SECOND WIND
By Ada McElfresh

IT WAS Spring again and Joe was restless. And miserable. Tormented with the bitter truth that he—"The Great Lefty Cramer," they had called him last Fall in what had amounted to an obituary for the part of him that was baseball—was, in his own words, "the great has-been."

To Joe's way of thinking he was through. And since he was through, he was no good for Julie. He seemed to have forgotten that their wedding vows had included "in sickness and in health" and "till death do us part." Julie bit her lip. Joe mustn't see her fear.

She looked up, smiling, but he walked past her, toward the bedroom closet where he kept his treasures. His mitt and mask (he wore when he did double-duty behind the plate, the ball with which he had tapped Granddaddy out as the big slugger galloped toward home plate.

"Darling—" Impulsively, Julie went to stand beside him. "You've had to slow down. All right. Lots of men do. But you'll get your second wind. You can do things we can do things—together, like we always have."

"What for instance?" he demanded bitterly, without looking at her. "Collect stamps? Or hunt for God's sake, Julie, can't you let me alone?"

He slammed out of the house catcher's mitt and mask clutched in one hand, the precious game-winning ball in the other. But Joe didn't come. He still hadn't come by mid-afternoon. But Joe wouldn't do anything, he's too sensible. Julie told herself. He's just waiting off his huff. But walking—fast—Suddenly frantic, Julie jumped up from her chair by the window. Dear God—please! He wasn't down by the river, where he usually walked. He wasn't at the cigar store on the corner, where he often swapped tales with oldtimers. Julie hurried into the warm-for-April late afternoon sun, her mind shut against the unreasoning fear that rose again and again. Joe's heart, his pallid stubbly beard.

She paused, out of necessity to catch her breath, aware of the loud shouts of small boys without knowing—or caring—what they were shouting about.

"Eye on the ball now—watch it!" Cracked.

That voice! It did dear, familiar yet almost forgotten, happy voice!

He didn't see her at first. Joe didn't, but he was happy. She could tell from the way he stood, feet apart, hands on hips, watching the kid with the bat. It had been a lousy sweat but what did that matter?

Julie stood, transfixed, as the ball rolled toward her. Joe was looking at her now, not grinning, just looking. Julie caught her breath. What if he weren't? What if she were the one who was wrong—wrong for Joe?

Quickly she scooped up the ball, which had rolled to her feet and stopped briefly. As surely she held the ball to get the feel of it—it had been so long, she realized suddenly—and, drawing her arm back, let it fly like a homing pigeon straight for the plate.

Joe's grin was slow. He held out his arms and she ran into them.

"I'm getting that second wind you've been harping on. I mean, he said long kisses later. "I can take that job at the cigar store and still have time to catch the kids that towneed looks like another Slugger Andrus."

"He does, doesn't he?" Lousy sweat and all, she thought. But if Joe said so—"Let's make him better still. The second Lefty Cramer—" she giggled—"even if he is a right-hander."

For answer, she first Lefty Cramer planted a hearty, approving kiss on her lips.

Ky. Welfare Assn. District VII Meets At Renfro

Professor Frank H. Smith of Berea speaks on recreational activities to help communities.

District VII of the Kentucky Welfare Association held its quarterly luncheon meeting on Thursday, January 28, 1954, at the Renfro Valley Lodge. The meeting was called to order by the President, Professor J. R. Henderson, of Union College. Invocation was given by Mr. Walter Chestnut, Louisville, who was elected First Vice President due to the resignation of Mr. William S. Murphy of Somerset.

Professor Henderson gave a brief explanation of KWA, stating that a community looks up to doctors, lawyers and other professional people and that it is time social workers became organized, selling the importance of their work as a professional people to all. Americanism Essay Contest

Every country has its shrine, the beginning of an era. In the Continental Congress, Philadelphia. In it democracy had its birth. It is in need of restoration. It is our duty to carry out the two objectives of the Independence Hall Restoration project, as sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs, an essay contest will be conducted. The two objectives of the Independence Hall Restoration project are:

(a) Reviewing the struggles for freedom preceding and during the historic events which took place in Independence Hall—the Continental Congress, the adoption of the Declaration of Independence and the drafting of the Constitution of the United States of America.

