

HOME AGENTS' NOTES

(Delayed)

The attendance of women from the county at Farm and light snow had not come Monday night there is doubt would have been a better attendance...

Those who attended were Mrs. Hubert Brown, Mrs. F. B. Dowden, Mrs. R. J. Abney, Mrs. Jack Henderson and Mrs. Bertie Lee for last week...

Those attending by the day were: Mrs. John C. Lewis, Mrs. B. L. Williams, Mrs. Ashbill Brown, Mrs. Arnold Kelley, Mrs. Dan Longfeller, and Mrs. W. H. Anderson.

To be well dressed is one of every woman's goals. Not only does she look nice but nothing adds to her morals than to know that she looks her best...

1. Study the Mode, watch ad fashion magazines, shop windows, what people are wearing. Look at what you see, fashion cannot be ignored.

2. Study yourself, take stock of your personality traits and physical factors. Clothing should not be just a covering but emphasize the picture which is you.

3. Study your Wardrobe, the effect as a whole is often spoiled because one or more parts are not right.

a. Know the amount you have to spend. b. Know your needs and environment. c. Plan before shopping, stick to the plan. d. Buy by season rather than occasion. e. Make basic purchases invest.

ment ones. fashion trend but avoid the Basic clothes should follow popular.

Don't buy in a hurry and do show alone. Have a passion for simplicity. Choose conservative basic apparel then create distinction with accessories.

4. Make your apparel, yes, hat, too with a professional look. 5. Study your grooming. 'tis not lip or eye we beauty call, but join force and full result.

6. Radiant cleanliness is necessary. No lazy habit. Well groomed body, hands, hair, face are more than assets of smartness, the essentials. So is a neat apparel, clean and in order.

7. controlled figure. c. Good posture—standing, sitting and walking. d. Care dressing. Have a long mirror. Put your clothing on carefully, then forget you have it.

Pecking Order Sets Standing Among Animals

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Tortoises are snobs. In New York's Bronx Zoo, a herd of giant Galapagos tortoises sleep, eat and walk in cliques according to some mysterious social ranking.

At Kansas State College a few years ago, a group of eight hens was brought together. Within five days the pecking ability of each had been recognized by the rest, and a hierarchy was established.

Social hierarchy may have been harded down among the now nearly extinct Galapagos tortoises, the scientists at New York Zoological Park believe, from long centuries of one-way traffic on the various rocky islands in the Pacific, 600 miles west of Ecuador.

Tremendous numbers of the land turtles, migrating with the seasons, once were deep trails between highlands and seashore in the Galapagos. Only wide enough for one tortoise at a time, the gullies forced the shellbacked travelers to move in single file, all at the leader's pace.

Fourteen different techniques of aggressiveness have been catalogued among the great armoured crawlers. A pair will snap slugishly at one another, advance back of a third, their eyes blinking fiercely, their necks stretched to the utmost, but their feet still a foot apart.

Cardinals, redpolls, waterfowl and many other birds follow pecking orders. Dr. Arthur A. Allen of Cornell University reports in his book "Stalking Birds with Color Camera," published recently by the National Geographic Society.

Cardinals will fight their own window reflections in glazing their prerogatives. A ruffed grouse rumbles like a miniature freight train; prairie chickens stamp and boom; mallards dought in the air—every bird has some method of establishing superiority.

Pain in the Neck Can Be Very Serious Affliction

CHICAGO—A pain in the neck—literally speaking—can be a very serious thing. In children, acute neck pain is usually due to an infection in the nose or throat, the central nervous system or the lymph nodes.

Among the diseases which cause such pain are a sore throat, diphtheria, infection of lymph nodes and glands resulting from German measles and mumps, meningitis, meningitis and poliomyelitis.

Acute neck pain often may be associated with, or as the presenting symptom of, a virus infection of the respiratory tract, according to the doctors. Tumors, arthritis, tuberculosis of the larynx, syphilis and barbitis are also causes.

Page that her husband was playing the radio too loudly. When he refused her request to turn it down, she took the pistol and fired, cutting the radio cord.

THE GARDEN

By John S. Gardner

Potato planting time is Mar. 15 to April 10, in general. If the land was plowed early, so much the better, as weeds and growth have begun to turn humus.

Planting certified seed helps to escape the yield-depleting "running out disease" that common seedstocks may contain.

