SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS OF Main Street and the World

Committee's Proposed Tax Increase Hits Lower Income Groups Hardest

TAXES ON THE LOCAL LEVEL.—By July 1, or shortly thereafter, man on Main Street is going to find himself subject to increased individual income taxes if the house ways and means committee's proposals are carried out.

The committee voted to increase income taxes $2,500,000,000 a year. The increase would raise taxes in every bracket by 3 percentage points.

For instance, a single man with a net income of $2,000 a year would pay $32 in taxes instead of $20. This would be an increase from 20 per cent to 23 per cent. In the second bracket ($2,000 to $4,000), the tax would go up from $44 to $66, from 22 to 23 per cent. In general, the increase in each person's tax would be about the same as the jump which took place under the first tax bill passed last year. This proposed taxation is tentative, however, and subject to possible changes by the house, the senate finance committee, and the conferees. But it is an indication of approximately what the small-towner can expect before the summer is over.

WHAT DOES AMERICA THINK?—From the time this nation was founded, the joint chiefs of staff in close contact with the home towns in an effort to keep and understand what the average man is thinking. Very few of them, however, have succeeded.

With this in mind, Secretary of Defense Marshall made a bold statement during his testimony on the MacArthur-Truman controversy when he asserted the American people will stand with the administration on military policy in Korea.

Marshall believes the average home-towner has no desire to expand the war in Asia. He believes the American people "are on the side that the defense department and the joint chiefs of staff and the civilian authority of the government favor."

This side, Marshall asserted, involved a policy of limited commitment of force in Korea must go on.

TEAM WORK.—The first thing the American youngster learns, whether he is a city boy or a small-town boy, is that he must work with the team. No play with the other kids he must cooperate. Americans carry this lesson with them through life.

It was with some relief, therefore, that home-owners heard the news that those few nations who have been trading with Communist China had finally agreed it was time to start playing with the home team and to cut off that trade completely.

Britain, trade and dollar hungry, was possibly the worst offender. It could be that the senate vote to cut off economic aid to any nation which permits its citizens to trade with Communist areas had much to do with the sudden "surge" of cooperation.

FOR HUNGRY BEE EATERS.—In an action entirely independent of the recent pricing general, redoubt an U.S.P. process introduced by October 1, the government unapologetically approximately 10 cents a pound of coffee prices of some chuck steaks and pot roasts.

For the hungry beef eaters of the nation this was a welcome surprise. It is the administration and the nation's beef producers, packers and distributors any case, however.

A SECOND ATTEMPT.—While General Marshall and the joint chiefs of staff testified before congressional committees in rebuttal to earlier testimony of Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the conduct of the Korean war, North Korean and Chinese Communists were ready for a second attempt in the spring offensive.

The first attempt launched April 22, bogged down in little over a week with an estimated 75,000 casualties. For the second try, the Communists rushed thousands of troops into three hotly disputed areas armed with an unusually large number of machine guns and Russian-type submarine guns.

United Nations forces were firmly entrenched and, for the first time in the war, ready with an air raid warning system. UN commanders remained firm in the belief they could beat back anything the Communists could throw against them.

THE PRICE IS STEEP.—The weeks of futile fighting in Korea by deputed by the big four foreign ministers has reaffirmed in the minds of the average home-towner the fact you can't reason with the Communists. It works the deputies have tried to work out an agenda for a meeting of the big four foreign ministers without success.

It is apparent that the end of the rope has been reached. The price demanded by the Reds is too high for a God fearing and from loving nation. The Russians insist upon an armistice which is the agenda that would mean the suspension of our defense program. The Russians want of troops into three hotly disputed areas armed with an unusually large number of machine guns and Russian-type submarine guns.

Here again the free world has been blocked in its attempt to ease world tensions and try to make some progress toward real peace.

THE TALKING CONGRESS.—At the moment it appears that the 80th congress will go down in history as the talking congress, with the record of fewer laws enacted than the 80th congress which was termed the "do-nothing congress" by President Truman.

After four full months the 80th congress has enacted only 23 public laws, a recent check revealed. None of the major platform planks on which Truman won election for a second term had been approved. Of 97 special legislative recommendations by the President, only three have become effective as a result of congressional action since January. And two of them affect only soldiers or veterans of the war in Korea.

