

County Agent's Notes

By Robert F. Spence

4-H Club Camp Is Over
The 4-H Club Camp at Levi Jackson State Park closed one of its most successful years last Friday morning at 9 o'clock. There were around 200 in attendance of 4-H members, leaders, agents, and specialists. Twenty-two 4-H members and leaders from Rockcastle attended.

Impressive program of the week. Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Saylor represented the Rockcastle County 4-H Council at this meeting.
Strawberry Cultivation
All strawberry growers should give some special attention to their strawberry patch this month. Both old and new patches should be kept free from weeds and grass until around the middle of August and then allowed runners to spread. Old patches should be cultivated as corn or tobacco. A tractor or rastro, or any kind of cultivator may be used in cleaning out the old patch and give vines a chance to make new runners for a good crop next spring. Any grower who would like to have a bulletin on strawberry growing can get one by writing or calling at the County Agent's Office.

4-H Best Calf Members
The County Agent has recently visited a number of 4-H boys feeding and fitting beef calves for 4-H Beef Calf Show and Sale at London in October. These boys who are feeding, breaking, and carefully managing their calves are doing a wonderfully good job. They are going to have some fat calves. All 4-H Club Members expecting to show or sale calves should be ready to show them at the sale at London in October. The fair comes on October 5 and 6 and the London Sale on October 10.

4-H Members will have an opportunity to show their calves at the School and Agricultural Fair this year before taking calves to London for the sale. The fair comes on October 5 and 6 and the London Sale on October 10.

You Can Cut The Cost of Living

Every penny counts these days... and when you can save up to 9c on every pound of meat that's really something. Yet, millions of women who have a frozen food locker are doing just this day in and day out!

If you live on a farm, you can store your own meat, vegetables, fruits, and poultry until needed. If you live in town, you can purchase meat at wholesale, have it processed and placed in your locker. You can buy fruits, vegetables, and other frozen foods at low quantity prices. Drop in our plant and learn more about this modern way of preserving foods.

Sixteen Thousand Dollars Lost To County Schools

Dept. Of Revenue Claims Property Tax

The Commissioner of Revenue at Frankfort has certified an assessment ratio to the State Department of Education which will equalize and appropriate the equalization and appropriation will cause the county school system of Rockcastle county to lose approximately sixteen thousand dollars which would go toward paying teachers salaries.

County School Superintendent Neuzel Miracle has been to Frankfort to question the ratio that has been set. She stated that the Revenue Department had promised to send someone to this county to investigate the base ratio provided they received the facts as presented in writing accompanied by verifications from some county officials.

Miracle immediately got a petition signed by county officials and forwarded it to the department and as a result Paul Tanner and an assistant went out from Frankfort with Commissioner Herzel to make an investigation. Results from this investigation are still pending.

The Department of Revenue claims that the board of equalization for assessments for this county did not raise property valuation enough to meet requirements. On the other hand county officials and Superintendent Miracle claim that property values are sufficient since valuations have not increased in this county in fact in some areas of the county there has been a decline, they said.

Even though a great effort has been made by the county officers and school superintendent to prevent the loss of revenue to his county's school system, it is now apparent that the loss is inevitable.

Good Representation; Better Legislation Elect Harland Sanders, State Senator

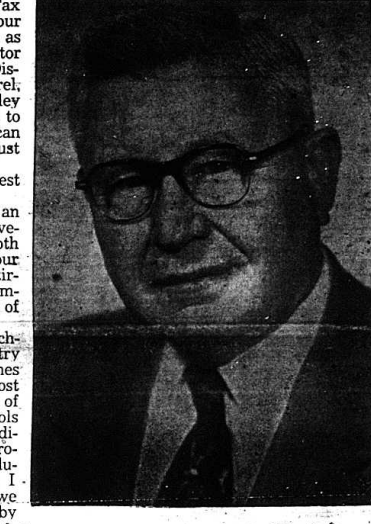

To You It Means Money

I am writing you as Tax Payer and am soliciting your vote and influence for me as a candidate for State Senator in this 19th Senatorial District composed of Laurel, Rockcastle, Jackson, Owsley and Clay counties, subject to the action of the Republican Primary, Saturday, August 4th, 1951.