In a year such as this, all big potatoes are expensive, certified seed is a better bargain than ever, as the margin over common seed is the same as always.

The seed should be treated not only for getting a scab-free crop, but to guard against Black Scurf whose germs may be found in the soil that adheres to even certified seed, and that may cut the yield in half.

Long Wednesday over the small group of pioneers, Dr. Peck of Berea College, speaker for the evening, was introduced by Mrs. Wendell Belew, president of the Mt. Vernon Womens Club. Dr. Peck gave an interesting and vivid description of the way of life of the pioneers who opened the Wilderness Trail. On this trail there were no wagons. Only horses could be used for transportation. These pioneers were independent, self-reliant, able to take care of themselves. They were not nomads, but individuals who were looking for a place to settle down and start a community. "Mt. Vernon is a community," said Dr. Peck. It grew out of such settlers that trekked the Wilderness Trail and decided to settle here. Berea is a community, so is Richmond. In every city over the week-ends, people flee to the country to get out of the cage and in a few days these people return back to it.

At the conclusion of her address Dr. Peck emphasized the necessity of taking care of the youth of the community. Give them your assurance of your support in all their projects. Supervisor Clyde Linville of the Mt. Vernon Schools accept the mural painted by Bert Mullins of Disputants at the Mt. Vernon school library. Mrs. Wendell Belew made the presentation for the Womens Club. Bert Mullins, the artist who painted the "Wilderness Trail." Dr. Elisabeth Peck speaker for the occasion.

Last Monday evening the Mt. Vernon high school was the recipient of the mural entitled "The Wilderness Trail," painted by Mr. Bert Mullins of Disputants, an artist of more than local reputation. The mural depicts what Dr. Elizabeth Peck, called an "Oak Opening" with Daniel Boone standing guard over the small group of pioneers. Dr. Peck of Berea College, speaker for the evening, was introduced by Mrs. Wendell Belew, president of the Mt. Vernon Womens Club. Dr. Peck gave an interesting and vivid description of the way of life of the pioneers who opened the Wilderness Trail. On this trail there were no wagons. Only horses could be used for transportation. These pioneers were independent, self-reliant, able to take care of themselves. They were not nomads, but individuals who were looking for a place to settle down and start a community. "Mt. Vernon is a community," said Dr. Peck. It grew out of such settlers that trekked the Wilderness Trail and decided to settle here. Berea is a community, so is Richmond. In every city over the week-ends, people flee to the country to get out of the cage and in a few days these people return back to it.

Captain Vannas Smith Wins Many Ribbons and Medals

Captain Vannas C. Smith, who spent the last 17 months in Korea with the Joint Operations Command of the United States Army, returned to Mt. Vernon Tuesday for a brief respite and then to proceed to his new position at Ft. Jackson, South Carolina. "I have nine more years to serve," said Captain Smith, "and then I will go fishing." By that time Captain Smith will have served his twenty-one years, in service with the defense of the United States, and will be entitled to army retirement.

It was during 1940 that Smith enlisted in the U. S. military service as an infantryman. He was later with the 82 Airborne Division in the Second World War and saw active combat service in many places. He made three jumps in combat in the defense of the island of Iwo Jima, and one in Normandy. He served in the war until 1945 when he came back and was connected with the Airborne School at Ft. Benning, until Sept. 1, 1950. He was then sent to Korea where he served with the Eighth Army. Here he won the Silver star for gallantry. It was in a battle at Hamman, Korea that Captain Smith displayed remarkable heroism. His superior officer, Jon W. Childs who represented him with the Silver star for bravery in action, had this to say of him: "It was on a hill in the vicinity of Hamman, Korea on Sept. 17, 1950 that the enemy launched a determined attack. Heedless to the heavy concentration of hostile fire, he expertly directed the defense of the area. When the position became untenable and displacement was ordered, he remained to cover the withdrawal, leaving the position only when his company had reached safety. Captain Smith's heroic leadership and selfless devotion to duty are in keeping in the highest traditions of the United States Army."

When Captain Smith left Korea his superior officer, Brigadier General, Gilman C. Mudgett said of him, and we quote only in part: "Your devotion to duty and the manner in which you applied yourself reflects great credit upon yourself and materially assisted me in the accomplishment of the mission of this section. The inner knowledge of always giving your best to your country and the army is a cherished reward in itself, however, I wish to add my appreciation for a job well done."

