STATE OFFICE CLINIC TREATS 5,000 PATIENTS Nearly 5,000 cases were treated in the first aid room maintained for State employees in the State Office Building here during the last year, Mrs. Margie F. Hofmeister, nurse in charge, reported today. The room serves some 1,500 persons who work in the building, the building annex, the annex to the Old State Capitol and the State Police barracks. Protection given the employees cost the State about one-fifth of what the same service costs in most office and plant clinics of a similar type, according to Mrs. Hofmeister. "A cost of $15 a person a year is considered in most places to be a minimum for this kind of operation but we operated on a budget that called for only $3.15 an employee," she reported. Mrs. Hofmeister said that many of the 4,894 cases treated were of a serious nature and that there is no way of estimating the value of the first aid room, which was opened only 15 months ago by the Department of Finance, under which it operates. "We gave emergency treatment to 16 persons with heart attacks during the last year and have treated a large number of heat victims during the last few days. The time taken to get them to a hospital could have been quite serious to the patients." Colds, flu and sore throats were the most common ailments treated, accounting for 873 cases. A number of other minor ailments constituted a large part of the remainder of the cases, but there were also 188 cases of heat exhaustion and sunstroke, a number of eye injuries, of a serious type, in addition to the heart attacks. Mrs. Hofmeister will be in charge of first aid in the Capitol Annex when officers are opened there, and Mrs. Jane May will be the nurse in charge of the present clinic.

BATTLE JOINED GOP, Democrats Are Setting Stage For Free-Swinging Campaigns

As the Democrats this week paraded their big-name leaders before their lusty national convention in Chicago in a full-blown attempt to match or better the resounding antics of the GOP convalesce two weeks ago, the stage was being set for a free-swinging election campaign, in the interval between now and November 4.

The party of Roosevelt and Truman, which had clouded up convention floor. They told the entire story, and it is the more remarkable because there were only four ballots cast from Monday, July 7, to Friday.

It was shortly after the opening session had begun that the Eisenhower camp defeated the Taftites on the "Fair Play" amendment by a roll call vote of 659 to 548. The action barred all contested delegates in the convention from voting on anything until they were finally and officially seated, but it also permitted the seating of those who had been placed on the temporary roll by a two-thirds vote of the national committee.

That automatically narrowed the much-battled convention to Texas, Georgia, and part of Louisiana, and sent the convention's credentials committee into a rugged search for a less than two-thirds majority for a full day.

The floor was set, and the following day the convention voted 670 to 531 to repudiate the credentials committee which had recommended set for the previous free-administered the coup de grace to Taft's hopes with Warren Burger's climactic announcement from the floor that the states wanted to change his 19 States votes in favor of Eisenhower.

That gave the general 614 votes and put him in. Only 604 votes—a simple majority of the 1,209 delegates—were required for nomination.

After that the states rushed hysterically to get on the bandwagon, screaming for the attention of Chairman Joe Martin so that they could get their votes officially changed to Eisenhower.

Final abolition when the roll call closed was Eisenhower 645, Taft 230, Warren 77, MacArthur 4.

Move for Unanimity The move for the selection of Eisenhower by acclamation, made by Sen. John Bricker of Ohio, and its approval by the delegates was rather week-weeked aftermath to the bone-baking drama of the ballot itself.

There were other great moments in the convention—MacArthur's stirring keynote address, the overwhelming demonstration accorded ex-President Herbert Hoover, Sen. Everett Dirksen's blistering and vitriolic attack on Dewey—but by that historic Friday afternoon, July 11, they all seemed pale in comparison to the first-and-last ballot for the presidential nomination.

The Democrats this week have had all that to think over, and it is almost certain that the wondrous drama of the GOP meeting will have a strong effect on the ultimate decision the Democratic party makes as to its candidate to oppose the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket.

Nevertheless, the convention strife had out deeply into party harmony. For the Republicans really whopped it up to a series of bitter floor battles and behind-the-scenes maneuvers.

It was no "smoke-filled room" convention. To be sure, there were promises and counter-promises and deals within deals; but the Eisenhower forces chose the battling ground most favorable to them—the teeming, destiny-struck convention floor.