I stand only for the best in Government.

I have always been an ardent worker for improvement of our highways—both State and County. As your Senator, I will give my untiring support to the further improvement and completion of our county road system.

I know that the churches and schools of this county constitute the cornerstones of our homes and are most vital to our American way of life. The plight of our schools is bad. I have read and studied the 1952 legislative program of the Kentucky Educational Association, and I believe it is the minimum we should strive for, and that by putting that program into law we will materially improve the status of our school system. To that end I pledge my support as your Senator.

I am qualified by precept and experience to represent the people of the 19th Senatorial District, and when elected your Senator—I have the will, the courage and ability to properly represent you—and that I will do without fear or weakness.

All The People Need Relief

The Federal Government is taking more than a BILLION dollars from Kentucky in Taxes this year. On the State level Kentucky has taken $161,234,317.00, thereby bleeding our county whites. The State of Kentucky is taxing land, automobiles, gasoline, income alcoholic beverages, race courses, theatre and amusement tickets, electricity, cigarettes, etc., these burdensome taxes leave nothing but Real Estate for our county and city income. Cigarette tax at 2c per pack last year, 1950, yielded the state government four million, nine hundred eighty six thousand, six hundred seventy seven cents ($4,986,687.47). If this tax alone could be rebated or sent back to the counties and cities on a basis something similar to the distribution of the original Five Million Rural Highway Fund or on a population basis it would give each of the counties in this Senatorial district approximately these respective amounts:

Clay, $50,000.00; Jackson $39,000.00; Laurel, $50,000.00; Owsley, $28,000.00; and Rockcastle, $39,000.00, for their general fund.

Sincerely
HARLAND SANDERS

Depot Mail Box May Be Back In Service

Roy Gummis, mayor of Mt. Vernon, said in a communication to The Signal today that after conferring with the Postmaster General, U. S. Congressmen, U. S. Senators and the General Manager of the L. & N. Railroad, it looks like the much needed U. S. mail box will be put back in service.

The box was removed from the depot here about two months ago and since that time there has been a concerted effort on the part of this town's citizens to have it restored.

A letter from Mr. R. C. Parrish, General Manager of the L. & N. states that the company is ready to co-operate with the postal department with that the box would probably be put back into service soon.

Three Named 4-H Star Campers
Three of the 4-H club members from this county who attended the district camp last week at Levi Jackson State Park were named as Star Campers. They were: Bobby Grant, Berea Club, Kathryn Bullen of Wildie Club and Preston Hill of Disputanta.

The camp was very successful and everyone seemed to have a wonderful week. Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Bowling of Bostown certainly contributed much to the camp. Mrs. Bowling assisted with cooking and serving the meals and Mr. Bowling did so many things to keep the camp going along smoothly.

The Lions Club of Berea and Mt. Vernon furnished transportation to and from the camp for the 4-H members. This saved the $125 which they have paid for transportation in former years. This service was greatly appreciated by members, parents, leaders and agents.

Kentucky Farmers Get Four-to-One Return on Crops by Increasing Use of Fertilizer

FERTILIZER use on Kentucky farms totaled 620,838 tons in 1950, according to a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, based on statistics compiled by the National Fertilizer Association. This was a gain of 102,144 tons over 1949.

Corn Belt farmers have increased their fertilizer use by 4,170,820 tons in the past decade, the figures show. Ten Midwestern states used 5,215,352 tons of plant food last year, compared with 1,044,472 tons in 1939. Kentucky's 1950 fertilizer consumption was about 4 times greater than in 1939, when 158,933 tons were used on farms in the state.

For the entire United States, 1950 fertilizer consumption was 18,346,132 tons, an increase of 1.9 million tons over 1949. The 1950 total was 10,539,054 tons greater than in 1939 and 16,148,132 tons above the 1900 level. One-fourth of all crop production is now attributable to the use of fertilizer, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Since the value of all crops produced in 1950 was $12.3 billion, U. S. farmers received $3 billion additional income from the $744 million they invested in fertilizer last year. Each dollar spent for plant food in 1950 returned $4.12 in additional income from crops.

