage space. It's important to know what you're doing and how to do it. If you're handy with tools, some of the jobs can be done without outside help. Don't hesitate to call in a carpenter, however, if the job looks too complicated to accomplish. The longer you run it will probably save you a lot of time and spend.

Cast a critical eye at your rooms and see what can be done with some thought and imagination. Know, too, that you can't have it all.

whether you want stored items to be shown off through glass doors or completely hidden away. If you're so assorted they'd better be in closed cabinets.

Eliminate Clutter. Clean up clutter and dining rooms have color schemes between them because it was once thought this was a great decorative asset. The thinking and practical living have illustrated that the open space can be put to much better use by turning the upper part into a china cupboard, or a place to show off your picture glassware, while the lower part can be turned into a bookcase.

Building board can be used for the construction work, and it can be painted to match or harmonize with draperies or other decorative notes in the room.

This means you'll be adding not one, but two cupboards and twin bookcases, isn't this an excellent idea for gift china you've received through the years, and for the books the children want to hold onto?

Unused corners of the bedroom can be built into a study or desk unit. A desk moved flush against the cabinet will enclose the desk. It may be built into the unit which may have shelves constructed above the desk to display books, pottery and other decorations such as a china or hobby collection.

ROCKCASTLE FACTS and STORIES

By RALPH GRIFFIN

It has been requested by Mr. Albert Albright that this column be devoted, for a time, to the Civil War Period. This is to be done for the possible and question-able benefit of some of his classes, now struggling with the facts, why and wherefore of this interesting conflict.

Since this column is accustomed to wandering hither and yon, with no concern for the logical sequence of events, it is thought as well to be fighting the Civil War as some other. It might be a pleasant interlude from the one in which we are now engaged. So, without further formality, let us launch into this Civil War Period as it affected Rockcastle County, hoping that Mr. Albright and his pupils will be as bright and his pupils will be as catch us in too many mistakes.

The fact that they were living in what was considered neutral territory did not spare the citizens of this county from countless hardships during the trying days of the Civil War. They were exploited, ravaged, robbed and subjected to numberless indignities by roving bands of Union and Confederate soldiers and by mobs of lawless guerrillas; of the three evils, the last was most decidedly the worst.

These raiding bands of marauders who came to be known as guerrillas were usually composed of men who had formerly allied themselves with the Confederate cause, who had rebelled under authority or deserted the organized army for one cause or another. Owing to the unsalted conditions of the times and to the almost complete breakdown of law enforcement, they were able to forage at will. They pillaged, burned, robbed and murdered with impunity. Indifferent to the laws of God or man, these were a scourge and a terror to the civilian population.

These parties of outlaws were particularly numerous during the latter years of the war and their depredations continued under one guise or another, long after Lee's surrender.

It mattered little where they were, that much more likely he was reasonably certain to be robbed and bullied, if not worse, by the soldiers of one side or the other. If so happened that the husband or father were away in the active service of one of the opposing forces, his family was left to suffer violence of one form or another. Families of known sympathies were informed upon in the enemy; stock was destroyed or driven away, fences and barns burned, while murders were not infrequent.

There is but little written history of just what transpired in Rockcastle during this period but it is known that thousands of soldiers passed through the county; that several battles and skirmishes were fought within its boundaries and just beyond its borders. We are not yet so far removed from those days but what numbers of our older citizens remember stories which were told them by parents who went thru it all, until very recent years there were several Civil War veterans living in the county.

With the exception of Major General Kirby Smith's northward march, no large bodies of Confederate troops are known to have entered the county at any time, although irregular groups of raiders were active at frequent periods during the entire duration of the conflict. Federal soldiers in considerable numbers, however, passed and repassed back and forth along the Cumberland Gap and Old State Road many times. Due to an impoverished National treasury, bad management in the quarter-master department and the difficulty of maintaining contact with headquarters, these troops were usually short of supplies and forced to live off the country thru which they were passing. Groups of scouts foraged for miles back in the country and confiscated everything edible or usable. True, the Federal troops or their officers usually gave receipts, script, vouchers or some written promise to pay for the commodities which they confiscated. Householders could not cash nor eat these promissory notes and would much prefer to have kept their hogs and chickens. Some of these claims were eventually paid, after many years.

The Confederate troops and guerrilla raiders gave nothing in exchange for their confiscations but frankly took anything and everything for which they might have any possible use. In closing this column it might well for Mr. Albright to explain to his pupils that while individuals may steal, armies only confiscate.

Letters to Editor

Brookhead, Ky.
Jan. 15, 1951
Dear Sir:

I just didn't want Brookhead to be left out of the Kentucky Colonel list from Rockcastle County. Colonel Dan H. Gray of Brookhead was made a Kentucky Colonel on Gov. Ruby Laffoon's staff.

