With summer just around the corner many children are dressing of carefree hours at the "ole" swimming hole. However, unless precautions are taken, there is a chance that the swimming hole can be responsible for illness or even death from typhoid fever.

Since summertime is the peak time for typhoid fever, Kathryn Handelman, M. D., Director, Division of Maternal and Child Health, Kentucky State Department of Health, advises both children and adults who will be swimming in streams or rivers and persons who live or expect to travel where milk and water supplies are questionable to be immunized now.

Advise about typhoid immunization. Persons who have been previously immunized need to make sure their immunity is maintained by booster shots, Dr. Handelman said.

Parents should take children to a physician or their local health department now for immunizations and booster shots. Waiting until hot mid-summer weather only adds to the discomfort of babies and small children, says Kathryn Handelman, M. D., Director, Division of Maternal and Child Health, Kentucky State Department of Health. Babies under six months of age can and should be immunized, Dr. Handelman points out. Diseases for which immunization should be given include: cough, tetanus, and in many cases typhoid fever.

If children have been previously immunized, it is still essential that a physician or the local health department be consulted about their receiving booster shots, Dr. Handelman said.

She also stressed the importance of immunization against typhoid fever. All persons, babies and small children included who live in areas with questionable water and milk supplies and those who plan to swim or take summer trips, should be immunized against the disease, she said.

Let's Put "Ike" in The White House

For the first time in a long time the American people have the opportunity to name their own popular candidate for President in a year ago.

This means hard work, shelling some of our business affairs and concentrating on the job of pushing the Eisenhower candidacy.

Citizens for Eisenhower, 51 East 47th Street, New York City, (Paul Hoffman's committee) have been very helpful to our local Eisenhower group in getting started here in St. Lawrence County, N. Y.

During this training he will receive instruction in seamanship, gunnery, signaling and others to make him well versed in all phases of Navy life.

After completing his training, he will be graded and sent days leave to come home and visit his parents.

Next Sunday thirty three seniors of the class of 1932 of the Mt. Vernon High School will be leaving for points east on a special chartered Greyhound bus. The trip will last until Thursday when they will return to Mt. Vernon just in time for the Commencement exercises on the next day.

This tour by the seniors is the fourth such trip taken by the graduating classes. Each time the graduates went east they saw Washington, Mt. Vernon and other points of historical interest.

The seniors worked hard to secure enough money to pay for the expenses of the trip. The bus alone will cost $229.00. Then there are meals to pay for and hotel bills and other incidentals. The cost to each student is approximately $25 or $30.

The seniors earned the money through plays, chapel singing, selling magazines and in other ways. The seniors played last Friday grossed approximately $149.00.

Accompanying the group will be Miss Bryant and Mr. Landrum. The trips taken during the last three years have been highly successful not only from the viewpoint of pleasure, but also from the viewpoint of education.

Blackburn Pleads Self Defense

Being tried for Cruise Slaying

Thomas Blackburn, 27, Mt. Vernon, told a Madison Circuit Court jury Monday that he shot a man near Big Hill last October because he believed his life in danger.

Blackburn was referring to Noel 'Wam' (pooney) Cruise, 39, a member of the Board of Madison County, Cruise died the same day at the Patti A. Clay Infirmary of two bullet wounds in the abdomen.

The defendant was put on the stand after the Commonwealth had produced four witnesses.

According to Blackburn, he was driving a car toward Big Hill early on the morning of October 7 when Cruise threatened to take a check from him and threatened his life. The defendant said Cruise put a gun near his head and demanded that he keep driving. Blackburn continued that Cruise finally ordered him to stop the car.

Blackburn stated that Cruise was leaning toward him when he shot twice and that he shot twice and that he did not see the revolver. Cruise had flashed in the car.

His remains were brought to Brodhead Tuesday of last week, taken to the home of his brother, Mr. Jack Fletcher. Funeral services were conducted at the Baptist Church, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. E. M. Elliott officiating.

Interment was in the Piney Grove Cemetery. Owens Funeral Home here in charge of arrangements.

Public Service Commission grants permit of convenience and necessity. Construction to begin as soon as loan can be processed.

The public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Kentucky has granted a permit of convenience and necessity to the Rockcastle Rural Telephone Co-Op at a hearing held at Frankfort last Tuesday.

The hearing was attended by the president of the Co-Op, Bradley Saylor of Quail and eight other men from the county. The other men were N. M. Smock, O. V. Hillon, E. M. Thompson, J. H. Wolfe, Bob Snodgrass, Henry Brown, R. F. Spence and Ed Denney. The R. T. Co. officials have already notified Washington authorities that such a permit has been granted and will proceed immediately to put in motion the process for securing the loan of $250,000.00, the sum necessary to build the new telephone system.

The new system is to be the most modern and up to date equipment available with the inadequate according to the present minimum requirements set by the Public Service Commission some time ago. Because of this testimony, the Public Service Commission was not permitted to grant the permit to the R. T. Co.