Captain Smith wears the parachute badge for 8 1/2 years airborne service, and for three jumps in combat; the Company ribbon with five stars for service in Korea; the silver star for heroic action in Korea; the Good Conduct Bronze star; combat infantry badge; the victory medal, and finally the battlefield commensure.

Captain Smith's wife, the daughter Vanna, five years of age, live here in Mt. Vernon.

Seeking Haven In Mass Moves

WASHINGTON, D.C.—There are in the world today over 30 and 80 million refugees, population experts estimate.
They are searching for new homes. In a world of uprooted people, the past three decades good weather, Entebbe, capital of the British Uganda Protectorate, nestles on the north shore of Lake Victoria, where seaplanes also can land.
Reports from the Capital say Uganda's nearly five million tribesmen have taken the arrival of the 1st year in stride. Early missionaries considered these Africans the most advanced of the entire central section of the continent. They quickly learned to cultivate cotton and sisal. Uganda's most valuable cash crop. Tea, rubber and coffee plantations are profitable.

Bigger Corn Goals Heighten Need For Plant Food in '52

With 1953 corn planting goals reported at 82 million bushels, Midwest farmers will be asked to produce big yields again next year, points out the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.
Prospective 1953 goals will be about 3 1/2 million acres more than the corn acreage harvested this year, says the committee.
"Getting big corn yields per acre," it says, "is a matter of following good soil management practices that increase the plant nutrient and organic matter supply."
"Soils specialists estimate that farmers in many states could double their present corn output."
"Where soils already have good tilth, the generous use of nitrogen, phosphate and potash can give immediate yield increases. This is particularly true if a starter fertilizer at planting time is reinforced by a banding of nutrients in the soil."
"Other soils may need to be conditioned for high yields by building up the organic matter supply with a well-fertilized legume-grass crop."
"Where taprooted legumes such as alfalfa and sweet clover are well fed with phosphate and potash, they condition the soil all the way down through the root zone and enable corn to make the most efficient use of plant nutrients and moisture in the soil. The active organic matter added by the legumes supplies energy material for the billions of soil organisms below the surface that fix nitrogen in the soil, fight plant diseases and release calcium dioxide for the use of crops."

Soldier Needs Blood Gets Some He Donated

SAN FRANCISCO—The merit of being a blood donor is being highlighted by the story of the soldier who needed blood and got it—blood that he had given two weeks before.
Pvt. Richard A. Norman, 23, Wapata, Wis., was injured when a lamp exploded in his kitchen while he was on mess duty. Severely burned about the legs, he needed transfusion.
Two weeks before, Norman had donated a pint of blood to the Red Cross. A doctor said it happened to pick up Norman's bottle when he started to give the transfusion.

Army Unit Goes All Out To Set New Blood Out

Members of the 136th "Bearcat" Regiment, 47th Infantry ("Wildcat") Division, full up at the blood collection center with a "pay line" enthusiasm—everyone is there.
As a result of former National Guard regiment recently became the Army's first major unit to post a 20 per cent donation quota for blood.
The unique response over-subscribed the blood collection quota for the division's station at Camp Rucker, Ala., and set the price from both the Chief of Army Field Forces, General Mark W. Clark, and the 47th Division commander, Major General Norman E. Hendrickson.
Sparking the campaign's success was a former member of the 136th Regiment, Private Richard C. Gilley, Warren, Mass., who was wounded in Korea. A national magazine's picture (Life, Oct. 22) of Private Gilley receiving life-sustaining blood became a symbol to his one-time troop mates in Company I and 19 other "Bearcat" units.
Major General Hendrickson personally congratulated the last man to contribute to the regiment's "all-out" collection campaign, Private First Class Dale Dunn, Brigham City, Utah.
And General Clark's congratulations were delivered in a letter to the regiment's commanding officer.

Run-Away Romeo Wanted Just a Goodbye Kiss

DETROIT — Just one more kiss was all he wanted, a 27-year-old man said when recaptured after escaping from a military unit under a sentence for burglary.
Police had found him at his girl's home.
The run-away Romeo was Donald Mace, Akron, Ohio, when captured. Mace explained that he had thought wouldn't allow him to kiss his girl friend goodbye when she came to visit him.
He said that he had to take her through a wire screen and "since I was going away for a long time, I wanted to kiss her goodbye."