First Session Drama Taft's convention machinery was well-oiled when Guy Gabrielson's gavel pounded down at the opening session; but from that point on it seemed to get more and more gummed up as the convention moved ahead.

The snail got into the Taft gears as a result of three ballots on the FARMERS PICNIC The annual Rockcastle Farm Bureau picnic was held at the Brodhead Fair Grounds last Friday, all day, and proved to be one of the successful events that the farmers of the county feature in behalf of the Farm Bureau membership. All day long the games and contests were carried on by interested participants. During the noon hour baskets of food were spread out on tables or on the lawn wherever there was room for food to be spread out. There were stands where watermelons could be purchased as well as soft drinks and sandwiches.

After the picnic lunch, Bill Norton, president of the Farm Bureau, called the crowd together for some music furnished by a quartet, after which followed the first drawing of the afternoon. The lucky ticket was drawn by Mr. Reynolds. It was a mix-master machine. Winners of the registered Hampshire pigs were Aster Burdette and W. P. Wright.

In the horseshoe pitching contest the winners were Marshall Laswell and T. G. Laswell. In the marble contest the winners were W. H. Brown and Marshall Laswell.

Some of the most exciting contests had to do with foot races, tug of war, and husband calling contests. There was no prize in the tug of war but the contest was close. At one time the tug was so powerful that the rope broke and spilled the contestants.

In the husband calling contest Mrs. Oliver Dowell won first place and in the rolling pin throwing contest Mrs. Geraldine Wynn won first place. Minerva Gean won the chicken calling contest. Willis Thompson won the 100 yard dash for the men and Byron Owens for the boys. In the girls' foot race Geraldine Wynn won first place. In the sack race Byron Owen won first place.

Farmers to Hold Annual Field Day July 25

Study to be made on Henry Brown's Farm at Quail and note improvement of farm since face lifting took place.

The farmers of Rockcastle County will hold their annual field day on Friday July 25 on the Henry Brown farm near Quail. This is an annual event for the farmers of this county for the purpose of studying certain phases of agriculture within the borders of their community. This year the Field Day will take note of the improvement of the farm crops on this particular farm since the face lifting that took place two years ago. It was in September 1950 that the Soil Conservation Service managed a complete face lifting on Mr. Brown's farm. Big bulldozers and scrapers and other removing machinery was used to make over the farm. The machines came from dealers who handle this kind of machinery and who donated their services just to show what can be done with them. Mr. Brown had to pay as much as $2,700 extra for making over his farm. Did it pay? Well, he thinks it did. The crops look better than ever. The value of the farm has increased many fold. The farmers and business men are asked to visit the place next week and see what the face lifting has accomplished. A study will be made of pasture land, of corn, tobacco, hay, poultry, beef cattle, buildings and ponds. Specialists will be representatives of the University of Kentucky, of the College of Agriculture, of Berea College and of the Soil Conservation Service. Mr. Clay Colton of the S.C.S. and Robert Spence, County Agents and others who have helped make this program possible, extend a hearty invitation to all farmers and others to come and enjoy the Field Day.

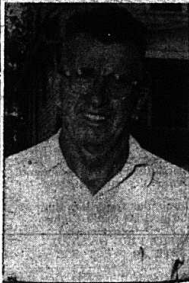

GIGGLES AND HER PLAYMATES

By Betty Barnes Jones

Giggles was a little hill-country girl. Her eyes were as blue as the blue skies in the heavens. Her hair was the color of July corn silks. Giggles' mother brushed Giggles' hair every day after breakfast until it looked like a satin ribbon. Then she braided it in two braides, one on each side of Giggles' head just behind her little ears, and tied the heavy long braids with a bright red ribbon. The ribbon looked very pretty tied on Giggles' corn-silk yellow hair. Just before getting her hair brushed, Giggles also got her face scrubbed with a little soap and water, until there was not a bit of dirt left on her rosy-red cheeks. Giggles then would go get her very own little mug with her name on it. She always kept her toothbrush in the mug. Her mother would give her some water in the mug, from the red cedar bucket with brass hoops. The bucket was always kept on a shelf beside the kitchen floor. The shelf was (Continued on page 4)