Statistics show that the tremendous increases in crop yields in the past 50 years have corresponded to the steadily growing use of fertilizer. Half a century ago, one farm worked, using little fertilizer produced food enough for himself and 5 other persons. Last year, his grandson, using 7 times as much fertilizer, supplied the crops needed for his own use and 14 additional persons.

Building, July 25, at 9 a. m. until 3 p. m. (slow time). The new officers will discuss their duties of club officers. The council will make arrangements for their annual day meeting which will be held the latter part of August. All old and new club and county officers are needed at this meeting.

Watch Corn Plants For Hunger Signs From Now to Harvest

WATCH your corn fields for plant food hunger signs from now to harvest, advise Midwestern agronomists. Color and rate of growth are the principal clues. If the leaves are deep, dark, healthy green, you have nothing to worry about. But any other color means trouble.

Leaf No. 1 in the accompanying chart is starved for potash. The tip and edges look scorched. They lose potash first when there isn't enough for healthy growth. Potash hunger corn has weak roots and stalks. It lodges easily. The crinkly, "fired" tip and midrib of Leaf No. 2 are signs of nitrogen hunger. Notice the inverted "V" running from the leaf tip along the midrib. This is yellowish and later will begin to dry and brown. "Firing" of corn leaves and stalks is usually blamed on drought. But actually it is due to a lack of enough nitrogen. Drought-thirsty corn leaves roll, with and dry, but they still hold their green color.

When corn is starved for phosphate, the leaves have purple edges and tips. In severe cases, leaves may show signs of nitrogen hunger, too, because phosphate-starved corn cannot use the nitrogen it takes up.

Hunger signs in your corn fields mean that the soil is seriously low in plant nutrients. That, in turn, means low yields and poor quality. Best insurance against such yield-cutting hunger signs is a well-balanced supply of the three major plant nutrients—nitrogen, phosphate and potash. This can be supplied by commercial fertilizer carrying sufficient amounts of each element. Good till is another essential. Till can be built by including well-fertilized deep-rooted legumes regularly in the rotation. The legumes mellow the soil, improve its structure and add nitrogen and organic matter.

Farmicals

Sponsored By KESSLER JEWELERS Richmond, Ky.

Some 120 Kentucky farmers will get "Master Conservationist" awards during Soil District Conservation Week July 22-23. The awards will be metal signs for posting at the farms of the winners to designate them as places where good conservation practices have been carried out. The signs will be placed on farms who have completed 90 per cent of conservation improvement goal assignments to their local soil conservation districts.

Rural roads will suffer more than others from shortage of funds and materials as a result of defense program policies. Defense orders strictly limit the amount of materials going for repair of farm-to-market roads and for building new country roads.

Farmers Like Semiclassicals

It may come as a shock to some radio-program directors, but the folks on the farm prefer semiclassical music to hillbilly tunes.

At least that is what Mrs. Iva Nicholson Williams found when she questioned 255 farmers attending the Ohio Grand.

Mrs. Williams asked the Granders: "Do you think rural people as a whole prefer hill-billy music?"

Their answer was 206 no, 36 yes, and 13 no opinion.

She then asked, "If you could listen to only one type of music, which would you choose?"

The answers showed 65 favoring semiclassical music, 80 preferred old popular tunes, 59 liked sacred songs, 40 voted for modern dance music, seven gave hillbilly tunes the nod, six voted for Western melodies, six said classical, and 12 had no preference.

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME:

ROCKCASTLE FACTS and STORIES

By RALPH GRIFFIN

With the coming of the railroad, men who had formerly been content with their lot upon a few acres of cleared ground, where they managed to somehow eke out an existence for themselves and their families, became inspired at the thought of being able to earn a little cash. Some began felling timber and opening up small mines. Others departed for the "public works" where they labored upon the railroad right-of-way for small wages.

Thus it was that while the Iron Horse brought prosperity and even comparative wealth to merchants, dealers and timber-buyers who were in strategic locations near railroad stations or who had the brains and small capital to profit by increased marketing facilities, it did but little to better the conditions of thousands of more isolated householders, farmers, miners and timber workers.