I saw his Commission Card a few days ago before he and his wife left for Florida to spend the rest of the winter.

January 17, 1951
Editor of Mt. Vernon Signal:
Dear Mr. Hoffman:
I am a subscriber of your paper through the able assistance of my father-in-law, reading your newspaper every week. Although I'm not a native of Kentucky, I've visited Mt. Vernon several times. Through your newspaper my husband and I come in close contact with Mt. Vernon. You published an article in the issue of Jan. 11, titled "Letter From Korea." Why didn't you publish the letter word for word? It seems to me that the letter should be published all over the nation. Americans should know what's going on; not only the Americans that seeps through government channels. Our congress has quite a decision to make during this session, and a letter, such as the one Jack Laswell wrote, would perhaps help our representatives in Congress decide certain issues.

I am not a mother but it seems to me that the women of America should rise up and have their say. If our boys are being mailed and killed for a few people's personal gain and the propaganda states it's for "freedom," it's high time the people of the United States use the rights of our Constitution. You can't make during this paper can help a lot in this cause. Freedom of the press is one of our rights.

"Letter From Korea" touched me deeply and I do wish that people in power could read it.

Corruption and greed have to stop soon, and in your hands lies the foundation of such a crusade.

I remain,
Mrs. Carlos Payne.

(Ed. Note - The Signal was given only excerpts of Sgt. Laswell's letter to his parents.)

Farm And Home Convention
A new year is at hand: We can not tell what it will bring. If it brings peace, we shall be thankful; if it brings continual struggle, we shall be undaunted. Meanwhile, the nation calls upon its farm people for greater production of food and fiber. This will require greater effort in planning, greater efficiency in production, greater skill in carrying the plans through to the waste of soil resources. Farm people have met such a challenge before and, given a favorable growing season, they can and will meet it again successfully.

The above statement was made by Dean Cooper in his invitation to farm people of Kentucky to attend the thirty-ninth annual Farm and Home Convention at the State College of Agriculture in Lexington on January 30 to February 2. Farmers interested in attending the convention can get a program at the County Agent's Office. We want a good delegation of farmers from Rockcastle County to attend this convention.

The Dairy and Solls Meeting last Monday at the Court House in Mt. Vernon was attended by 102 farmers in spite of the rain and snow. Mr. Couey and Mr. Flanery from the State College of Agriculture were the speakers. Mr. Couey told the farmers how they could make money and build up a good dairy business in Rockcastle County. He advised the farmers to give more attention to better feeding and management of the dairy cows. He emphasized the importance of a balanced ration with plenty of water and salt. Mr. Flanery urged the farmers to get their soils tested in order to know how much and what kind of fertilizer to buy.

BROADWAY AND MAIN STREET
Charlie Learns Hard Way by Meeting a Six-Year-Old

Last night, in the mood for conversation and kartoffelkiss, I went a-calling on my Aunt Frieda and my Uncle Charlie.

"What brought it on?" I asked.
"Well, it's like this," said Frieda.

"A couple weeks before Groundhog Day, I'm naturally a good deal alone—is coming home your uncle and announcing he is becoming a father."

"What's Monday, I am figuring I will see myself well as going, and so I keep Charlie company to the Lerner's. There I am meeting my Uncle Monday."

"NECK WINDING, Charlie is again losing the five dollars. This time is baseball. He is betting on the Cardinals, and this time he is not knowing what Wilbur is knowing—that Jackie Robinson is not playing on account of because he has a busted hand."

"The third Monday, your uncle is going to the Lerner's with a deck of pinocchio cards in his pocket—and again is losing the five bucks. Wilbur, he says, it catching on every body's mind."

"Well, all summer it goes like this—Every Monday, Charlie is sitting and every Monday, he is losing to the baby. And quick-quan-tly he is not seeing so good and is holding and banging with the plain. This little boy is making him damn crazy, and your uncle is losing."

"LATER WHEN we are coming home from the theatre the impres-achieved this level of medical efficiency," says Admiral W. W.

P. Blunt, chief of the U.S.N. (Ret.), president of the Foundation, "was a tribute to American ingenuity and cooperation."

Admiral Blunt, who commanded the joint army-navy force which conducted the atomic bomb tests at Blunt said that while the chief problem has been the lack of a doctor, citizens have banded together to create conditions which would attract a young physician. In other communities both a doctor and a clinic or hospital have been needed and in such cases it has been possible to raise funds to erect community-owned facilities offering the necessary equipment for the practice of medicine in its most modern form.