Man Proves He's 'Irish' By Pole Climbing Feat

EAST NEWARK, N.J.—"I'm Irish and I just wanted to prove it," police quoted a man who tumbled atop a 365-foot chimney for an hour.
Clarence Gillen, 31, Harrison, N.J., almost overcame by smoke, climbing down from his lofty perch and was led away to jail for investigation.
Police said he was under a sentence for burglary.
When police arrived, Sgt. Joseph Duffy called to the sifter "Are you going to jump?"
Gillen jumped down and replied, "Do you think I'm that crazy?"

Sallor Steelman Couldn't Get His Ship Underway

DALLAS—This era of specialization has taken the "rail" out of sailing. The sad story of Navy Apprentice Airman D. Steelman proves the point.
Steelman showed a small boat from shore at Mountain Creek Lake. He couldn't get the motor started and hadn't bothered to bring over. Had he been able to steer, the boat might have driven him to shore. As it happened, he wound up on a log of silk. Sitting there in near freezing weather, Steelman thought of starting a fire with the burnt wood flooring, but he had no matches.
There was nothing to do but shout for help.
Rescuers finally found him in a hoarse condition—not from a cold, he said, but from shouting.

WINGS OF POWER... Another milestone in B-36 intercontinental bomber history is reached as a U.S. air force crew readies for delivery to the strategic air command the last B-36 to be equipped with jet engines at the San Diego division of Consolidated Aircraft. This ship, now designated as a B-36 model, provides the air force with a fleet of completely jet-argumented B-36's capable of speeds in excess of 425 m.p.h. at altitudes eight miles high. The four General Electric J-47 engines mounted in pairs under the wings and the six 3500-horsepower Pratt and Whitney piston engines generate 45,000 horsepower for the big aircraft.

Worst Floods In Centuries Devastated Italy

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Northern Italy's most disastrous floods of the century cost more than 100 lives and an estimated half billion dollars.

The rampaging Po and other rivers of the northern Adriatic plain mangled thousands of residents, necessitating dramatic rescue by hastily assembled boats, and air drops of supplies to isolated communities.

Yet, such inundations are not new to the northern Adriatic coast of Italy. The danger has kept the building of dikes to comparatively high ground, away from the rivers. Even Rovigo, affected last year, is not on the Po, but lies between it and the Adige River to the north.

The Po, its 417 miles making it Italy's longest river, as well as the Adige and tributary rivers flowing down from the Alps, have carried silt toward the sea, gradually filling in the basin to form Italy's greatest agricultural and industrial region. The entire area was once under the waters of the Adriatic Sea.

The filling-in process, geologically speaking, has moved at a rapid rate, and has continued noticeably in recorded time. The cities of Ravenna and Adria were once great seaports, but silting and shifting coastal sands have built up land to the east, leaving them stranded in marshy ground.

Adria shares its name with the Adriatic and was a major port for the Etruscans, pre-Roman rulers of Italy. It is now 15 miles inland. Ravenna, an ancient Roman port, is five miles from the Adriatic.

Flood control projects were undertaken by the Etruscans, the Romans and the Austrians. All the rivers of the lower Po valley are diked, and the Po itself is some 20 feet higher than the surrounding countryside due to constant silting and diking.

Automobiles Will Outpace War as Killer

NEW YORK — The automobile will outpace war as a mass killer of Americans early this year, when its fatality toll will exceed for the first time in history that of the nation's military dead since 1775, unless the new year starts with a marked decline in traffic deaths.

Korean casualties increase greatly in the meantime, the Traffic Association and Surety Companies has reported.

At the end of the first year and a half of the Korean conflict on December 25, military deaths in all U.S. wars since the Revolution started had reached approximately 1,000,000. The traffic deaths in the nation's comparative study of war and traffic fatalities. The automobile killed 1,000,000 victims on December 22, its toll on Christmas Day, when the Korean war was 18 months old, was approximately 500 over that historic mark. A rapid rate, and has continued noticeably in recorded time. The cities of Ravenna and Adria were once great seaports, but silting and shifting coastal sands have built up land to the east, leaving them stranded in marshy ground.

Adria shares its name with the Adriatic and was a major port for the Etruscans, pre-Roman rulers of Italy. It is now 15 miles inland. Ravenna, an ancient Roman port, is five miles from the Adriatic.

Flood control projects were undertaken by the Etruscans, the Romans and the Austrians. All the rivers of the lower Po valley are diked, and the Po itself is some 20 feet higher than the surrounding countryside due to constant silting and diking.