Out of Ruins

Lesson for June 3, 1951

A GERMAN who came through World War II recently said: "At present there is no country in the world where I would like to live more like a man than in Germany. This is because yesterday has been reduced to ruins and rubble. . . . We can thank God that he has blessed our world with the ruins more than he has others." "Others" sound shocking, but it sounds not unlike the Bible. The ruins were Jerusalem.

At Last They Believed
If you had asked a resident of that city, at the hour when the enemy army was burning his beloved home, God's hand was in the catastrophe, most likely he would have said, "No, not by any means. This is Nebuchadnezzar's work, or the devil's—certainly not God's." Consider what good came out of it. For one thing, it taught the Jews that they were a God of justice, after all. The nation that smelteth, it shall die; the nation that takes the sword shall perish with the sword. The prophets had been trying to tell them that for many a long year; they had refused to listen. The sins the prophets had said God would surely punish, went on and on, and there seemed to be little nation who had failed to think it could get by with anything for as long as they pleased. But after the crash of 586 B.C. they all knew the prophets had been telling the truth.

Yesterday Is Dead
For another thing, the exile cured the Jews, for a long time, of trying to be a political nation like other nations. God had called them to another kind of existence. So long as they had been an independent nation, they had been a nation with politics, armies, international intrigue. After all that had been swept into Nebuchadnezzar's dustbin, the people's hearts turned more and more to God and his laws. Another way in which that city-wide ruin was a blessing was that it "killed yesterday." Before the final year 586, the Hebrew kings and people had never been broken by failure. Every king wanted to be a great conqueror like Darius, a wealthy potentate like Solomon. But they never would look the cold fact in the face, that those days were gone forever. But when the exiles came back to rebuild the ruins, the younger ones at least looked forward. Yesterday was dead; they built now for tomorrow.

Blessed With Ruins
Ruins can be a blessing in more ways than one. So Chicago and San Francisco and Baltimore were better cities after their big fires; Louisville improved after its great flood; the people's hearts turned more and more to God and his laws. Sometimes a man who has been depending on anything but God for hope and happiness—on his money, on his friends, on his health, on his radio—finds these things swept out from under him, and then at last comes back to God. After a man's childhood faith has been shattered by manhood's disillusionments, it has often come to pass that out of the ruins of the childhood beliefs he rears a tower of faith far stronger than anything he has lost.

Let's Not Make Ruins
THIS does not mean, of course, that we ought ever to go out and deliberately make ruins. The best way to improve our nation is not to drop bombs on them; the best way to improve ourselves is not to act in such ways as to tempt others or nations to drop bombs on us. The best way to build a better faith is not to scrap all the faith we have. The best way to find God is not to go out and find him in a fox-hole. The blessings of ruins are not the best God has; but sometimes they are what it takes to bring a man to his senses. And if the crash does come, and the towers fall, and life lies in rubble around us, we must remember what the Hebrews learned: that even in the ruins we may be better than ever, come to know the living God.

HELP KEEP IT TIED

...or you'll go for a ride!

Just what is inflation?
It's money that seems more valuable than it really is. When there's a greater supply of money than of goods... it takes more and more money to buy fewer and fewer things—that's inflation. It happens when goods get scarce, and you and your neighbors compete unfairly for these few goods. That boosts prices—up and up, until the prices of more and more things are higher than you can afford to pay.

The danger of inflation is already here!
Will it get worse—so more peacetime goods go scarce? That depends upon you and every other American. We can halt inflation—if all of us voluntarily will follow the rules listed below. Let's all pull together to lick inflation. It will take all 150 million of us to do the job!

Here's what all of us must do to halt INFLATION*

1. Strive for still more efficient production.
2. Halt the upward spiral of prices and wages.
3. Buy only for current needs. Hold business inventories down.
4. Curtail all non-essential government spending and support moves toward this end.
5. Save in every way! Buy U. S. Defense Bonds.
6. Support credit restrictions.
7. Support higher taxes to help balance the budget!

PREPARING TO LAY ASPHALT TILES

Question: Does a basement cement floor need any special treatment before laying asphalt tile?

Answer: The concrete floor must be dry, clean, and free of paint or other finish. Spread a special mastic cement over the concrete with a paste spreader and then press the tile down into place. You will need a mastic knife and a blowtorch to soften tile for cutting and trimming. Be careful not to put down too much cement, for it will ooze up between the tiles. Such work is usually done by a floor contractor.