TYPICAL OF SUCH endeavors by the U.S.N. (Ret.) is the hospital built in Emils, Mont., by the people of the community. In order to attract a doctor to the best equipment, the town arranged for a substantially quarters for the physician and his family, and raised the money for both the hospital building and equipment.

In this particular case, before the building and equipping of the hospital was accomplished a fatal automobile accident caused six patients to be brought to the unfinished facility. Citizens hurried from fund raising tasks to gathering the necessary beds and other equipment to care for the patients. Fortunately, the doctor had arrived some time before and had set up practice in the town. Previous to his arrival Emils had been five years without a doctor.

The town of Okrahe, Okla., population 500, is another example of community enterprise described by the Foundation president. Townspeople built and equipped a $110,000 hospital, raising the money by advertising, selling bonds, and a collecting funds, by voting a $48,000 bond issue and by selling pre-paid hospital certificates. In addition, they devised a plan of dedicating memorial money, which brought in enough money to reach the final goal.

The first hospital to be built in Washington County, Kans., is the Hanover Hospital and Clinic, a comprehensive home for medical care structure with all up-to-date facilities and ten beds (15 in an emergency). It was financed locally by a bond issue of $25,000 in an area of eight square miles designated for tax purposes as the Hanover hospital district. It shows that in a much greater area. Donations from individuals and organizations can be made to the district. It cost ed another $10,000, which was used for equipment.

The doctor who heads this new facility, Dr. R. R. Roccoforte, who came to the small community from Omaha because he preferred to practice in a small community.
His services are provided by a representative, Dr. Roccoforte explained that he was able to move to Hanover only because there were from the splendid examples set by these American communities." Admiral Blunt said. In many cases, medical care community problems which seem insurmountable can be solved readily by community initiative and the assistance of experts who can give guidance on technical aspects.

THE FICTION CORNER THE LAST STRAW

By Lela W. Kelloms

IN THEIR EARLIER married years Flo and Ralph Wilbur were an ideal couple. Both were happy and jolly, with identical tastes and friends. But, as they grew older, Flo matured, while Ralph tried to stay boyish and tricky.

"You're not acting your age!" she often asked,
wifely. "We have such a lovely, comfortable home for myself and you. Our department store is dignified enough for older management. You don't have to keep up a front."

Ralph would chuckle. "Not jolly of your old man, are you, baby?
I don't deserve it. I don't show the years a bit, do I?"
"It's not honest," Flo contended.
"Everyone recognizes middle age when he sees it. Anyone can recognize a topeup."

But she knew when to truce. They mustn't quarrel over trifles. Of course, she didn't think this growing breach in their ages was a trifle, but Ralph did.

Every day she felt more strongly that something must be done to preserve their marriage; and every day she could think of no possible solution.

One morning she said, "I—I don't feel like going to the store, dear.
I'm sure Miss Gray can manage alone. There's housecleaning and things. I don't want to go."

"Okay, dear," Ralph agreed readily, kissing her good-by.

Fear stabbed Flo. Why did he agree so readily? Why didn't he ask her what she meant? She wasn't strong!

"Starting from a full tub," is approving Wilbur's idea.
"Wilbur, as everybody knows, Charlie is a fast barber and is doing the job completely in nine minutes. He has the hair cut and is going home from the theatre by tossing a simple ball. I am winning five dollars cash from Wilbur."

"When I am hearing this, I am thinking the ceiling is falling down on me."
"I don't follow you," I said to my Aunt Frieda. "Why weren't you happy? Charlie finally won?"
"Simple," Frieda explained.
"Wilbur is an getting more acquainted with Wilbur and his mother is getting on the hat, he is betting the five dollars he can make your uncle take off all his clothes."

How Rightly?
How old should you say she is? "Oh, somewhere in the middle fifties!"

Economical Cough Relief Try This Home Mixture

No Cooking.
To get quick and satisfying relief from cough due to cold, mix this recipe in your kitchen.

First, make a syrup with 2 cups granular sugar and 1/2 cup of water. Boil maple syrup, instead of sugar.

Then get 2 1/2 ounces of Fines from say Craggit. This is a special compound of proven ingredients in concentrated form well-known for its quick action on throat and bronchial irritation.

Put Fines into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. Then you make a full cup of medicinal mixture—about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

And for quick, blessed relief! It is surprising. You can feel it take hold in a way that is almost magical. It soothes inflamed, irritated membranes, eases soreness. Makes breathing easy, and lets you get normal sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your maybe Ralph would see how well

"At 5:05 the children called saying they had to stay for play. Ralph and Flo's spirits drooped. Would Ralph call, too, pretending that business detained him, leaving her alone in the dark, silent house?"

"She waited with apprehension. At