(b) Raising funds to restore this great shrine of liberty—Independence Hall, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Of the student elementary and High school students are entering this contest. The subject of the essay is "What America Means to Me." Rules and carefully selected information have been sent to the Americanism Committee of the Mt. Vernon Womens Club, to the teachers as aids for the contestants.

Prizes will be given locally, then all essays entered will be sent to National Headquarters for final judging.

Encourage the teachers and pupils in your community by your interest and enthusiasm in their project, and see that each child has a penny to contribute to the Restoration of our National shrine. Think of the dollars that will grow from the pennies of the school children of America!

Every child and every adult should help.

800 Didn't Go!

There were 800 people in Mt. Vernon who did not go to Sunday school last Sunday morning. Yes, indeed, the Baptist Church had a good group. The Christian Church had Sunday school. The Nazarene church had 92. But there were 800 who did not go to Sunday school.

Brother Lewis of New York is holding a Revival for the Nazarene Church and has challenged this Sunday, to break the Attendance record. Now that record is 187. To break it we will need the HELP of all our friends. There are posters appearing around town. Folks are inviting others. We urge you to come to the Nazarene church Monday afternoon and lodge in the local jail. There was no breath of liquor except that sweat scented water, so said the jailer. But he was surely knocked out and it took all night to thaw the man off of his stupor. Next morning he talked and talked and talked from Casey County, Liberty.

When the reporter left he wanted it to be known that he was a good judge and a good jailer. There ought to be a law to make those guys work hard to earn their keep. It isn't fair to us taxpayers to let those fellows sit and rest and sleep and eat, without nothing to do.

Milton Smith, son-in-law of Frank Reynolds, both from Brodhead, received a severe bullet wound in his groin when a 22 calibre rifle is claimed to have been fired accidentally in the hands of Mr. Reynolds. The accident happened last Monday afternoon at about two o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith who live near the Fair Grounds. Just what happened is not clear from the facts gathered so far, but it is believed that Mr. Reynolds was still in a stupor caused by an assault he suffered from the hands of some known assailants last Saturday night or by the drinking of some intoxicating liquor. When Mr. Reynolds was brought to the county jail on Monday afternoon he was unable to explain what happened.

On Tuesday the reporter saw Mr. Reynolds in his cell. His right eye was black, his face was badly bruised. Upon questioning the reporter, Mr. Reynolds did not mention the shooting, but remembered that some hoodlums broke into his home on Saturday night, beat him up, stole his radio, his watch and took all the money he had. On Monday Mrs. Smith brought her father to her home to recuperate and it was then that she took the rifle which he claims went off accidentally. But the bullet wounded his son-in-law who in turn fought Reynolds with his fists, an injury to the nose and a broken jaw. Milton Smith was taken to the Stanford Hospital by the Watson ambulance. Mr. Smith's condition is not considered serious and no vital organs were damaged irreparably.

Mr. Reynolds is not a man of ill-will and the reporter was told that a "good would be looking for a good would be the last thing that he would want to inflict on anyone and especially his own son. In his best moments he earns a good living by his drilling and perhaps some readers will remember when Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Shaw, daughter and son-in-law of the Reynolds' were killed in an airplane crash on Aug. 6, 1950. Mrs. Reynolds is keeping the two children who survive in her home in Crab Orchard.

Model In Style Show

Miss Nancy Lair of Renfro Valley, a sophomore at Centre College, was a model in the Style show, "Accent on Fashion," which was held recently in the Centre College Women's Division Chapel.

Mrs. Lair is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lair of Renfro Valley. She is a graduate of Mt. Vernon High School in the class of 1952 where she was outstanding in school activities. Centre students in the science of Homemaking and the Advanced Clothing classes modeled all types of clothes as a review of their semester's work.

Following the show a reception was held in the Centre women's community room with the show's audience being introduced to the participants.

Centre maintains separate campuses for its women and men students but most classes and social functions are held jointly. It is a coordinate system of education similar to that of Harvard-Radcliffe and Tulane-Sophie Newcomb.