Rockcastle received little, if any, out-side assistance from the Commonwealth or from the Government in the management of its affairs. Practically the only outside source of taxation came from the railroad and that came in comparatively small sums. Exclusive of taxes and salaries paid to county officials, most of the county revenue went to the support of its paupers. Annual fiscal reports of these days consisted largely of a list of the names of small sums paid to merchants, doctors and neighborhood "undertakers"; these sums were for groceries, medical services and the final burial of indigent citizens.

The average amount paid by the county for the burial of its paupers usually ran from four to six dollars.

Prior to 1900 there was no concerted action or agitation for any betterment of conditions within the county. No Moses came forward to lead the people out of the wilderness. There was no earthly power to whom citizens might appeal for financial aid and it was every man for himself and his family.

The small sums eked out for pauper aid but slightly prolonged the misery of the recipient and ended shortly and inevitably with the entry for funeral expenses. People scarcely realized the hardness of their lot for they knew but little of events in the outside world; they were unfitted to make contrasts or to judge by comparison. The railroad had come without any effort upon the part of Rockcastle citizens. Times were a little better than they had been during the Civil War and a few were enjoying actual prosperity. It might be that other individuals, who had been magically appear and eventually alleviate the poverty and misery of the entire county. In the meantime there was nothing to do but continue the struggle for existence. There are some people who are so unkind as to think that this philosophy has persisted in Rockcastle even down to the present.

A very, very few men had begun to talk of better roads but it was their idea only that the roads might be made passable for jolt-wagons and horse-back riders. Finally a half-dozen forward-looking individuals envisioned the day when turnpikes might stretch from one side of the county to the other. Such individuals were laughed to scorn as dreamers and cranks. Mr. James Hays began to have the most persistent and energetic of the good-road pioneers. As early as 1895 he made himself known to all and sundry by his predictions of traffic and road conditions which have actually transpired in 1951 and later.

The vast majority of citizens were fatalistic in their attitudes toward any improvement or betterment of living conditions. Their fathers had lived that way and what was good enough for father was alright for son. The days of Indian outrages were almost forgotten. The Civil War period had passed and the railroad had come; all of these issues had largely been worked out. Rockcastle's boundaries so why should he county exert herself toward such visionary betterment. What was to be would be.

News Items Of The Oil And Gas Field

The well drilled on lands of John Lair at Renfro Valley will pick up the light show of gas. The operators now believe that a new location at a point 3000 feet from this well will pick up the oil and stated intentions of drilling two more tests on the acreage at Renfro in the near future.

Much leasing of lands for oil and gas rights has steadily continued in various sections of Rockcastle county and it does seem evident that a very determined effort is being made to bring the county into the list of oil and gas producers on a scale that will make the market for the product available. Representatives of big gas companies have been into the county recently, investigating the situation as to bringing in pipelines and also the possibilities of getting the gas piped into Mt. Vernon and vicinity for general use. Market for oil is always available as The Ashland Oil and Transportation Co., which always follows up production of oil will buy oil and take it out by tank trucks until enough is found to justify a pipe line. The operators generally express the view that this county will produce much oil if enough exploration is done by drilling and the wells are properly cared for so as to get best production results.

The Ohio Oil Company, we are informed, is negotiating for several thousand acres of oil and gas leases with a view to starting, at least fifteen test wells. The drilling if these negotiations are completed will start in September. It is likely that operations will be somewhat slow during the hot weather of the next few weeks, but will become much more active after September 1st.

Topdressing Alfalfa Holds Thicker Stands

UO can add extra life to alfalfa stands and keep thick pasture growth in late summer and fall by top-dressing after the first cutting. Top-dressing with phosphate and potash fertilizer, points out the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

The alfalfa plants will push out new growth faster. Roots will have a better chance to store up reserves of high energy starches and sugars. The soil will benefit from large amounts of active organic matter that help build tilth and structure.

Agonomists report that well fertilized legumes can make fuller use of soil moisture and of the carbon, oxygen and other nutrients taken from the air. Their taproots can probe deeper into the earth, carrying phosphate and potash from the surface on down to the moist soil zone below.

When well-dressed legumes are turned under, they rot quickly to form humus, because they are packed with nutrients which feed the soil organisms which break down organic matter. The humus improves soil structure and releases plant nutrients to feed crops that follow in the rotation.