SPRAY TO KILL APHIDS

One ounce makes 6 gallons of spray. Kills aphids and similar sucking insects by contact and fumes. Spares beneficial insects. No harmful residue. Can be mixed with other standard sprays. Proved dependable by 25 years of use on fruits, vegetables and flowers.

Pasture Management
The judges of the Green Pasture Contest tell me that there is more to having good pastures than just seeding grasses and legumes and then forgetting about them. John Houstons who is one of the judges in the contest and also has some mighty good pastures, says that grasses and legumes have to have plenty to eat just like a cow or hog. He says that he has to keep supplying the needed plant-foods in the form of fertilizer if his pasture continues to be good.

E. C. Watson says that overgrazing will kill out the grasses and legumes when they are eaten into the ground by too many cattle being on a few acres. Rudolph Burdette says clipping the pasture to keep the mixture of grasses and legumes young and tender helps to make the pasture more palatable. Rudolph says, too, that on his father's farm, Bradley Burdette, they like to pasture one field until it is eaten down, then move the cattle to another field while the grasses and legumes grow on the first field. The farmers who are making the most money from pasture, the judges say, are the ones doing the best job of fertilizing, clipping, rotating the grazing and overgrazing after a good mixture of grasses and legumes has been established.

Tilth-Building Soil Organisms Get High
Energy Foods from Spring-Plowed Legumes

Well-Fertilized Alfalfa Adds Tons of Organic Matter to Farm Soil.

WHEN you plow under a good stand of sweet clover early in the spring, you are supplying excellent food for the billions of soil organisms which work day and night for you below the soil surface.
These organisms, need energy foods—nitrogen, sugars, starches—to do their vital job of rotting organic matter, fixing nitrogen, fighting plant diseases, building soil tilth and providing nutrients for growing crops. Well-fertilized sweet clover supplies these energy foods.
Dr. G. W. Hoffer estimates that a good stand of sweet clover will add as much as 8 tons of organic matter per acre to the soil. The tops and roots contain about 3 tons of dry matter, including about 1 1/2 tons of sugar, starches, nitrogen and other materials the organisms need.
A well-fertilized stand of alfalfa will give comparable results, research shows.
These top rooted legumes will distribute the material through a thick layer of soil. Their roots push far below the plow layer. When they have enough top growth in late summer and fall, the nitrogen, phosphate and potash and other raw materials they need, they will pack their roots with the sugars and starches. Then, when they are plowed under in spring, these sugars will be left distributed throughout the soil for the use of the organisms.
Dr. Hoffer emphasizes that plowing should be done early in the spring. If you wait until big top-growth occurs, the sugars and starches are pulled from the roots and part of their value to the organisms is lost.

JET INJECTIONS

Future Draftees May Get Shots By High-Pressure Jet Apparatus

The plight of auto mechanics and others who wear hydraulic oil lines may have led to an invention that will be hailed by a great many United States army soldiers who have enemy gunfire antinuclear weapons.

This new device, now in the advanced experimental stages in the U. S. army medical service, is being tested at a school in Washington, D. C., in a multiple dose high-pressure jet-injection apparatus.

Research has not yet revealed who first thought of using high-pressure jets to force medications through the skin.

It was noted that fine jets of oil at high velocity, as from a leaking hydraulic line, could penetrate human skin and leave little or no mark.

1. With a multiple dose apparatus, large numbers of people could be given protective vaccines or medication in a short time.

2. In using hypodermic needles to inoculate large cross-sections of any community, there would be some danger of transmitting infections.

3. The jet-injection apparatus is simple and portable. It is easy to use and does not require special training.

4. When produced in quantity, jet-injection apparatus will be relatively inexpensive.

5. It was some of these considerations, Doctor Warren believes, that prompted a diesel engineer named Lockhart to patent in 1946 the first injection especially designed for parenteral jet injections.

6. The R. B. Scherer Corporation of Detroit, Michigan, developed Lockhart's device and other studies with his "gun," the Hypo-Spray, a hand-cocking, single-shot instrument.

7. In testing the apparatus in the field of jet inoculations was field tested by Dr. Herbert Batson and Captain Robert.

8. They found that the principle of jet-injection was feasible for administering bacterial vaccines. The Hypo-Spray, they found, would do all that the hypodermic needle could do in this line, and do it without the possibility of cross-contamination and virtually without pain.