Cigars and Daily Wine Boon to Oldest Germany

EIDENGRÄSAESS, Germany — Karl Gloeckner, an only living German veteran of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, recently celebrated his 107th birthday. He is officially recognized as West Germany's oldest resident.

Gloekner, an artilleryman in the old war, is still able to enjoy a cigar on his birthday. He attributes his long life to the fact that "I always smoke cigars and I never miss my glass of wine daily."

Increased Production Needs Require Personnel Shifting

CHICAGO — Increased industrial production needs and a limited labor force will require the shifting of women and older men into jobs where their capabilities can be put to greater use.

This opinion was expressed by C. J. Veiz, M.S.P.H., chairman of the department of public health statistics, school of public health, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

He cited five factors as leading to restrict manpower resources: (1) a leveling off of the population growth curve; (2) a population growth resulting from declining fertility rather than from the addition of young stock; (3) a greater proportion of older people in the labor force; (4) an arbitrary retirement at a certain age without regard of ability to work; (5) the United States can expect only an approximate 20 per cent increase in population before it reaches the saturation level of growth, according to Mr. Veiz. Declining birth and death rates, and immigration restrictions are evidences of a smaller proportion of young stock in the population, with a shift toward a larger proportion of people in the older age groups.

Whereas the life expectancy was only 48 years at the turn of the century it is now nearly 70 years, he said. In addition, for the first time in the country's history, the 1950 census showed more females than males in the United States.

Front Seat Riders Hurt Three to one in Autos

CHICAGO — Children sitting or standing in the front seat of automobiles are in the most dangerous position in cars and frequently their teeth are fractured by hitting the dashboard at sudden stops.

Dr. Henry Marsh Wilbur, associate professor of children's dentistry at the University of Louisville School of Dentistry, made that statement in the Journal of the American Dental Association.

He added that front seat passengers in a auto suffer injuries, especially to their mouths and teeth, three times more frequently than drivers.

Dr. Wilbur cited recommendations of experts that front seats of automobiles be studded on dashboards to protect children and other front seat passengers from impact with knobs and protruberances.

"It is important that parents be informed of the necessity for professional attention as soon as an accident involving the teeth occurs," he said.

Splints may be applied to a block of teeth which have been fractured or a single tooth which has been loosened, and other treatment may be given as the case demands, Dr. Wilbur declared.

Gold Star Mother Finally Gives in to Draft Board

CHICAGO — A gold star mother, worn down by repeated draft board calls, and classified as a conscientious objector, finally gave in to the draft board.

Mrs. Joe Willy Riley, 35, said that she had received repeated notices from the draft board and had thought them all away until the most recent one.

The last one, mailed to Joe Willy Riley, ordered her to report for induction into the army.

Describing herself as middle-aged, Mrs. Riley says, "My efforts to get a job have failed because I'm more than 35. Yet the government thinks I'm good draft material. I've been born to go to the service. What more do they want?"

Born in Grenada, Miss., Mrs. Riley says she was named Joe Willie after a grandmother, Joanna, and an uncle, Willy.

"I returned all the draft notices," she said. "Marking them 'no such person' or 'I'm a mother,' but they keep sending me draft orders. I'm ready to go if they want me."

EDITORIAL

With this issue of the Mt. Vernon Signal, the new management is taking over. This is not news to the readers, because the announcement of the change of ownership was made last week.

We trust that our services of publishing and printing will meet your appreciation and confidence. Our aim is to give you and the community the best we have. Our many years of training and experience in the newspaper field gives us some assurance that we can achieve that aim. We believe in this community—the farmers, the schools, the churches, the business enterprises and all the various organizations that work for the welfare of the public good. If we can help make it a better place to live in and rear our children, we will have accomplished our goal.

We welcome the opportunity to serve you and we hope that our stay in your midst will be mutually helpful.

The Mount Vernon High School was the recipient of a fine mural which was painted by Bert Mullins. This mural was presented to the school last Monday evening with appropriate services. Superintendent Clyde Linnville, accepted the gift from Mrs. Wendell Belew, president of the Mt. Vernon Womens Club. Generous donors supplemented the gifts to help purchase the mural which now hangs on the south wall of the library. The painting depicts very graphically a group of pioneers in Daniel Boone's day who trekked through the wilderness to search of a home. Dr. Elisabeth Peck, the speaker of the evening, gave a vivid description of the trials and tribulations such a group of pioneers had to go through before they found any safe resting place. The mural depicts the WILDERNESS TRAIL.