About a year ago when the Public Service Commission was organized 516 persons made application and each one made a deposit of $5.00. These became stockholders of the Co-Op.

It was stated by one official of the Co-Op that construction on the new system will probably begin in the near future, and provided there are delays, will be completed in the summer of 1953.

Surveyors and engineers will make a survey in due time and gather figures and facts together about the cost and construction of the new system. Stockholders will be asked to subscribe 10 per cent of the total cost and the government will grant a loan for the balance, 90 per cent. This sum will be based on anticipated receipts from the telephone users.

The present telephone system now in operation in Rockcastle County has been declared inadequate according to the minimum requirements set by the Public Service Commission some time ago.

Because of this testimony, the Public Service Commission was not permitted to grant the permit to the R. T. Co.

To Close Fireplace—

MANY old homes have old-fashioned fireplaces, which no longer are serviceable. They are a problem, being expensive to remove or put into working condition, and being drafty, cold, and wasteful of room heat.

There are several ways to close the opening to that of the draft, but making airtight closure with a furnace and airtight at a bit of a task. The ideal solution is a panel which tightly closes the opening and which may be pleasantly decorated to brighten the interior in an otherwise dull location.

Many leading artists use Tempered Fiberglass, made of canvas. Its qualities, as a casing medium for a new type of glass, durability non-splintering or cracking are the same which make it widely used in home remodeling and new construction in residential, commercial, and industrial fields.

A Fiberglass panel, then, used as a fireplace closure and painted or otherwise decorated combines function and beauty. Instead of a painting by some talented member of the family or friend, the panel may be covered with a blowup of a favorite snapshot. Decalcomanias are another alternative, or the smooth-surfaced material may be painted or enameled.

Since the artistic motif is involved, it's wise to have the panel easily removable so that the scene may be changed from time to time. The simplest way to install the quarter-inch panel for its dual purpose is to fasten a framework of 1 x 2 lumber in the opening and then attach the hard-board with quarter-inch screws inserted through drilled holes at the corners and intermediate points.

Until 1750 when Dr. Thomas Walker made extensive explorations in the Cumberland River area, Kentucky was a virtually uncharted part of the royal colony of Virginia.

Despite a declaration of neutrality by Kentucky during the Civil War, both the Union and the Confederacy invaded and fought on her soils before the cessation of hostilities.

Until the coming of the white man, and for many years thereafter, Kentucky was the hunting ground for roving bands of Algonquin, Iroquois, Cherokee and Chickasaw Indians.

There were found the Savior sweet to their soul. Four came by letter. I want to invite everyone to come out and lend a helping hand in God's work. I want fathers and mothers to pray more in these days than they ever prayed before. God's children have gone back on him and he suffers for it. Just think about the boys that are giving their lives so we can go and worship God. And then some people will go other places and won't go to church. Oh- God bless in these days of trouble, send down your spirit in these days as you did on the day of Pentecost. I want each one to come out to Fairview Church Sunday. Brother Dean is going to have a surprise for each mother. Come praying that God will bless and know that he answers prayer. Sunday is mother's day. Let's all go to church some place Sunday. Remember Mother on her day. God bless the saints and sinners in my hearts prayer. John M. Abney, Boone, Ky.

5,965 Receive Social Security Aid

Checks for insurance payments under Federal social security went to 5,965 aged persons, children and their widowed mothers in the Lexington service area for December 1951.

In releasing these figures today, R. A. Tweedy, manager of the Lexington social security office, also said that these monthly payments under the old-age and survivors insurance program amounted to $170,213.

In this area. "Without these payments earned by workers under the contributory system, the ability of many people to pay for necessities would have been drastically curtailed or entirely ended," he said. More than one third of all people over 65 in the United States could not count on income from work for support, were getting social security insurance benefits.

Tweedy pointed out that this Federal program is affording substantial survivor insurance protection. Three out of every four mothers and young children in the Nation are now assured of monthly payments if the insured breadwinner of the family dies.

In this connection, he cited monthly payments totaling $42,935.00 to 1,514 children, and 229 widowed mothers in the Lexington area. These monthly payments are going to families deprived of earned income by the untimely death of the wage earner. They are making it possible to keep families together, and keep children in school, and, at the same time, lessening the drain on both public and private welfare funds, he declared. Rockcastle county totals: 173 individuals, $4,361.

RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

THIS DANCE, save for the fact that there were a number of new men present due to the annual mid-winter vacation at the university, was not unlike a dozen others Amalia had attended at the country club. If anything, she was more popular. She cut in on her before she had lost 10 steps with him. She loved it. She had acquired a poise that kept men wondering, encouraged them, yet was impartial.