Agonomists emphasize that second crop alfalfa should be given a chance to establish a strong new top growth before it is pastured or cut for hay. These specialists recommend that fields should not be pastured after early September.

Farm Economists Call Fertilizer 'Cheapest Crop Production Item'
FERTILIZERS are still the "cheapest crop producer per dollar invested" among various production items the farmer buys, according to a recent statement by Michigan farm economists.

These specialists point out that efficient, high crop production per acre is the key to maintaining farm profits and keeping costs low. Fertilizer use is an essential factor in such a program.
A recent statement in Michigan Farm Economics, published by Michigan State College's department of agricultural economics, lists these steps for building efficient production per acre: (1) A good crop rotation that improves soil tilth and increases the organic matter supply; (2) Keeping output costs low by buying production items that are relatively cheap. Fertilizer is still the cheapest crop producer per dollar invested; (3) Putting the emphasis on cash crops that use more machinery and less hand labor.

False Security

WHILE making a survey of Europe last winter several top diplomats expressed the following idea about peace or war with Soviet Russia:

The worst blunder Moscow ever made was to invade Korea and create unity among the United Nations. It aroused the American people and set up their mobilization program in high gear.

"And the smartest thing the Kremlin could do now" these diplomats continued, "would be to make a dramatic peace bid. It would throw discord into the United Nations. It would pull the stops out of your mobilization program and it would ease the American people into a false sense of security.

"The peace bid wouldn't mean anything in the long run," these diplomats believed. "For as long as Russia maintains a huge land army the world cannot be safe. But a false sense of security is just what Moscow wants."

This may be what is happening today. It is interesting that Malin's speech came just as the price control bill was nearing a vote and just as congress was about to adopt the biggest tax bill in peacetime his history.

McCarthy Demands Reward Republican leaders did some fancy, backstage wrangling to keep Senator McCarthy off the important GOP committee.

McCarthy had demanded the policy committee as his reward for smearing the Democrats and carrying five states for Republican senators last November—Maryland, Utah, California, Indiana and Illinois. He was supported in this claim by such Republicans as Senator Ferguson of Michigan, who argued that McCarthy's name-calling was worth ten to twenty thousand votes in each state; but it was opposed by Senator Millikin of Colorado, the senate chairman, who flatly refused to appoint McCarthy to the policy committee.

Even McCarthy's close friend, Senator Taft, remarked privately that he would vote against McCarthy. They feared that if McCarthy got on the policy committee, it would look as if the Republican party endorsed his tactics. However, two of McCarthy's more vociferous friends, Senators Wheeler (Idaho) and Jenner of Indiana, drew up a petition to force a show-down vote, and secured the signatures of Senators Wherry of Nebraska, Scheepel of Michigan, and Williams of Delaware. What they proposed was to add another member to the policy committee in order to create a vacancy for McCarthy. Under the rules, this petition forced Millikin to call a meeting of the Republican senators, which he did.

Meanwhile, however, GOP leaders moved fast. They shifted 100 men in 14 assignments around to create a vacancy on the powerful senate rules committee, then in order to pacify McCarthy, offered the rules post to him. This was too much of a temptation for McCarthy to resist, and he accepted. For he put him in a position to block the senate report on the Maryland elections, where he is up to his neck in this scandal and anxious for a whitewash.

For example, the Maryland investigation has already discovered that McCarthy's assistant, Don Surine, perjured himself before a senate committee and was kicked out of the FBI for fraternizing with a white slavery prostitute he was supposed to be investigating.

So McCarthy accepted the rules committee post. After attaining this, however, he refused to be satisfied and continued his campaign to get on the policy committee.

Forgotten Speeches

The last time congress had a major debate on price controls was in 1946, at which time a lot of interesting speeches were made, some of which certain congressmen would like to forget. Significantly it's some of the same solons who are promising reduced prices if certain areas are released.

SENATOR WHERRY (NEB. REP.)—"Mr. Bowles has said that if price controls were eliminated, the price of meat would go up 50 per cent. Mr. Bowles is trying to scare us. My prediction is that without price control meat will cost less than today" (Meat now runs in some cases more than 100 per cent).

