WHAT ELSE DOES A GENERATOR DO?

An electric generator generates electricity, of course. And the two that Kentucky Utilities Company is adding to the Tyrone and Green River plants are capable of generating a lot of—150,000 kilowatts hourly, or more than a billion kilowatt hours a year. Their installation will double the size of each plant.

Each of these generators can produce more than twice the electrical requirements of a metropolitan area the size of Lexington.

Each of these generators can produce more than twice the power requirements of all 18 Rural Electric Co-ops now served by KU.

BUT THAT'S NOT ALL THEY WILL GENERATE!

- They will generate jobs
 More men will be added to the 60 already employed at each plant. Further, the two new units will use about 600,000 additional tons of Kentucky coal every year. That means nearly 100,000 man-days of work for Kentucky miners. It will require 12,000 cars to haul this coal to the plants. That means countless man-days of work for transportation employees. Additional millions of dollars will flow into Kentucky's economy to be spent on food, manufactured products and service.
- They will generate revenue
 Money earned by these generators will be used to pay the "rent" on the money borrowed to build them, to build new lines, and to provide more ice and better service to our present customers.
- They will generate additional tax money
 More hundreds of thousands of dollars will go to the federal government, to state, county, and local governments. This money will build roads, tanks, schools, and airplanes. It will pay the salaries of teachers, policemen, firemen, and tank drivers, pilots, and gunnery sergeants.

From these new generators will come the life blood of modern living—the power to enable us to live better and safer in the last of the great democracies.

CIVIL DEFENSE

Millard F. Caldwell Faces Task Of Building U. S. Civil Defense

(This is the first of a series of articles on Civil Defense written by Millard F. Caldwell, Washington, D. C. (Special Correspondent).)

WASHINGTON, D. C. — A tall, lean, square-jawed, broad-shouldered man sits in a temporary office in one of the many converted government buildings — a short two blocks from the White House — whose name is destined to become known to millions of Americans.

He is Millard F. Caldwell, former governor of Florida, who has been handed the tremendous responsibility of the nation's civil defense and will see to it that a volunteer army of civilian Americans will total some 20,000,000 men and women in every state of the union.

His immediate job is to weld together a small force of approximately 3,000 paid employees, approximately 200,000 part-time administrative workers here in Washington, the rest to be come field officers in various states and strategic areas.

At the same time he must start from scratch to train these people, who will in turn train the 20-million-man army. In the new field of civil defense.

Governor Caldwell must come up with the answers to these questions: What can I do to protect myself and my neighbors if an atomic bomb is dropped in or near my home? What about a hydrogen bomb? What protection do I have in case a bacteriological bomb or balloon is loosed in my community? What defense is there against radiological warfare, or the dropping of insect pests or plant diseases to destroy crops and animals?

Governor Caldwell believes that it is entirely within the realm of possibility that the American people, with the aid of the scientific methods of modern warfare if the nation should get into a full-scale war with Russia. The extent would depend upon the enemy's ability to pierce our air defenses, our sea defenses and just how far the Russians are determined to go.

So a well-trained civilian army is as essential to the nation's defense as its well-trained and equipped military force; it is just as essential, and possibly more so in saving the lives of American civilians.

THERE ARE DEFENSES to these atomic bombs, to attacks against health and crops and animals. But every citizen must be as well educated in these defenses, as acutely aware of the danger, and able to act in case of an emergency. So we shall be living with these dangers for many years to come, if we live.

So the job of the civilian defense administration is to educate the people to organize defenses, to set up this volunteer army, to see that state legislatures pass such enabling legislation and appropriations as are necessary, and to train men and women in scores of facts incidental to a catastrophe such as atomic bomb or hydrogen bomb is dropped in their area.

These include, not only protection against the bomb itself, but also loss of life and injury, but efficient first aid, fire fighting, evacuation, health facilities, water supply, medical aid, food supplies, social services, warning signals, and an efficient organization for any contingency, which spreads from the cities into the small towns and sections of every area in the nation.

The help of every organization in the nation and of every individual will be enlisted not only to join in the civil defense, but to help make the masses of the people bomb-conscious, to prevent fear and hysteria so that a major catastrophe may be averted.

The government has been for months making detailed studies of the bombing of European cities in World War II, of the effects of the atomic bomb at Nagasaki and Hiroshima. They have worked out patterns and effects of defenses. The Public Health Service and the armed forces are working out detailed plans for health protection; the bureau of animal husbandry and plant industry of the department of agriculture has a plan of action for defense against release of gases, poisons and plant diseases aimed at animal and crop destruction.