SOIL TESTING MADE PRACTICABLE

The testing of soil is a must in many states if farmers are to receive any assistance under the ASCP (formerly ACP) for the application of minerals—lime or fertilizer—to their soils in connection with conservation practices carried out. The soil test requirement is administered in many different ways. Some of the most stringent plans call for the taking of samples only by trained soil specialists or testing them in laboratories equipped only with electric potentiometers.

One of the leading Eastern Agricultural Colleges has recognized the impracticability of trying to funnel all soil sampling and analysis work through a small number of technicians and laboratories. In this State the Extension Service has put out about 15,000 soil test kits mostly to farmers and expects to double this figure in the next year. With these kits the testing in most areas of the state is approved by local Committees if done by the farmer, vocational agricultural teachers, county agent, fieldmen or local dealers.

These are the two extremes in the approved methods of soil testing in order to qualify for assistance under the ASCP. Undoubtedly the most restrictive methods will give the most accurate results. However, it is questionable whether 100% accuracy on a restricted number of farms is more desirable than less perfection on the vast majority of our farm lands particularly in testing soil acidity or Ph which can be corrected by an inexpensive application of agricultural limestone. Farmers who take their own samples and make their own tests will not only save considerable time but will gain much in experience and learn more about the soil fertility problems of the fields on their farms than by merely seeing the results tabulated on a sheet of paper. With some instruction from a qualified or experienced soil tester most farmers can do a reasonably accurate job of testing their soils. In the long run our soils will be in better condition if the farmers themselves are trained to recognize soil deficiencies and how to correct them. Farmer testing is a practical step in this direction.

RAMBLINGS

The Bloodmobile unit will be at Berea on Tuesday February 9th. Citizens of this community who wish to donate blood should get in touch with Mr. and Mrs. Luther Hellard, telephone 438-7 Berea for an appointment. The bloodmobile will be made at Union Church. It will be of interest to state here that Mr. T. C. O'Mara of Mt. Vernon is a regular contributor in the blood program. His own brother William of Dallas, Texas owes his life to blood transfusion given to him at the College Hospital when an emergency existed. Mr. O'Mara wants the public to know that this program is in the interest of the health of any person who might find himself or herself in need of blood during a serious illness. The bloodmobile unit needs 140 pints of blood.

Last week I stated that the movie MARTIN LUTHER was to be shown at last week when I should have given the correct dates. These dates are Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of Feb. 7, 8, 9, 10. The picture is one worth seeing.

Quite a number of persons are interested in the construction of U. S. 25 between Roundstone and Berea. I may say that the only visible evidence at present of construction going on is the presence of surveying parties. Almost every day men are taking measurements. This morning (Wednesday) the men were working at Boone Gap. No road machinery has as yet been moved into the area and I am not certain when construction will begin. As soon as I can furnish any definite information I will let the readers know.

Some one lost a lot of good corn one night last week. All the way from Roundstone to Mt. Vernon and beyond the trucker who was driving the corn left a yellow trail on the right curbing. Apparently the man had a full truck bed of shelled corn which he probably purchased in Ohio and was transporting it to the south. The loss must have been considerable and the only benefit will be the birds and rodents, provided they can pick it up without being killed.

Letter to the Editor
Editor of Mt. Vernon Signal
Dear Sir:

I think I will be located for a few weeks at this hotel. Will you please change my Signal to this address. I have read it most of the time, from its beginning, so I need it especially since it tells about these new folks that I would not hear from otherwise. You are making it out of a fine newspaper of its size. Congratulations. I hope I will get it while here. Thanks in advance

By Alfred Sparks, Jr.

"Whatsoever a man sows, so shall he reap."
An old fashioned saying, but never the less, true to this day, and a definite truism for centuries to come. Did you ever notice the great inner feeling of warmth and happiness that comes when you grant a favor to a person in need of one?

EASY DOES IT
Baked peas, are a wonderful dessert for family dinners. Peel, core and halve them in a buttered baking-dish. Drizzle with honey and sprinkle with cake of cookie crumbs which have been mixed with sugar and cinnamon. Bake in a 30 minute oven. Peas are tender in a moderate oven.