In her conclusion Dr. Peck told of the deplorable illiteracy of Kentucky's youth as it is related to military qualifications. We have twice as many illiterates as the average of the United States. That is not a pleasant picture. We need to be more serious about our education program and give the boys and girls greater moral support in their search for knowledge. Great praise was given by the speaker to the Mt. Vernon School for its splendid progress and achievements in training youth.

The court trial of the basketball players from the University of Kentucky who were involved in the bribery cases is a very unpleasant affair, not only for the men involved but also for the university and the state from which they came.

Within a month these men will know what their sentences will be. The men are now on parole. It may be a prison term. It may be a fine, or both. Whatever the sentences will be the punishment will not be comparable to the sting of guilt. That will always remain a blot in their memories. It will be checked against them wherever they seek employment. The record will remain. That seems an awful consequence. It should be a lesson to all young men who are looking forward to a career in whatever field. The first thing an employer will look for is the character of the man. How did he play the game of life, what kind of record has he, what can be expected of him. The awfulness about the whole matter is the laxity of our moral attitude towards gambling. We condone such practices in other sports and even make it legal. This practice has grown to enormous proportions. We think it smart to make money in betting and gambling. Our boys and girls catch the same spirit. What can we expect of them when they see the elders doing it!

This Week at Frankfort

Gov. Lawrence Wetherby was busy this week trying to push through his bill for restricting the state and now it appears that he bill will be passed without too much opposition. As it now stands, the district will undergo a change but the present ninth district will remain the same except that under the new plan the old eighth district will be divided among the others and the other present ninth district comes under the new eighth district.

The Governor affixed his signature to a number of bills, one of which gave $120,000 for the next two years to the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station for the study of how to control black shank and other tobacco diseases. Another bill signed into law does away with demerit certificates in all counties except those containing cities of the first two population classes. There has been a reluctance on the part of the administration to put several bills before the legislature. One of these would pay the legislators $10 a day for expenses, in addition to their $25 a day salary. Gov. Wetherby is reported to be opposed to the measure. Still another bill that is being kept in committee is one which would serve to repeal the present law allowing cities of the first four classes to hold local option elections independently of their counties.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank everyone for their kindness to us in the illness and death of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Celia Owens Morris. Especially do we thank our neighbors for but the present ninth district will remain the same except that under the new plan the old eighth district will be divided among the others and the other present ninth district comes under the new eighth district.

Tax Savings Proposed For This County

Eventual tax savings of $220,848.00 to the people of Rockcastle County were estimated today by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce on the basis of proposals by Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) in the "Byrd Budget," released Feb. 14, would save all Kentucky taxpayers $92,000,000 a year and would effect a national saving of $8,600,000—Byrd's proposed reduction from President Truman's spending budget for the Federal fiscal year 1933.

Calculating that Kentucky bears 10.7 per cent of the total Federal tax burden, the state Chamber pointed out that 10.7 per cent of the $8,600,000,000 reduction outlined by Senator Byrd would be $92,000,000. The State Chamber's estimate of $220,848.00 as Rockcastle County's share in the savings is based on the proportionate share each county in Kentucky bears of state income taxes, ratio of county sales to state sales, and other income factors.

Oil was struck last Monday morning on the farm of Mrs. Betty Parsons, located 1/2 mile north of Renfro Valley. There was a well showing of gas and the well is now being cleaned out so as to test it for production.

The well was drilled by Ralph Stafford and Associates. Sampson Sandusky, the drilling contractor for the Parsons well, will move his outfit and start at once on another well located on the lands of J. H. Lambert, just north of Conway.

N. B. Casaway, an Illinois operator, has acquired several leases in this same vicinity and it is reported that the Sun-Oil Company also holds leases.

An even greater saving could be made for Kentucky taxpayers if the President and his administrators were to give their sympathetic leadership to an economy effort, the Chamber said, citing a contention of Byrd.

Byrd held that the $8,600,000,000 spending for the proposed can be achieved by Congressional action alone without active support from the Chief Executive.

The Chamber said: "In the absence of such cooperation by the Executive Branch, the only thing left for Congress to do, in addition to reducing 1933 appropriations, is to enact a resolution placing $71 billion in 1933 spending by the Government. The $71 billion figure represents the total revenue anticipated by the Federal Treasury next year.