However the effective civilian defense program cannot be set up until the first-hand men of the program, a personnel actually live in the settlement. Larry's music library is one of the biggest sources of music collections in the United States.

Harold Lloyd and Jimmy Cagney spent three weeks filming one sequence in "Mad Wednesday"; they are seen chasing a car that runs up a window fire escapes, in and out of offices and along narrow ledges of a skyscraper.

World Is Becoming Fed Up With Peace Leagues

By Wright A. Patterson

IN THE PAST QUARTER of a century or less, the people of the world have suffered three major disappointments. The first was the failure of the League of Nations, of which President Woodrow Wilson was the instigator following World War I, but which the U. S. senate rejected, saying he did not accept the member of that world organization.

The people of the world halted the League as a means of preventing all future wars, but it did not. It had only talk, no force, and was completely when Italy instituted armed aggression against Ethiopia, and the defeat of that small nation was the rock on which the League of Nations was wrecked.

The second disappointment was the failure of the Atlantic Charter which, in reality, was never anything more than a hoax, a product of a dream of President Franklin D. Roosevelt following a conference of himself and Winston Churchill aboard a battleship in the Atlantic.

Shortly after the announcement of the formulation of the Atlantic Charter, Churchill issued a statement saying he did not accept the head of his British majesty's government for the purpose of liquidating his majesty's empire.

The charter was presumed to guarantee the people of each nation of almost any size a government a majority in each wanted and to guarantee the national boundaries of each against any aggression on the part of the larger and stronger nations.

Hope of what the Charter would accomplish was not entirely dispelled until President Roosevelt at the Yalta conference gave to the United States approval of the taking back of the three Baltic provinces that had fought for and won their independence. That was done in apparent support of the promises of the much vaunted Atlantic Charter.

People of the small nations had not questioned the President's word when he announced the Atlantic Charter, and its provisions had anticipated the American position as a great friend of small nations. They did not know that the charter was merely a dream, and that it had no actual reality proved a sad awakening and a great disappointment. To them it lowered their appreciation of the United States.

The third major disappointment is the failure of the United Nations and the international debating society, of which each member has only the wish to protect its own selfish business interests.

When it was organized in San Francisco less than six years ago, it was hailed by the people of almost every nation as a possible exception of Russia, as marking the end of wars.

THE JACKPOT

By One Freeman Lathrop

The night was a murky one. Only the star's bluish sending light glared through the steaming window that made Bill feel the darkness. Bill Owen lounged against the door wood, waiting for the door to open. He fished in his pocket. It would get him a cup of coffee anyway.

"You here again?" Joe kidded. "What'll it be—porterhouse?"

Bill grinned. "Hand me a menu. I might want bread of guinea."

"That's the stoned looking fellow by the pinball machine watching the metal balls roll down as a fellow played. There was no one there but that made Bill feel uneasy. The rain had pelted her hair into this honey-combed mess around her small face. She was wearing a searching look in her grey eyes as she scanned each face. They made him think of somebody.

That was it! She reminded him of the way his kid sister, Kathy might be. Kathy had the same kind of hair and that same expectant look on her face, even at twelve when he left home. Kathy was probably quite a bit younger, but made him wince to think of home.

He watched this one fingering the change in her hand. It was only chicken-feed, but she selected a nickel carefully and put it in the slot. Somehow her eyes were too bright for the dimly lit jukebox. It looked as if a lot depended upon whether or not she won.

cause of the frequency of high blood pressure in the older age groups, most cases occur after the age of fifty.

The onset is usually sudden with the development of severe headache, paralysis, or unconsciousness within a few minutes.

Many people recover from the first "stroke" and are able to resume modified activity, under close supervision of the physician.

The preventive aspect of cerebral hemorrhage is limited to the commonsense approach of healthful living and periodic check-ups by the family physician.

The Mystery of the Disappearing Cattle

Mr. Fred Baker's mystery has been solved. The cattle didn't just disappear. They were taken away in a truck. The mystery developed Sunday night when a cattle truck hit a fire hydrant in the town of Broadhead. The truck was brought to the Baker Motor Company for repair, but by Wednesday Mr. Baker was still trying to figure out what happened to the cattle. One of the calves died, but somewhere in the neighborhood of 20 calves were yet to be accounted for. The answer to the mystery is that they were picked up by a truck sent from Danville. The owner of the cattle, W. W. Lay, a Knoxville, Tenn., policeman, had phoned the Danville driver after his regular driver, Arthur Goins, had advised him that the town of Broadhead was unable to accommodate a bunch of calves. The calves were taken to the Bourbon stockyards in Louisville. At 11:30 a. m. the High Sheriff drove on his way to settle up with the Town of Broadhead and the Baker Motor Company here in Mt. Vernon.