Girl Hurt when Truck sideswipes car

Miss Claudia Dillingham of near Level Creek was hospitalized for several days when she was injured in a car and truck collision at the junction of 461 and 150 just west of Mt. Vernon last Sunday evening at about 8:30 o'clock. The car was driven by Dale Blanton of Spiro. In the car with Blanton were the two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Dillingham. The car driven by Blanton was just coming off route 461 onto 150 when a big Silver Fleet truck was coming down the hill. The truck was just passing another car and was therefore in the lane of Mr. Blanton's car. A head on collision was inevitable and the big truck sheared off the left front wheel of the Chevrolet and crushed in the front part of the car. It was a miracle that the two girls and boy escaped with their lives. Miss Dillingham had some cuts and bruises. She was taken to the Stanford hospital where she remained for several days. She returned to her home Wednesday.

Wild Strawberry

WILD STRAWBERRY

The big red strawberries that taste so good with shortcake and cream come from plants growing in home gardens and on truck farms. They are carefully tended to make them produce berries that are just right for eating fresh or for making into preserves.

There was a time, though, when the only strawberries to be had were wild ones growing in fields. To get the tasty fruit in those days, you had to take a basket and search for a berry patch.

If you were living in the eastern half of the United States, the chances are that you would have found good picking. That is the region where the Wild Strawberry has been abundant for years. It is still plentiful from New England to Florida and west of Oklahoma and South Dakota.

The place to look for the plant, says the National Wildlife Federation, is in fields, pastures, and grassy slopes. It grows out in the open where there is sunshine to keep the ground dry and to ripen the fruit in the late spring.

Like cultivated strawberries, the Wild Strawberry is a low plant -- from three to nine inches high -- that spreads over the ground. It grows from runners, or shoots, which reach out and take root at many places.

Fastened to the runners are leaves, growing in clusters of three leaflets apiece. Each leaflet has coarse teeth along its edges and a rough, hairy surface. It is about two inches long. Here and there among the leaves are small white flowers. Each flower is from a half to three fourths of an inch in diameter and has five round, white petals.

Attached to the same stalks that bear the flowers are the sweet red berries. Though not as large and attractive in shape as cultivated strawberries, the wild ones look and taste very much like the kind that come from gardens.

As you might guess, the reason for the resemblance is that Wild Strawberries are the ancestors of the garden variety. By working with the wild plants experts have produced the strawberries which we cultivate. Wild Strawberries now rank second to their tame cousins, but they still furnish fruit for eating. And wherever they grow, they perform a useful service by clinging to the ground and protecting the soil against erosion.

AIR TOURS TO SHOW GOOD SOIL PRACTICES

Three soil conservation air tours have been scheduled for Kentucky communities during July and August and more may be arranged later. The tours will be sponsored by local soil conservation districts with the help of other local organizations, the State Division of Soil and Water Resources and the State Department of Aeronautics, to show good conservation practices. They are scheduled for Shelby and Henry counties at the Shelbyville airport July 22; for Union County at the Sturgis airport July 24, and for Graves County at the Mayfield airport Aug. 28. Flights will be held all day and agricultural and equipment exhibits will be operated on the ground for those awaiting their turn to fly. A briefing period will precede each flight. Farms to be studied will be numbered to be easily spotted from the air.

In similar tours last summer, 1,350 persons made flights.

FOREST FIRE HAZARD EXISTS IN WEST KY.

Although the forest fire season in Kentucky has passed, Harrod B. Newland, Director of the State Division of Forestry, announced today that because of the continued dry spell a fire hazard exists in most of West Kentucky, west of a line from Henderson to Bowling Green. All persons were urged to take extreme caution with fire in woods and forests in all dry areas throughout the state.

Because of the situation in west Kentucky, Newland said that R. H. King, District Forester for the Green River District, with headquarters in Greenville, has alerted fire-fighting forces in that district and is ready to call look-out watchers back to the fire towers if necessary.