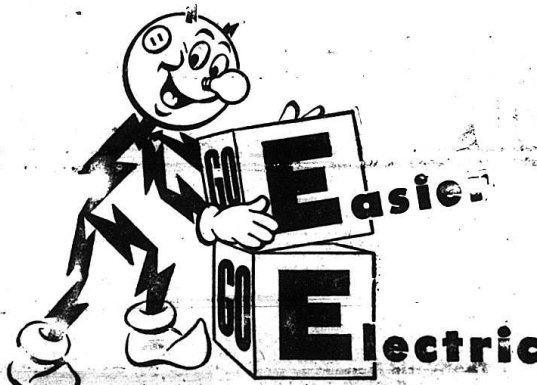

As the evening wore on she began to notice the good looking blond who danced continuously with Beulah Wynna. Not that she begrudged Beulah the attentions of a good looking man. The poor thing deserved it. But it struck Amalia as queer that the blond hadn't cut in on her. At first he had been merely one of a dozen youths whom she didn't know. By 11 o'clock he stood out from the rest. He hadn't asked her to dance, he hadn't sought an introduction, he hadn't even looked at her in that way which Amalia was so used to.

AMALIA FOUND HERSELF being annoyed. She was accustomed to having strange young men seek her out. When Winston Coburn swung her away in the next dance she said: "Who's your good-looking boy friend, Wint?" She had looked the blond talking to Wint. Wint looked down at her. "Which one?" he asked and just then the blond sid by with Beulah Wynna and she nodded toward him. "Oh, him! Why that's Wintrop Akers. A nice boy. He's down with Jim Oliver for the week-end. Met him?" "Who?" Amalia evaded. "Jim or Mr. Akers?" She had seen Dave

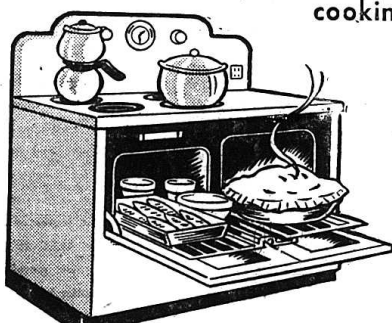

"I'm Wintrop Akers," he explained. "We haven't been introduced, have we?" It was a blow to her pride that he didn't know who she was. She knew a quick anger, but smothered it. "No," she said. "I'm Amalia Yennerton." And waited. But that name had no effect on him. He said: "Well, what's in a name, any how? I'm fed up with this dance. Let's drive somewhere."

AMALIA WAS OVERWHELMED. He was so casual about it. Didn't he know that every man there was dying to take her home? Wint Coburn came up and asked her to dance, but she shook her head. Wint stared at her queerly and stared at Wintrop Akers. She expelled him to park, and was determined, as present any advances he might make. But she didn't get the chance. They had hot chocolate at a country roadhouse and then drove home. Wintrop didn't try to kiss her good night. Amalia felt that the evening wasn't entirely victorious.

The next day Wintrop called up and asked her to have dinner with him. She agreed. He arrived wearing glasses. The glasses didn't improve his looks any, but she forgave her before the evening had begun. They went to a theater after dinner. The next day and the next Wintrop called and took her out. Amalia was amazed at herself. She canceled dates right and left. She found herself looking forward to being with Wintrop. She wasn't used to this sort of thing. It was a week before she realized she was in love. It was a strange feeling, but wholly delightful. THAT NIGHT Wintrop asked her to marry him. "Tomorrow vi-

Vocational Education

Vocational education is "in a very real sense a hybrid" insofar as organization is concerned in Kentucky, it was reported today by the Legislative Research Commission in a staff report on the subject, and added that it is "a significant phase."

Dr. Arthur Y. Lloyd, Commission director, observed that "some extent it is part of the secondary school program, and yet an important portion deals with out of school groups."

The report observed that at the state level vocational education administration is assigned to a Bureau of the State Department of Education, and in some respects the Bureau operates apart from the rest of the department with limited co-ordination.

"This condition has been fostered by the lack of strong, positive leadership at the top of the department," according to the report, a condition which "in turn can be traced to the fact that the Superintendent of Public Instruction is an elected official limited to a respectively short term of office."

The people will vote next year on a Constitutional amendment for a short ballot which, if adopted, would authorize the General Assembly to remove the Superintendent from the list of elected officials.

The report points out that "a certain amount of duplication is inherent and inevitable under the existing setup."

For instance, vocational agriculture and home economics education in Kentucky, high schools are important parts of the vocational education program, while practically all trade and industrial training takes place in thirteen area trade schools, three of which are operated by the state, one by a college and nine by local boards of education.

How to Cut Square Opening

TO CUT a square or rectangular opening with round corners in a piece of wood or similar board, holes of the proper radius should be drilled at the corners. Then you can saw straight down from one hole to the other.

next. This will assure that the opening will be of the dimensions wanted and that the corners will have the correct radius. To cut a similar opening with square shoulders, use a similar technique, drilling small-diameter holes at the corners with their outer edges tangent to the sides of the rectangle. Proceed as above. Then square off the small area in each corner with a file. Illustration, courtesy of Popular Mechanics.