The Wreck At Renfro Bridge

Just two weeks ago today on January 27th, a Kentucky State Police trooper picked up their lives and brought grief to everyone. Two boys and their sweethearts and a neighbor who were out to have some innocent fun. When they were called away, they were full of fun and laughter. They never knew death was near. The wreck came so quickly there was no time for fear. God alone can bring comfort to their loved ones here below. If they will only ask Him and it is always ready, I know. The community is so gripped. They were so young to go. And it is always ready, I know. For He knew you loved them so. This tragedy should be a warning to both young and old. So stories so sad like this one would never have to be told. Written by a friend and neighbor, Lana Hall Treadway, Ottawa, Ky.

County Agent's Notes By Robert F. Spence

Planning Committee
The County Agricultural Planning Committee with Roy Brown as president will meet in Mt. Vernon on Saturday, February 17, to make plans for 1951. Each of the 10 agricultural communities for the county will be represented by their chairman and secretary of their local board. This meeting will be held at the Mt. Vernon High school Building at 10 a. m. The agricultural progress of 1950 will be discussed and plans for 1951 made.

Corn Derby
Entry blanks are now available in the County Agent's Office at Mt. Vernon for all farmers, F. A. and 4-H members who wish to enter the Corn Derby for 1951. W. A. Richmond, Boone, won last year with 95.4 bushels, in the list of 14 entries made last year. We'd like to have 25 to 50 entrants now and get ready for a big production in 1951. We're going to need it.

Green Pasture Program
Some farmers have already signed up in this program. Why don't you enter the Corn Derby for 1951? Kentucky's "Green Pasture" program last year of Ky. was promoted by every county in the state and did more good for the future than any other crop grown. Rockcastle County did its part by having 15 farmers to enter the Green Pasture program and carry it through to completion at the close of the year. These 15 farmers not only did themselves good and improved their own farm but influenced hundreds of other people to improve pasture conditions. We hope to have 50 to 100 farmers to enter our County's Green Pasture program for 1951. Entry blanks are now available in the County Agent's office for those who wish to see Rockcastle County made green by the seeding of more grasses and legumes. Come and get your entry blank and join other farmers in promoting the Green Pasture program this year.

County Schools Entitled To $128,000 Federal Aid

Placed On Probation
The Kentucky High School Athletic Association has placed the Mt. Vernon High School on probation for the remainder of the current year. In making the announcement, Ted Sanford, association commissioner, stated that one of the players on the Mt. Vernon team, Paul Carter, has been suspended from competition for the remainder of the year and an official has been reprimanded. The official was identified as Lawrence McGee, who was reprimanded for slapping or striking Carter. In a letter to the school, Commissioner Sanford said unsportsmanlike conduct of Carter and a fan, whom he identified as Kenneth Cummins, in a basketball game of January 26 brought the association's action. The game referred to was against Liberty. The commissioner added that the official should not have conducted himself as he did on that occasion, but that the other player stayed away, since he had no voice in the matter and only added to the confusion.

Serve Eggs for Breakfast Variety (See Recipe Below)

Breakfast Potatoes IF YOU VALUE your family's health and well-being, don't send husband and children off to work and school without a good breakfast.

Plan a breakfast menu as you would lunch, dinner or supper. Try out new foods, inject variety into the menu plan, and do give yourself enough time for both the preparation and eating enjoyment of such a project.

Start off with fruit or fruit juice, such as citrus, because this is a good opportunity to get oranges and grapefruit into the day's menu.

Follow with cereal, eggs, bread and butter and beverage. Eggs can be prepared in many ways and give you good protein for what you spend. They add lots of appeal to the breakfast, and can make a part of the most simple meal of the day.

They're simple to prepare, and every now and then, too, for diet extra treat to the appetite, and for that extra nourishment.

Baked (Shirred) Eggs Break and slip 1 or 2 eggs into greased individual shallow baking dishes. Bake in slow oven (325°), 12 to 15 minutes, depending upon firmness desired.

French Omelet (Serves 3) 3 eggs 2 tablespoons milk or water 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/8 teaspoon pepper, scant 1 tablespoon fat

Mix eggs, milk, salt and pepper thoroughly. Avoid foaminess. Heat fat in skillet (approx. 8 in.) just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water.