Tried a tapioca pudding lately? Youngsters love them especially if you dress up the pudding with honey and sprinkle with cake of cookie crumbs which have been mixed with sugar and cinnamon. Baked peas are tender in a moderate oven. Nutritious desserts as well as pretty ones should be on the menu often. Unmold baked custard into serving dishes, and surround with some canned fruits or berries.

If you want a real treat try cooking some fresh, peeled pears in cranberry juice, with a bit of sugar added for sweetening. These are lovely served over slices of sponge or pound cake.

Here's a nice novel bread pudding, lay sweetened, cooked, dried apricots with quartered marshmallows and toasted bread cubes. Moistened with cream from apricots and bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes.

Here's a good variation for ambrosia: use mixed fruit cocktail with sliced bananas, tangerine sections and coconut.

Use cranberries for your shortcake, by thickening and flavoring them. Four over shortcake dough and bake in a moderately hot oven until the cake is done, about 30 minutes.

PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

NOW, YOU, like my young son. At twenty months he was quite a conversationalist, not widely varied, but capable of really interesting his parents when caught in any minor act of malfeasance. Whenever caught, in the red, or post fact, he quickly said he was sorry and, as far as he was concerned, that ended the matter completely. That's the panacea. If you've done something wrong, be sorry, and do it in a "cute" way. A good example happened one day, while we were sitting on the porch. The grown-ups were in the parlor, the kids at play when the dog broke. From behind the closed door, a very powerful stream of water, coming from the living room, fell on the parlor, wetting rug, feet, everything.

When we opened the door of the kitchen, we found him, still on his knees, turning on the water, with top up, without dishes, sprayed ceiling, walls and intruders generously.

But the culprit was master of the situation. Nephewishly repeating the great phrase, "I'm sorry," he was to be belted across the room to determine if there was anything about the story that might be worth investigating.

It's a favorite story for Gus, and she tells it with flourish, describing her dad dash down the basement stairs in pursuit of a burglar with a giggling child, pursued by a man who couldn't run well with a belt in his pants. The burglar was holding up his trousers. Major punishment in the whole affair was inflicted on U-know-who, tripped by a trouser curl on the bottom step.

How often we have said to ourselves "It is so much better to give than receive." Therefore we all take great satisfaction in knowing that we are in a position to grant a favor instead of asking for one.

While it may not be the proper thing to do, never the less believe we all take consolation in other peoples miseries accompanied to our own. It seems that everything in life is measured by comparisons and, strangely enough, though we give this favor without thought of return, almost invariably our good fortune increases almost immediately.

Try giving with your heart, and not your mind, and the result will bring about great joy and happiness.

All with the great cry going out over the nation for the March Of Dimes, what better time can you find than now to start giving from the heart, for this is such a worthy cause. Please Give!!!!

News from other editors

From the Broadhead Courier: During the last week of the year, the country accepted the view that bugs programs authorized by the outgoing regular made it impossible to balance Federal expenditures and revenues.

It was disturbing to hear Treasury Secretary Humphrey - a strong advocate of economy - recently that the "habit of extravagance" is ingrained as deeply in government that the deficit may be nearly $5,000,000,000.

Mr. Humphrey was correct in saying our government is reaped what it sows. The future has one reason why the people voted for a change in 1932.

If the Eisenhower Administration should be as successful as the entrenched Federal bureaucracy and deal courageously with pressure groups asking handouts, the folks will be its own. Future deficits cannot be blamed on past Administrations.

From the South Pasadena Review, South Pasadena, California: Ten years ago (1943) total taxes were only one-fourth of what they were in 1953. And as to spending, it is estimated that the federal government spent twice as much last year as in 1943 despite the fact that we were in a shooting war a decade ago. Gads! Think of the expense if we ever got to a genuine peace.

From the South Pasadena Review, South Pasadena, California: Ten years ago (1943) total taxes were only one-fourth of what they were in 1953. And as to spending, it is estimated that the federal government spent twice as much last year as in 1943 despite the fact that we were in a shooting war a decade ago. Gads! Think of the expense if we ever got to a genuine peace.