"Federal expenditures are met by taxes levied on the people of the 48 states. If Congress were to carry out Senator Byrd's outline for an $8,600,000,000 spending reduction—or achieve an even greater cut—if would make unnecessary the levying of additional Federal taxes to pay the principal and interest on the new indebtedness that will otherwise occur and at the same time reduce the threat of inflation."

CARRIES DYING BABY EIGHT MILES... A Norton, Va., physician denied that he refused to visit a 7-month-old dying baby because the Richard Hildebrand family, shows with their two-year-old son, did not have the money to pay for the call. Mrs. Hildebrand walked part of the eight-mile distance to St. Mary's hospital in Norton from her home in a nearby community, with the baby in her arms and leading a dog named Mopsy after arrival.

Shell Collectors Dredge Mollusks On Ocean Floor

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Since prehistoric times adults and children have collected sea shells, picking up pretty and unusual specimens found along the shores.

Scientists have used shells to explain marine life, the nature of coasts and waters and the geologic past. Fossil shell remains have guided geologists almost since the study of geology began.

The collection of shells for their own sake, on a scientific basis, however, has steadily gained in popularity in the last few years. The science is called conchology, and some collectors have spent thousands of dollars in pursuit of shells.

Heavy expenditures followed the discovery that the best shells are not found along shores as often as on the ocean bottom or on reefs.

Almost all shell collectors start by picking up specimens on the beach. Then they wade out in shallow water, using water glasses to locate their quarry.

From this stage the really earnest conchologists move to boats they find that the shells have greater beauty and brilliance if taken when the mollusks are still living inside.

For this reason a small number of collectors, many of them in Florida, have equipped cabin cruisers and fishing boats with small power dredges to explore the ocean floor at depths from two to more than 100 fathoms.

Off both Florida coasts shellers dredge the bottom and bring up living mollusks of all sizes, which are sorted mechanically through progressively smaller screens down to the size of ordinary window screen mesh.

The Florida enthusiasts, particularly those working in the Gulf of Mexico, also use their boats to reach outlying reefs where, in very clear water and at low tide, they collect shells found nowhere else. This work, like offshore wading, is done with the aid of water glasses and rock turners, long iron rods with points and hooks used to uncover mollusks hiding beneath underwater rocks.

Impatient Pin Setter Fined for Hasty Strike

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — An impatient bowling pin setter was fined for scoring a strike on his boss.

William Hardesty, 24, according to testimony, rapped on the pins with a pinsetter when he was going too slow to suit him. He got paid by the game, not the hour, and he was angry that he had to wait for the pinsetter to set the pins. He was fined $100 for his impatience.

Wolf Menace Increasing Rapidly in Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — The wolf menace is increasing rapidly in Yugoslavia. Last year (1951) the livestock losses attributed to wolves were much higher than the 37,000 reported for 1950. The animals have become so bold, it is reported, that they freely roam the plains around Belgrade.

Observers say that the continued increase in the number of wolves may be accredited to the war. During the war there was no time nor ammunition for hunting wolves. At the end of the war, the people had to turn in their guns, leaving only scattered members of hunting associations to hunt the animals.

In Slovenia, a province that once had no wolves, or so few they were rarefies, there is now a reported 150. A hunting federation pays $150 for each full grown wolf that is killed.

Noisy Nosepuncher is Hard Man to Give Information

NEW YORK—How noisy can a nose-puncher get? Edward Wilkins, 18, of Hoboken, N.J., was arraigned and charged with breaking the nose of a Pennsylvania Station baggageman in two places.

Detectives who arrested him at the scene asked Wilkins why he had beaten Murray Dworken, 35, the station baggageman.

"I asked him how to get to the Hudson tubes and he directed me wrong," they quoted Wilkins as saying.

"But how do you know he directed you wrong?" they asked, and Wilkins replied:

"I knew how to get there. I just wanted to see what he'd say."

Johnson says that he clearly remembers incidents of the Civil War when he was young and that he was captured by "Yankees."

The bearded, white-haired Negro is the father of 10 children, has 39 grandchildren, 75 great-grandchildren, and 46 great-great-grandchildren.

His eldest son, Rev. Willis Johnson, is a pastor of the Baptist churches in Kentucky. His youngest son is 48.