French Toast (Serves 4-6) 2 eggs, beaten slightly 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon sugar 1 cup milk 6-8 slices (2-3 day old) bread

Fat for frying Combine eggs, salt, sugar and milk in shallow dish. Dip bread in egg mixture turning to moisten. Brown on one side on well-greased

LYNN SAYS: Treat the Family to these Breakfast Tricks Combine 2 tablespoons of cocoa with the same amount of sugar, then add 1 1/2 cups milk, 1 1/4 cups brown sugar, 1/4 cup rich milk and 1/4 teaspoon vanilla.

Give poached eggs a new pedestal. Dip round, shredded wheat biscuits in hot water quickly, just to soften. Drain, dot with butter and top with hot poached eggs.

Children will like butterscotch cereal for a change. Simply serve with brown in place of white sugar.

Jesus is Christ

Lesson for February 18, 1951

IT SOUNDS odd to modern ears (or for any ear for the past 18 centuries) to say that Jesus "is" Christ. It sounds like saying Abraham is Lincoln, or Winston is Churchill.

Jesus Christ has become long since a proper name in a combination of name and surname. But in the early days of Christianity it took sermons to persuade people that Jesus was indeed Christ, and if people knew what "Christ" means, they would see that most sermons today are really aimed at convincing people of the same thing; Jesus is Christ.

Only One Christ WE shall have to think what the word "Christ" meant as Peter used the word and as Jesus understood it. The Jews of that time were looking with eager excitement for an anointed one (the literal meaning of Christ, or Messiah) who would put an end to all the evil of the world and usher in God's New Age.

Consider three points. First, when Peter said "You are Christ," he meant "You are anointed." He was looking for two Christs. There is no one else in Jesus' class, there is only one of him. Every human being, to be sure, is different from all others; but Simon Peter did not mean that. What he did mean was that Jesus could not be classed as "a teacher or a prophet or a sign or a wonder worker or a prophet. He was God's Man as no other man was."

We make a mistake, we get away from the original Christian faith, the faith which Jesus praised, when we put Jesus on the same level with other men, any other men. There is only one Christ.

God Was In Christ IN the second place, when Peter called Jesus "Christ," he meant that God had anointed him. He was not a man who took a notion to do what he did; he was one whom God had appointed to be and to do as God willed. We cannot understand Jesus apart from God, for his source is God.

Christians later than this saw that the relation between God and Jesus was even closer than that between sender and sent. Jesus is called the Son of God, he is called the Word that was with God and was God. Paul says God and Christ that sent me.

Christ is Lord of All A THIRD thing Peter meant when he called Jesus "Christ" and that the church means now—is that he has complete authority. All other authority in the church or out of it, is less than his.

A word often used to express this truth is "Lord." But the word alone is not enough. It really makes less difference what words we use about Jesus than what our attitude to him is. Jesus himself once spoke sternly of people who call him "Lord, Lord," but do not do the things he says to do.

It is one thing to say, in the Creed, that we believe in "Jesus Christ, his only Son, our Lord"; it is another thing to carry that as part of the creed into life. Jesus our Lord; not the church, not Moses, not Paul, not any here or saint of the church, but Jesus, Christians take orders from him first of all, for we believe that his mind was the mind of God.

A Christian profession of faith, therefore, is more than a statement of belief; it is an oath of allegiance. (Copyright by the International Council of Christian Workers, Released by WNU, Peaster).

ROCKCASTLE FACTS and STORIES

By RALPH GRIFFIN

Most, if not all of the Federal forces marched thru Mt. Vernon upon their way to Wild Cat, their passage being said to have required a day and night. This does not necessarily indicate an overwhelming number of troops, however, for their movement was exceedingly slow. Most of them were foot-soldiers and the road conditions were very bad. Less than a month later, the same body of men marched back over the same road, to their great disgust, not having been permitted to pursue the Confederate troops as they wished to do. Historians have considered this retrograde movement a military blunder but this account is not concerned with tactical errors.

There was what was known as an "ever flowing" well in the yard of Mr. Jacob Williams' residence situated at the new bus station in Mt. Vernon. It bore its name as the troops passed going southward, however, for they drank it dry. To protect their stock and provisions citizens of the town removed them to a place of concealment, much of the livestock being driven a distance of several miles to Salt Petre Cave and concealed there until the danger of confiscation was considered over.

When the troops marched back from Wild Cat they had been preceded by a considerable fall of rain and the road was a mire of tough clay mud. Their progress was even slower than it had been upon the former occasion and this time the old well was able to live up to its reputation. The change in the boundary line which placed part of the Wild Cat battleground in Rockcastle, was made several years later by the Legislature. The change was made upon the presentation of a petition signed by citizens of that locality, led by Mr. R. P. Gresham. Mr. Gresham represented Rockcastle in the House during the years 1873 to 1875 but the boundary was not changed during his term of office. The story, as told by Mr. C. C. Williams, was that Mr. Gresham ran a tavern and desired to sell liquor. He was in dry territory and considered it easier to change the boundary line than it would be to move his house; hence, a portion of Wild Cat Mountain moved into Rockcastle.