9. While the automatic-loading "gun" is not yet ready for general army use because of several minor engineering details which still remain to be worked out, it is already being used by the army.

10. The jet-injection method applies only to subcutaneous and intradermal medication; intramuscular injection according to the individual being inoculated is being worked out.

11. Those who volunteered for demonstration shots were dubious at first, but as the tests proceeded, eagerly began to ask:

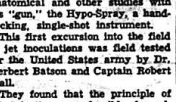

12. "When can we get all our shots this way?"

13. There are some disadvantages to the jet method. One of these is the occasional failure of the jet to penetrate the skin.

AGGIE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

QUENTIN, north woods guide, told me this story:

"It happened shortly after gold was discovered up near Hayden."

A settlement, however, sprung up and they named it Leland.

"A year after the first log buildings were erected the settlers decided they ought to have a school teacher, and they sent down to Ottawa for one."

Miss Agnes Sheldon volunteered and I was engaged to meet her at the station in Twin Forks.

"One look at Miss Agnes Sheldon and I smelled trouble. She wasn't old, but her features bore a mature look."

"She wore a severe black suit, bone-rimmed glasses, cotton stockings, laced black shoes."

"I offered them to her and she glared at me as though I'd called her a big name. In no uncertain terms she assured me she was capable of choosing her own costumes."

"I offered them to her and she glared at me as though I'd called her a big name. In no uncertain terms she assured me she was capable of choosing her own costumes."

JAN STERLING (Mrs. Paul Douglas) is an impressive list of successes on the stage before Hollywood grabbed her; right now she is spritzed with Hollywood star dust.

Parmenter initially teamed her with Alan Ladd in "Appointment with Danger," had her play the blind girl in "Union Station."

ROCKCASTLE FACTS AND STORIES

By RALPH GRIFFIN

Despite all of the books and stories which have been written of the activities of Jesse James and his gang of outlaws, there are probably but few of our readers who know that some of these desperadoes once visited Rockcastle. Furthermore, one of them was shot and killed near Livingston and is buried somewhere in that vicinity.

The story begins when four horsemen rode into Huntington, West Virginia. They were unmasked and wearing long linen dusters. Huntington was much of a town upon this September 1st, 1875, and it only boasted one bank. It was in front of this financial institution that the horsemen drew rein, two of them dismounting and entering the bank with drawn pistols. The other two remained in their saddles and began shooting at everything which moved.

Cashier Emery made no resistance, opening the vault as ordered and surrendering the several thousand dollars which were in the vault. Within a very few minutes the robbery near their home. On a moonlight night some two weeks following the robbery the Dillons heard the sound of hoof-beats upon the rocky road. Seizing their muskets the boys slipped out to thicket beside the trail and waited, probably regretting that they had ever entertained the idea of tackling the outlaws but determined to go through with it.

They had not long to wait. Four horsemen were approaching, two in the lead and the others well behind. Leveling their guns the boys shouted a challenge, which was immediately answered by pistol shots. The two Dillon boys discharged their guns in return before high-tailing it for the security of their little mountain cabin.

The rest of the night they lay awake and excitedly discussed the incident, bolstering their mutual courage by assuring each other that they could have missed their targets.

Bright and early they were up and back on the scene of the shooting. Sure enough, there was a quantity of blood in the road and other similar spots leading off in a trail which crossed a nearby rail fence. Holding their loaded muskets at the alert, the boys followed the trail some distance into a cornfield. There they found a terribly wounded man lying between the rows. The slugs had done an effective job. The boys carried the man to their home, placed him upon a bed and one of them rode to Mt. Vernon for a doctor. The patient was delirious and kept asking for his friends and calling for "Bud." He said that he was dying but became enraged when asked to tell the names of his companions. Before the doctor's arrival the man was dead. In his pockets were papers which identified him as Tom Daniels. He also carried a large gold watch, which was still in the possession of a Rockcastle Citizen only a few years ago and may be still owned by someone in the county.

It's a Losing Game
When you play hide-and-seek with a burglar, the odds are always heavily in his favor. He generally knows all the "usual" home hiding places.

You play safe against burglars, fire, and accidental loss, when you give your important papers and valuables safe deposit protection at this bank. The cost averages only a few cents a week.