SENATOR TAFT (OHIO REP.)—"The President's figures on possible increases are a wild guess and for the most part dead wrong."

CONGRESSMAN MILLER (NEB. REP.)—"The agency (OPA) has put out so much propaganda and false statements that the people no longer heed their cry of 'woll woll!'"

CONGRESSMAN HOFFMAN (MICH. REP.)—"OPA and its operator Chester Bowles are responsible in part for the fact that the cost of living has gone up."

THE BIBLE SPE International Union Teacher School Lesson BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Community Living

Lesson for July 22, 1951

WHERE is one way to get along in any neighborhood without any trouble at all? Just have nothing to do with any one. But that is not only not a Christian way of living, it is not practicable.

It is the duty of the community and the community needs you. If you tell the world good-bye, go rent yourself a room on the 12th floor of some apartment house in New York. You won't be bothered with carter! But if you live in the typical American town or country community, you not only cannot know every body more or less, but you want to know them, you need to know them.

The Community Includes Everybody

SOME communities cease to be communities and become exclusive clubs no stranger can break in. A lady in a very old county in a long-settled state, said of her new-door neighbor: "That family came here sixty years ago but they don't really belong here."

Now a true community ought to include every one in it, and it isn't real community until it does. Jesus' parable of the sheep and the goats suggests the trouble with the "poets" was that they just never saw the down-and-out members of the community at all. Your own neighborhood has it, perhaps, some lonely people, some unfortunate people, some human left-overs. What is the community doing for them?

The Church and Its Own

ONE practical thing that Christians can do for their communities is to see to it that no Christian suffers want. However much you may disagree with the Mormons, the members of the Mormon church which the rest of us might like to heart: in all the depression of 30 years ago, there never was a Mormon or relief.

Probably in most small communities the separate congregations are not large enough to do this kind of thing effectively, but surely in a community where there are as many as three or four different denominations, they might all plan together so that whenever any Christian got into a strait, the Christians would stand by to help him.

There will always be a need for general organizations such as the Red Cross or the Grange and the Community Chest; but if Christians always stand by Christians, the rest of the community would at least have less to worry about with.

It Takes All Kinds

THE ideal community is one in which everybody is a Christian and indeed all belong to the same church. But such communities are few and far between. Most of us live pretty close—and sometimes uncomfortably close—to people who are not Christians, except perhaps by name, and who may be hard to get along with.

How can we live with such people in a Christian way? Paul in Romans 12, makes some practical suggestions. He knew very well that no city or town in the Roman Empire was Christian or anywhere near it; yet he shows how to have the Christian spirit never-the-less.

Christians should be the most valuable members of any community. But are they? Is this true in your community? If so, what is it that the Christians contribute? And if not, is it maybe the Christians' fault?

The Law Above Laws

A group of people who act toward each other in no better way than the laws of the land require, may be a neighborhood but it is no community.

The laws (and useful they are, to be sure) can regulate our behavior, but they cannot reach our hearts. They can forbid us to harm our neighbor, but they cannot force us to feel kindly towards him. For community, something more than law is necessary; and again Paul puts us on the track of it.

Love is above all law; it does not break laws but it goes far beyond them. It is not the law-abiding citizens who are the best ones; the true ornaments and treasures, are the love-abiding.

Iron Curtain Also Cuts Bering Strait Fur Swaps

Washington, D.C.—The Iron Curtain is also a Fur Curtain between Big and Little Diomedes. No longer do American cigarettes, tea, flour and sugar buy Siberian fox pelts and walrus tusk ivory across the three-mile channel of icy water which separates Russian from American soil, midway across Bering Strait, the Russian Geographic Society reports.

Living from sea and land by hunting walrus, whales, seals, bears and foxes. Little Diomedes families, living closer to Siberia than to Alaska, once traded, regularly with their Russian neighbors.

Painful Corsets

In Queen Elizabeth's day ladies wore corsets which gave them a painful but elegant 13-inch waist; 50 years ago standards and waistlines had been relaxed to a more comfortable 18-20 inches; in the interests of health, grade manufacturers today generally set 24 inches as the minimum for foundation garments they make.