During the process of an excavation project upon Mt. Vernon's West Main Street, in the summer of 1938, workmen uncovered an old corduroy road bed, some ten feet beneath the present surface level of the street.

Investigation disclosed that this road was laid by Union troops about the year 1864, for the purpose of facilitating their passage across a bit of terrain which was flooded and practically impassable.

A one-time county resident and Union Veteran, "Uncle" Reuben Baker, recalled that he was one of a company of troops, under the command of a Captain Lambert, who labored for many days in the construction of this old road. The company consisted of about four hundred soldiers, in charge of one hundred teams and supply wagons. They were enroute from Camp Nelson to some point in the south. They reached Mt. Vernon in the midst of the rainy season and after toiling many miles thru deep mud. Here they bogged down completely and were forced to spend several days, ditching, draining and laying a road of logs before the journey could be resumed.

Another delay of three days was occasioned at the Bright Mullins spring, near Burr, and this was apparently the last straw. There was a change of orders and the company plodded its weary way back to Camp Nelson.

School children may conclude, from these old accounts, that modern troop commanders have no monopoly on strategic blunders.

Letters to Editor

Letter To The Editor
To Whom It May Concern:
February 8, 1951
I want to tell the good people of Livingston and also of Rockcastle County that Livingston is quite a place at the time I am writing this letter. We haven't had a drunk or any violations of the law this year beginning January 1, 1951.

The town is very quiet, just what they have been wanting, a clean little town. This is the first time in 20 years that the town hasn't had a fine. Marshal John Lakes has been marshal of Livingston for the past 20 years and by tells me that this is the first time in all his marshaling that he hasn't made an arrest. Well in my way of looking at it, I think that is a good record for the town. I only hope that it remains just as it stands today.

With all good wishes to one and all, I remain
As Ever Yours In Friendship
And Prosperity,
John S. Ballard
Police Judge
Livingston, Ky.

Editor, Mt. Vernon Signal:
I would appreciate your publishing this short message on the moral degeneracy of our people as a whole. I feel that law officials have become so corrupted in this day, so colored with filth, vice and drunkenness, that they are made to become lenient with those who continually break and abuse the law. This is truly not a day of law and order. It is a crime and a shame, when the police have not the moral fibre to execute judgment and exact penalty for those who continually abuse and use society as a shabby coat that is easily thrown around. A law officer who uses alcohol himself is often bribed, talked out of doing his duty. A law officer who gambles occasionally himself is a law breaker. One who breaks the laws himself is greatly influenced in looking at that offense as one that is no to bad. A man who is a horse thief has no remorse and bitterness against another horse thief, unless the horse thief beats him to the prize.

We are rapidly passing the day when those who love the blissfulness of home could unlock the doors wide open in the summer time and the door unopened during the winter.

The man who lets liquor destroy his body and casts himself into the Pit knows himself that it is not wise.

Proverbs tells us "Strong drink is a mocker, who ever is a mocker - whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise."

The man who abuses himself is often the man who abuses his neighbors. I think that it proves the degeneracy of man, that he will drink and lose control of his actions, lose control of his words, and lose respect for himself; despite the respectability of others. Today children, in their tenderness, purity and love for God and those things which have proven themselves good, have these precious jewels polluted by the uncontrollable fire of exudes from the mouths of these persons who have had their moral respectability destroyed by the poison of Strong Drink.

In the old days, the God fearing policeman saw to it that sin did not go ununpunished. We need to return to the days when men who are a debt to society, a curse to loved ones, were fined heavily and then made to work the roads to be humiliated because of their sin. The people make the laws and break the laws and unless the people wake up to their moral responsibility, they can not escape the results, hideous as they will be, and hurting down deep where no human doctor can bring relief. May we determine once again, that we will not ask God to be on our rotten, corruptible side, but that we will step over on God's righteous side. If the law is good for one, it is also good for all - any policeman who respects a law breaker and excuses him because of his political connections, or his family background, should be suspended from the force.

In the sight of Almighty God, we are all equal, and so all who are equally bad should be dealt with as the law demands. The law enforcement agents of America should all be under the Civil Service Examination system, so that men will not be tempted to use the arm of the law to promote their illicit gain. This procuring ill God whom we are supposed to trust, is weighing us, and we are below His Standard. Wise men take heed!