Newland said that four unusual fires during June in Carter, Hopkins and Muhlenberg Counties have destroyed 1 1/2 acres of land. He offered these rules to hold down forest fires:

1. Be sure all matches are completely out.
2. Crush out all smokes before throwing away.
3. Down all campfires thoroughly.
4. In using fire to clear field or fence rows, to burn brush or trash, burn on calm days only; have help and tools on hand and kill all sparks.

In the first half of 1952, during what is usually considered the fire season, Newland said that 33,609 acres of timber were destroyed in 1,302 fires throughout the state in an intensely protected area of 4,639,987 acres.

The largest acreage destroyed, 4,388 acres, was in Pike County. The protected area in this county is the largest in Kentucky, covering 431,842 acres. Ten acres of timber destroyed in Livingston County with a protected 70,500 acres was the smallest acreage destroyed in a county.

IT WAS July, and in July the mountain, in whose bosom nestled the quaint little hotel, was heavenly. Few guests had arrived; they had the hotel and surrounding country almost to themselves.

had agreed not to do so. But he didn't, not trying to see her because a matter of honor; yet his heart was still in that time.

Neither had known such a glorious six-days as those which followed. When it was over, John said: "We'll go back to New York together. We'll be married on the way."

He was ill for some time not getting any better. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Martin and family spent Sunday with Mrs. Martin Vanzant of Jonnetta.

But Helen shook her head. "We can't, John. It wouldn't be fair to either of us. Everything that has happened here has been wonderful, too wonderful to go back might change it. We're not sure. We must test our love for your sake and mine. For the sake of the future. Test it by parting, by staying apart for a year. That's the only real way to do it."

Mr. Willie Northern who has been ill for some time is not getting any better. Mr. and Mrs. David L. Henderson of Richmond, Ky. were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jascen Cox Saturday and Sunday.

Of course, "He understood perfectly. He kissed her. "A year, my sweet, I'll love you a thousand times more. How long will be that year, yet how glorious the reunion!" He looked away down the side of the mountain. "July 23, next year, we'll meet in my apartment, for dinner. And after dinner we'll go out and get married."

He was ill for some time not getting any better. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cox and family of Berea spent Sunday with Andy Cox and family. Most everyone around this part are picking berries for home use and some for market.

The practicality of which they made their plans caused them both to laugh. With their arms about each other it seemed so silly, so utterly ridiculous.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Proctor, and son Larry Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hoskins and daughter of Cin. Ohio were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mode Hamm and other relatives last week.

But they were intelligent, mature people and both could see the logic of such a scheme. And so they parted. John went back to Philadelphia and to his architectural desk. At first it was hard, unbearable. His thoughts were constantly with Helen. Now that they were apart his imagination played easy tricks. Had she really loved him? Could it be that the plan she had suggested was merely a stratagem to make their parting easy, dramatic? Had she been amusing herself with him? It retrospect he went over every minute of the week they had spent together. No, he decided, she must love him. No girl could give as much as she unless the giving were provoked by a deep and sincere devotion.

He pictured her out west, counting the days until July 2. Now that he had come to his senses he could look at the thing clearly, could appraise. Gradually he began to forget. He scowled. It was going to be a little hard now than ruin her whole future life.

found a little stray kitten. She brought it home and asked her mother if she might keep it. She was told she could, if she would feed and see after it. This she agreed to do. This was her first pet and Giggles was so thrilled she bounded across the road to tell Beannie about the pretty little kitty she had found.

Almost out of breath, she said, "Beannie, I bet you can't guess what I found." "I don't know, maybe a woolly worm," he answered grumpily. "No, it isn't a woolly worm. It is the prettiest little kitty-cat you ever wanted to see." "Where did you find it?" Beannie asked. "It was lost out in the blackberry field back of our house." "I bet it has sore eyes," Beannie said, just to be smart-alecky. "How did you know it has sore eyes?" Anyhow, it is cute and pretty, it is yellow and has a white ring around its tail. Mother said if I will take good care of it, I can put some sweet milk in its eyes."

Giggles went home, put some milk in the kitten's eyes and named it "Ringtail". Copyright Mrs. Roy E. Jones
